After the division of the twelve tribes of Israel, the kingdom continued in a divided state, and since the overthrow of Judah, there has been no kingdom. A time is coming, however, when Israel's kingdom will be restored and the twelve tribes united again—the Scripture promising that they will no more be two kingdoms. Hosea prophesied: "The children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall fear the Lord and his goodness in the latter days" (3:4, 5). Briefly, David will be resurrected to be their king at that time.

W. G. Moffet

Speaking of the restoration of Israel, Jeremiah prophesied: "Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it. For it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burst thy bonds, and strangers shall no more serve themselves of him: but they shall serve the Lord their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them. Therefore fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid" (30:7-10). These words of the Lord by Jeremiah, like the words of Hosea, also teach that David will be raised up to be Israel's king. Other testimony from Jeremiah concerning Israel's restoration may be read in 3:18: "In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers." Thus, all the tribes of both Judah and Israel will walk together in the land in which their fathers dwelled. (Cp. Ezek. 36:28; 37:25.)

The Prophet Ezekiel likewise plainly foretold: "Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all. . . . David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant" (37:21, 22, 24, 25).

The foregoing prophecies have never been fulfilled, but as surely as the Word of God is true, they will be fulfilled—nor is there any question about the Word of God being true. Christ will be King over all the earth, David will be king over all Israel, and the apostles will be rulers over the twelve tribes. (Cp. Matt. 19:28.) This is a great hope; it is the hope of God's people. This was the theme of Christ's preaching—"He went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God." On one occasion, the people asked Him to tarry longer, but He said, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent." The Kingdom was also the main subject of the Apostle Paul's preaching, and when the Samaritans "believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8:12).

We long to see the Kingdom of God, and we believe that the coming of Christ, the King, cannot be many years away. When He comes to restore the Kingdom, may all who read this article be worthy of a place in that Kingdom.

Things Worthy of Our Consideration

By Rufus A. Curtis

"Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart: for consider how great things he hath done for you" (1 Samuel 12:24).

ALTHOUGH this language was primarily applied to Israel of old, it is as applicable to us now, while "the times of the Gentiles" are drawing to a close or being fulfilled. (See Luke 21:24-28.) "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." (Rom. 15:4; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17.) If our hope is circumscribed to "this life only," which is in comparison to the limitless past and the interminable future a little speck of time between two eternities, "we are of all men most miserable." (1 Cor. 15:19; James 4:13, 14.) If there is anything that excites my pity, even to the shedding of tears, it is to gaze upon a dying man who had lived "without God in the world," and who was approaching life's close with "no hope," in his death. Over half a century ago, I was passing through a ward in a hospital, and, as I drew near to one of the dying patients, I gently laid my hand on his shoulder and asked him if he did not feel cheered by the "blessed hope" of the gospel? As his upturned gaze was directed to me, he pitifully shook his head as a negative answer to my question. This sad incident in my life has led me to think—

"There is no room for deeds unkind,
O! traveler to the tomb;
Pass quietly on thy way,
'Twill all be over soon."

It is the acme of wisdom to consider our "latter end" (Deut. 32:29). In beholding the wonderful works of God, we dare not substitute polytheism for monotheism. (Psalm 19:1-6; Zech. 14:9; 1 Cor. 8:6.) We dare not worship the things created, instead of the Creator. (Isa. 42:5-8; 48:9-11.) How transient are all earthly things! (James 4:13, 14.) "All that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever" (1 John 2:16, 17).

Kind hearts are the gardens,
Kind thoughts are the roots;
Kind words are the blossoms,
Kind deeds are the fruits.
Love is the sweet sunshine
That warms into life,
For only in darkness
Grows hatred and strife."

"Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?" (Luke 12:27, 28.) ## What Did Jesus Say?

By Harold Hardesty

IT WAS only in the ancient Greek and Hebrew tongues that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," and every translation of the Bible into any other language is to a greater or lesser degree a commentary of the translators upon God's Word. One needs only to compare two or three of the English translations and note their differences to discover the truth of this assertion. It is for this reason that no faithful student of the Word is content to rely upon one translation alone to determine what God has revealed concerning Himself, His work, and His relationship to His creatures. Since no man is infallible and without prejudice, it follows that no single translation of the Bible will be infallible.

A good example of the entrance of human error into Holy Writ is found in Luke 23:43—Jesus' answer to one of the malefactors who were crucified with Him. In the preceding verses we read: "One of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him. . . . The other . . . said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." I have before me three versions of Jesus' answer:

"Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise"—King James Version.

"Indeed I say to thee, This day thou shalt be with me in PARADISE"—Emphatic Diaglott.

"Verily I say unto thee this day: With me shalt thou be in Paradise"—Rotherham.

It is evident that all of these versions cannot be correct, because they present three different answers to the thief's request, whereas Jesus gave only one answer. Therefore, if we desire to know exactly what Jesus said, we must investigate these different translations. We can count on truth holding its own, even when it is subjected to the most exhaustive analysis.

"Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise."

The evidence for this rendering lies in the fact that the original is void of punctuation.

"Punctuation . . . as we have it today is entirely absent. The earliest two MSS. (. . . now at St. Petersburg) have only an occasional dot, and this is on a level with the top of the letters.

"The text reads on without any divisions between letters or words until MSS. of the ninth century, when . . . there is seen for the first time a single point which separates each word. This dot is placed in the middle of the line, but is often omitted.

"None of our modern marks of punctuation are found until the ninth century, and then only in Latin versions and some cursives.

"From this it will be seen that the punctuation of all modern editions of the Greek text, and all versions made from it, rests entirely on human authority, and has no weight whatever in determining or even influencing the interpretation of a single passage."—"The Greek Text of the New Testament," App. 94, The Companion Bible.

In the case of Luke 23:43, the translators came face to face with the Greek adverb semeron (translated "to day") placed between two clauses, with no guide except their own judgment to tell them in which clause it belonged. Since this is all the evidence that can be found to uphold the Authorized Version translation of this passage, and since it "rests entirely on human authority," it is the same as no evidence at all.

On the other hand, there are two reasons why this translation is unsatisfactory. In the first place, such an interpretation places Paradise contemporaneous with the day of Jesus' crucifixion. That such a situation did not exist is evidenced by Old Testament teaching. "Paradise" is carried over (not translated) from the Greek word paradeisos. This word did not originate with the Greeks, but is of Persian origin. It means literally a "park," "garden," or "ground," and is equivalent to the Hebrew word pardes, according to Young's Analytical Concordance.

In Nehemiah 2:8, we read of "Asaph the keeper of the king's forest (pardes)." The "king's forest" apparently was very similar to our presentday forest preserves and national parks. However, there was a difference. Our forest preserves and national parks are natural, whereas the ancient paradises of kings were artificial, most of the animal and plant life being transported and transplanted from remote parts of the earth. In this connection read Song of Solomon 4:13-16, where pardes is rendered "orchard."

Again, quoting from the Companion Bible: "In the British Museum may be seen the inscriptions of Gudea, the greatest of the Summerian rulers of Chaldea (2500 B.C.) and Tiglath-pileser I, king of Assyria (1120 B.C.), describing what could be only a botanical and zoological park. Assur-nazir-pal, king of Assyria (885 B.C.), founded such a public paradise, and describes how he stocked it; . . . whence he brought the natural history collection. The British Museum contains a portion of a similar catalogue of Sennacherib." (Please turn to page 9)

The Commands of God

By Alfred Anthon

GOD commanded every man, beginning with Adam, to obey Him, but God did not give the same commandment to every man. Though God changes not, His laws are not always the same. To Adam was given a set of rules—commandments, tasks. To Noah was given an altogether different set. Abram received other laws; then later, as Abraham, he received a changed set. Moses was made a “dictator.” So, in a sense, God does change His laws from time to time, and every man does not have the same God-given laws.

Moses knew that his laws were not to be for all time to all men. Moses knew his laws were to be set aside or done away at some future date. Moses prophesied that the God-given laws to Israel, through himself, would be superseded in the future by another set of God-given laws to all men through another “prophet like unto me”—i.e., through Jesus. Hear what Moses said about the endurance of Moses’ God-given laws. “The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet (Jesus). I will . . . put my words in his (Jesus’) mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. . . . Whosoever will not hearken unto my (God’s) words (laws) which he (Jesus) shall speak in my name, I (God) will require it of him”—in the day of judgment. (Deut. 18:15-19.) Therefore, Moses knew that when Jesus would come, all men must then hearken to Jesus and not to Moses.

Consequently, we do not care “one snap” about what God commanded Moses to command Israel. What we do care about is to know and obey those God-given laws through Jesus to all men: not those to Israel only, through Moses. Thus, we have proved that we who are Christians have no Ten-Commandment law over us. This throws the law, “Thou shalt not kill” into the “ditch”; throws the Mosaic law “out of the window,” as far as we are concerned. Be sure, though, to know what God through Jesus commands us.

On the Mount of Transfiguration (by vision, Matt. 17:9) stood Moses and Elijah talking with Christ about Christ’s crucifixion. (Luke 9:28-36.) Calls out a Mighty Voice: “Hear ye him.” Do not hear Moses any longer, but hearken now to the great Prophet foretold by Moses, which Prophet should be the end of all Mosaic rule. “The law and the prophets were until John” (Luke 16:16). After John, it is the God-given law through Jesus which all men are commanded to heed.

Again, Paul says, “The priesthood being changed (from Aaronic to Melchisedec; Levi to Judah; Moses to Jesus); there is made of necessity a change also of the law” (Heb. 7:12)—from Israel’s God-given laws through Moses to all men’s God-given laws through Jesus Christ.

God has changed His laws, His commands to man since Adam, changed them at least five times: namely, the times of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Christ. God will change His law again at the beginning of the Millennium, also at the end of the Millennium which will begin the antitypical jubilee—making a total of seven changes.

There is one law God gave man that has never been changed, and never will be changed. This never-changing, God-given commandment is that God will bless the person who obeys what God commands him, and that He will curse the person who disobeys whatever God has commanded him. This law is best worded in Deuteronomy 11:26-28. It makes no difference what God asks a person to do, said person must obey or be “cursed.” God, through Moses, commanded Israel, “Thou shalt not kill”; i.e., Thou shalt not take vengeance on thy neighbors. The law really meant, If thy neighbor ought to be murdered, I (God) will do it—as I did unto Amalek. When God saw proper to have Amalek utterly destroyed. God ordered Saul to do it. If Saul had refused (which he did), sin would have been accounted to Saul. God at all times commanded men to do as He told them. To refuse was sin. When and where God told man not to kill, man must obey or be cursed. When God spoke again and commanded man to kill, to disobey was sin.

To do exactly as God commands is the only unchangeable law to man. To disobey God’s command, no matter what the command is, no matter how different it is to previous commands, is sin, and is to be cursed.

Today, 1941 A.D., the only God-given law to all men is given through Jesus Christ. Therefore, we search Christ’s laws only to find out what God requires of us who follow Christ. Paul makes it plain that to be an observer of Moses’ laws and of Christ’s laws makes such a person a spiritual adulterer—“Babylon” of Revelation. “Ye also are become dead to the law . . . that ye should be married to another (Christ)” (Rom. 7:4). Jesus said, “The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day” (John 12:48). The word that Moses spoke shall not judge Christians in that Day.

One of Christ’s great laws is, “Love thy neighbour as thyself”; yes, the same way a noble mother loves her child though the child is wayward.

The Law and Righteousness

In Two Parts—Part Two

By H. J. Prosser

THE type and shadow laws pointing to Christ gave a word picture of God's righteousness as personified in the life and character of His Son. Hebrews 1:3 says that Christ is "the express image of his (God's) person," and "the brightness of his glory." Paul also said, "In him (Christ) dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Col. 2:9). The law could tell only of God's righteousness. We required the literal Christ to literally reveal and declare it. Romans 3:28 says: "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law."

Paul wanted to win Christ. He wanted to "be found in him, not having (his) own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith" (Phil. 3:9). Righteousness is a gift. "If by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Rom. 5:17).

The law cannot produce righteousness. "By the works of the law shall no flesh be justified" (Gal. 2:16). The law has two purposes, but righteousness is not one of them.

Purpose No. 1: "By the law is the knowledge of sin" (Rom. 3:20). "I had not known sin, but by the law: for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet" (Rom. 7:7; Deut. 5:21). It is the function of the law to define sin, to tell us what sin is. If we disobey in one point, we are guilty of all. (James 2:10.)

Purpose No. 2: Condemnation! "Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God" (Rom. 3:19). All are sinners. "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). All who depend on good works to save them are under this law of condemnation. Galatians 3:10 reads: "As many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them." (Cp. Deut. 27:26.)

No one can perform perfectly all the good works of the law. Hence, all pass under the shadow of this condemnation. Even as God is perfect, so also are His laws, and imperfect man cannot keep the law perfect. For this reason, God formulated a plan by which the imperfect man could be released from the law of sin and death. This gave man a chance to live. "I delight in the law of God after the inward man," exclaimed Paul, "but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin, which is in my members" (Rom. 7:22, 23). Delight in the law of God; that was Paul's real joy. In it, he beheld all of the purity it described, and he wanted it. But the law in his members, the weaknesses, the wrong desires of the flesh, awakened propensities that refused to be controlled. Paul cried, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" (v. 24). Who could be his Deliverer? Paul answered his own question, saying that it was through Jesus Christ our Lord, and he thanked God for it. This deliverance is purely a matter of favor or kindness shown us.

In Romans 8:2, the deliverance is clearly expressed by Paul, saying: "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Now, just to the extent that this Spirit of Christ expands in us, is the law of sin and death conquered. This spiritual life will not be fully developed this side of the resurrection, else we could say we are without sin. In John's first letter, he tells us: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us" (1:8). Sin is a resident of our nature, and can only be held under and controlled in this life. Paul says in 1 Corinthians 9:27, "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."

The sinless state cannot be reached until Christ changes our vile body and fashions it like His own (Phil. 3:21). After this change, it will be impossible for us to sin, for Peter says that we will then be "partakers of the divine nature" (2 Peter 1:4). The only requirement that God makes is a living faith in the things He has promised. (See Rom. 10:17; John 15:3; 17:8.) We are clean through the words Christ speaks, and not through the works of the law.

The intent of the law is briefly stated in Galatians 3:24, saying that the law was our "schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ." We have learned that this schoolmaster is stern and unyielding. He has only two lessons to teach. His first lesson is that we must pay the wages of sin, which is death. (Rom. 6:23.) Here the schoolmaster leaves: leaves us without giving a promise; leaves us without faith, without hope. It is where the schoolmaster steps out that Christ steps in. Here's where the law cannot help. Our Saviour offers forgiveness of sin and offers life. "If there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law" (Gal. 3:21).

To prove that Christ freely pardons sins and brings us out from the shadow of the law, we read: "Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man (Christ) is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: and by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses" (Acts 13:38, 39).

CONTACTING THE BLOOD

By J. M. Morgan

WHEN and how does the alien sinner contact the blood of Christ? An alien sinner is one "having no hope, and without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12). That sinners are made whole only when they contact the blood of Christ is evident from the Apostle Paul's words, saying: "Now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ" (v. 13). Men are made free from sin when they reach the blood of Christ, and they contact that cleansing fountain when they "have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you"—the doctrine of atonement in Christ. Men reach the blood of Christ not by hearing the truth, only, but by obedience to the truth. James taught that it is the "doers of the word" who are justified.

Belief of the gospel of Christ and obedience thereto, putting men and women into Christ, puts them also into His death. Galatians 3:26, 27 reads: "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ," and Romans 6:3 says: "So many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death." Christ shed His blood in death: therefore, men must be baptized into His death in order to contact His blood. Paul plainly said that we are "now justified by his blood" (Rom. 5:9).

The repentant and obedient sinner is reckoned as having become dead to his sins at the time he is "buried with him in baptism" (Col. 2:12). Thus, also, "ye are risen with him (with Christ) through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." In this way men are "quickened together with him," the Lord "having forgiven all (their) trespasses" (v. 13). God provides forgiveness, but alien sinners are forgiven only when they believe and obey the gospel. Hearing, faith, repentance, confession, and baptism are all essential in reaching the atoning powers of Christ—and with the hearing, faith, repentance, and confession preceding the baptism.

When an alien sinner is correctly baptized into Christ, he has the assurance of receiving the life-giving powers of Christ's blood if he is faithful, and he will have a place in the first resurrection. (Rev. 20:5, 6.) The Apostle Paul said, "If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection."

TOO TIRED TO PRAY

"She thought when night had finally ended day,
 'Tonight, dear Lord, I am too tired to pray;
 And wearily she closed her eyes in sleep,
 Slipping far into the shadowed deep.
 Up in heaven the dear Lord heard and smiled,
 'Today she soothed a little crying child.
 She stopped her work to take old Ella Haloop
 A fragrant, warming bowl of her good soup.
 Her house was orderly, her garden tended,
 Her children fed, their clothes all clean and mended.
 Her husband, home from work, found happiness
 And quiet peace in her deep gentleness.'
 The dear Lord smiled again, 'Too tired to pray?
 Her hands have offered prayers of love all day!'"

WHAT DID JESUS SAY?

The Jews who lived contemporaneously with our Lord were looking forward to a time when the whole land would become a paradise. Such a time was predicted by the prophets (Isa. 35; 51:3; 55:12, 13), which was supposed to be ushered in by the long-promised Messiah. John the Revelator refers to this promised Paradise in Revelation 2:7. It is to be expected that the malefactor who hung from his cross with our Saviour, knew of this promise. It certainly must have been in his mind when he asked to be remembered in His Kingdom. Paradise and kingdom had become almost synonymous to the Jewish mind. That is why Jesus spoke of "paradise" when the thief referred to His "kingdom."

However, the earth had not been renewed nor had His Kingdom come into existence on the "day" of the crucifixion.

The second reason for rejecting this translation is that Jesus was in the death state from the time He was taken down from the cross to the end of that day, at which time His body was placed in the tomb. To say that He was in Paradise on that day is to dispute Bible teaching on the death state.

"Indeed I say to thee, This day thou shalt be with me

This is a variation of the translation already discussed. Since its meaning is the same, we can only discard it along with the other as being out of harmony with Bible teaching.

However, an interpretation has been placed upon this translation which was not intended by the translator, and which violates the Greek language. It is contended that "this day" can be taken as referring to the "day" of the Kingdom, to which the thief referred in his petition: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." It is true that the word "this" in the English language is sufficiently flexible that it is sometimes used to mean "that," when one is referring to something already spoken of or alluded to. "This day" can mean "that day." Nevertheless, semeron possesses no such flexibility. Besides its one occurrence in the passage under consideration, semeron was used forty times in the New Testament. Seventeen of these forty times it is translated "to day" in the Authorized Version; the others are translated "this day." In each and every one of these forty instances, however, "to day" or "this day" refers to the day on which the words are spoken.

There are something like thirty-one instances in the New Testament where reference is made to a future time that has been previously alluded to. The words used in these instances are: ekeinon hemera (translated "that day"), hina hemera ("that day"—used only once in this way), ekeinon hemerai ("those days"), and haute genea ("that hour"). The foregoing should be evidence enough that if Jesus in His answer to the thief had used an expression by which He meant to refer to the time of the Kingdom, the inspired writer would have quoted Him with one of the foregoing phrases. Had He made reference to the "day" of the Kingdom, ekeinon hemera ("that day") would have been employed in place of semeron.

"Verily I say unto thee this day: With me shalt thou be in Paradise." Many students' thoughts, after they have read this interpretation, might be stated something like this: "Aren't the words 'this day' a bit superfluous? Wouldn't the thief know he was being spoken to 'this day' without having to be told of it?" At least those were my thoughts when I first read this translation, and I have heard others express similar thoughts. I believe these questions can be answered by another question: "Why did Jesus need to say that He was speaking to the thief at all? The thief had asked a question and Jesus was answering it. Wasn't that evidence enough that it was the thief who was being addressed, without it being necessary for Jesus to say, 'Verily I say unto thee?'" The answer, of course, is that these words are used for emphasis. So it is with the phrase "this day." Jesus used it for added emphasis in order to establish the importance of what He was about to say.

Perhaps a somewhat homely comparison might be found in a modern expression: "Let me tell you something," or, "I'm telling you right now, etc., etc.!" In either instance, the person thus addressed is quite well aware, without even being told about it, that he is the person who is being addressed, that he is being told "something," and that he is being told "right now."

That "this day" was a Hebrew idiom denoting special emphasis and solemnity of occasion can be shown by two or three quotations from the Old Testament.

"Laban said, This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed" (Gen. 31:48).

"I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land" (Deut. 4:26).

"The Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee" (Psalm 2:7).

It is possible that as Jesus gave answer to this man's request, He realized what a seeming contradiction it was. His own disciples, who had been with Him almost constantly for three years and to whom He had continually explained His divinity and His inheritance, had forsaken Him. Yet, He was now speaking to a man whom He may have never seen in His life up to three hours previous. He was promising this man something at a time when, according to all human reasoning, such a promise was impossible of fulfillment—the man who was to be King was dying on the cross.

Yet, there was probably more in Jesus' mind than merely the apparent contradiction of His answer. The sacrifice of the Son of God on Calvary's cross was the central hub around which all of God's plans and earth's hopes revolved. Without it, Paradise and God's Kingdom could never become a reality. Physical disturbances in the heavens and in the earth united to declare the dread, solemn event that was taking place. This was the occasion upon which our Saviour responded to the extraordinary faith of the malefactor with His words of such remarkable assurance: "Verily I say unto thee this day: With me shalt thou be in Paradise."

"AN UNCTION FROM THE HOLY ONE"

see and "know all things" about him that point to the soon coming of Christ. "Little children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time" (1 John 2:18).

God does not expect Christians to have all wisdom as He is wise, but we, being filled with the Word of God, should be wise enough to judge the right from wrong; to be able to detect the antichrist from the Christian. "The anointing (chrisma—'saturation') which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him. And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming" (1 John 2:27, 28).

A little child has all confidence within his own heart, that his father will keep his word. So we should be anointed with the Word of God, that we need not depend upon the teaching of carnal man. Rather, being saturated with God's Word, let us prepare ourselves for the soon coming of Christ.

THINGS WORTHY OF OUR CONSIDERATION

God, as we "behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" (Matt. 6:26.) May we say, as did Samuel of old: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" (1 Sam. 7:12).

"When our soul is much discouraged
By the roughness of the way,
And the cross we have to carry
Seemeth heavier every day;
When some cloud that overshadows
Hides our Father's face from view;
Oh! it's well then to remember
He has blessed us hitherto.

"Looking back the long years over,
What a varied path! And yet,
All the way His hand has led us,
Placed each hindrance we have met;
Given us the 'pleasant places';
Cheered us all the journey through;
Passing through the deepest waters,
He has blessed us hitherto."

On my writing desk is a card with the following printed "Rules for Today," which have proved helpful to me; and I will pass them on to you:

"Do nothing that you would not like to be doing when Jesus comes."

"Go to no place where you would not like to be found when Jesus comes."

"Say nothing that you would not like to be saying when Jesus comes."

May "the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ" (2 Thess. 3:5).

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

A somewhat cursory examination of the New Standard Reference Bible (John A. Hertel Company and the International Sunday School League, Chicago; $19.50), made a short time ago, convinced us that it is undoubtedly one of the best combination Bibles and one-volume religious libraries now on the market.

The book is huge—perhaps four inches thick and with overall dimensions approximating those of the big pulpit Bibles. In it, goes the complete text of the King James Version, marginal references, a Bible dictionary, an atlas, a thorough Bible concordance, a Bible subject index, a reference guide to "Bible doctrines" (with some of which Church of God members would hardly agree), and a considerable variety of other helps.

Now Bibles of this sort are not uncommon. The New Indexed Bible and the New Analytical Bible are only two of the many competitors the Hertel publication has. But Hertel has managed to put out a volume, bound limp genuine leather, that has all that these other volumes have—and that puts the whole material in large, readable type. One-volume Biblical libraries usually are printed in small type.

For class use, of course, the New Standard Reference Bible would hardly be a good choice—its size is too great for easy handling. But for home study (yes, there's a family record, too!), this Hertel volume would be a really worth-while investment.

National Defense—How Can I Help? would have no place in this column were it not for the fact that its authors (it is said to be "by an American family") have accredited all Europe's troubles to a spiritual breakdown. Simultaneously, the authors have exhorted Americans—North and South and Central—not to be guilty of a similar breakdown, lest corresponding disasters come upon them. The book is short, written after the order of a breezy letter, concerns itself chiefly with patriotism from the United States citizen's viewpoint.

Memory Pictures

How much do we remember of our stories from one quarter to the next?

Here are some word pictures. See if the pictures will recall the lessons we have studied together.

Jesus saw a woman who was bowed over. It was a Sabbath day. Jesus was teaching in a synagoguc. He healed her. What did the ruler of the synagoguc say? How did Jesus answer him?

Our Lord healed a man having dropsy. He also told of Christian conduct. He said the first shall be last and the last first.

A man made a supper and told many to come. They made many excuses. Can you remember them? (Ground, oxen, and a wife are helper words for you.) So the man sent his servant into the streets and lanes, finally into the "highways and hedges" to fill his house. However, none of the first were wanted. They had sent their excuses and had been excused for all time.

The Pharisees and scribes didn't like it because Jesus ate and visited with sinners. Jesus told them of the shepherd—the ninety and nine safe, and the one lost sheep.

One day Jesus healed the ten lepers. We have a vivid picture of only one kneeling at Jesus' feet to say "Thank you." Where were the nine? Let us remember to thank God for His good gifts.

We see Jesus in all of these memory pictures. Think of some others we have read.

Jesus Enters Jerusalem

Jesus had been in Jerusalem many times before, but He had never entered as He did this time.

He had sent two of His disciples to get a certain colt upon which no one had ever sat. As the disciples untied the colt, the owners said, "Why loose ye the colt?" The disciples answered as Jesus had told them, "The Lord hath need of him."

When they brought the colt to Jesus, they put their garments upon the colt for Jesus to sit on. They also spread their clothes in the way as they traveled on the road to Jerusalem. There was a large number of people—a multitude of disciples, with them. They began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the wonderful works He had done. They cried, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest" (Luke 19:38).

There were some Pharisees among the disciples. They were never far away from where Jesus was; yet, they never accepted Him or His teachings. They said, "Master, rebuke thy disciples." Perhaps they used this title just to be outwardly polite to Jesus. At any rate, Jesus answered, "I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out" (Luke 19:40).

This was the time for praising Jesus. As we glance at the verse at the top of the page, we read of a time, still future, when Jesus will be in Jerusalem, on the throne of David. When He comes again, He will be our King.

Have You?

* * * By Frances Munshaw, Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Most Christians, when asked for a definition of faith, quote the above verse from Hebrews 11:1, but few stop to analyze the verse—few could explain to others what the verse really means.

Faith is the basis for our hope; it is the conviction that we will possess those things for which we hope. The word "hope" would lead us to believe that we are not yet saved, for if we were already saved we would no longer hope for salvation—it would be a reality. "We are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?" (Rom. 8:24.) The child who hopes that his mother will bring him a toy when she returns is hoping for something he will possess in the future. When his mother returns, the child no longer hopes for the toy. He either has the toy or does not have it.

From our contacts with other people we realize that there are different degrees of faith. We also notice that those who are just beginning their walk with Christ do not have the degree of faith which is witnessed by those who have been in active Christian service many years. This is not difficult to believe, however, because "faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Hearing, reading, and studying the Word of God, then, will deal us a larger measure of faith. Of course, we know that by studying the Bible new truths reveal themselves to us; we realize anew God's wonderful love; and we marvel at His unexcelled wisdom. Can we, then, help to have an increased amount of faith? Though we know that faith increases by hearing the Word of God, few of us profit by this knowledge. Few of us realize the necessity of faith, regardless of the fact that "without faith it is impossible to please him."

Life would be almost unbearable if it were not for the ideals toward which we strive. Each of us is working for a place in God's Kingdom. That is our major ideal, to be sure, but each of us has also minor ideals—ideals which are seldom realized. Life in this sin-stricken world gives us more discouragements than encouragements. When our plans crumble, when we are suddenly dismissed from our positions, when death steals the breath from a loved one, it is difficult to say that life can be beautiful. We know that life is not beautiful from beginning to end—sometimes it is dull and drab. However, it is faith in God that enables us to smile at failure. Faith is our breast-plate; it offers us protection from our enemy, Failure. It is faith that guides us to say, "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

Not a Thing

"Oh, but I haven't a thing to wear." This is a more or less standard phrase—generally good for a chuckle or two. We know very well that the person who made the exclamation is just trying to cover up, or perhaps pull a little "wool" over someone's eyes. However, it is surprising how many people repeat that little phrase over and over again during a week, only they substitute the word "do" for the word "wear." They just cannot find anything to do to keep them busy or to help in church work. They want to spread the gospel, of course, but they cannot preach or write, so they just content themselves with church attendance.

Church attendance is of utmost importance. It is one of the first essentials of Christian living. Nevertheless, it is really just the beginning—the foundation for a more complete Christian life. Where do we go from there? Well, if we visit someone tomorrow afternoon, just go over to his house for a little while, we would be doing something—visiting. The one visited would also be doing something—receiving a visitor. Now, if we have a new tract or a book pertaining to religious subjects to show to our host, we will be adding to our accomplishments and will be approaching nearer to the goal toward which we originally aimed—that of spreading the gospel.

It has been said, "To know a man is to love him." We will add, "To know a man you must talk to him—at least." Then, after we have become acquainted with our first prospect, talked to him about God's plan, and perhaps aroused within him a genuine desire to learn more about the gospel, there are a few million more people in the country to whom we may turn. These will probably keep us busy for some time. We may soon find ourselves among those few who at times must say, "There is so much to do. If I only had more time."

SOUTH LAWN PARK CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

South Lawn Church is following the advice of the Lord of hosts in Malachi 3:10, and "proving" Him. Truly, He is opening "the windows of heaven" and pouring us out such blessings that our hearts can hardly hold the joy and gratitude that is ours.

For three consecutive Sundays, some have come forward in response to the call of the gospel, and will put on Christ by baptism on Easter afternoon.

We are experiencing again the assurance that spiritual and financial health go hand in hand in any church. Many plans for beautifying and improving the church interior are in process of fulfillment, and on Palm Sunday a dedication service is planned for several of them which will be completed by then. We extend a cordial invitation to all within driving distance to come and rejoice with us at this wonderful season of the year.

Bro. F. E. Siple and family were pleasantly surprised recently by a brief visit from Bro. and Sr. Willis A. Rouse, Bro. and Sr. Willard Naylor, and Bro. and Sr. Paul Uline of Napanee, Ind.

The Pixley home on Antoine Street has been transformed into a hospital ward the last few weeks. The four Rice children have been suffering with the measles, and have kept their mother and grandmother on the jump day and night.

A carload of our church people drove to Flint on March 24, and spent the day with the Calcutt family, former members of the church here.

Bro. and Sr. Siple and Bro. and Sr. Gerald Niles recently drove to Kalamazoo and enjoyed an evening's visit with Sr. Fletcher and family. To all Sr. Fletcher's friends we are glad to pass on the good news of her improvement from her serious condition of the past few months. A message of cheer sent to her at 1616 Grand Ave., Kalamazoo, Mich., would mean a lot during the long hours of confinement still ahead.

New addresses: Bro. and Sr. Don Holmes, 3349 Division Ave. S; Sr. Jeanne Lyon, 140 Celia, S.E.

The baby son of Bro. and Sr. George Witham has been in the hospital for an operation, but is improved and able to be at home again. Reporter.

FIRST SHIPMENT TO ENGLAND

The first shipment of tracts to England has been made. As previously announced, a tract-distributing agent in England some time ago requested us to send ten thousand of our tracts for distribution. The tracts are published and sufficient amount of money has been received to pay for nearly all the order—due to the war, payment for the tracts had to be made on this side of the water.

Rather than to run the risk of losing the whole shipment, we have decided to divide it into several parts, and to hold the second shipment until we have heard that the first has been received. We sincerely thank those who contributed to this cause.

Send The Herald to your friends.

HILLISBURG, INDIANA

Spring has arrived at last, and we are surely glad of its return. We have had good attendance at Sunday school and church during the winter, considering the weather. Last Sunday was our church day. It was like a spring day in the morning, but by night we had a howling blizzard. There were some of the faithful members who attended church, and Bro. J. H. Anderson preached very interesting sermons.

Alva Huffer of Michigantown, who attended the Summer Bible Training School last summer, has been critically ill with pneumonia at the Clinton County Hospital. He is some better, and has been brought back to his home. We are sure he would be pleased to hear from all of his friends and fellow students of the Bible Training School. He will not be able to return to school this spring, for he can sit up only a short while each day. We have missed him very much at Sunday school and church, and we are hoping he will be able to return before so very long. Lota Huffer, Treas.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

There was a large attendance at the Illinois Quarterly Conference at Ripley. The program was enjoyed. Some of the students gave short talks, and others sang. Some of the students were unable to go.

We are looking forward to the pre-Easter services to be conducted by Bro. James Watkins from Eldorado, Ill., at the Oregon, Ill., church. He is one of the evangelists for this State.

In our study in "Missions," we recently had a test including all that we had studied since the second semester began. We have studied about the following missionaries: William Carey, Raymond Lull, Adoniram Judson, Francis Xavier, and John Eliot—also many others.

In our class in "Business Administration of the Church," we have studied about the care of church property, but now are studying a chapter on conventions, conferences, and special meetings. We learn how to plan and conduct conferences and special meetings.

Our class in "New Testament Interpretation" has been studying 1 Corinthians. The last two or three days we have been interpreting the eleventh chapter.

The class in music has changed its time from Friday afternoon to Thursday afternoon.

Bros. Orris Mills and Celine Randall preached at Oregon, Ill., supplying for Bro. S. E. Magaw while he was at the Quarterly Conference at Ripley. Orris spoke in the morning and Celine in the evening. Celine preached at Dixon, Ill., in the morning.

A week ago last Tuesday, March 25, Bro. Richard Smith left for his home near Dayton, Ohio, because of poor health; a doctor thought he would be better if he rested for awhile. However, there is nothing serious.

The students are beginning to make plans for the summer; so, if any churches desire students during the summer, please correspond with us. C. Alan McLain, Reporter.

"Our Berean class is progressing very nicely. The average attendance is twenty-five and the interest is very good."—Amy Dunbar Frye, Delta, Ohio.

"Immediately after the tribulation . . . the powers of the heavens shall be shaken; and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven . . . and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:29, 30). Obviously, the tribulations of centuries ago did not fulfill Jesus' prediction of the great tribulation to immediately precede His second coming.

Freight traffic between the United States and Palestine is being increased. Soon there will be shipments twice a week from New York to Haifa, the line avoiding the war zone by going around the Cape of Good Hope.

Bro. Lewis Romine, Oregon, Ill., tells about the son who, at the time he entered college, was surprised at how little his father knew, but who was more surprised when he graduated to notice how much his father had learned during the four years.

ISABELLA E. BROWN

Isabella E. Brown was born in Iowa, December 15, 1841, and died in the Tobey Jones Home, March 8, 1941. The funeral, conducted by the writer, was held in the Buckley King Chapel in Tacoma, Wash. Burial was in Fox Island Cemetery, across the Sound from Tacoma. She was laid by the side of her husband, who had preceded her in death. She was a member of the Church of God of Puyallup, Wash.

Sr. Brown is survived by one brother, Charles Brown, of Indio, Calif.; two grandsons, Robert Brown of Hood River and Paul Brown of Portland, Ore.; four granddaughters, Mrs. Gladys Berusten, Tacoma, Mrs. Benlah Loomis, Seattle, Mrs. Fern Lundquist, Sedro Woolley, and Mrs. Ethel Fishel, Day Island, Wash.; and eight great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandson.

At one time Sr. Brown lived in St. Paul, Nebr. She was then a member of another denomination, but she heard discussions on the "Nature of Man" and "The Kingdom of God," conducted by her minister and Bro. Almus Adams of the Church of God. It resulted that she was baptized by Bro. Adams, and lived as a devoted member of the Church of God the balance of her life. She was beloved by all who knew her. Sr. Brown lived at the Tobey Jones Home for the past twelve years, where she greatly enjoyed having the church members visit her. Her greatest pleasure in life was in conversing with friends about the subject of the soon coming of the Lord and the glory of the coming Kingdom. She died in full assurance of the resurrection of the righteous dead when Jesus comes to "make up his jewels." A. L. Corbaley.

MYRTLE JANETTE ANDERSON

Myrtle Janette (Johnson) Anderson was born August 2, 1898, at Hector, Minn., and died November 18, 1940. She was the daughter of the late Frank and Anna Johnson. She grew to womanhood in the vicinity of Hector, and graduated from the Hector High School in 1916; she taught school for some years afterward.

In October, 1920, she was united in marriage to Hilding L. Anderson of Hector. This union was blessed with three children: John and Ruth, now in their teens, and Daniel who is five years of age. They moved to Grove City two years ago and have lived there since.

Myrtle Anderson was baptized into Christ when a young girl, and became a member of the Church of God at Hector. She continued throughout life a very faithful and ardent worker within the church. Her sincere faith in Christ sustained her in kindness and patience throughout life, and perhaps especially when she became aware that she could not continue in the care of her family. One of her last expressed wishes was that her children might continue to grow "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

Besides the many friends and relatives who regret her death, she leaves to mourn most deeply her immediate family—husband and three children, and four brothers: Ellsworth and Leroy of Hector, and Herbert and Charles of Alberta, Canada.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church in Hector with the writer officiating. Interment was made in the Hector cemetery. As we stood silently at the cemetery considering this last sad parting, the prayer of each lonely, yet hopeful, heart seemed to echo the prayer, "Even so come, Lord Jesus."

John L. Denchfield.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

DOCTRINE OF THE APOSTLE

By J. Eagleston

THE Apostle Paul wrote in 1 Thessalonians 4:16: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God." Surely we understand this language to mean that the archangel will be authorized by High Heaven to make known to the faithful that the time of meeting Christ has come. The archangel will use a certain sounding noise to let the called and chosen and faithful know that their presence is demanded before Him who is their Master, Saviour, Redeemer, Intercessor, and the One for whom they have long waited. These will know and hear that sound, whether asleep in death or alive on the earth. None other will hear it, neither will others have been trained to listen for it. Consider a recruit just joining the army: if he has never been instructed in the meaning of the sounds blown from the trumpet, how can he pay any heed to them when they are sounded? He must first learn what the different sounds mean. I would not have the slightest idea of what an army bugler was sounding, because I have not been instructed in this language of trumpet sounds.

If any have been called and chosen to follow the Master through the commandments and instructions of the Apostle Paul (the Gentiles' only hope), they will hear the sound calling them to present themselves to their Master. In this case, we are told by Paul that the meeting will be in the air—"caught up together with them (those now sleeping in death) in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air" (v. 17). This language is the same in every version I have studied. No interpretation is really needed as to what sort of clouds is meant, how long it will take, or whether the goings of both are simultaneous. The fact remains that at present the Apostle Paul's call has gone forth throughout the earth, as a witness to all nations. Those who have heard, whether black or white, and who have obeyed that call, will know enough to present themselves when they hear that "sound" which awakens the sleeping saints (in death) and calls the living faithful.

The Summer Bible Training School

June 17—July 25, 1941

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder S. J. Lindsay:

We have been solicited to say a few words for the Summer Bible Training School. It seems to us that there is great need for such a School, and especially because we have had such successful work done since the idea has been put into operation. It would be better if such students could take advantage of the year 'round classwork; but, since there are many who cannot afford either time or money for the longer period, the Summer School gives opportunity to a greater number to get some of the good things with an expenditure of both time and money in a measure that they can meet. Indeed, the price of admission to this class has been made so reasonable that both board and instruction are so cheap that you cannot afford to stay at home.

Elder S. J. Lindsay

Remember that the School is not a place for "arguifying," but a place where we come together to study the Bible that we may familiarize ourselves with its contents.

The School is a splendid place to bring our young people together from over the United States and Canada, that they may become better acquainted. Many friendships have been made in this way that never would have been made were it not for the School. This acquaintance is a great incentive for these young people to "stick" to the faith, and to press forward even in times of spiritual depression. This angle should not be overlooked.

S. J. Lindsay.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

"He Is Risen"

By James A. Patrick

WAS Christ raised from the dead? Every professing Christian, without hesitation, will answer, "Yes." Yet, there are those who tell us that His physical body was not raised, but that it dissolved into gas, or something of the sort, and some of these same people are proclaiming loudly that Christ came back to earth some years ago and is reigning as King now, though He is not visible.

What constituted Christ? Of what was He composed? The angels told the shepherds, "Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2: 11). He had to be born before He began to live His own life. He did not begin to breathe until after He was born. Was it the little hands and arms and body and head and brain that were born? If so, then it was the physical being that came into the world at birth. The angels said that a Saviour, Christ the Lord, was born.

Methinks I hear someone say: "Why stress that point so much? Doesn't everyone believe that?"

Yes, I presume that everyone at all familiar with Scripture teaching believes that it was the physical body that was born; but, when we come to discuss His resurrection, some will begin to hedge and try to make out that something else was raised. I wonder if one thing could have been Jesus at His birth, and another thing have been Jesus at His resurrection.

"Jesus saith unto him (Thomas), I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh to the Father, but by me" (John 14:6). Was it the same Jesus that spoke these words, as the Jesus that was born?

Go through the Record and notice all the words that were spoken, and all the things that were done. Was it the same Jesus that spoke those words and did those deeds? or was it something inside of Him that caused the physical to talk and act?

"Woman, why weepest thou?"

Let us look at another line of evidence: When Jesus was crucified and hanged on the cross, Joseph of Arimathea came to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. In John 19:40, 41, we read: "Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen clothes. . . . Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre wherein was never man yet laid. There laid they Jesus." What was it they took down from the cross? "The body of Jesus." What did they lay in the tomb? "There laid they Jesus." Therefore, the body of Jesus and Jesus are one and the same thing.

Most of us will recall, without much extra effort, what the angel said to the women that morning of the first day of the week when they came to the tomb. Let us read a couple of verses to renew our memories, if we have forgotten: "The angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay" (Matt. 28:5, 6).

What was it that had lain in the tomb? The Lord. What did men take down from the cross? The body of Jesus. So the body of Jesus, Jesus, and the Lord are one and the same thing. We cannot get away from this conclusion, if language means anything. (Turn to page 9)

“Come, Take Up the Cross”

In reply to the young rich ruler who asked the way of eternal life, Jesus said: “Come, take up the cross, and follow me” (Mark 10:21). Seeing Peter and Andrew with their nets, Jesus said unto them: “Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men” (Matt. 4:19). When in Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles, Jesus cried: “If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink” (John 7:37). Likewise, Jesus said: “He that cometh to me shall never hunger” (John 6:35).

Definitely, Jesus today calls men to follow Him. They are called to share the burdens of the cross, yet in sharing the cross an inner peace is gained. Christ fully quenches the thirst of every tired soul who trusts to drink at His fountain, and promises an eternal reward too precious to be purchased by any bid a mortal could offer—even the bid of having kept the law. Though there is no Ponce-de-Leon Fountain of Youth, there is the life-giving Fountain of Christ for youth, and “whosoever will” may drink “the water of life freely” (Rev. 22:17).

There are many deceptions. That which appears most desirable often disappoints. Sugar may sour the stomach. Moreover, that which appears least desirable often blesses. Thus is the cross of Christ: sharing the burdens of Christ develops and beautifies life. Jesus said, “A man’s life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth” (Luke 12:15), and, “He that is greatest among you shall be your servant” (Matt. 23:11). He who most faithfully follows Christ will at the end of life’s road be best prepared to say, “It is finished.” There is no victory without first a burden borne. “Come, take up the cross”!

Jesus, who came “to seek and to save that which was lost” (Luke 19:10), loves and accepts every soul who sincerely accepts His invitation. True, to one who unthinkingly said he would follow wherever Christ went, Jesus replied: “Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head” (Luke 9:58), and to another trying-to-serve-two-masters convert Jesus said: “No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God” (v. 62). These rebuffs, however, were not spoken to such honest souls as Mary of Magdala or the man born blind. Let the defiled become cleansed, the weak made strong, and let the weary find rest. He who calls men to share the cross promises: “Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out” (John 6:37). The Saviour saves.

Astonishing!—that Christ who rejects no man who truly believes should be rejected of nearly all men for whom He suffered, bled, and died! He who calls, saying, “Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden . . . take my yoke upon you,” also assures: “I will give you rest . . . I am meek and lowly in heart . . . ye shall find rest unto your souls . . . my yoke is easy, and my burden is light” (Matt. 11:28-30).

The treasures of the cross are neither fully obtained nor fully known in this present mortal life. He who “will in no wise cast out” is alive forever to forever bless His faithful followers. In fact, there are so many tears this side the grave, and so brief and thin are the pleasures of mortality in contrast to the “glory that shall be revealed in us” beyond the grave, that the Apostle Paul declared: “If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable” (1 Cor. 15:19). There is a joy in the race, a joy of running; but prizes and honor are won only at the goal. How “miserable” would be a struggling runner, if for his determined efforts there was no goal or prize!

Thus, the story of the cross of Christ is incomplete without the chapter of His resurrection; and as He calls men to share His cross, He promises them to have part in His resurrection. Plainly Jesus said: “This is the Father’s will . . . that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. And . . . that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day” (John 6:39, 40). First, though, came the crucifixion! Are you “crucified with Christ”? He calls: “Come, take up the cross, and follow me.”

The Resurrection of Christ

By Lyle Rankin

THE raising of Christ from the state of death signifies much to all mankind, especially to those who have definitely placed their trust in Him. The Apostle Paul wrote, "If the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished" (1 Cor. 15:16-18). When God, by His power or Spirit, raised up Christ from death (2 Cor. 13:4; 1 Peter 3:18), it gave the assurance of a resurrection for all mankind (1 Cor. 15:22; Rev. 20:4, 5)—"they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:29).

However, someone might say that all will not be raised, that some will remain forever perished. When Paul was preaching to the Athenians on Mars' hill, he stated that "God . . . commandeth all men every where to repent: because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man (Jesus Christ) whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." So, all are commanded to repent, and whether they do or not, they are assured of a resurrection and judgment. If we repent and our sins go before death to judgment, we shall not have to suffer for them after death—at the time of the judgment. (1 Tim. 5:24; Heb. 9:27; 2 Cor. 6:2; Rom. 6:23.)

Those in Christ can realize that, because of their Master's resurrection, their faith is not vain; their sins have indeed been atoned and forgiven. Therefore, they who are in Christ are not appointed to wrath, and will not suffer the wages for sin. (1 Thess. 5:9; Rom. 6:23.) Then, too, Christ is "become the firstfruits of them that slept"; the first fruits, being a likeness of the harvest, assure the fulfillment of that written by Paul to the Philippian, namely, that the Lord "shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (3:21). Jesus was laid in the tomb after death had come upon

Him, and when raised on the third day after His crucifixion (Luke 24:21), it was possible for individuals to recognize Him. He had not seen corruption, and His body bore the marks received during His crucifixion, proving that the very being crucified was the being which was raised. Christ, being raised this way, assures the righteous that they, too, in being raised like the first fruits, will have the same body, with spirit life—"flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God." (Job. 19:23-27; 1 Cor. 15:46, 50.)

What a glorious harvest it will be when the saints are caught up in the time of rapture; changed "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump"; fashioned like the Master, made equal with the angels, never to die any more! (Luke 20:36.) Is it not worth every effort to trust in God for our daily bread, clothes, shelter, lands (Mark 10:28-30), and to cease to rely on those in whom there is no help? If we wish to be sons and daughters of God with His love shed on us now, we must indeed heed the words of inspiration. (John 14:23; 2 Cor. 6:14-18.)

While in Egypt, in the land of Goshen, and immediately preceding their exodus, the Israelites were commanded to place themselves under the blood of the Passover lamb, that they might be passed over and not suffer the appointed destruction. Later, when the law was given, they were commanded to offer a wave offering of the first fruits. The passover was slain outside the camp on the fourteenth day of the first month, and the offering of the first fruits was waved on the morrow after the Sabbath. (See Ex. 12; Lev. 23.) Christ, our Passover (under whose blood we must be sheltered in order to escape the appointed destruction, the wages for sin, which is the second death), suffered without the gate (Heb. 13:12), was buried, but He arose again, being the first fruits on the third day as typified by the first Passover lamb and the first fruits offered on the morrow after the Sabbath. ## Bye and Bye

By Edith Andrew Burchell

There's a great day coming,
Bye and bye,
Then we'll see our dear Lord coming,
From the sky;
He will bring His angels with Him,
And our sins will be forgiven,
There's a great day coming,
Bye and bye.

Will your lamps be filled and burning
Bye and bye,
When we see our dear Lord coming,
From the sky?
Will we be like chaff that's blown away,
Or garner'd wheat—on that glad day?
There's a great day coming,
Bye and bye.

There will be no lonely sparrow,
Bye and bye,
When our dear Lord comes to meet us
From the sky.
We will never hear of wars nor pain
When Christ comes back on earth to reign!
There's a great day coming,
Bye and bye.

There'll be Easter lilies blooming
Bye and bye,
When we see our dear Lord coming
From the sky;
Every gravestone will be rolled away
When Christ comes, on that happy day;
There's a great day coming,
Bye and bye.

Importance of Christ's Resurrection

By C. E. Randall

IN continuing our studies of the fundamental teachings of the gospel, the subject of resurrection is further explored. The first proposition which we desire to set forth concerns the resurrection of Jesus.

PROPOSITION 25. The resurrection of Christ is the basis of the gospel. "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures" (1 Cor. 15:1-4).

According to Paul, the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ were the first things of the gospel which he received. More, they were the first principles of the gospel which he preached. The importance of Christ's resurrection in the gospel message can be observed in the qualifications laid down for the candidate to be selected to take the place of Judas: one of which was, "Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection" (Acts 1:22). The chosen apostle must be an eyewitness of the resurrection of Christ, that is, he must have seen Christ after His resurrection, so that he could say that he was an eyewitness of "his majesty" (2 Peter 1:16). The message of redemption starts with "Christ the firstfruits" (1 Cor. 15:23). As the "firstborn from the dead," He became the "beginning" of a new creation (Col. 1:18). In this creation He is "before all things, and by him all things consist" (Col. 1:17). So many times people, in their interpretation of the Scriptures, make Christ the head of the old creation, which belongs entirely to Adam, rather than the head of the new creation. Keep Christ as the head of the new creation, and you will have little difficulty with pre-existent theories.

PROPOSITION 26. The resurrection of Christ insures the resurrection of all who go into death. "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Cor. 15:22).

Elder J. M. Stephenson, in summing up Paul's argument in 1 Corinthians 15, said: "That the destruction of this last great enemy will be the last trophy to grace the triumph of earth's mightiest Chieftain—the Son of the living God—in the conquest of the world, and in putting down all interposing rule, power, and authority, preparatory to the inauguration of peace on earth and good will among men, is the animus of Paul's weighty argument. He demonstrates the feasibility of a resurrection of the dead, by the resurrection of Christ as the first fruits of them that slept."

If we keep in mind that it is in, through, or by Adam that death stalks the path of mankind, and further remember that according to the law of redemption, it devolved upon the next of kin to redeem the relative enslaved, which in the case of the human family enslaved by Adam, Christ was the "second man," then we will have no difficulty in seeing how Christ as the next of kin, who has the keys of "hell and of death," will unlock the tombs and release those which the first Adam by transgression enslaved. It is no wonder that resurrection of Christ is the heart of the gospel! Through His resurrection He obtained power over death, and in His "due time" will become "thy plagues; O grave" (Hosea 13:14). His resurrection insures the fulfillment of the promise that "the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice" (John 5:28, 29).

PROPOSITION 27. To deny the resurrection makes one a "false witness."

The resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the dead are made synonymous by Paul in his arguments on resurrection in 1 Corinthians 15:12-26. It is evident that some of the members of the Corinthian church had imbibed the teaching of the Sadducees and were denying the resurrection of the dead. Paul asked them a pointed question: "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?" (1 Cor. 15:12.) Deny the resurrection of the dead, and you thereby make void—yes, even render the resurrection of Christ a false teaching. Paul said: "We are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be the dead rise not" (v. 15). Thus, Paul makes those who deny the resurrection "false witnesses." The expression "false witnesses" as used by Paul is the same as applied to those who witnessed against Jesus at His trial before Caiaphas (Matt. 26:60). I presume some of their testimony varied in degrees of accusation, but they were all false witnesses. To witness against Christ even in a limited way makes one a false witness. Denial of the resurrection constitutes one a false witness against the gospel.

PROPOSITION 28. The resurrection of the dead will not begin until the return of Christ.

John L. Wince, in his treatise on "Resurrection," says: "The resurrection of the dead is closely connected with the second advent of our Lord, in fact, depends upon this latter event. So if there is no future advent, there will be no rising from the dead, and consequently no future life." To our readers this will be sound reasoning. It is written that when the Lord descends from heaven "with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). This scripture pertains solely to those in Christ. Those raised at this time are those in Christ, and as the dead in Christ are going to be raised first, it is evident that this will be the first resurrection of any order, hence, the coming of Christ must be awaited before those who sleep in Christ come forth. If Christ were not to return, then there would be no resurrection, and no resurrection would mean that those who are "fallen asleep in Christ are perished" (1 Cor. 15:18). In speaking of a mystery which he then revealed to the Corinthian brethren, Paul remarked: "Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised" (1 Cor. 15:51, 52). The raising of the dead follows immediately after the sounding of the "last trump."

In writing on "The First Resurrection," William Leask says, "The sublimity and magnificence of the doctrine of resurrection are perfectly overwhelming to the imagination. The very idea is glorious. Its truth is demonstrated by the simple fact that it is revealed. It needs no argument. It stands apart and unapproachable in its own splendor. To attempt to prove it is superfluous now; for the thing has been done in fact and pledge by the resurrection of the Son of Man."

If resurrection is such a sublime and magnificent doctrine, why is it so little taught today? Perhaps the comments of J. R. Norrie, England, answer this question quite accurately. He writes: "Have you observed that in the Bible a future life is contingent upon a resurrection, or a bodily change, when the Lord comes back from heaven?"

"But the resurrection, so often spoken of in the Bible, is seldom referred to in religious discourse now. If the dead are really alive, what need is there for a resurrection? If the body is a mere shell or house—a prison-house, as some call it—in which the real man (Please turn to page 10)

Easter and the Resurrection

By S. J. Lindsay

---

THE term "Easter," like many other words used in our Christian vocabulary, came from a heathen source. Webster's Dictionary is authority for saying that the ancient Germans, as well as the Anglo-saxons, observed the day in celebration of the goddess of light or spring, in honor of whom a festival was celebrated in April. Perhaps one of the weakest things about the "Christian" world is the effort to make the notable things of Christianity accord with heathen practices. In this, men are not unlike Cain in his efforts to carry out an attempt to confuse the names of his progeny with those of the lineage of Seth.

In Acts 12:4, use is made of the word "Easter" in the King James Version, but in all other versions in our possession we find the word "Passover" instead.

The thought of this celebration is the resurrection of Christ from the dead. This is the one event in all the history of the world that should bring peace and joy to humanity, for it speaks of deliverance from the dead. If, as a great majority of the people of the world believe, death is just the separation of soul and body, the freeing of the captive bird in the cage, then this Easter occasion could have little meaning; but to them who believe that there is no hope of life except as it springs from the grave by the power of God in Christ, the celebration of this event means everything and we have great reason to rejoice and be exceeding glad. Here in the West, there is a practice exercised by members of many denominations to attend Easter sunrise services, and they go by the hundreds and thousands to these services. As we have listened to the orators on such occasions, they teach many resurrection truths, but all the while we find ourselves asking the question, "What can the resurrection really mean to these people?" For, if one tries to hold them to the thought that there can be a chance to live again only by a resurrection of the dead when Jesus comes, the thought is spurned by the greater number of them. They do not believe in the resurrection, after all. Let the people who believe that life is to be had only by faith in Christ and His resurrection, celebrate the day as fitting our faith.

The White Lily

By Jay T. Stocking

Selected by Mrs. T. J. Ellis

THERE is an old legend that when Jesus on Easter Day walked from the tomb, Easter lilies sprang up in His footsteps. I am going to tell you another story about the lilies which I think is just as true as that one.

It was a morning in early spring in the old city of Jerusalem. The sun was shining, the birds were singing, the flowers were blooming; and nowhere in all the city was the grass greener or the leaves more glossy, or the birds more lovely, or the flowers gayer than in the garden of Joseph of Arimathaea, which lay toward the northern part of the city, just within the city limits. Beyond it a little way, almost hidden by the houses, was a hill which, because of its peculiar shape and its steep, bony sides was called "The Skull."

It was a very gay week in Jerusalem, for it was the week of the greatest festival of all the year. People from all over Palestine were there to celebrate the national festival and keep the great feast with their friends and kinsmen. Although usually a very joyous week, this particular festival was much disturbed because of the presence in the city of a man called "The Galilean," a teacher from the hill country to the north. He did not teach just as the priests and scribes taught. Some of the people believed in Him; others disliked Him, some hated Him, and secretly or openly, wanted to be rid of Him.

But it was all quiet and lovely enough upon this early . . . morning out in the garden of Joseph of Arimathaea. The sky was clear with exception of a little cloud, just tinged with dark red, which hung over the hill which was called "The Skull." The garden was not very large, but was very beautiful. It was varied. There were hills and hummocks and valleys; there were trees—the trim cedar, the slender poplar, the spreading sycamore. There were flowers—the white rose of Sharon, the purple iris, and the red lily. Over at one side of the garden there was a wall of gray rock in which Joseph, the master, had just built a new tomb in which some day he thought he might lie right near the flowers which he loved.

The morning shadows were still long and the dew was still on the grass when Nathan, the gardener, and his young son, Benjamin, came out with sickle and knife and spade to trim the grass, the flower beds, and the walks between. Nathan was a solemn man, with seamed and careworn face. Benjamin was a lad just turning his teens, full of life and spirit. He had lately begun to learn the trade of his father, and now from morning until night he and his father worked side by side in the garden, and as they worked they talked. Now they were spading the iris bed.

"Father," said Benjamin, "why is this called iris?"

"Because it is iris, my son," said Nathan gruffly, his good nature not yet fully awake.

Benjamin smiled but said nothing, for he understood his father. Now they moved to the lily bed.

"I suppose," said Benjamin, looking slyly under his hat, "I suppose the lilies are just lilies, Father. We have only red lilies; why have we no white ones?"

"They do not grow in this country, my son."

"Father, do the red lilies always come up the same shade?" asked Benjamin, not knowing whether his question would be answered or not, after his experience with the iris.

"Always the same shade, my son. Once a red lily, always a red lily."

"But here are certain ones that are redder than the others."

"It is an accident."

"But might we not take this light one and plant it, and would there not come up other light ones and perhaps after a while we might have a white lily?"

"Impossible, my son. My father, your grandfather, had a saying which he used of anything which he thought was most impossible—that it would happen when the sky turns green and the grass turns blue and the red lily comes up white. It is a strange saying; I do not know where he found it."

And now they were trimming the walk just in front of the new tomb.

"Father, where do we go when we die?"

"I do not know, my son."

"What do the priests and the scribes say?"

"They are wise men; they say very little, my son. It is a dark subject. There are some who say we go nowhere."

"But we must go somewhere, Father. There must be a heaven, you know."

"So I thought, my son, when I was your age, but I have grown to doubt. I shall believe it when the sky turns green, when the grass turns blue, and the red lily comes up white."

"The Sufferings of this Present Time"

By R. H. Judd

"I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us" (Romans 8:18).

THE phrase, "the sufferings of this present time," would to many of us seem to strike a sympathetic and responsive chord in limiting the time of which Paul spoke to the time through which we are now passing. But the times through which we are now passing dwarf almost into insignificance when compared to the mighty span of time to which Paul had reference in the above text. It is because of the fact that in our own time we appear to be approaching a crisis that we fail to recognize the tremendous significance of early events in Bible history, and the great stretch of time which they cover.

It would seem to be abundantly clear that "this present time" to which Paul alluded, and which obviously is still unfinished, had its beginning certainly not later than events recorded in Genesis 3. Hint is also given of earlier time, concerning which but little of detail is revealed. "This present time," however, very definitely goes back to the time of Adam's fall, and on account of which creation was subjected to vanity (Rom. 8:20). To our finite minds it would seem a very considerable period to embrace in such a phrase, yet it was clearly Paul's intention to thus limit the period of "suffering," so placing it in contrast with that time which shall not be present only, but continuous.

There is one word in this absorbing passage of Romans 8 that has long been a source of difficulty to the writer, and has doubtless been so to others. What did Paul mean when he said that the creation "was made subject to vanity"? What is the meaning of the word "vanity" here? That it is a condition of contrast inferior to what had previously prevailed is made evident from the fact of subjection, and in the added statement that the creation was made subject to vanity, not of its own will, but by reason of Him who subjected it. Paul made it clear that it was much more than an event of nature. It was divine intervention. A new and different order had come about, for by one man sin had come into the world. What was the condition of "vanity" to which creation was then made subject? What was the nature of it? If we look to the dictionary for the meaning of the word, we are not much enlightened, for it covers a wide range of meanings expressive of various kinds of depreciating values. Turning to Job 7:16 and Psalm 144:4, we find a note in the Revised Version margin informing us that the Hebrew word represents "a breath"—the most transient thing known to man, and which time and time again is used to denote the shortness of human life. Sin brings suffering, and in mercy God subjects the creature (and the creation, see R.V.) to "vanity." In other words, God shortens the period of suffering by shortening the span of man's natural life, so that sin when it is finished brings forth death.

While it is true, there is, we think, implied in the passage the intimation, not only the shortening of the individual's span of life, but the shortening also of the whole period of time embraced in the phrase, "the sufferings of this present time." It also is considered as being "made subject to vanity." The whole epoch of suffering and death is thus graciously shortened, so that it cannot be compared with that period of glory that shall follow, and in contrast to which it is but as a "breath." Paul said it was subjected "in hope." But hope in the Bible is the expectation of what will happen—not what may happen. So, when it says it was subjected in hope that the creation itself may be "delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God," it speaks of a plan foreordained and certain to happen, and the duration of which in comparison to "the sufferings of this present time" cannot be measured. Well may Paul have said that neither life nor death, nor things present or to come, shall separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord, when we have the glorious promise of our deliverance from "the bondage of corruption." "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" "Thanks be unto God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

RESURRECTION HOPE

By Mary E. Hatch

BOTH the Old and the New Testament teach resurrection hope. Job asked, "If a man die, shall he live again?" (14:14). He answered his own question, for we read: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands" (vv. 14, 15). Job had great confidence in the coming of One who would redeem him from the grave, for he prophesied: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God" (19:25, 26).

As resurrection from the dead was the center of Job's hope, so the resurrection through Christ our Redeemer is the center of Christians' hope. The hope of resurrection is in Christ alone, for Jesus said: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself" (John 5:26), and John said, "God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (1 John 5:11, 12). Christ has the power to give immortal life to whomsoever He will, and promises, "Because I live, ye shall live also" (John 14:19). Christ's resurrection is the basis of our hope for resurrection, and we know that what He has promised He is able also to perform. Jesus said, "This is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:40).

As mortal Christians, we cannot now fully understand the beauty and limitless power of immortality, but we know that when Christ returns, "we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2). A few verses preceding this quotation we read: "Now, little children, abide in him; that when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming" (2:28). To be made like Christ is so worth while as to inspire us to truly seek for Christ who is the first fruits to life immortal. Speaking of the resurrection, the Apostle Paul said: "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the firstfruits of them that slept . . . even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (1 Cor. 15:20-23).

"As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly. . . Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" (1 Cor. 15:49-55).

"Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (v. 57).

THE THIRD DAY

By Alma Orr

"Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

JESUS was speaking of the temple of His body, but the Jews did not understand. When He was risen from the dead, His disciples remembered and understood.

Nevertheless, why should He rise the third day? There was nothing of chance or "happen so" about the time. Jesus knew He was to rise the third day. This was planned from the beginning. "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world" (Acts 15:18). There must have been a reason. In our study of the Scriptures, we find that it often happens that one event typifies or foreshadows another. The resurrection of Jesus is one such instance. In Romans 6:5 we read: "If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." This likeness will be in time as well as in character. Martha, speaking to Jesus in regard to her brother who had died, said: "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day" (John 11:24). In John 6:39, 40, Jesus says: "This is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day," and "that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day."

There is a very definite connection between the third day and the last day. In the type of Moses in the mount (Ex. 19:10, 11), we learn that two days were allowed for the people to wash their clothes and be ready for the third day or, in other words, two days were allowed to put on righteousness. These two days typify two ages, the antediluvian and the postdiluvian ages. The third or last day typifies the coming of the Lord. A day begins with darkness or at least partial darkness, as: "The evening and the morning were the first day." In the beginning was darkness; then came light. The light continued until the time of the Flood, when "the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished" (2 Peter 3:6). This was the first death of the world. Death means night or darkness, and this marked the beginning of the second day. The second day will end when darkness or partial darkness again covers the earth, and this will be the beginning of the third and last day. This is the day when the Lord will come, the day when the righteous dead will be raised. This agrees with 1 Thessalonians 4:16: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first." When Jesus arose from the dead, it was yet dark (John 20:1). When the dead are raised, it will be before the light of the third day comes. These resurrected saints, together with the righteous living who will be changed, will be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. As the type of the ark shows, all who are not taken up will be destroyed. This will be the second death of the world (Rev. 20:14). This death will not be by water but by fire (2 Peter 3:6,7). "The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. . . . Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:10, 13). After the earth has been cleansed by fire and made new, Christ and His bride, who will be seen coming down from God out of heaven (Rev. 21:2, 9, 10), together with the church which has gone to meet them, will return to earth to take possession of the Kingdom and dwell therein forever. "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever" (Psalm 37:29).

Christ is the "light of the world" (John 8:12). He is the "Sun of righteousness" (Mal. 4:2). When He comes, the light of the third and last day will have fully come. There can be no more night, for that would be the beginning of another day and would make false the statement that the dead are raised the last day. The second death of the world cannot come after Christ comes, as death means night. This agrees with Revelation 21:1-4 and Revelation 22. It agrees with Psalm 110:1, "The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool." "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:26). After Christ comes there can be no more period of years, as time will be counted no longer (Rev. 10:6). When light fully comes on the third day, it will be one perfect, never-ending day throughout all eternity.

"HE IS RISEN"

What was it that was raised out of the tomb? Was it the body of Jesus? Was it Jesus the Lord?

Peter says in Acts 2:30, speaking of David: "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." It is sometimes argued that, because the phrase "according to the flesh" does not occur in some versions, this verse proves nothing as to the materiality of Christ at resurrection. Yes, but it does, because if it was the fruit of David's loins that was raised, it was surely material.

Let us read Acts 2:31, 32: "He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul (He was not left in hell. The word for soul does not appear in the original Greek) was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption. This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses." "This Jesus hath God raised up." What Jesus? The one whose flesh saw no corruption, and this is the fact to which Peter added, "We all are witnesses."

Let us also read verse 36 of this same chapter: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made this same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." What Jesus was crucified? Was it a Jesus of mind or intellect or spirit that was crucified? Everyone knows that it was the physical Jesus that was crucified. Peter said, "God hath made this same Jesus both Lord and Christ."

Do I need to give the words of the Master when He said, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have," or His language to Thomas when he said, "Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side"? Yes, I do, for there are people who quibble over these plain statements. I once heard a teacher of a Bible class argue that Christ was not material after His resurrection, and I quoted the foregoing language wherein Jesus said, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." The teacher quoted it this way, "As ye see me have," laying the emphasis on "ye" as though they saw something that was not there. Did Jesus deceive them, and show them something He did not possess?

"Yes, but," I hear someone say, "didn't Jesus go through the door, when the disciples had shut themselves in for fear of the Jews?" Does the Bible say that He went through the door? "No, but it says that He 'stood in the midst of them,' when the doors were shut." True, it does, but with His miraculous power Jesus could have gone in when they did, or He could have opened the door and gone in without them seeing Him. He could have withheld their sight whenever He chose to do so, as He did with the eyes of the two on the way to Emmaus.

The old axiom, "Two objects cannot occupy the same space at the same time," was as true then as it is today. Then a being of flesh and bones could not penetrate a door.

Again, I hear someone ask, "Why stress this point so much? What difference does it make whether Jesus was material or immaterial after His resurrection?" (over)

What is the difference between material and immaterial?

Miles Grant, in his Positive Theology, page fifty-nine, quoted Samuel Drew on the subject of the soul—who, he said, “was a very able writer on this subject”—as follows: “The soul is a simple, immaterial substance. Whatever has parts cannot be immaterial; and what has no parts can never lose them. To suppose any substance to have parts, destroys its immateriality.”

Mr. Drew’s definition will apply to any immaterial substance, whether the soul, or some other immaterial substance. So, if Christ was immaterial after His resurrection, He had no parts. In that case He had no hands with nail prints, and no side with a spear print in which Thomas could thrust his hand. He deceived His disciples.

First John 3:2 says, “We know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.” Does that mean anything to us? We often hear it said among our people that in the Kingdom we shall clasp our loved ones in our arms and caress and love them as we have done in this life. However, if Jesus is immaterial we shall be like Him, and one immateriality could not clasp another in its arms, for it would not have any. It could have no parts and be immaterial.

I think the following comment about Jesus’ words when Lazarus died, quoted from the Words of Life, published in London, England, is a better conclusion to this article than I could write:

“Dead! Glad I was not there.” We welcome the opportunity to commend an article appearing in The Witness for December under the arresting title with which this paragraph is headed. The contributor, H. P. Barker, of Weymouth, after pointing out that in this utterance our Lord had two main objects in view: (1) “To strengthen the faith of his disciples,” and (2) “They were to see the glory of God,” points out that “Resurrection is the greatest testimony to the power and glory of God”; that “it belongs to the Son equally with the Father (John 5:21),” and that “He is declared to be the Son of God in that He has this power (Rom. 1:4).” Then he continues: “What comfort there is in this for the bereaved today! I mean the bereaved who belong to Christ. They fain would have had the Saviour with them at the passing of their loved ones. He could have stemmed the disease, or averted the accident. But a greater miracle is to be wrought. Their loved ones, if they, too, belong to Christ, will be given back to them in resurrection. When He descends to the air, His first act will be to raise them. ‘They that are Christ’s at his coming’ (1 Cor. 15:23) will be made alive and those that remain alive will be caught up together with them (1 Thess. 4:17). Not only to be ‘ever with the Lord,’ but also with them over whose death we have mourned. Oh, it will be lovely to see them again wearing the likeness of their Saviour! . . . We lower their bodies into the grave, but how wonderful the way that they will come out! Let us dry our eyes. The loss of our loved ones is but temporary. The glory of God and of His Son will be shown us on the glad day when they will be called from their graves. The assurance of this may well strengthen our faith.”

IMPORTANCE OF CHRIST’S RESURRECTION

dwells, and if death frees the real man from the clay tenement in which he is confined, naturally a corporeal resurrection is not required, and those who believe that the dead are more really alive than they were before dying are quite consistent in leaving no place in their theology for a literal rising from among the dead.”

Our next article will conclude the resurrection studies.

THE WHITE LILY

“But this man, the Galilean, teaches that we shall live hereafter, does He not?”

“I do not know what He teaches. He is a strange fellow. They say that He is wicked; that He wants to be king; that He deceives the people.”

“It is false, Father; He is a good man. I have seen Him. On the first day of the week I saw Him as He came into the city, when the crowds were shouting and singing and spreading their garments in the way. We boys were waving palms, and He looked kind and gentle, not at all like a king, and the next day in the Temple when we were singing, the day He drove out the traders, He put His hand on our heads, and spoke kindly and asked what our names were and said He hoped we would always remember that day and be reverent in the house of God. He is not a wicked man; He is good.”

“But does not Joseph, our master, believe in Him?”

“I do not know; sometimes I think he does. Joseph is a righteous man, but he is over cautious. If he believes in the Galilean let him be bold and say so. This man—have you seen Him since the second day?”

“No, I have not seen Him, Father, but I fear for His safety. I was in the city the day before yesterday and I saw one of His followers, the one with the black beard, you know, and the shaggy eyes. I never liked him. I saw him in the narrow street behind the palace talking with one of the priests—that little one, you know, that always smiles and looks at you with his ears. When they saw me they started, and yesterday when I was in the city a strange man asked me if we boys knew whether the Galilean was going to eat the great feast with His friends. I wonder why he asked me. I told Joel, the son of James. He said there was a conspiracy, and if he saw the Galilean when He came into the city he was going to tell Him to beware. I fear some harm may come to Him."

At that instant there was a hoarse sound of shouting that came from the direction of the city. Nearer and nearer it came, and then there appeared the first of a strange procession. There were four soldiers, walking two by two. Behind were three men with heavy timbers upon their shoulders. And then pressing close, crowding, jeering, came a crowd of excited people.

Nathan and Benjamin leaned upon their spades and looked.

"An execution," said Nathan, beckoning with his hand toward the hill.

"It is the Galilean," said Benjamin excitedly. "Father, that tall man in the middle, just before the other two, is He—I told you so. They are going to kill Him."

The great crowd surged by the garden of Joseph of Arimathaea. Nathan and Benjamin dropped their spades where they stood, and joined the crowd.

The terrible procession swept on up the hill that was called "The Skull." Then the soldiers put the Galilean and two thieves upon the three crosses. The coarse, vulgar, brutal crowd closed in around. Not far away was a little group of boys, in the center of which was Benjamin.

The boys told in anger what had happened in the city. They had put an old purple robe upon the Galilean, and they had made a crown out of small sticks and put it on His head and had made believe He was a king and they were His subjects. They had bowed down before Him and one insulting fellow had put a stick in His hand and called it a scepter, and then had torn the stick from His hand and struck Him on the head with it; and one had spit upon Him.

As Benjamin listened, his face flushed and his teeth shut tight. The crosses were now in their places. A rough man with coarse voice standing near shouted at the Galilean, "Aha, you have saved others, save yourself, and come down from the cross."

This was more than Benjamin could endure. He leaped out from the group of boys, his fists tight, his eyes aflame. "Shame," he cried, "hold your speech."

"He is a blasphemer," said the rough man.

"He is no blasphemer; you are the blasphemer. He is a good man."

With one heavy blow of his fist, the ruffian struck Benjamin to the ground where he lay, still and white. Nathan who was standing a little distance away, heard the voice of his son and saw the blow. He rushed to the aid of the boy, picked him up tenderly and carried him away.

Sometime in the afternoon, when the color had come back to Benjamin's cheeks, they talked of the morning.

Nathan said to Benjamin, "It was a rash thing to do, lad, but it was the deed of a man."

It was a weird, wild afternoon. Just as the sun had reached its height, strange gray clouds began to gather. The sky seemed to turn green and the grass blue.

The dusk was beginning to gather before Nathan and Benjamin had heart and strength to go out and take up the spades, which had lain so quiet in the garden all the day, and resume their work.

Soon they heard hushed voices and quiet steps coming near. It was Joseph, their master. With him were his rich friend and some strange women. Servants of Joseph were carrying the body of the Galilean. Joseph beckoned gravely to Nathan, and Nathan beckoned to Benjamin; they opened the doors of the new tomb, and in it they laid the body of the Galilean. Then they turned away.

As they did so, Benjamin heard one of the women say something about coming early the first day of the week. The night fell and there was the quiet of the Jewish Sabbath.

With the first rays of the sun on the first day of the week Benjamin was up and away to the garden, but someone had been there before him. The doors of the tomb were open and women were standing near, amazed and frightened. They told Benjamin strange things. The Galilean was not there in the tomb; an angel had said He had risen. As they hastened away to tell their friends the strange news, Nathan drew near with his sickle and knife and spade to begin the day's work. As he saw the doors of the tomb open, he was so startled that his sickle all but dropped from his hands.

"What meaneth it, Benjamin?" said he. "Have they taken Him away?"

"He is risen; He is alive again," said Benjamin. "The women said so; an angel told them."

"Nonsense! Nonsense! I will believe such things when the sky turns green and the grass turns blue and the red lily comes up white."

"Father, look!" said Benjamin, pointing.

At the corner of the tomb under the poplar tree, stood a lily, straight as a queen and white as the snow.

"Wonderful, wonderful!" said Nathan. "The red lily has come up white. The story of the women is strange, but it must be so! It must be so!"

Nathan and Benjamin soon joined the company of those who believed in the Galilean. None of all the company was more changed and none was more sure than Nathan that the Galilean lived and that he, too, was going to live forever and ever.

The people all wondered how it had all come about. Some said it was because of Joseph, their master; some said it was because of the brave deed of Nathan's boy. Nathan himself only said that he had been a changed man, and his heart had been full of hope and joy, since the morning when the red lily came up white.

For Me!

"Wounded for me, wounded for me,
There on the cross He was wounded for me;
Gone my transgressions, and now I am free,
All because Jesus was wounded for me.

"Dying for me, dying for me,
There on the cross He was dying for me;
Now in His death my redemption I see,
All because Jesus was dying for me.

"Risen for me, risen for me,
Up from the grave He has risen for me;
Now evermore from death's sting I am free,
All because Jesus has risen for me.

"Coming for me, coming for me,
One day to earth He is coming for me;
Then with what joy His dear face I shall see;
Oh, how I praise Him! He's coming for me!"

Jesus Is Risen

Two of the followers of Jesus were walking sadly along the road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. They were suddenly joined by a stranger who asked them why they looked so sad.

They were surprised to find one who would ask such a question. As they walked along the road, they told of Jesus' death on the cruel cross. They told of the hope they had had—that He was their Saviour. They told the stranger, who was really Jesus, how some of the women had gone to the tomb and found it empty. (Luke 24:24.)

Then Jesus told them how the Bible said that Christ would have to suffer and die, but that He would rise from the dead. When they reached Emmaus, they asked Him to stay overnight with them.

That night as they sat at the supper table, He took bread, blessed it, and broke it, and gave to them to eat. It was then that they suddenly saw the stranger was Jesus! But at once He vanished out of their sight. They were so excited that they went all the way back to Jerusalem (about seven miles) to tell Jesus' followers.

The wonderful news was there before them. They found the Eleven saying, "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon." Then the two told of the stranger and their walk with Him.

He Lives Forever

Jesus is set free from death. We read, "Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him" (Rom. 6:9).

We, by baptism, and Christian faith have a blessed hope. It is that we may receive the "gift of God . . . eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23).

As the disciples watched Jesus as He was caught away into heaven, two men in white clothing stood by. They said, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11).

He is coming to earth again to call His own. At that time the dead in Christ and the living Christians will be caught up to be with Christ. After the troubles of earth are over, He will return with His saints to sit on the throne of David in Jerusalem. (Luke 1:32.)

Think a While

How can I show my love for Him who died for me?
How can I get ready for that "gift of God" which is eternal life? (Heb. 9:28.)

Life or Death

By Francis Burnett, Oregon, Ill.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (Luke 24:5.) It was a peculiar question asked by the two men, but one of vast importance. "They," some of Jesus' closest friends, had come to put spices upon His body. The two men in shining apparel said, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Although they did not comprehend it, Jesus was life to these friends who had come to His sepulcher. Jesus had told these persons that He was going to die and be raised again the third day, but they did not believe. We read in 1 Thessalonians 5:9, 10: "God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." The "wrath" spoken of in the preceding verse is the judgment to come upon those who do not believe Jesus died for them.

To us there seems to be an application of the words in Luke 24:5 to our present generation. The world is pleasure mad. People spend much of their time seeking pleasure—especially those who do not profess Christianity. What are they doing? They are seeking life among the dead. The activities of pleasure, in which people have a part, satisfy only at the time of the activity. There is nothing in them to give life.

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" (John 11:25, 26.) Do we believe this? The commandment is, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me," and it does not say a word about believing something else. As we approach the coming Easter Day, we should give careful consideration to our thoughts. Easter is a time of gay festivity with parades, new clothing, and many other like things.

Almost everyone has hoped for eternal life, yet many do not believe that Jesus was raised from the dead. The Apostle Paul states in 1 Corinthians 15:14: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." Again, in verse 17, we read: "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins." Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6). There is no way of salvation except through Christ. Therefore, if He had not been raised from the dead, we would have no hope of eternal life. Let us look to Christ for our life, and not to the world of sin.

To the Work!

By June Macy, Troy, Ohio.

Success is the result of the right mental attitude, and the right mental attitude will bring success in everything we undertake. There is opportunity for full-time employment for us in the service of God.

What is the right mental attitude for those who succeed in accomplishing work for the Lord? "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom" (Prov. 9:10), and, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding" (Prov. 4:7). Through God's love for us, and through our love for Him, we can succeed in everything we undertake.

What shall we undertake? "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man" (Eccl. 12:13). His Son has commanded us to "preach the gospel." "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" (James 1:22), for "it is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matt. 4:4).

Because the time is short, we must act now. We must have workers, and those we have must work. The Church of God needs not only ministers who can be trained at the Bible Training School in Oregon, Illinois, but it also needs teachers, leaders, and students who have an earnest desire to acquire a wealth of knowledge at the Summer Bible Training School. If we cannot attend, we can help someone else either financially or by words of encouragement. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might" (Eccl. 9:10). If we have a talent and hide it, we will be "wicked and slothful" servants. We can and will have a successful Summer Bible Training School. The Word must be preached, that others might hear—and not only hear, but do, for there is much to be done.

Let all the people rally to the support of the Church of God, a house of hope to a race so hurt by sin! Revive Berean work! Evangelize!

RESURRECTION HOPE

By Emma C. Railsback

As the signs thicken, signs which indicate that the establishment of God's Kingdom is not far in the distance, our minds turn more frequently to the resurrection of Him who became the "firstfruits of them that slept"; who was raised to the power of an endless life; who was a prophet, is now a priest, and is soon coming to be our Redeemer and King.

The great Apostle to the Gentiles has given us strong assurance that they who are Christ's shall likewise be raised at His coming. Not only did Paul and the other apostles tell of the resurrection, but our Lord Himself assured Martha that her brother would rise again, also that whosoever believes in Christ, who is the resurrection and the life, will likewise live in the resurrection at the last day, and still others who live and believe in Him at that day "shall never die." What a glorious hope it is! How it buoys us up to look above the clouds of war, and distress of nations, the sufferings of innocent women and children, of the destitute and homeless! Were it not for this glorious hope of future restitution of order and harmony and justice, our hearts, too, would fail us for fear. But, no! we have the strong assurance that "all things work together for good to them that love God, who are the called according to his purpose." May all the household of faith, as we meet again to celebrate another anniversary of Christ's resurrection, have our faith renewed and strengthened to see into the new age "wherein dwelleth righteousness."

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The older we get, the faster (it seems) time passes. There are only two months more of school.

Bro. L. E. Conner preached in Rockford, Ill., on Sunday, April 6. The writer spoke in Dixon, Ill., the same day. Everyone is welcome to the Berean Bible class in Dixon every Friday evening at 7:30.

Bro. Ellsworth Routson and the writer are planning to go to Grand Rapids, Mich., April 20. Ellsworth will preach at the South Lawn church.

Bro. Celaine Randall and Sr. Eunice Zolinger left Oregon, Ill., April 3, for a few days' visit with Celaine's folks.

Bro. Orris Mills twisted his knee and is unable to attend classes. The condition, however, is not serious.

The students have been securing some work. We get plenty of work when spring house-cleaning begins.

In our class in Religious Journalism we have been learning the rules in spelling. We hope to become better spellers.

We are on our last chapter in our Archaeology book. The author several times referred to the last chapter in the book, now we have reached it.

Bro. Warren Knodle has not been able to attend classes regularly. He has not had very good health for several years.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"Our wet winter weather has now given way to most wonderful weather. . . . Flowers mat the mountain sides. Oranges are in bloom."—S. J. Lindsay, 707 Mill Ave., Tempe, Ariz. (Notice the change of address.)

Bro. and Sr. C. L. Netts, St. Petersburg, Fla., plan soon to return to their home at 1013 Pine St., Springfield, Ohio.

"Christ died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him."—Paul.

"Seldom will one find faithful children where parents are slack in their church duties."—C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ont.

More than 280,000 Jews have returned to Palestine during the last eight years. The "fig tree" is shooting forth its tendrils. The Kingdom of God draws near.

"Now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."—Ananias.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies."—David.

The pre-Easter evangelistic meetings at Oregon, Ill., are now in progress. Bro. James M. Watkins is the guest speaker.

"I always look forward for Monday morning's mail, as that is usually when our Restitution Herald arrives."—Mrs. Carl E. Hogsan, Spanaway, Wash.

A good friend of the Bible Training School writes, "May the good work continue," and indicates that she means what she says by contributing twenty-five dollars.

See next week's Herald for announcement of a generous contribution to a building fund for the Bible Training School.

Nearly half a million Jews have returned to Palestine since the first World War. In 1921 the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv had a population of 3,604; today it numbers well over 200,000.

It is no longer a question as to whether or not the United States will become involved in the war. It is, rather, how much and how soon we can help the Slavs to create a major battle front in Hitler's back yard.

CONSIDER THE LILIES

By Florence E. Tuttle

Perhaps one of the most beautiful illustrations of Jesus' teaching was the comparison of His followers to the lilies of the field. "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these" (Matt. 6:28, 29).

The beauty of the lily is created of God, a natural glory is given it, whereas Solomon's glory was created by the wealth of material things which he built about him; he arrayed himself in artificial adornment.

If we would have a natural beauty, it must come from within our hearts—not the "putting on of apparel" (1 Peter 3:3, 4). "God is no respecter of persons," but He is an inspector of our hearts. "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God" (Matt. 5:8). Let us consider the lilies in the light of their natural freedom, for God cares for them. We are to take heed lest the cares of this life overtake us, so that Christ's coming will not catch us unaware (Luke 21:34).

The three little words, "Blessed be nothing," are good for meditation as we near the consummation of the present evil Gentile age. The more material goods we possess, the more cares and worries we have. "After all these things do the Gentiles seek" (Matt. 6:32). We are soon again to commemorate the occasion of the resurrection of our Lord. Let it not be with an outward show of "putting on of apparel," as will be displayed in almost all churches, but "let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price" (1 Peter 3:4).

Let us not encumber our time with superfluous cares as did Martha (Luke 10:40-42), but let us choose the better part as did Mary. This age is speeding to its destruction, and we must be careful that we are not caught in the swift current. As the lilies drink in the sunshine, may we absorb the life of the Son of God—that we may be arrayed in pure white robes at His coming. (See Rev. 7:13.) We should not be as the five foolish virgins. (Matt. 25:1-13.) Hebrews 12:1 reads in part, "Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us." Verse 2 reads: "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." "To be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace" (Rom. 8:6). May the purity of the lily be found in all who have accepted Christ, the Lily of the Valleys.

CORA M. TROUSDALE

Cora M. Trousdale, wife of Abner P. Trousdale, fell asleep in Jesus, March 24, 1941, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Shain. Sr. Trousdale was the mother of Sr. Ida Overton and Sr. Kate Shain. An older daughter Lillian died in infancy. Her husband preceded her in death just eleven years and one day.

Abiding in the household of faith since childhood, her entire life of over eighty-four years was indeed an example of "patient continuance in well doing." Her simple, unquestioning faith in all things of Scripture, as well as her outstanding patience against all adversity, has indeed made her life a legend among those who knew her.

After final assurances by the undersigned of the blessings of the hope that was hers, she was laid to rest at Wesley Cemetery, Eldorado, Ill., where she will be found ready when Jesus comes.

James M. Watkins.

THE MAN FROM GALILEE

By Mae Nedrow

He walked along the seashore,
The man from Galilee,
With accents sweet and tender
He said, "Come unto me."

The angry waves and the wind Obeyed His will,
As He calmly said to them,
"Peace! Be still!"

Near the grave of one most dear
Our blessed Saviour wept,
"Come forth," to Lazarus He cried,
Then up rose one who'd slept.

He blessed the bread, He fed the throngs,
By the Sea of Galilee;
He broke the bread of life to them
As He stood beside the Sea.

He had not "where to lay his head,"
This man from Galilee,
The Son of God, our Saviour,
Who died for you and me.

And when they nailed Him to the cross
No unkind word He said;
But begged forgiveness for their sins,
While sharp thorns pierced His head.

"They know not what they do," He said,
And, "Father, forgive them," He cried.
Then with a blessing on His lips,
Our loving Saviour died.

But He arose, O, glorious day!
To triumph o'er the grave,
He lives again, forever!
With gracious power to save.

We find many times, like a tempest,
As we're toss'd on life's rugged sea,
He guides our bark, lest we perish,
He ever hears our plea.

Accept Him now, confess His name,
Forget all worldliness and fame.
In His blood today confide,
Keep Him ever near thy side.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

God today calls men, saying: "Wherefore come out from among them (the world, John 17:14-17), and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (2 Cor. 6:17). Christ said, "I am the way" (John 14:6). "Let us go forth therefore unto him . . . bearing his reproach" (Heb. 13:13). "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified. But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil doer, or as a busybody in other men's matters. Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf" (1 Peter 4:14-16).

If we appreciate the value of Christ's resurrection, let us suffer with Him that we may also be glorified with Him.

RESURRECTION

By Beatrice (McChesney) Walter

Christ's enemies great joy did show,
As to the tomb they saw Him go.
It is for us He now would pray,
But cannot save Himself today.
They then in doubt a Calvary made
As Jesus to the Father prayed.

Of crude and bitter things they'd do,
Not once did Christ give answer to;
But asked, "Why, Father, would Thou forsake?
As now this bitter cup I take?
Thy will, O Father, I would do,
As into death I go for you."

He triumphed over death that day,
An angel rolled the stone away.
As Mary to the scepter went,
A messenger to her was sent:
"The one you look for is not dead,
He is risen," the angel said.

Then Peter, James, and John, she sought—
To tell the news the angel brought.
The joy there was, none could compare,
As on her way she met Christ there.
So, unto death He had to go,
That resurrection we might know.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him. (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Resurrected Christ

By Mary Richardson

AS WE approach the Easter season, we should do so with humbleness and thankfulness of heart. A sense of reverence and peace should rule our hearts and dominate our conduct, not only during this period of time, but throughout our lives of service. We should recall that many years ago on Easter morn Christ arose to never die again. In this wonderful event is our hope based. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." Christ and the resurrection is the needed basis for future hope. The only ray of hope we have is founded in the second coming of Christ and the resurrection.

The Mohammedans worship a dead leader, although he did impart and adhere to some good moral principles. The American Indians formerly and may still believe in the happy hunting grounds. Everything of material value that they possessed was buried with them, so they would enjoy life after death. These and other forms of worship can be strongly contrasted with Christ's literal resurrection, in that we worship a risen Saviour. Christ dispelled, forever, all doubts as to the literal reality of both His death and His resurrection when He said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore" (Rev. 1:18). The glory and power of the resurrection of Christ depend entirely upon its reality, for if He is not raised we are yet in our sin, having an empty faith and no hope beyond this present life. (1 Cor. 15:12-19.) Paul made the declaration that Christ had died and had been raised the third day according to the Scriptures. (1 Cor. 15:1-8.) As additional proof of Christ's resurrection, Paul stated that Jesus had been seen of many, the most of whom were living at that time. Paul was firmly convinced, as he had personally seen the risen Saviour. Therefore, Paul used this and other undeniable truths as proof of the literal resurrection. Further proof is found in the fact that Jesus entered into a very personal relationship with some by talking and eating with them, and His appearances were not merely visionary. In 1 Corinthians 9:1, Paul asks: "Am I not an apostle, am I not free? have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord?" It was not the continuance of the spirit after death, but a raised body that convinced Paul. Christ, by His death and resurrection, opened the way to a higher plane of life than the Adamic man possessed—"a new and living way" (Heb. 10:20).

Jesus had told His disciples that He must suffer and die on the cross; but that after three days in the tomb

He would rise again, clothed in immortality. However, they had not understood. After His death, they thought that all was at an end. They were so saddened by events of the previous week that they had decided to return to their former work, disillusioned and defeated. Nevertheless, Peter's eyes were opened and his understanding was cleared by contact with Jesus on the shores of Galilee (John 21), and he went to proclaim the message that Christ was alive. He declared that Jesus' death and His resurrection were included in the plan of God for the redemption of the world. All of this constituted unanswerable proof that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of God. God foreknew that wicked men, if permitted to do so, would crucify His Son, and God used this to accomplish His plan. Not even the resurrection of Jesus convinced many Jews that He was both Lord and Christ, but they shall so acknowledge Him in the future (Isa. 25:9).

"Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). Others were raised to life before Christ—Lazarus, Jairus' daughter; but this was to mortal life. Christ was different; He came forth from the tomb with immortal life. He is the first fruits, the first to obtain life. As the first ripe grain was a sample of the harvest, so the risen Lord is a sample of the resurrection that awaits those who are Christ's.

Christ is alive forevermore. "Because I live, Ye shall live also." Knowledge of Christ's resurrection will avail us little, unless we center our lives and our hope in Him. If we accept Him and live accordingly, we are assured of the more abundant life. Future life will come to man as a gift from God, yet it must be sought (Rom. 2:7). We cannot expect to receive this until the Lord appears, for the simple reason that our eternal life is hid in Christ, and when He appears we shall appear with Him in glory. As our eternal life is conditioned, it is necessary that each of us walk worthy of the Kingdom of God (1 Thess. 2:12). Said Jesus: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:25).

When Christ returns to raise the dead, He "will destroy . . . the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces . . . and it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation" (Isa. 25:7-9).

“O God, My Heart Is Fixed”

Big Balanced Rock, Chiricahua National Monument in southeast Arizona, weighs, it is estimated, six hundred fifty-two tons. The rock is twenty-two feet wide and twenty-five feet, three inches, high. It is balanced on a narrow point that is only four feet, three inches, thick. It is estimated that six hundred twenty-one pounds rest on each square inch at the spindle point. At the present slow rate of disintegration, it will last for another six hundred thousand years.

Big Balanced Rock portrays the grandeur and mystery of Mother Nature. More, it speaks of the Creator. Without one word of debate, it announces the Eternal in bold and magnificent contrast to mortal man—ever near the precipice, yet there hopefully scanning the impenetrable vastnesses of God. By no means is man the center of the universe. Not of man, but of God it is written: “Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God” (Psalm 90:2). “All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity” (Isa. 40:17).

When one beholds the handiwork of the Great Architect, both in its bigness and beauty, he becomes so little and unimportant as hardly daring to express a doubt. Faith overwhelms him, and like David, he cries: “O God, my heart is fixed” (Psalm 108:1).

Training School Building Fund

Brother Alan McLain, a junior student in the Bible Training School, believes in the future of the Church of God and appreciates that the future of the Church and the future of the School are closely related. Doubtless, there are many of our brethren who likewise believe in the mission of both our Church and School, and to them, especially, Brother McLain has set a splendid example in contributing one hundred dollars to start a building fund for the Bible Training School. Accordingly, his gift has been placed in the bank, in a special savings account, where it will grow by interest and added gifts of other zealous friends until needed for a school or dormitory.

The spirit back of the gift, too, is much appreciated, the giver being reluctant in letting his name be known. Surely, though, this is a light that can well be seen as shining brightly before men to glorify the Father in heaven. The Bible Training School can become a power for good; we pray that it will become a power for good, and we know that our prayer will be answered whenever the Church of God, as a whole, catches the spirit of our students who are putting their time and means into this new, progressive, and missionary project. How much do you believe in the future of the Church of God and its Bible Training School? “What you do talks so loud, that we can’t hear what you say.”

Conquerors Paul and Hitler

The fall of Salonica into the hands of the Nazis is interesting to Christians, for long before Hitler claimed the city the Apostle Paul entered there. First and Second Thessalonians were written to the conquered and the prisoners of Paul. In that expedition, however, the city was not burned, no lives were destroyed, and the good that was accomplished was a link in the gospel chain that eventually reached around the world. He who now has no conscience in Salonica could hardly be expected to preach in Jerusalem, if he were a little farther on his way.

Conquerors Paul and Hitler! Whose victories will the longer be remembered? Whose conquests will receive reward when Jesus comes? Who is the real victor? Well did John say: “This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?” (1 John 5:4, 5). The Bible definition of a world conqueror thus excludes Hitler from any right to such a title. Paul, your battles were hard, but thanks be to God, you showed us how to “fight the good fight of faith.”

OUR BIBLE

By Harry Gockler

OTHER religions have their sacred books, some with passages that are really good, others that are meaningless and without virtue or truth. There is, however, only one Bible, the Book of God, of final authority in faith and practice. It is different than any other book in that it contains life and imparts life. Its message is living, vital, and real.

There is abundant evidence that the Bible claims divine inspiration for itself. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God" (2 Tim. 3:16). "The prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21). The Scriptures cannot be ascribed to man; they did not originate in the human mind; they are not a human product. It is true that they came through human channels, but "men spake from God."

The authority of the Old Testament was unquestioned by Christ. He quoted from it as the Word of God. He declared that Moses and the prophets wrote concerning Him, and that He Himself was the fulfillment of the Scriptures. There are multiplied evidences, both internal and external, that have convinced some of the most brilliant scholars of each passing age that the Bible is what the writers claimed it to be—the Word of God.

The Scripture record in Acts 8:26-39 takes us back to the early days of the church, when, scattered by persecution, its members were preaching everywhere throughout those regions. Included in these early records are the graphic details of the ministry of the deacon, Philip. He had been successful and might have settled down to strengthen new converts and reach out for other places in Samaria, but he was true to his evangelistic calling, and moved from a pleasant field of labor to a lonely desert road below Jerusalem. Obedience to God caused his path to cross that of a eunuch, who had been to Jerusalem to worship, and was sitting in his chariot reading the Prophet Isaiah. Though a believer in the God of Israel, he was a Gentile.

From this story, we learn some important lessons about our Bible and what we should do with it. Here was a busy man, yet he found time to read his Bible. He used his spare time, though it was on a journey bumping over the desert. Anyone who desires can become, not only a student, but also a master of God's Word. Ordinarily, one can read a book in the Bible in the time it would take to read the newspaper or a magazine. Our Bible gives us the message and hope of life eternal. Surely such a book deserves some of our time and study.

We also learn from this story in Acts that the eunuch, though diligently reading the Scriptures, could not properly understand the passage he was studying. Thus it was that Philip stepped into the picture and made the passage plain to him. We need not only to study our Bibles, but to understand them. Paul said, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17).

This indicates the important place of the preacher, evangelist, and Bible teacher as a guide to Christian living. That is not to say that the Bible cannot be its own exponent, but there is great value in the accumulation of knowledge that only study and long experience can give. The creeds of the church and the scholarly acquisitions of the ages are not lightly to be cast aside.

We must also remember that by diligent study of the Holy Scriptures we can many times discover the true meaning of a verse, ourselves. True, such study requires hard work on our part, but it was beaten gold that God required for His Temple. It was after Elijah had digged the trench and placed the sacrifice upon the altar that the fire of God fell. The Apostle Paul says, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God."

One other important lesson we learn from the story of Philip and the eunuch is the fact that the Bible, in order to have any effect on our lives, must be obeyed. It is very evident that Philip not only interpreted Jesus from the ancient prophets, but also told the eunuch the way of salvation and the necessity of baptism. For, as they were journeying across the desert country, they came to a pool of water and the eunuch, seeing the water, requested baptism. Philip, having taught him Jesus and the way of salvation, then assisted him in putting on Christ through obedience in baptism.

Knowing and obeying the Bible are essential to growth in the things of God. Growth is as natural in the spiritual realm as in the vegetable kingdom, and surely just as essential. The Apostle Peter exhorts us to "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 3:18).

All of us have Bibles. Let us read and study them, that we may be able to understand their glorious teachings, and let us be obedient. Our Bible—wonderful book!

Tradition Versus Truth

By Grover Gordon

Some of the doctrines of the Church of Rome, and the dates when they were imposed, compared with Bible truth.

PETER, claimed by the Church of Rome as its first pope, said: "There were false prophets . . . among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you" (2 Peter 2:1). He also said: "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21). Isaiah, one of those prophets, said: "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isa. 8:20). We shall compare some of the teachings of the Church of Rome with Bible teaching, not to condemn any individual, but to encourage study of God's Word. There are many very sincere people who believe false teachings, not knowing what the Bible says, because the Bible was forbidden to laymen and placed in the index of forbidden books by the Council of Valencia in the year 1229. Jesus said, "Search the scriptures" (John 5:39). Paul said, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God" (2 Tim. 2:15), also that "the holy scriptures . . . are able to make thee wise unto salvation" (3:15).

Creed. The creed of Pope Pius 4 was imposed as the official creed in 1560. Christians should retain the Holy Scriptures as their creed. Hence, their creed is fifteen hundred years older than the creed of the Roman Church.

Tradition. The Council of Trent, held in the year 1545, declared that tradition is of equal authority with the Bible. (By "tradition" is meant human teachings.) The Pharisees who believed the same way were bitterly condemned by our Lord, for by human tradition they nullified the commandments of God. (Mark 7:7-13; Col. 2:8; Rev. 22:18.)

Apocryphal Books. The Apocryphal books were added to the Bible also by the Council of Trent in 1546. These books were not recognized as canonical by the Jewish church. They are of some value as history, but are not recognized as inspired. Paul said, "All scripture . . . given by inspiration . . . is profitable" (2 Tim. 3:16).

Pope. The title of "Pope," or "Universal Bishop," was first given to the bishop of Rome by the wicked Emperor Phocas in the year 610. (This he did to spite Ciriacus of Constantinople, who had justly excommunicated him for his having caused the assassination of his predecessor, Emperor Mauritius.) Gregory 1, then bishop of Rome, refused the title, but his successor, Boniface 3, first assumed the title of "Pope." It means "papa," and the pope is usually addressed as "Holy Father." Jesus taught His followers to call no man "Father"—"Master"—"Rabbi." (Matt. 23:8-10.)

In the year 1870 after Christ, Pope Pius 9 proclaimed the dogma of "Papal Infallibility," which means "incapable of error or mistake." John said: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. . . . If we say that we have not sinned, we make him (Jesus) a liar, and his word is not in us" (1 John 1:8-10).

Priests began to dress differently from the laity in 500.

The kissing of the pope's feet began in the year 709. It had been a pagan custom to kiss the feet of emperors. Peter refused to let Cornelius fall down at his feet and worship him, saying, "Stand up; I myself also am a man." (Acts 10:25, 26.) Even the angel, when John fell at his feet to worship him, said, "See thou do it not . . . worship God" (Rev. 19:10).

The celibacy (unmarried state) of the priesthood was decreed by Pope Hildebrand, Boniface 7, in the year 1079. Jesus imposed no such rule, nor did any of the apostles. On the contrary, Peter (also called "Simon") was a married man. (Mark 1:30.) Paul also taught that bishops were to each have a wife and children. (1 Tim. 2:1-5.)

The Bible says that Jesus Christ is our high priest and intercessor (Heb. 8:1; 7:25-28; 9:24), not Peter and his successors.

Confession. Confession of sins to the priest at least once a year was instituted by Pope Innocent 3, in the Lateran Council, in the year 1215. David, who was a man after God's own heart (Acts 13:22), said, "I acknowledge my sin unto thee," and, "I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord" (Psalm 32:5). James said: "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another" (5:16), but John tells us to whom we go to confess and receive forgiveness. (1 John 2:1 and 1:9.)

Prayer. The Latin language, as the language of prayer and worship, was imposed by Pope Gregory 1, in the year 600 after Christ. The Bible teaches that we are to pray to God alone. In the primitive church never were prayers directed to Mary or to dead saints. This practice began in the Roman Church about six hundred years after Christ. Paul said that he would pray with understanding, and that he had rather speak five words with understanding, that others might be edified, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue. (See 1 Cor. 14: 14-19.) When the disciples asked Jesus to teach them to pray, He said: "When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven" (Luke 11:2)—thereby teaching that our prayers should be directed to God, and to no one else.

The Rosary. Beads, representing a series of prayers, were introduced by Peter the Hermit in the year 1090. This was copied from Hindoos and Mohammedans. Thus, the counting of prayers is a pagan practice. Jesus said, "When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do" (Matt. 6:7).

Fasting. Fasting on Fridays and during Lent was imposed in the year 998. Popes who were said to be interested in the commerce of fish introduced this practice. Some authorities say this began in the year 700. Jesus said: "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man" (Matt. 15:11). Paul said: "Every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving." (See 1 Tim. 4:1-6.)

The Sale of Indulgences. This practice, commonly regarded as a purchase of forgiveness and a permit to indulge in sin, began in the year 1190. It is remission, by church authority, of sins of this life—also cancellation of temporal punishment which otherwise would await one in purgatory. It was this doctrine which brought on the Protestant Reformation in the Sixteenth Century. It is true that Jesus gave powers to Peter (Matt. 16:19) and to all the apostles (Matt. 18:18; John 20:21-23) to remit or to retain sins, yet there is not a single record where He gave them the right to pass this power to anyone else. Furthermore, there is no record that the apostles remitted sins for money. Let us still protest against such teaching.

Purgatory. This doctrine was first established by Gregory the Great about the year 593, and was proclaimed as a dogma of faith by the Council of Florence in 1439. There is no mention in the Bible of any such place. It does teach that "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin" (1 John 1:7-9; 2:1, 2), and that "there is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 8:1). Therefore, there is no need for such a place.

Baptism. Baptism of bells was instituted by Pope John 13 in 968. There is no record in the Bible of any such practice. Baptism with water was originally by immersion. Jesus, when He was baptized by John, "went up straightway out of the water." (Matt. 3:15-17.) John the Baptist baptized in Aenon near Salim "because there was much water there" (John 3:23). Both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water (Acts 8:38) and came up out of the water (v. 39). The Church of Rome does not contradict the fact that immersion was the apostolic mode of baptism, yet it practices sprinkling—which could not be typical of a burial as Paul describes baptism to be. (Rom. 6:3-5; Col. 2:10-13.)

Mass. Mass, or consecration of sacramental bread (with music and an offering) was adopted as a daily celebration in 394. It was developed gradually as a sacrifice, and attendance was made obligatory in the Eleventh Century. The Bible teaches that the sacrifice was offered "once" (Heb. 9:26), and is only commemorated with the bread and cup in the Lord's Supper. (1 Cor. 11:23-26.) The dogma of "transubstantiation" (i.e., the change of one thing to another) in the Eucharist, or Mass, was decreed by Pope Innocent 3 in the year 1215. By this doctrine the priest pretends to perform a daily miracle by changing a wafer into the body of Christ, and then he pretends to eat Him alive in the presence of his people during Mass. Jesus gave the bread to represent His body, and the cup to represent His blood. Please read and consider the meaning of: "in remembrance of me." (Luke 22:19, 20).

The adoration of the wafer (Eucharist) was invented by Pope Honorius in 1220.

The Roman Church forbade the Cup to the laity, by instituting the "Communion of one kind" in the Council of Constance in 1414. Jesus gave the Cup to His disciples, and the Apostle Paul gave the same instruction, as will be observed in the scriptures aforementioned.

The doctrine of Seven Sacraments was affirmed in 1439. The gospel teaches only two: baptism and the Lord's Supper. (Mark 16:15, 16; Matt. 26:26-28.) Some would add a third, namely, feet washing (John 13:3-15). Jesus said, "I have given you an example" (v. 15). Now, the example is this: "The servant is not greater than his lord" (v. 16). Jesus taught the same example in other ways, too. At one time, when the disciples were disputing who should be greatest among them, He said: "Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister . . . even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." (Matt. 20:25-28.) Further, the apostles did not command the church to practice the washing of feet, but they did command baptism and Communion.

Holy Water. Water mixed with a pinch of salt and blessed by the priest was authorized as "Holy Water" in the year 850. There is no justification in the Bible for such a thing, though "holy water" is mentioned once (Num. 5:17) as an offering for jealousy. (See v. 12 to end of chapter.)

Mother of God. This term used of Mary the mother of Jesus, and the worship of her, originated in the Council of Ephesus in 431. Mary called God her "Saviour" (Luke 1:46, 47). When a certain woman showed a tendency toward worship of Mary, Jesus said, "Yea, rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it." (Luke 11:27, 28.)

The "Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary" was proclaimed by Pope Pius 9, in the year 1854. There is no such record in Scripture. In fact, it is said, "All have sinned, and come short of (Please turn to page 10)

“What Think Ye of Christ?”

By Mae Magnus

WHAT a variety of opinions men have about Jesus! As in His days upon earth, even so today do men differ in their interpretation of His work and nature. A good man, so the rich young ruler thought. A great teacher, so Nicodemus thought. Very few, however, came to the right understanding and the true meaning of Jesus.

Who do we say that Jesus is, and what is to be His future work? We turn to Isaiah 7:14, and read thus: “The Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.” Also, we believe the record in Luke 1, saying that the angel from God appeared to the virgin Mary, announced to her that she had found favor with God, and that she would conceive, bring forth a son, and that His name should be called Jesus. Luke 1:32, 33 reads: “He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.”

Now, in Matthew 2:1, 2, we read of part of this prophecy being fulfilled: “When Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.” These men knew what was written by the prophets and believed it—as we, too, should do today.

In Luke 2:40 and 52, we read: “The child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him. . . . And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man.” When Jesus was baptized by John, a voice from heaven said, “This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased” (Matt. 3:17).

As to Christ’s work, we read: “Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching . . . and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease” (Matt. 4:23). When John was in prison, he heard about the works of Christ, and sent two disciples to ask Christ: “Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?” Jesus answered them, saying: “Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see. The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them.” (Matt. 11:1-5.) Of course, Jesus knew John would recognize Him by those works. As children of God, we should recognize the signs God has given us in His blessed Word.

Jesus at Bethany

In John 11 is recorded that wonderful story of Lazarus, Mary, and Martha, whom Jesus loved. Jesus was away from Bethany, the town where these three lived, when Lazarus became sick and died. The sisters sent word to Jesus to come, and as soon as Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet Him. She told Jesus that she knew whatsoever He asked of God, that God would give it Him.

“Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live” (John 11:25). Martha replied, “I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world” (v. 27).

Later, standing before the tomb of Lazarus, Jesus said, “Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me” (vv. 41, 42).

The King Rejected

Because of the many miracles that Jesus had done, the chief priests and Pharisees took counsel, and planned to kill Him. They took Jesus to the judgment hall, where Pilate asked Jesus if He was a King. Jesus answered, “My kingdom is not of this world” (John 18:36)—“this world” meaning world system. Jesus said that if His Kingdom were of this present system, His servants would fight that He would not be delivered, but that His Kingdom was “not from hence.”

“Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world” (John 18:37). Here we have Jesus saying that He was born to be a King.

Thereafter, we read: “They cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your king? The chief priests answered, We have no king but Caesar” (John 19:15). Then they took Jesus and crucified Him.

“He Rose Again the Third Day”

In John 20:11-13, we read: “Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre, and seeth two angels . . .

where the body of Jesus had lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." Jesus stood near her, yet she did not know Him; but when He made Himself known, saying, "Mary," she cried out, "Master." Jesus then said: "Go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God and your God" (v. 17).

Now, concerning Christ's ascension, we read: "While they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:10, 11). As further proof that the risen and ascended Christ will return to earth, we read: "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him" (Rev. 1:7).

Jesus Will Come As King

For more than nineteen hundred years, Christian people have been praying, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven," and only a few have appreciated the true meaning of the prayer. Every time we pray, "Thy kingdom come," we are praying for several very definite things which are required to make the Kingdom of God. First, there must be the King. Second, the King must have dominion. Third, He must have subjects in the dominion. (Read Rev. 1:5, 6; 11:15; Psalm 72:8.) The kingdoms of this world are to become the "kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ." "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." All the present kingdoms of the world will be broken to pieces and consumed. (Dan. 2:44.)

So, when we pray, "Thy kingdom come," we are praying for the kingdoms of this world to pass away, and for the Lord's Kingdom to take their places. If we do not mean it that way, we had better cease praying that prayer.

"Times of Restitution"

Peter said that when Christ returns from heaven, there will be "times of restitution" (Acts 3:21). The word "restitution" means to restore that which was lost, or taken away. The blessings that Adam lost because of his sin are to be restored in "times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets." The earth will then become like the Garden of Eden. (Ezek. 36:35.) According to Isaiah 35, "the desert shall . . . blossom as the rose," "the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert" (vv. 1-6). Wild animals will become tame, and "a little child shall lead them" (Isa. 11:6). There will be no more sorrow, pain, crying, nor death, for these things will have all passed away. (Rev. 21:3-5.) Evil doers will be put to death, but the righteous will "inherit the earth" (Psalm 37:9), and "dwell therein for ever" (v. 29). In that new and glorious day, God will "return to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one consent" (Zeph. 3:9). The Apostle Peter said, "Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13). The new earth does not mean a new planet, but the new Kingdom under Christ, where righteousness will predominate forever. In times to come, "every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever" (Rev. 5:13).

VICTORY THROUGH CHRIST

By Catharine Davis

"Thou art good, and doest good; teach me thy statutes" (Psalm 119:68).

AS JESUS went about doing good, He mingled with the people. He saw their distress, sorrow, and pain. He supplied their needs with tender compassion, and He healed the sick—showing mercy to all who asked of Him. He has given an example to all who truly believe on Him. "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28).

Thus, we see Jesus, the only begotten Son of the Father, made "a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man" (Heb. 2:9). He humbled Himself, became obedient unto death—even the death of the cross. Jesus, "the author and finisher of our faith . . . endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Heb. 12:2).

What a glorious victory! What joy it must have been to the disciples to meet their Lord again—to know that He had risen from the dead! "Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; . . . everlasting joy shall be upon their head . . . and sorrow and mourning shall flee away" (Isa. 51:11). "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues" (Hosea 13:14).

The Springtime of Immortal Life

By C. E. Randall

WITH the coming of spring, our thoughts naturally turn to the living again of all nature after its sleep in Winter's grave. Resurrection becomes an appropriate subject for springtime study and consideration. Martin Luther once said: "Our Lord has written the promise of the resurrection, not in books alone, but in every leaf in springtime."

The Church of God accepts the teaching of resurrection as the springtime of the immortal life. In keeping with this understanding, we submit our first proposition in this study of resurrection.

Paul, in his great chapter on resurrection in 1 Corinthians 15, says: "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." As stated in a previous article, the Apostle makes the resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the dead the equivalent of each other. In other words, the resurrection of Christ insures the resurrection of all who have fallen asleep in death. However, the Scripture here quoted is speaking of the resurrection of that particular group of persons who have fallen asleep in Christ. Without their resurrection, the Apostle Paul says they are "perished."

The surety of the resurrection is claimed by Paul on the basis of Christ's being the first fruits. According to Cony, Beare and Howson, "on the second day of the feast of the Passover a sheaf of ripe corn was offered upon the altar as a consecration of the whole harvest. Till this was done it was considered unlawful to begin reaping. (See Leviticus 23:10, 11, and Josephus Antiquities 3:10.) The metaphor therefore is, 'as the sheaf of the first fruits represents and consecrates all the harvest, so Christ's resurrection represents and involves that of all who sleep in Him!'"

Resurrection is symbolized by the harvest. If there be no harvest—then there is no ingathering. Likewise, if there be no resurrection—then there will be no rising from the dead; and if there be no rising from the dead, our "faith is vain," "we are of all men most miserable," and our hope does not go beyond this life.

Paul makes faith without resurrection a vain thing. The word "vain" comes from the Greek word mataios and means, according to Dr. Bullinger, "to no purpose." It is just as vain a faith as was possessed by the priest of Jupiter. At the time he would have offered "oxen and garlands" in worship of Paul and Barnabas (Acts 14:12-15), Paul, in responding to these devotions to him, said: "We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God." "Vanities" comes from the same Greek word as the word "vain" used by Paul in describing the worthlessness of a man's hope apart from resurrection.

Jesus made resurrection the only means whereby man would receive his recompense. He said: "Thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14). We accept this teaching at full face value. In doing this, we have no other alternative than to subscribe to the teaching of resurrection as the only means of living again following death. If, as members of the Church of God, we steadfastly cling to this proposition, we, too, like Paul, will be called in question "for the hope and resurrection of the dead" (Acts 23:6). John O. Woodruff, in his excellent book on "The Word of the Kingdom," under the subject of "resurrection," said: "No plainer doctrine is taught in the Bible than the doctrine of resurrection."

PROPOSITION 30. All who really believe in the resurrection will evidence their faith by being baptized in the likeness of Christ's death and resurrection.

To appreciate the importance of this proposition, the reader should read Romans 6:1-6. In this scripture, Paul links baptism and resurrection together.

In his comment on the relation of baptism and resurrection, Elder J. M. Stephenson, in his book on "God's Plan of Salvation," wrote: "Christ was the 'firstborn among many brethren' (Rom. 8:29). Christians are represented by Christ as being the children of God, by virtue of being the children of the resurrection (Luke 20:36). They are now the children of God by faith (Gal. 3:26), but when born from the dead they will be the children of God, in fact. And this new birth will be of the Spirit. Paul says, 'If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from death, shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you' (Rom. 8:11). Thus, an obedient believer is born of water, when immersed in water, and born of the Spirit when raised from the dead by the same Spirit that raised Christ from the dead. Christ teaches that except a man have these two births, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God—thus teaching the essentiality of baptism as much as the resurrection of the dead.”

Peter confirmed this thought in his first epistle, when he said: “The like figure wherunto even baptism doth also now save us . . . by the resurrection of Jesus Christ” (1 Peter 3:21). The parenthetical part of the verse has been omitted. It becomes apparent that Peter viewed baptism as an expression of the individual’s faith in the resurrection. To properly discern this truth, we need to make a careful study of the subject of baptism, which we will do in our next study.

CURRENT ARGUMENTS

By Alfred Anthon

WHAT is the meaning of “sea” in Revelation 13:1 and 21:1? In Revelation 13:1, the beast is Beast Number 1. We note that Mr. Dragon has been about for some time before this beast appears. We think this beast represents an organization of human beings dominated by a head or dictator who is supported to power by a majority of the then-present people. The “sea” from which Beast Number 1 rises up must be mortal, wicked, worldly peoples—nations. Therefore, we conclude that when Revelation uses the word “sea” symbolically, prophetically, allegorically, it means worldly nations, peoples, languages, and tongues.

Consider, too, the following texts:

Revelation 21:1, “I saw new heavens and new earth. The former heavens and former earth were passed away; and the sea had ceased to be” (20th Cent.).

The heavens and the earth created by the Word of God (“breath of his mouth,” Psalm 33:6) perished in the Flood, but the heavens and earth that are now are reserved to be destroyed by fire (2 Peter 3:5-7). We look for a new earth and new heavens “wherein dwelleth righteousness” (v. 13). This makes the first, second, and third heaven—and earth. Paul, by vision, was “caught away to” (saw) a few things as they will be in the third heaven—and earth.

In Revelation 21:1, John saw into the same third heaven and earth. The “first” or “former” (our present) heaven and earth were passed away; thus, in the third there will be “no more sea.”

The heavens and earth that perished in the Flood did not include the sun, moon, stars, earth, but the then-present order of things on the earth—the things man had made, as well as the especially wicked.

The present sun, moon, stars, and earth will not be any more destroyed by fire than they were in the Flood.

Therefore, in our verse the “new heavens” and “new earth” are symbolical phrases meaning the order of things on the earth at that time. This would prove that “sea” is here a symbolical term and means worldly people—mortal nations. There shall be no more such persons on the earth at that time, but only obedient Tabernacle-Feast keepers. All one-hundred-years-of-age “stiffnecks” will be in the second death, having “died accursed” (Septuagint, Isa. 65:22).

By further study, it will be seen that the transition period between the second heavens and earth, and the third heavens and earth will be one thousand years—the millennium. It took Noah some while to pass from the “first” to the “second” heavens and earth. The transition from Moses to Christ covered from John the Baptist to Pentecost. (Cp. Luke 16:16.)

We note that in Scripture a fourth heavens and earth is never mentioned.

“They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed . . . As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people from henceforth even for ever” (Psalm 125:1, 2).

SPRING AND ITS CHALLENGE

By D. W. Kirkpatrick

EACH year, at this particular season, it seems that we have to “fix up” Mother Earth a little. We have to take some earth to fill up the holes that have been washed during the year. How well this compares to humans! This not only means that we are all of the earth, earthy, and that sometimes we get “all washed up,” but that circumstances change us from one place to another, from one group of associates to another.

As we leave our former associates, do they say, “Truly he was a Christian”? As we come in contact with others, will our lives radiate that Christian influence the Lord has a right to expect from us? As we go into new places, do we let our lights so shine before men, “that they may see (our) good works, and glorify (our) Father which is in heaven”? Or, do we simply close up, failing to let anyone know about our religion?

This spring, as we go into new places, meet new people, make new friendships, let us place our Christian colors first. Jesus said, “Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you” (Matt. 6:33). As we are called to fill in new places in this old world, let us take advantage of all the opportunities presented. Do you not know that the way most people see Christ is by seeing Him through us?—or do they? Let us not be found wanting in well doing.

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES"

By Lydia E. Miller

"Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me" (John 5:39).

NINETEEN hundred years ago a child was born in Bethlehem of Judea whose advent created a sensation throughout the land. Strange tokens appeared at His birth. Little is recorded in the Gospels about Jesus until He reached the age of twelve years. At the feast of Passover, and in the Temple at Jerusalem, the boy Jesus astonished the doctors of the law by His questions and answers. "All that heard him were astonished at his understanding."

Time passed, and little more was heard of Him until the young Nazarene was about thirty years of age. He then went to John the Baptist, and was baptized of him in the Jordan River. "Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Matt. 3:16, 17). After this, Jesus was tempted by the Devil. He was in the wilderness forty days without food. The Tempter tempted Him to "command these stones to be made bread," but Jesus answered, "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matt. 4:4). Three times Jesus said to the Tempter: "It is written . . ." The third time, the Devil tried to allure Him with the "kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them." Jesus would get "all these things" if He would "fall down" and worship the Devil. Jesus replied, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Jesus not once yielded to temptation. This should teach us to observe closely what is written, and to do as is written in the Scriptures.

The word "search" is important. It means to study or to examine. The Bereans of old were credited as being more "noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so." Many persons of a religious turn of mind, today, think that by reading only a few chapters of the Bible every day—until their minds are at rest—they have done their duty. This is not searching the Scriptures. We must "dig" deep for knowledge and understanding, and search for them as for hidden treasures. No voice of man should drown God's words. To those who will diligently and prayerfully search the Scriptures, a rich mine of treasures will be opened. The Psalms are full of assurances of God's goodness, and are the grandest and most cheering words ever penned by mortal man. "In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God. Trust in him at all times; ye people, pour out your heart before Him" (Psalm 62:7, 8). God is a refuge for us.

The New Testament contains good warning and admonition to every child of God, young or old, and the following words of Christ apply to all: "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Tim. 3:15-17).

God's promises are sure; trust Him. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him" (1 Cor. 2:9). "Search the scriptures." the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). Therefore, Mary would be included as a sinner and had need to find "favour with God" (Luke 1:30).

In the year 1931, Pope Pius 11 reaffirmed the doctrine that Mary is the "Mother of God." The Psalmist said: "From everlasting to everlasting, thou art God" (Psalm 90:2). Mary was the mother of Jesus, God's Son. (Cp. John 20:31.)

It is also claimed that Jesus is "Very God," but when Jesus was baptized, a voice came from heaven, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." (Matt. 3:17; and cp. Matt. 17:5.)

The Ave Maria, or "Hail Mary," (bells being used morning and evening) began about 1508, was completed fifty years later, and finally approved by Pope Sixtus 5, at the end of the Sixteenth Century.

The Inquisition. This move against heretics was instituted by the Council of Verona in the year 1184. It was a court or tribunal to examine and punish. Jesus never taught the use of force to promote His teaching. (Matt. 26:50-53.)

Worship of the Cross. Worship of the cross, of images and relics was authorized in 788. This was by order of dowager Empress Irene of Constantinople, who first caused the eyes of her own son, Constantine 6, to be plucked out, and then called a Church Council at the request of Hadrian I, Pope of Rome at that time. Such practice is simply called "idolatry" in the Bible, and is severely condemned. (Ex. 20:4, 5; Deut. 27:15; Psalm 115:4-8.)

The Scapular. This was invented by Simon Stock, an English monk, in 1287. It is a piece of brown cloth bearing the picture of the Virgin, and is supposed to contain supernatural virtue to protect from all dangers those who wear it on their naked skin. This is fetishism, superstition.

Temporal Power. Temporal power of the popes began in the year 750. When Pepin, the usurper of the throne of France, descended into Italy, called by Pope Stephen 2 to war against the Italian Lombardi, he defeated them and gave the city of Rome and the surrounding territory to the pope. Jesus refused all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them (Matt. 4:8, 9), and said: "My kingdom is not of this world (order of things): if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight (that is the way the kingdoms of this 'order of things' do), that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence" (John 18:36-38).

It was not then time for Jesus to take His Kingdom, but when He comes again (Acts 1:11) the scripture will be fulfilled, saying: "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15-18). "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace" (Psalm 72:7). "He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (v. 8).

The Head of the Church. The Church of Rome claims that the pope is head of the church. The Bible says that Jesus Christ is the Head. (Eph. 1:20-23; 4:15, 16; Col. 1:18, 19.)

The Church of Rome claims that Peter is the rock upon which the church is built. Paul said, "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 3:11). This agrees with Peter's profession, namely: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matt. 16:16), rather than Peter himself. The eunuch made the same profession, before Philip baptized him (Acts 8:36, 37). If the church is built upon Peter, we may expect it to be as wavering as was Peter, for though he had made that good profession, almost immediately, because of other things he had said, Jesus turned to him and said, "Thou art an offence unto me." Why? "For thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men" (Matt. 16:23). We might reasonably expect that a church built upon Peter might become an offense to our Lord, because being human, it would savour the things "that be of men."

Let us who are of the Church of God "run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith" (Heb. 12:1, 2).

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

A delightfully entertaining book, adaptable to practically any purpose from deliberate teaching in class to playing games at home, is Amos R. Wells' Go Till You Guess (W. A. Wilde; $1.00).

The book is based on the same plan followed by many famous radio programs—Dr. Quiz, for example. A series of questions (with answers, of course, in the back of the book) is used to describe a Bible person, or a Bible place, or a Bible event, or even a Bible book. As the questions progress, the one who hears the questions is supposed to tell as soon as he can what Bible character, place, or what-not is being described. Used as a competitive game, Go Till You Guess is fun—and you'd be surprised how much it teaches you about the Bible at the same time!

Peloubet's Notes (W. A. Wilde; $1.90) is one of the oldest annual guides to the International Sunday School Lessons, and our personal view is that it's the best. All such guides cover the background of each lesson well; but none of the others seems to have the breadth of vision, the strictly Biblical outlook, the genuine helpfulness, that Peloubet's possesses.

Each Peloubet's is liberally illustrated with photographs. There are, of course, departments covering geography, history, suitable anecdotes, analysis of lesson text, and bulletin board quotations; and, in addition, the suggestions for teaching methods and points for class discussion are particularly helpful. Some Sunday school lesson guide other than the ordinary quarterly ought to be in the hands of every teacher, and Peloubet's seems to fill the bill for the Church of God as well as any undenominational teacher's help could.

Odd items: The Methodist Publishing House has produced, for 60 cents each or $1.00 a pair, a really good-looking emblem labelled, "Clergy," for use with automobile license plates; made of heavy metal, and with holes for attaching to the license-plate holder. . . . W. A. Wilde Company has a long list of Bible pictures, all of which may be ordered through the National Bible Institution.

"They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness" (Acts 4:31).

Power of God

The people were gathered together for the feast of Pentecost. It was fifty days after the Passover. The word "Pentecost" means "fiftieth." This feast is also called "the feast of weeks," "the feast of harvest," and "the feast of first fruits." That is the meaning Pentecost has for the Jewish people.

To Christians, it means fifty days after Christ, our Passover, gave His life for all of us. It was on this day of Pentecost that the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit, or God's power.

The Comforter had come! Jesus had promised them it would. When Jesus told His disciples to go to all nations, teaching and preaching, and baptizing them as He commanded, He added: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:20).

What joy for us to know He is with us at all times, although unseen! We are happy to know we are given a way of escape with every temptation, by His Power.

There is one thing for which we should pray. We can ask it for ourselves, and for our loved ones. That is: pray for the Holy Spirit. God will "give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him" (Luke 11:13).

The Changed Peter

Peter had loved Jesus for a long time. He had declared he was ready to die with Him, yet he denied Him! He left Jesus, and followed afar. When the power of God came upon Peter at Pentecost, he was "filled." He was a changed man. No longer did fear rule in his life.

The people who were gathered from far and near, who heard each in his own language, were surprised. They knew these men to be only humble or common men, yet each disciple talked in the language of the hearers. They had a message to deliver. A little later, they had proof for what they said, too, for the man they healed at the gate (Acts 3:1-11) was with them.

One of the very important sentences Peter spoke about Jesus was this: "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

A Council Meeting

The people who rejected Jesus were there, too. They didn't like to see the man healed, standing there before them. They did not doubt the healing, but they said the knowledge of this miracle should not be spread any farther. We know that this was not Christ's will, for He had just said, "Go ye . . ."

How little the people knew the "quickened" Peter! They called the disciples, and commanded Peter and John not to speak or teach "in the name of Jesus."

These disciples answered, "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard" (Acts 4:20).

May we be so filled with God's power that we cannot remain silent, but tell abroad Jesus' love and sacrifice for all mankind. We, too, shall live, because He lives!

Following Our Guide

By Emily Fyfe

A crowd of people stands on a riverbank dotted with green trees, and all the rare beauties of nature in spring are in evidence. Although the crowd is quite large, a hushed silence prevails over the gathering. Two men stand in the water, and shortly a solemn voice rings out, "If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection" (Rom. 6:5). Then the older man administers to the younger the rite of baptism in accordance with his newly found faith.

The scene portrays the first step an individual must take toward the inheritance of the great and precious promises, but it is not the only step. The baptism of our Lord was followed by many temptations. The same is true in the life of a Christian. Yes, if you take up the cross, you will be tempted. Temptations came to our Lord when He was hungry and weak. We may also be weak from sickness or trouble, but we must trust in the Lord. "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able" (1 Cor. 10:13). "The Lord is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble; and he knoweth them that trust in him" (Nahum 1:7). Let us trust in God, for Jesus said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 7:21).

Many times friends forsake the Christian, but were all of Jesus' friends true to Him? The beloved disciple records these words: "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him" (John 6:66). Jesus asked the twelve disciples these touching words, "Will ye also go away?" He knew one would betray Him to the cruel death of the cross, and another deny Him. So, if our friends prove untrue, let us remember that our Lord had unfaithful friends long ago.

When Jesus was in utmost agony He did not fear, but prayed, "Not my will, but thine be done" (Luke 22:42).

We read of Jesus: "They stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe. And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand; and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, King of the Jews!" (Matt. 27:28, 29).

People mocked Him, so if people of today mock His followers, let it strengthen and not weaken their faith. In the great Sermon on the Mount, Jesus said: "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Jesus was the greatest prophet of all time.

The gospel, the story that Jesus Christ will come in clouds and great glory, is a stumbling block to the Jew and foolishness to the Greek (1 Cor. 1:23), yet I say with the great Apostle, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life."

The death of Jesus on the cruel cross was for our sins—not for His. He came forth the first fruits of the dead. If we follow our Guide through life, we can also follow Him through death. He is coming back to reward His faithful servants. Let us all strive, that with His help we may be among that happy throng.

Backgrounds

Do you own a camera? Perhaps you are a rabid fan, and spend a good share of your spare time prowling around the countryside in an effort to snap pictures a little more interesting than any you have ever seen.

One of the major prerequisites of a good snapshot is a good background. A good subject with a drab, uninteresting background will result in a very poor composite picture.

The human eye is often compared to a camera, because it functions in much the same manner. During each day our eyes record many pictures—the outstanding shots are remembered and the rest soon forgotten. Most of those pictures contain people—people about us every day. People who are leading the "humdrum" life of the "here today and who cares about tomorrow?" sort of life do not make lasting impressions—poor background. But those who are following the Christian's Guide are building their lives against the perfect background. They are long remembered and often help to inspire others to follow the Saviour.

It is not always possible for the subject of a snapshot to choose its background—you can.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

The time is here when many parents and young people of our church should be considering the question of the coming Summer Training School to be conducted at Oregon, Ill., from June 17 to July 25. I wish I could have a heart-to-heart talk with all young people who can attend but haven't decided to do so. Of course, for many of you attendance is impossible; to many others it may only seem impossible.

Having served as dean of the School last summer, I feel that I am qualified to pass on to you some of my observations, which should be profitable and helpful to you in making your decision. I was especially impressed last summer with the fine Christian attitude manifested by all the students. They were in class virtually five hours each day with a short morning devotional period added; yet there was plenty of time for recreation and fun. All were intensely interested in their work and showed a splendid co-operative attitude. Their association with other young people of like religious faith and ideals was in itself worth the tuition charge of thirty dollars. It was not difficult to see that all students were enjoying their experience immensely. When it came time to leave for home, new formed friends parted reluctantly.

Again this year our young people have another opportunity to search the Scriptures under experienced leadership. They will have the opportunity of spending six weeks of pleasant study and wholesome fun. If enough students enroll to make it possible to open the School, I predict that at least twenty students will be able to say, "I never had so much fun and learned so much in so short a time before."

Enroll today in the Summer Bible Training School.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Sr. Barbara Fish visited her parents and relatives on Easter in Clinton, Iowa.

Bro. Jack Brown from New York was here April 15. Sr. Verneille Lawrence's parents from Omaha, Nebr., visited her last Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13.

Bro. Richard Smith will be back in Oregon, Ill., the 20th of this month.

Bro. Orris Mills is able again to be in class.

Bro. James Watkins gave the Bible Training School an interesting talk. He spoke to us about the education that he had received through outside helps, and how that we could do the same. The discussion of his hobbies—a religious museum and applied religion—was interesting. One of the religious relics in his museum is a statue of a donkey with garters around its legs. Superstitious people once thought that the garters would keep the "evil spirits" from getting into the donkey. Bro. Watkins said that a few donkeys around Eldorado, Ill., failed to get the garters.

Religion, unless it is properly applied, will not meet the practical needs of the people today. Some of his ideas were as follows: use the blunderbus method of shooting both barrels of the shotgun, so that you will hit someone; another was to give what small change you had over a dollar to some kind of church work; others were: teachers' training classes, distribution of Berean tracts and The Restitution Herald, and more practical work for God.

The union Good Friday services by the churches was enjoyed. The services began at 12:00 noon and continued until 3:00 p.m. The ministers spoke on the seven last words of Jesus spoken on the cross.

The union Easter sunrise prayer service was held at the White Pines State Park. It was held by the young people of Oregon. Bro. Orris Mills spoke on "The Second Coming of Christ."

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

The Illinois Quarterly Conference held at Ripley, March 29, 30, was one long to be remembered. There was a large attendance present to enjoy the good lessons and sermons given.

The Conference convened at 10:30, Saturday morning. A full program followed throughout the day and Sunday, closing with a sermon by Bro. J. M. Watkins of Eldorado, who had been with us the week preceding the Conference, giving us a sermon each night.

Many of the churches throughout the State were represented. Also, some of our brethren from Missouri and Michigan were present. Come again, and bring others that we may all become better acquainted and enjoy worship and fellowship together. Meals were served near the church in a hall owned by Bro. William Fey. May all make plans now to come back next year.

A special business meeting has been called for April 20, at 11:00 a.m., to consider the matter of securing a pastor for the coming year. Every member of this church is urged to attend this meeting.

Juanita, youngest daughter of Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon, was recently taken to Schmidt Memorial Hospital, Beardstown. How long she will be there is not known. A card or letter would help her to pass the time, and would encourage her. May the Lord soon restore her to health again.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Secy.

RESTITUTION CHURCH OF GOD Eldorado, Illinois

During the absence of Bro. James M. Watkins, Easter Sunday services were conducted by Bro. Herbert Edmister. All services were held as usual, and enjoyed by all in attendance.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

The pre-Easter evangelistic meetings conducted by Bro. James M. Watkins of Eldorado, Ill., came to an encouraging close with the addition of two members, Misses Edith White and Marilyn Wilde, who were baptized in Rock River, Easter Sunday afternoon. During this series of meetings many nonmembers made first acquaintance with the church, and we trust that by their growing interest the work of Bro. Watkins will long continue to show fruitage.

Bro. Edward Lindsay, son of Bro. and Sr. Lewis Lindsay, was married to Miss Ruby McClain of Chicago, Ill., April 12. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 p.m., in the South Congregational Church, Chicago, Pastor William Slade officiating. The groom's parents and Sr. Alice Gesin attended the wedding. Congratulations, "Ed."

Bro. and Sr. Joe Lawrence and son William, Omaha, Neb., visited Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13, with daughter Verneille, a student of the Bible Training School. We were glad to see the Lawrences and hope they will return at General Conference time. Bro. Lawrence is Sunday school superintendent of the Omaha Church of God.

Sr. Benjamin Carpenter has returned from the West Coast, where for several weeks she visited with relatives and friends in Washington and California. It was her privilege to visit with the former pastor of this congregation, Bro. G. E. Marsh, and his family, now in Los Angeles, who send their best wishes to all our members.

Sr. T. J. Ellis, Waterloo, Iowa, one of our faithful non-resident members, has returned to her home, after spending much of the winter in California. We hope her next trip will be to Oregon (and not the State).

Sr. Idona Romine, matron of Golden Rule Home, who had about recovered from a broken wrist, had the added misfortune of becoming sick and for several weeks has been confined to bed. Slowly, however, she is regaining strength, and we trust soon to report that all is well.

Elder L. E. Conner will preach morning and evening, Sunday, April 27, when we plan he will be with the Bible Training School on a trip to Delta, Ohio. Bro. Conner's messages will help you, if you COME TO HEAR THEM.

MRS. J. M. REID

April 3, 1941, will be placed on record as the time when another faithful servant of our Lord was laid away to rest until Christ comes and demands the presence of all His faithful ones before Him.

Our dear Sr. Reid was always known as one who, if she were approached in the right spirit, would listen to one's story, and in her own way would decide for herself what she would do. She was very systematic and businesslike in every detail, and one could depend on her keeping her word.

The writer is so very thankful to have had the privilege of staying in her house this last winter. As the nights grew longer and the days shorter (even in southern California), so she seemed to be slowly failing in many ways, but she nearly always would revive when it came time for our nightly reading, prayer, and comment on the Scriptures. We studied and talked over the books and letters of Paul and the short letters of James, Peter, and John. When she made up her mind to go to a Rest Home, we visited her there; but she felt weaker and weaker, until she had to be taken to a local hospital. Over and over again she was so grateful to the heavenly Father for appointing us to be a comfort and blessing to her in what proved to be her last days.

Now we have laid her away, having been assisted by brethren of both the Pomona and Los Angeles churches. One lady sang an old Scotch song, "My Ain Countrie"; Sr. Dorothy Prickett sang very softly and impressively, "Take Time to Be Holy"; Bro. George Lichty offered the opening prayer in an excellent spirit; the writer spoke from Romans 6 and John 11, and Bro. G. E. Marsh closed with prayer which we are sure was very acceptable to our heavenly Father.

There was an excellent representation of brethren, friends, and sympathizing neighbors. We were all refreshed in the proceedings and by meeting one another on such a momentous occasion. J. Eagleston.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"When the Church Builds Evangelism, Evangelism Will Build the Church."

By C. E. Lapp

Ripley Entertains

One hundred fifty-five were recorded in attendance at the first Illinois Quarterly Conference for 1941. A good spirit prevailed throughout, and many testified they were greatly benefited. The fellowship and spiritual uplift received from such a gathering help us to understand why the writer of Hebrews spoke of "not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."

The nearer we come to the time when Jesus will appear, the more we are in need of gathering to strengthen one another in our love to God. There are many things drawing people away from the Lord, but a spiritual atmosphere made possible by such gatherings as we experienced at Ripley will do much to bind us into one people for Christ. May the day never come when we shall have no desire to meet together with others who love the Lord. We pray that God may continue to bless these gatherings.

Brighten Your Corner

We sing, "Brighten the corner where you are," and often fail to realize that Jesus has called us for that very purpose; to let our light shine where we are. There are so many darkened corners needing the glorious light Christ can give, that we should be constantly alive to our opportunities. He who said, "I am the light of the world," also said, "Ye are the light of the world."

Far pastures usually look greener, but that is because of an optical illusion. Many feel they could be much better workers if they were only in a larger church or Sunday school, but how could a light shine brightly in a large place when it fails in a small one? The darker the night, the brighter the light, and no light seems one half as bright when it is surrounded by many others.

Jesus always taught men to first let their light shine at home. Recall the story of the man who lived among the tombs and was possessed with an unclean spirit. After Jesus had healed the man, it was the man's desire to be with Him constantly. "Howbeit Jesus suffered him not, but saith unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee" (Mark 5:19). With what result? "He departed, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him: and all men did marvel."

We marvel today when we see someone changed from a life of darkness to that of telling what Jesus can do for sinners. What a splendid work God has called us to perform: that of letting our light shine! When the glorious light of the gospel of Jesus penetrates a man's heart, there is sure to be a great change. If your light shines bright and clear, you may be instrumental in bringing someone out of darkness into the gospel light.

Brighten Your Corner Today!

Jesus was light in Himself, but we can shine only after we have been touched by the Master and transformed by Him, for apart from Him we can do nothing. The light bulb may be powerful to give light, but that power becomes nil when it is not connected with the electricity. All our activity will accomplish little, unless done for the Lord or through His inspiration.

More workers can be used to spread the gospel light, for there is great need in every field of the Christian work. If you are able, let your light shine in the Sunday school, in church, in Berean, in prayer meeting, as janitor, in the choir, in giving, or in whatever place there is a need for you. Shine your best for Him.

Paul said, "For me to live is Christ." May it be so with us, that we may bring glory to Him. Let your light shine!

God Keeps His Promise

"While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease" (Gen. 8:22).

Another winter has practically gone by, and about us everywhere we see evidences of spring. New life is beginning to surge through all of nature because the sun is coming nearer every day. God is keeping the promise made to man after the Flood. Hope is born anew in the heart of every man who hears God speak through His creation.

When Gog Meets God

By C. E. Randall

EVERY Church of God Bible student—and every member should be a student of the Scriptures—knows that there will be a gathering of the nations in the land of Palestine when this age comes to a close. This assembly of nations is described in some detail in chapters 38 and 39 of Ezekiel. There are some differences of interpretation on minor points in this extremely important prophecy, but, in the main, the teaching relating to the gathering of the nations indicates complete unity of thought. This uniformity of exposition is of itself warrant for confidence in heartily accepting and teaching the final concentration of the nations of earth “upon the mountains of Israel.” It is a pivotal truth upon which further reasoning can be built, and around which several other important events can be assembled.

“Be thou prepared, and prepare for thyself, thou, and all thy company that are assembled unto thee, and be thou a guard unto them” (Ezek. 38:7). The American Standard Version has “commander” as a marginal rendering of “guard.” This would make Gog the commander of these federated powers, and a study of Ezekiel 38 and 39 bears out this conclusion. Space does not permit a technical study of the identity of Gog. As nearly all prophetic students are in agreement that Gog refers to Russia, which view is standard among our own interpreters, we shall proceed on that premise.

If Russia is Gog, and Gog is to be the commander of the nations from the north and east, then Europe’s present setup, with Germany as the aggressor, is not the conflict of which Ezekiel spoke. Though the present war should center in or around Palestine, the picture will not be complete without Russia taking the leading role; that is, if Russia is Gog. Russia, rather than Germany, according to the foregoing must be the commander. There is, of course, the possibility of mistake in identifying these powers. This is why one should never be too positive in the interpretation of some prophecies that partake of a measure of uncertainty.

There is a margin of doubt in our mind that this conflict will terminate in what is called “Armageddon.” This is based upon the present outlook; the scene may be completely changed in a short period of two or three weeks.

At present time, most people expect this war to terminate in what is so lavishly called “a permanent and enduring peace founded on justice and equality for all.”

Peace

There appears to be substantial Bible evidence for believing that when the Lord comes for His church, peace will be quite general. First Thessalonians 5:1-3 gives weight to this thought. This being true, the gathering of the nations into final battle will not take place until after the catching away of the church.

Some people think about Christ’s coming only when there is war or rumors of war. Peace and prosperity put to sleep the languid hopes of many for the coming of Christ. There is something wrong with our hope in the “glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ,” if it requires tumult and war among nations to make it vigorous, or if the absence of these conditions cause us to lag in our expectation of the coming of the Son of Man.

The church becomes sleepy in times of peace. Watch out for a smashing apostasy in a coming period of peace! Peace and apostasy may become co-workers. Such would be paradoxical, to be sure, but well within the bounds of probability. There may be another factor that will contribute toward the extermina- (Please turn to page 11)

“Wake Up the Mighty Men”

The Prophet Joel, speaking of the time in which God would “bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem” (Joel 3:1), prophesied: “Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up. . . . Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. . . . The Lord also shall . . . utter his voice from Jerusalem . . . the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel” (3:9-16).

“Judah and Jerusalem” are today largely restored from their long Gentile bondage. The Moslem Turk no longer treads the Holy City, and thousands of Jews have returned to Judah and to the very “city of the great King” (Matt. 5:35). Thus, according to Joel, this is the time to call the nations to the valley of Jehoshaphat.

“Wake up the mighty men” is a command that is being obeyed, whether or not the obedient know it. President Roosevelt probably saw two years ago what we average American citizens are now beginning to see. We laughed at the Lone Eagle who had a bird’s-eye view of Germany’s army and air strength, but we have finally awakened to see that Charles Lindbergh told the truth and that in no sense did he exaggerate it. Thus, too, did Britain slowly “wake up,” but not until her sister, France, was jerked out of bed by the abductor. Some students believe the Russian Bear is still asleep, but they are deceived. Rather, this otherwise Bear is now playing possum: being fully awake, but feigning sleep, and resting before arising—having ready a gun under her pillow and planning mischief under the covers.

“The valley of Jehoshaphat” is a little farther away than is Yugoslavia, a little farther than Greece, beyond Turkey, even in “the valley of the Kidron, between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives” (Int. Bible Com.). Thither are the nations invited to their judgment. They seem to be reluctant and slow to accept God’s invitation to doom, but in fullness of time, when “the harvest is ripe,” they will blitzkrieg into the valley and fill it as grapes in the winepress of wrath.

“The day of the Lord is near” when multitudes upon multitudes gluttonously converge in Palestine. There is “the valley of decision.” There will the Lord “utter his voice from Jerusalem.” There will Christ be “the hope of his people” (the church), and “the strength of the children of Israel.” With every hasty mile gained to the south and east, the “day of the Lord” draws near.

Dog Eat Dog

Japan does not want war with the United States, but Japan wants control of southeast Asia. That may eventually lead to war, for the United States mothers the Philippine Islands, needs rubber, is allied with England whose rights in the East are already being insulted, loves Chiang Kai-shek and his American-educated wife, and, like all other nations, will sooner or later catch the dog-eat-dog spirit of wanting to fight somebody.

A struggle between two great navies in the Pacific is altogether possible, though not at the moment wanted by either Japan or the United States. A comparison of these two navies is interesting. Though the American ships are slightly superior in construction, Japan claims a navy that in numbers surpasses the American Pacific Fleet. A recent report gave the following figures: Japan has ten battleships, forty-four cruisers, six aircraft carriers, one hundred twenty-six destroyers, and sixty-nine submarines; whereas the United States has twelve battleships, thirty-three cruisers, four aircraft carriers, one hundred thirteen destroyers, and seventy-two submarines. These figures total two hundred thirty-four vessels for the United States and two hundred fifty-five for Japan. In other words, Japan has twenty-one vessels more than those that fly the Stars and Stripes.

Such impending and evident threatenings remind the student of prophecy of such texts as: “Wars and rumours of wars” (Jesus), “They shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour” (Zechariah), and, “The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain” (Paul).

A Stumbling Block Removed

By Rufus A. Curtis

"Cast ye up, cast ye up, prepare the way, take up the stumblingblock out of the way of my people" (Isaiah 57:14).

MOSESES, while on Mount Horeb, was permitted to view a burning bush that was unconsumed. (See Ex. 3.) He called the Lord "the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him" (Luke 20:37, 38).

Over half a century ago, an infidel writer quoted the foregoing text, then quoted in juxtaposition to it, the following text, applicable to the same class: "To this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living" (Rom. 14:9). This was done to discredit the statements of the Bible and to prove that it contained contradictory statements; hence, it was unworthy of credence.

Moses Hull and his "spiritual affinity" (better known by those who believe in the sacred ties of marriage, as his paramour) advocated spiritism and delivered public lectures in Miami County, Ohio, advocating:

"There is no death; what seems such is transition."

More than fifty years ago, I attended some of their lectures to learn what they taught, and have since devoted a part of my time in refutation of their false claims. They claim that the dead have not lost their ghostly personality or their mental ability to converse with their friends on earth, even after they have migrated to their imaginary "spirit land." Modern "fable" preachers (2 Tim. 4:1-4), and "false prophets" (1 John 4:1) who teach the natural immortality of our race, furnish the ready-built foundation of deathlessness, upon which spiritism builds its unreal and unbiblical doctrines. Spiritualists, when referring to all those who hold to the immortality of the soul, say: "We acknowledge all such believers as our brethren," for "birds of a feather flock together."

They go one step in advance of the crowd, and claim they can, with their spiritual mediums, converse with the dead. Is that not a reasonable claim if the dead are alive and conscious?

To us, this seems like modernism "gone to seed." Men do not gather "grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles." "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them" (Matt. 7:15-20). In order to arrive at conclusions that are in harmony with the facts of nature, and the declarations of the Bible, we must have recourse to "sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you"

(Titus 2:8). In order for us to "earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints," we should be as steadfast and unmoveable as the Rock of Gibraltar! (Jude 4; 1 Cor. 15:58; 16:13; Rom. 8:38, 39.)

This colloquy between Jesus and "the Sadducees, which deny that there is any resurrection" whatever, placed their doctrine, and that of God's spokesman (John 7:16) in direct conflict. To convey truth to the minds of my readers, allow me to paraphrase, somewhat, this controverted text, which is eagerly presented by avowed atheists and others preaching a perverted gospel, even "denying the Lord that bought them." (Gal. 1:6-9; Ezek. 13:22; John 5:39, 40; 6:40; 1 John 5:9-12; 2 Peter 2:1). "He is not a God of the dead (in the Sadduceean sense of death, as an uninterrupted and endless sleep), but of the living", for, prospectively, in harmony with the eternal purpose, "all live unto him." (Rom. 4:17; Eph. 3:11-21; Psalm 68:20; John 11:23-26; 5:28, 29; 6:39, 40; Acts 24:14, 15.)

Men, like creeping "worms of the earth" (Micah 7:17), like to arrogate to themselves the attribute of deathlessness, which properly belongs to Jehovah. It is expressed in these words: "I live for ever" (Deut. 32:40), which properly identifies them as "enemies of the cross of Christ," by attempting to climb up "some other way." However, not "through his (Christ, the Son of God's) name," but by natural descent from "the first man Adam," who "is of the earth earthy," and whose willful rebellion brought sin "into the world, and death by sin." (Eph. 3:17-19; John 10:1; 20:31; Rom. 5:12.)

The federal head of the human race could not "live for ever" in open rebellion to Jehovah's commandments, "therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life" (Gen. 3:23, 24).

"Put them in fear, O Lord: that the nations may know themselves to be but men" (Psalm 9:20). It is necessary to "search the scriptures" and come by faith and obedience into that sin-cleansing name, that we "might have life." (See John 5:39, 40; Mark 11:22; Heb. 11:6; Acts 4:12; 1 Tim. 6:19.) The "hail" of God's sanctifying "truth" will eventually "sweep away the refuge of lies." (See Isa. 28:16, 17; John 17:16, 17; Ezek. 13:22, 23.)

The Causes of Wars

By Hubert B. Chout

THE purpose in writing this article is to show briefly the causes of wars as found in the Scriptures.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein" (Psalm 24:1). It would seem reasonable to conclude from this passage that even the nations belong to the Lord, for a nation is made up of people dwelling in a given territory. The people and the territory both belong to the Lord; therefore it follows that the nations are the Lord's. This is a reasonable conclusion, but we have more definite proof. Paul, speaking about the works of God, said: "Hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation" (Acts 17:26). There are several passages of Scripture besides the last quoted which teach us that God ordained and made the nations. Some of them are: Deuteronomy 32:8; Genesis 11:8; and Romans 13:1. These passages, in harmony with the words of Jesus, show that all power comes from God, for Jesus said to Pilate: "Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above" (John 19:11).

God not only ordains the nations, but the rulers also, as shown in the following passages: "He removeth kings, and setteth up kings" (Dan. 2:21), "The living may know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men" (Dan. 4:17), and, "By me kings reign, and princes decree justice" (Prov. 8:15).

If "the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men," it follows that if two or more nations are at war, God (for a purpose) causes war. This is not so strange when we consider that God is "the Judge of all the earth" (Gen. 18:25), and "in righteousness he doth judge and make war" (Rev. 19:11). Also: "There fell down many slain, because the war was of God" (1 Chron. 5:22). "I make peace, and create evil" (Isa. 45:7); "I kill, and I make alive" (Deut. 32:39).

The following passages of Scripture will show that God brings war on nations as a punishment for wickedness. "They chose new gods; then was war in the gates" (Judges 5:8). Speaking of future punishment on the Israelites, if they would not reform, God said: "I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant" (Lev. 26:25). God spoke of the punishment of Israel for disobedience: "I will scatter you also among the heathen . . . and I will send a sword after them until I have consumed them." The foregoing passages concern Israel, and many more could be cited. However, let us give space to a few cases concerning other nations.

"I will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the Lord of hosts" (Jer. 25:29), and, "A noise shall come even to the ends of the earth; for the Lord hath a controversy with the nations, he will plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the Lord" (v. 31). In Ezekiel 25 is a record of destruction brought on nations which were against Judah. Also, we find that God brought about Egypt's fall by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, by war. (See Ezek. 30:10, 11.)

"Known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world" (Acts 15:18). This teaches us that God has a plan by which He carries on His works. A study of Romans 9 will give much light on the way He carries out this plan. We find that He chooses whom He will to bestow His mercy upon and raises up and hardens whom He will for a special purpose; such as, to declare His name throughout all the earth, as was the case of Pharaoh mentioned in the same chapter. If God knew His works from the beginning, and has declared them by His prophets, there is no power on earth that can prevent these works from coming to pass: "There is no power but of God" (Rom. 13:1).

In a further study of God's plan, let us consider: "Lo, I raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shall march through the breadth of the land, to possess the dwellingplaces that are not their's" (Hab. 1:6). A nation is not raised up in a day; so, we know that the Lord had in mind a purpose for that nation before it ever came into existence. In the same account, it states the purpose for which God ordained this particular nation. It says: "O Lord, thou hast ordained them for judgment; and, O mighty God, thou hast established them for correction" (Hab. 1:12).

We find the Lord God saying through the Prophet (see Ezek. 38), that He is against a certain nation, Gog. If He is against a nation, it must certainly be that the nation is wicked. In His plan to give His Son, Jesus, as a sacrifice for sin, God chose a wicked man to betray Him to the mob. Likewise, in His plan to magnify and to sanctify Himself in the eyes of many nations, He chooses a wicked nation for the purpose (see Ezek. 38:23). Notice in Ezekiel 38:16 that the Lord will bring this nation, or His armies and confederate armies, against His land (restored Israel) for a purpose: "that the heathen may know me." Then, God will bring confusion and destruction on them (vv. 21, 22). A study of the entire chapter seems to show that there will be other nations there to fight against Gog and his confederates, probably all the nations of the earth that are not confederate with him. "All my mountains" (v. 21) may correctly be taken to mean nations, as in some other scriptures: then, we have reason to believe that their punishment will not be as great as that of Gog and the nations which are allied with him in the latter days.

That all nations will be punished in the latter days is shown by such scriptures as Isaiah 26:21: "Behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity"; and, "My determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger" (Zeph. 3:8); and, "The Lord of hosts mustereth the host of the battle. They come from a far country, from the end of heaven, even the Lord, and the weapons of his indignation, to destroy the whole land. Howl ye; for the day of the Lord is at hand; it shall come as a destruction from the Almighty" (Isa. 13:4-6). These quotations show plainly that God will bring about the latter-day destruction by war among the nations, and that will be a punishment for iniquity.

In conclusion, let us remember that Christians are not of this world; they are called out and commanded to be separate, and not to become entangled with worldly affairs. To do this, Christians must in their hearts remain neutral; neither fearing any power, nor placing their trust in any power; but in the Lord in whose hand lies the destiny of all nations. God will bring to pass all things that have been spoken by the prophets since the world began, but we have the assurance of Paul that "all things work together for good to them that love God." Let us bear in mind that God's plan cannot be changed; so, we as Christians must not become entangled in the affairs of this world. If we do, we are of the world and we will receive our judgment with the world.

Pure Religion

By Robert Hardesty

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27).

WHEN the Israelites were under the law, their religion consisted largely of observing ordinances, feast days, and fast days—keeping the law to the letter because severe penalties were imposed upon anyone who broke it. It was not wholly for the love of God that the law was kept, but largely because of the fear of punishment for disobedience.

God, seeing that the law could not accomplish the righteousness of His children, sent His only begotten Son to fulfill the law (see Matt. 5:17), thus freeing Israel from bondage.

In 2 Corinthians 3:6 we read, "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." One cannot be saved by merely being baptized, partaking of the sacrament, and following certain rules set down as essential to salvation. It is the spirit which prompts him to obey and serve the Lord that saves. And that spirit is love!

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). It was for His love for man that God gave His Son. Is it not right that man should show his gratitude to God by loving Him in return? Not only is it right and proper that man love

Care for orphans and widows in their time of need, the giving of assistance to the underprivileged, and the showing of courtesy and respect to everyone no matter how humble his position in life, all grow out of love. If one gives to those from whom he expects something in return, he gives in selfishness. If he gives to those in need, with no thought of return, he gives with the spirit of love, which is of God.

The Apostle Paul, in speaking of spiritual gifts, said in 1 Corinthians 13:13: "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love" (R.V.). Though the Christian of today has not the power of healing nor of speaking in foreign languages, given to the apostles and a few other early Christians, he has the gift of love, which is a most effective power he can use in Christian service.

Equally important with deeds of kindness is keeping oneself unspotted from the world. In 1 John 2:15 we read this instruction: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the (Please turn to page 11)

Sabotage or Citizenship

By Celaine Randall

"Our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ" (Phil. 3:20).

AT THIS time of year the new life is springing forth, the grass is beginning to show its spring color, the trees are budding and shooting forth their tender leaves, and all of nature is taking on that new life. We recall the words of the Prophet Isaiah, saying: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose" (Isa. 35:1). Spring-time, the resurrection of new life, illustrates the unsurpassed resurrection of new life that will take place when the Edenic conditions will again be restored to this old world that is still in its winter season under man's dominion. During the long winter months, we look forward to the time when spring will restore the new color to God's handiwork. Likewise, those of us who believe the words of the Prophet Isaiah, quoted before, look forward with anticipation to the time when this new life will shoot forth. This change will take place gradually, starting with the coming of Christ and becoming completed after the trumpet has sounded, after the dead have been raised, after all rule has been placed under the Messiah, and after death has been destroyed. I believe that those who are not faithful will not be able to see or share this new life after the final completion of the new. What justice would there be in a resurrection to immortality of these who are not faithful in this life to enjoy that new life that was prepared for only the faithful? In all of Paul's writings, he was very plain in stating that the unrighteous will not inherit the Kingdom prepared for only those who love Christ and His appearing.

Let us return, now, to a more definite approach to the basic text found in Philippians. Paul stated, "Our conversation is in heaven." The marginal rendering of this is, "Our citizenship is in heaven." I believe that the marginal rendering clarifies the thought, and puts a new light on the subject.

Our citizenship is in heaven: the Philippian brethren were to be citizens of what? Plainly, they were to be citizens of the Kingdom of God, of Christ, or of heaven (these three Kingdoms as mentioned in the Bible are synonymous). Christ now is at the right hand of God as mediator for man. Everyone should be striving to serve Christ. But, can we serve Him if we have not been baptized? We read in Galatians 3:27: "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." By being baptized we show that we wish to follow Christ, accept His teachings, and live righteous lives. One reason that we accept Christ is that we have a hope through Christ of a future life in the Kingdom. Could we not say, then, that at baptism we have made application for our citizenship? Inasmuch as we wish to be citizens of the Kingdom, and we realize that in Christ we would have places in that Kingdom, and we put on Christ by immersion, therefore we make our application at baptism. But our conversation is in heaven, says Paul. Certainly, as we said before, Christ is now in heaven at the right hand of God, and Christ being our hope of a place in that Kingdom that is retained until He comes, then it is only logical to believe that our citizenship is retained until the Kingdom is set up here on earth after His coming. Such sensible reasoning would lead one to believe that the theory, of the Kingdom of God being established in the hearts of men, is not firm.

Paul goes on to state in this same verse in Philippians the most outstanding, sound-proof doctrine of the Bible: "From whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ." The doctrine of the Second Advent, or the Second Coming, is one that the Church of God of the apostolic age and our own denomination have proclaimed strongly as a basic teaching in setting forth the truth. Upon this Second Advent is based the hope of every true Christian, not only the living but the dead, also, who are asleep in Christ. For, if Christ was not resurrected and did not ascend into heaven and is not again coming back as the two angels said, "This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11), then we believe as Paul states in 1 Corinthians 15:17, 18: "If Christ be not raised your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." In this present world of sin, where bloodshed is rife, where heartaches are almost unbearable, and men are devising evil against their neighbors, it would be somewhat discouraging for Christians if they had the vain hope of those who do not believe in the King's appearing.

After the saints or faithful ones have been caught up to meet the King in the air, then shall each one know whether his application for citizenship in the Kingdom has been accepted or rejected. The obtaining of the citizenship is based not only on the application, but on the actions before the time of the acceptance. If an alien applies for citizenship papers and during the time the application was made and the time for the acceptance the alien commits sabotage and is found guilty, the applicant is denied citizenship. That is exactly the case in our application for citizenship in the Kingdom. If we make our application and then do acts that hinder or in any way oppose or digress the Christian walk of life as exemplified by Christ, our application by immersion will be invalid. Let us not sabotage our King, for by doing this we automatically forfeit our citizenship in the Kingdom.

"I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named" (Ephesians 3:14, 15).

AS MEMBERS of the Church of God, we are frequently confronted with questions concerning our name. "Why do you call your church, the Church of God?" "Do you believe your church is better than other churches?" "Are you the only children of God?" Answering questions of this nature requires much time, study, and thinking. It is the duty of each member to "study to shew (himself) approved unto God," that he might "be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh (him) a reason of the hope that is in (him)." In this article we shall present our understanding of this subject of our name. We wish for you to read, primarily, Ephesians 3:14, 15, wherein Paul stated that the whole family in heaven and earth is called by the Father's name.

Secondly, we refer to Genesis 4:26, saying: "To him (Seth) also there was born a son; and he called his name Enos: then began men to call themselves by the name of the Lord" (margin). It seems men continued to call themselves by the name of God until the building of Babel. "In the days when the whole earth had one language and one vocabulary, there was a migration from the east, and men came upon a plain in the land of Shinar, where they settled. Then they said to one another, 'Come on, let us make bricks, and give them a good burning.' Then, as they had bricks for stone and asphalt for mortar, they said, 'Come on, let us make a name for ourselves by building a city and a tower whose top reaches to heaven; it will keep us from being scattered all over the wide earth'" (Moffatt, Gen. 11:1-5). In this passage, we discover that the people of that day in their catholic condition attempted to make a new name for themselves. They believed they had become independent of God and no longer needed His assistance, in fact, they no longer wished to be called by His name. Because they became, in their minds, independent of God, He was forced to punish them.

We can all comprehend the similarity of that condition to what prevails today. Have not men forgotten God? Is not Hitler—to separate one from many—trying to gain world recognition for himself? And by the process, is he not also attempting to "make" a new name for the children of God? Have not churches departed from the Word of God and built places for pomp, ceremony, and recreation? We read of a time when men built a tower to reach into the heavens; we now live in a time when men are building towers to Mars that actually threaten the complete destruction of modern civilization.

Isaiah, in giving a decree from God, told the people that those who disobeyed would suffer grievously and the righteous would be called by the name the wicked had used in uttering a curse. (See Isa. 65:15, Moffatt.) "He who blesseth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the God of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth" (Isa 65:16). More explicitly, we might suggest that he who now takes an oath of the Lord (assumes His name) will receive manifold blessings when the Kingdom is established upon the earth.

Studying carefully, we notice many texts calling "the chosen" the children of God. In 1 Chronicles 28:5, we read, "Of all my sons, (for the Lord hath given me many sons,) he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." In chapter 29, verse 11, we note that all in heaven and earth are God's. If this is true, does He not deserve to have His children retain His name? In domestic life, we honor our fathers by perpetuating their names. Why should we be less respectful of our heavenly Father?

In a careful study of the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistles of Paul, we find that the early church was called the Church of God. (See Acts 20:28; Gal. 1:13; 1 Cor. 1:2; 10:32; 15:9; 1 Tim. 3:5, 15; 2 Cor. 1:1.) We can easily understand why the early Christians called themselves by the name of God, for (Please turn to page 11)

MIRACLES

By Arthur G. Young

THESE are days when perhaps we do not hear debated as in previous years the subject of whether the miracles recorded in the Bible are true or false. Perhaps this might be attributed to several reasons, such as prevalence of a spirit of indifference to God's Word; a reaction from the controversies over the Bible doctrines that existed so sharply during the previous two or three generations; and to the large increase of knowledge of material science. This latter has made men more cautious than heretofore in asserting positively that such and such a thing is impossible, as men's minds are being constantly confronted with proof of the existence of laws through their discovery and application to life, not previously even imagined.

Meditation on the automatic dial telephone, radio, the airplane, and the myriad applications of controlled electricity, make it apparent that the "impossible" of yesterday is the "fact" of today. It truly is a fast changing world brought about by men's discoveries of material science with its facts and laws. Truth is often found to be stranger than fiction.

Nevertheless, in spite of this great increase in knowledge, the miracles as recorded in the Bible still present themselves as calling for belief in the supernatural, as we do not see today, for illustration, men able to duplicate the miracles recorded as performed by Moses and Christ. If these were done by natural operation of existent laws of material science, then it is self-evident that later generations have certainly never equalled the powers exercised by Moses and Christ.

The telephōne is a miracle in one sense of the word, yet that is not what is usually meant when the subject of miracles in the Bible is discussed. Rather, what is meant by the word "miracle" is that which is the direct intervention by a higher and divine power through a miraculous act in the affairs of men and this world, and which is able to accomplish results which come from the normal operation of existent laws.

Usually the miracles are referred to, and believed in, as God's credentials for the person performing the miracle. I believe they are this, but it is because I believe they are evidences of so much more than this, that I feel impelled to write on this subject in the hope that others who have not thought along these lines may find added reasons for hope and faith in God's plan as outlined in the Bible.

Now, the miracles as recorded are either true or false.

They are either facts or the imaginings of men's minds; and, if the latter, to put it plainly and bluntly, they are nothing but lies. However, it must be admitted in all fairness that if (as I believe) they are facts, then no amount of mere assertion to the contrary, or disbelief, will alter such facts. It does not alter the fact that the sun does shine, for me to assert the contrary, or for that matter if everyone that ever lived should make the same assertion.

Among the popular misconceptions regarding miracles is the belief that the Bible is full of the records of miracles, and that the farther back we go in the Bible writings, the more numerous and wonderful we will discover miracles to have been. The account of creation is that of a miraculous performance, as is the punishment by the Flood, and the punishment of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, but outside of these miracles, it may surprise some that there is no account of a miracle in the Bible during the first twenty-five hundred years of Bible recorded history. It is also worth noting that such outstanding characters in Bible history as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and John the Baptist, left no record of performing any miracle, yet, beginning with Moses and the deliverance of Israel from Egyptian bondage, we find recorded a rapid succession of stupendous miracles during Moses' lifetime. Therefore, if we examine the Bible record more closely, we find that instead of miracles being liberally "sprinkled" more or less continuously through the Bible, the actual fact is that great gaps in time occur between miracles. The record shows that miracles usually occur in groups.

There was a great silence of over four hundred years between the last word of the Old Testament and the beginning of the New Testament, and no record of miracle is found during that interval, but with the beginning of the New Testament record, we again find miracle after miracle recorded during the life of Jesus Christ.

The controlling cause for the occurrence of miracle by divinity would appear to be when such conditions exist which make it essential for the protection through God of His plan against attack by the forces of evil, or when in His good judgment the time has come for a forward step in the development of His plan, and which protection or development is impossible of accomplishment without His miraculous intervention and the use of powers not possessed by man.

While miracles, as recorded in the Bible, are accomplished by the power of God through men, or by the control and use of the forces of nature for a specific purpose, nevertheless the miracles Christ performed are the supreme examples. In other words, if the miracles of Jesus Christ can be disproved, then a mortal blow has been struck at not only the authenticity of the Bible, but at the claims of Christ and the belief in all miracles. In all things Jesus Christ is supreme, and the truthfulness or otherwise of the whole Bible record stands or falls on the record of Jesus Christ. That is a "key" statement.

We will, therefore, confine our subsequent remarks on this subject to the question of the miracles performed by Christ. As previously stated, the general thought of those who believe in the miracles of Christ is that they were Christ's credentials, and I agree, but let us lift our thoughts to an even higher plane.

It is impossible to correctly consider any of the great doctrines in the Bible without considering their relation to that which is stated in one single phrase, namely, "the Kingdom of God." Christ's miracles are no exception to this rule. In fact, the plan of God will never be translated into the fact of the Kingdom of God, unless the type examples performed through miracles by Christ in Palestine are applied and demonstrated on a world-wide basis when He comes the second time and then establishes through the greatest demonstration of miraculous power ever exhibited, the Kingdom of God on this earth.

The Kingdom of God will come only by and through divine miraculous intervention in world events, and will not come through man's efforts or by natural evolution.

If we briefly examine the miracles of Christ, we will immediately see they fall into certain distinct types, each in a separate field, but all are necessary in order to bring into being that set of conditions described by, and included in, the phrase "the Kingdom of God," on a world-wide, all-inclusive basis, namely:

- (1) Christ's demonstration of complete power over sickness,
- (2) Christ's demonstration of complete power over death,
- (3) Christ's demonstration of complete power over nature,
- (4) Christ's demonstration of complete power over evil spirits (demons).

Even a superficial examination of the respective fields in which Christ performed His miracles will convince any honest investigator that they dealt with those conditions within which man lives, moves, and acts, and in which man has never been given, of himself, power to control in a fundamental sense. Physicians may be able to cure a certain sickness through discoveries of certain remedies, certain facts of life, and certain physical laws, but no human physician has ever had the power to instantaneously and perfectly cure every form of sickness presented to him, which is exactly what Christ did when He dealt with the problems of sickness. All human "cures" of sickness are in truth temporary, and simply postpone the inevitable end of all sickness—death. Therefore, when Christ demonstrated His power over sickness in the miraculous way He did, He showed by the best possible evidence that there existed in Him a power capable of infinite expansion to a world-wide basis; likewise, with His dealing with the greater problem of death. Really it follows, that if Christ could solve the problem of death, He could do so with the lesser problem of the symptoms of inevitable death, which we call sickness.

Christ raised the dead to life by a power superior to that known by man, but the supreme example of there being a power existent superior to death is in that he who raised others to life again was raised to a new and immortal life, when He lay in death in the tomb. This exhibition of such a power is the best possible evidence that can be produced as a witness to the ability of God to fulfill His promise to raise up in resurrection and to immortal life those to whom it has been promised.

If I can show you just one grain of wheat, I do not need to show you a million bushels of wheat to prove that there is in existence in this world the nature of wheat—the system with all its component parts necessary to produce such a thing we call "wheat." Likewise, I submit that the demonstration by Christ of power to perform the miracles in each of the fields mentioned, and the exhibition of a power capable of raising the dead Christ to life again, is that kind of concrete and tangible evidence for which all practical minds long to satisfy themselves that the promises of God to actually create and set up a condition on this earth embraced in the description given us of the Kingdom of God can surely be translated into actual fact. In very truth, upon examination of the miracles recorded in the Bible, it can be stated that miracles always have reference to the plan of God in relation to the Kingdom of God.

Instead of shrinking from contemplation of miracles by reason of being afraid that our faith in the accuracy of the Bible will be shaken or shattered, we should welcome the fullest examination of the subject, and if this is done, it can be easily seen that the miracles are the greatest evidence in support of our faith in God, His Christ, His Kingdom, and our eternal salvation and partnership with Him in that Kingdom that could possibly be given to mankind.

May those who read this rather simple exposition of this interesting subject be turned to the study of God's plan as given in His Word. To do so, will strengthen faith in God's promises being fulfilled as nothing else can.

How grateful we poor mortals should be that we have a gracious, loving, and merciful God who has given such evidences of His love for His creatures! How it should make us love our dear Lord, to realize that He, the righteous One, was willing to die, and did die, not only to redeem the world, but to make possible the possession of an eternal and righteous life for you and me.

Among the Churches

EVERYBODY LIKES ACTION

We appreciate an abundance of church news. Everybody likes action. Keep going!

DIXON, ILLINOIS

The Dixon church was fortunate in securing Bro. L. E. Conner to deliver the Easter resurrection message. We are always happy when Bro. Conner can be with us. A mixed chorus sang two Easter hymns which were greatly enjoyed.

All our Easter services were well attended, and we hope good attendance may continue.

During the Sunday school hour, the Sunbeam Class gave some recitations in honor of the risen Christ. The contest in the Sunday school started with a good attendance.

A Berean class was recently organized, and is progressing nicely with the instruction of Bro. Alan McLain.

The Dorcas Society is busy under the capable leadership of Mrs. John Shaffer.

Mrs. DeWitt Dauntler is a patient at the Katherine Botha Hospital. Master Charles Welster is also a patient at this hospital.

A student from the Bible Training School speaks to us every Sunday morning, presenting a good message each time. We pray that God will guide the students, so they may go out and preach the Word to those that know not God.

Mrs. Wm. Ford, Secy.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Special services both in the Sunday school hour and at the church period, were enjoyed at God's house on Easter Sunday night. The various classes contributed to the program in song and recitation.

Easter lilies and various other plants, given in memory of different loved ones, decorated the front of the church.

Our speaker for the evening was one of the members of the Bible Training School, Bro. Celaine Randall. Celaine gave us a splendid sermon. We were glad to see him home again, and many complimentary remarks concerning Celaine's progress have been heard. We believe in passing on the praise when one is living and able to be encouraged by it. It made us so glad to hear Celaine expound so firmly the essential and much-loved doctrines of our faith, the near return of Jesus, the literal resurrection of the dead, and the gift of eternal life only through Christ at His return. We not only love these truths, but we pray daily that these precious promises will soon be fulfilled.

It was a pleasure to have Sr. Eunice Zollinger in our midst, and to come to know her better.

Last week we held our Bible study on Friday night. We had over thirty-five in attendance at the home of Sr. Curtis of St. Catharines.

Our Annual May Meeting is just five weeks away. We are looking forward to having Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp with us at this time. We would also ask the prayers of the brethren for God's blessing on our May Meeting.

Irene Holland, Reporter.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Sr. Edna Brewer, our matron, recently went home for a few days, during which time Sr. Helene Friebe has substituted as matron.

Bro. Ellsworth Routson and the writer were in Grand Rapids, Mich., April 20.

Bro. Celaine Randall preached in Dixon, Ill., April 20.

We were glad to have Bro. Jack Brown of Niagara Falls, N. Y., visit our classes.

The Archaeology class finished its first book, and is now studying another book entitled "Dead Men Tell Tales," by Harry Rimmer. This book is far more interesting and informative than the other book.

The class in Business Administration of the Church has finished its book and is studying seemingly difficult passages of Scripture. I think this will be very helpful to us.

We, the students, are planning a trip to Delta, Ohio, April 26, to preach.

Bro. Orris Mills went with Sr. Orpha Lemasurier and daughter to their "folks" in Minnesota to visit over the week end.

In the class in Missions, we have been studying about the work of missionaries in India, Assam, Siam, and China.

C. Alan McLain, Reporter.

MRS. O. M. ANDERSON

Rebecca Orem was born October 20, 1865, near Bendena, Kans., and died at the home of her son Howard F. Anderson, March 18, 1941. She had been in failing health for two years.

Her mother, Mary Haggard Orem, died at an early age, leaving Rebecca aged five, and Elizabeth aged two, to be reared by their father, William James Orem. The girls lived with their grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Archer, until Rebecca was fifteen, when they moved to Nemaha County.

Meanwhile, she graduated from the State Normal School and taught school eight terms.

On July 22, 1896, she was united in marriage to Oliver Morton Anderson, and spent the remaining years of her life on a farm northeast of Huron, Kans. To this union were born six children: Orem O. at home; Mrs. Mary McCune of Huron; Howard F. of Horton; Mrs. Alice Smiddy of Compton, Calif.; and a son and daughter who died in infancy. There are also surviving: her husband; six grandchildren; her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Clency of Manhattan, Kans.; a half sister, Mrs. Wilma Judy of Banning, Calif.; and stepmother, Mrs. Ida Orem of Redlands, Calif.

Mrs. Anderson was for many years book-keeper for the Huron Telephone Company. This marks the passing of a noble woman, a devoted wife and mother.

She was laid to rest beside her father in the Robertson Cemetery, as she wished.

Mrs. Mary McCune.

LILLIAN UMPHREY

Lillian Umphrey was born September 17, 1877, at Athens, Ala., and died March 21, 1941. She spent her early years in Birmingham, Ala., where she graduated from the State School of Nursing.

In June, 1902, she was united in marriage to O. W. Umphrey, and was blessed with five children—Edgar Clarence, who died at the age of two, J. L. Umphrey; Mrs. Ralph Purdy; Austin Walter who died at the age of twenty-one; and Mrs. B. E. Halt.

Mrs. Umphrey was a member of another denomination in Emory Gap, Tenn., at the time of her little son's death. She began to search the Scriptures to see if she could find out where he was. As she read and studied, she found the Bible taught another doctrine concerning the state of the dead. Her mind became so torn up and confused that she prayed constantly the prayer, "If the Lord will give me light, I'll walk in it."

A neighbor woman came in and said, "Mrs. Umphrey, an infidel is preaching down here in this little church; you just ought to go." Her reply was, "I certainly do not want to hear an infidel now. I am too confused in my own mind." However, when the neighbor began to tell some of the things he was teaching and preaching, she remarked, "If that is what he is preaching, I want to hear him. That is just what I have been reading in my Bible."

The infidel turned out to be D. M. Hudler from the Church of God. She accepted the faith, and was baptized in the year 1909. She went back the following Sunday after her baptism to teach her Sunday school class. The class all left the room. She has suffered many criticisms for the Master's sake, but her faith never faltered. She continued to grow in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord" and later taught and instructed many in the faith.

She used her nurse's training to the glory and advancement of our Lord. Many a secret was sealed in her breast, many a pain eased by the touch of her hand, many a headache soothed by her comforting words, and many a burden was made easier to bear because she was willing to share it. 'Twas little wonder that people remarked, "I wish she had been my mother." To others, her face was as that of an angel.

May her life be an inspiration to all who have to live an isolated Christian life. Just keep in mind that eternal life is worth any sacrifice one might have to make to obtain it.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, and Mrs. Umphrey was laid to rest to await the call of the Master.

W. Clarence Poland.

THE FAMILY NAME

Christ desired that they do this. "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name." The record of this prayer of Christ's to God very clearly shows Christ asking the Father to keep His people together in God's name.

We should show the world that we appreciate the love that God has bestowed upon us. In 1 John 3:1, we read: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not."

lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world."

Temptations and trials constantly befall those who endeavor to serve the Master. Many things tend to distract their attention and interest from Christ. Often they are ridiculed for their belief.

However, rather than to make one weak in the faith, temptations should strengthen him, for "we glory in tribulations also; knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope: and hope maketh not ashamed" (Rom. 5:3-5).

In 2 Timothy 2:15 we are told to study to show ourselves approved unto God. What does it matter whether or not we have the approval of men, so long as we have God's approval? Paul said, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1:16). Should we not be as proud of the gospel of Christ as was Paul?

tion of faith—persecution. This, however, belongs principally to the tribulation period; and if the church is hid in her "chambers" during the time of indignation (Isa. 26:20, 21; Luke 21:36), then persecution as a cause of the great apostasy becomes a negligible force.

It is our expectation that the combination of peace and prosperity will cause people to say, "What profit is there that we should serve God?" Few people can stand prosperity! When prosperous, they forget God and His church.

Book Reviews

Now, The Hundred Years has little to offer us readers except background—but that was all it was intended to offer us in the first place. Philip Guedalla wrote it, and Mr. Guedalla—just in case you don't know—has become famous during recent years as one of the most deep-thinking students of historical foreign affairs.

The Hundred Years takes its name from the century intervening between the accession of Victoria to the throne of England and the death of George V—who, you will remember, if your memory is long, was buried in Westminster in 1936. The book is not religious in any sense of the word; it is recommended here solely because it provides not only sound, but really delightful, background material for studying the current international situation.

We long have regretted the tendency of some religionists to attempt to interpret prophecy without at least a fair knowledge of history and political science. Such knowledge need not be gained in college; it can be gained from the entertaining reading of such books as Guedalla's The Hundred Years. The Guedalla narrative—for narrative it really is, although written on a far grander scale than Grand Hotel—sweeps with the brush of candor, of personality, of prose poetry, into the hidden crannies of European, Asiatic, and American diplomacy and politics of the fertile nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

One of the unique features of The Hundred Years—reminiscent of Woodward's New American History—is that it devotes very little attention to the facts of war, but spends its space, instead, in a lavish and picturesque description of the effects of war. Facts, for Guedalla, are only hooks upon which are to be hung interpretations of character, of ideas, of idealisms.

The Hundred Years was a selection of the Literary Guild, is now regularly published in a trade edition at $3.00 by Doubleday, Doran. There is not a list of "recommended reading" for students of world affairs with which we are familiar which does not include Guedalla's work.

Wisdom From Solomon

"Hear, O my son, and receive my sayings; and the years of thy life shall be many. I have taught thee in the way of wisdom; I have led thee in right paths. When thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened; and when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble. Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life. Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men. Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away" (Prov. 4:10-15).

The Apostles As Leaders

The people were still very happy over the resurrection, and in their renewed "hope" of living with Jesus when He comes again. They had been taught to love one another. Yes, to love their neighbors as much as they loved themselves. One way in which they tried to show their love was to share what they had with those who lacked. The easiest way to care for such a large family was to bring their offerings and place them at the apostles' feet.

Now, the apostles had been told: "Go ye . . . and preach." They wouldn't have much time to obey Christ's last command if they had to care for the daily physical needs of their people.

What did the apostles do? They called the people together. They told them, "It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." So they appointed seven Christian men to take care of this work for them. They were the "business men" or "deacons" of the church. Two of the men who were appointed are men you have met in our studies: Stephen and Philip.

What did the apostles do with their time? They prayed and did the work of "ministers" or "elders."

First Things First

Today our ministers keep in mind at all times that they are the servants of God to lead the people to serve Him. They must let many personal desires remain unfulfilled in order to serve their people. It isn't always easy to see the needs of the people if the minister and his family are in need, themselves. To help our ministers keep putting "first things first" we must do our part. If everyone today will share willingly and generously, then there will be no lack among our ministers or our church people. They will be happy, too, like those early Christians.

Garden Time

Did you ever notice a flower that had come up from the year before, right in the middle of a patch of weeds? How bright its colors! How dull and "weedy" the weeds looked! Did you know that a little Christian can be a beautiful, shining light, even though the surroundings are not the best for Christian development? It is sad that many children have parents who do not try to serve Jesus. However, if you are among the people of the world, will you remember the Christian's light is brighter than if among other Christians? A bad person is more noticeable in a Christian group, perhaps, for it is easy to see another person's faults. So, let your lights shine! Be a "flower" in the weed patch, if you must!

A Game

Draw fourteen squares and number them at the top. Put in the squares the letters in the words described. When all the squares are filled we find what it was that the early church did, and what we should do, too.

The early church people were 2, 3, 12, 5 happy. They were of 6, 7, 13 heart and one mind.

Everything was divided as he 10, 11, 14 need.

God's Bookkeeping

* * *

By Harvey Krogh, Jr., Tipp City, Ohio

It is evident from the Scriptures that we may be saved only through God's grace. Not by works or service that we do, but because of God's great mercy, we are blessed with a glorious hope. In order to have a part in the blessings, we must show faith in God and in His Son. Our work and service to Him are important, however, because we cannot show faith without some works.

The Bible seldom alludes to the reward of faith, but many times mentions reward for works. Since every man shall then be rewarded for his works (Matt. 16:27; Rev. 2:23), God does some bookkeeping for us. If we would have a good reward when the books are balanced, it behooves us to work hard. Nevertheless, let us find in what cases the work is counted for our reward. In Romans 4:4, after Paul had explained that Abraham was not counted as righteous or acceptable for salvation by his works, but because he believed God, he said: "Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt." From this, we understand that one who is trying to save himself by his works is only getting deeper into debt. The person who is not Christian, but lives a so-called good life, keeps the laws of the land, pays his debts, and works hard is still so deep in the red side of God's book that Paul considered that that person's work is counted as a debt. The harder he works, the more debt he will owe, because he is trusting in himself and the more one trusts in self, the farther he gets from God. Now Paul said: "To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness" (Rom. 4:5). From this we see that the person who does not try to save himself, but trusts in God, who can and will save us, is justified not because he has worked, but because he trusts in God who alone through Christ can save us.

Works Are Essential

Again we speak of works, for they are absolutely essential as we see in the following illustration: The trusting child is saved from the burning house by jumping from the window at his parent's command. The child was saved because he had faith that his father would catch him. He would not have jumped otherwise, but in fear he would have rushed screaming to the burning stairs. When you and I have faith in God, we will follow His command and do service which we would not do otherwise, nor could we do it without His help. Our service is then called works. Now, because we are already counted as in line for salvation, we are on the credit side of the book. All of the works that we do after we come into Christ are no more counted as debt, but as reward. That is why it is so often mentioned in the Bible about being rewarded according to our works. If you are not a Christian, do not let your works be counted as debt against you, but accept Christ and transfer your works to the credit side of the ledger.

Contact!

We used to have an "occasional" radio—occasionally it would operate. At times we would have to thump it soundly, and sometimes give it quite a jolt before it would function. The parts were all right, but the connections became loose, causing some part of the set to lose contact with the source of power. When reception became too poor we would get out a little solder and make the connections strong again, and soon we would have the set "chirping away" without a break.

The activities of Christian people are the means by which the gospel is proclaimed to all men. When, either through error or lack of personal application, a certain phase of the work may falter, the circuit is temporarily broken and the world does not hear a message that is clear and easily understood. The power which Christians receive from God is adequate, constant, and unfailing. On these people rests the responsibility of translating this power into word and deed that will serve as a witness unto all people that Christ is soon to come to set up His Kingdom.

Through prayer, each individual is enabled to draw near to God, the Source of all power, and to mend the little breaks which would otherwise prevent him from being an efficient worker. Prayer will unify a group; and such a group will be moved through God's power to such an effort that many will come to a knowledge of the gospel. "Pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17), for "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" (James 5:16).

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

With the Easter season on hand, the Hope Chapel Church of God has been filled with activities. On Friday, April 11, a drama, "The Trumpets of Dawn," was given by forty members of the Sunday school, with Mrs. Lulu Stilson in charge of the play which was accompanied with music.

On Easter morning a sunrise service was held at 6:00 a.m., with about forty-two attending. It was very impressive and the rostrum was beautifully decorated with palms, lilies, and Easter flowers, and in the middle of the platform was a technicolor film showing the "Empty Tomb." During the morning service, when Communion was held, the film showed "The Last Supper," and in the evening showed "Christ in the Garden." This was effectively lighted by colored lights, and the lighting system throughout the drama and other church services was made possible through efforts of Bro. Elmer McChesney. After the sunrise service, a breakfast was served in the basement with Mrs. Irene Leighty in charge. At 9:45 a.m., was Sunday school. Our superintendent, Lottie Pickert, had put our quota to eighty by Easter Sunday, but we had one hundred six in attendance. During the Sunday school hour, the younger classes gave an Easter program. At 10:45 a.m., was the worship service. The choir presented special Easter music under the direction of Mrs. Evelyn Austin. A basket dinner was served at noon and again services were held at 2:30 p.m. Young people's meeting at 6:30 p.m., and the evening services completed the day. During the day, the Easter offering amounted to about $130.00. We know the Lord has opened the hearts at Hope Chapel, for the Lord loves cheerful givers.

Many out-of-town guests attended, among whom were Bro. and Sr. Russell Currens and children; Mrs. Heiser and son from Burr Oak; Bro. and Sr. John Railton and daughter from Rockford, Ill.; Sr. Leila Whitehead, Leota Hanson, and Mrs. Virda Sitler from Chicago; Bro. and Sr. Russell Harmon from Grabill, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher, Sr. and Jr., and children from Niles, and others from North Salem.

We are also very happy that our minister, F. L. Austin, has been asked to take charge of the devotional services this week on radio station WSBT in South Bend.

Mrs. Wilma Pierce, Secy.

ATTENTION, ISOLATED MEMBERS

Do you like to receive visits from brethren who pass near you on their travels?

This would be much easier if it were known where all our isolated members live. The Church of God is planning a directory in which it is desired to list all isolated members. We want your name in it. Will you co-operate in sending me the following information?

1. Your name and mail address.
2. Location of your home with reference to nearest main highways. Give brief directions how to reach it from a given point on the highway.

For this purpose an isolated member is to be considered anyone who lives at a distance from an organized church, whether affiliated with it or not. So, even if you are a member of a Church of God congregation, but live at a distance of, say, twenty-five miles away, please report.

When the directory is published, only those who report will be listed.

Be sure your name will be included.

Send your report to: M. W. Lyon, 11405 Lake Shore Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio. A post card is a convenient way to send it. Do it soon. M. W. Lyon.

NORTH SALEM CHURCH OF GOD

(North of Plymouth, Ind.)

On Sunday, April 27, there will be an all-day meeting at the North Salem Church. The program will be as follows:

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m.; sermon by Elder J. H. Anderson, 11:00 a.m.; basket dinner (cups and plates will be furnished), 12:00 noon; sermon and Communion, 2:30 p.m.; sermon by J. H. Anderson, 7:30 p.m.

Everybody is urged to attend these meetings. Hazel Logan, Secy.

MORNING STAR CHURCH OF GOD

South Bend, Indiana

The new church in South Bend, "The Morning Star Church," wishes to announce that rapid progress has been made in the new organization, and that ground will soon be broken to lay the foundation for a new church building. This building will be located in a new and growing community where we feel there is wide opportunity for harvest. Donations have been coming in fine. Thanks to all who have contributed! We know that you will receive God's blessing for your help. If any other members of God's great Church would like to have a hand in this new work, please address your donations to our treasurer, Mrs. Dale Rouch, 1710 Medora St., South Bend, Ind.

Following Easter Sunday services, which were accented by special accordion music, a basket dinner was served and very much enjoyed by all. I still believe we should precede these get-together dinners with a temperance lesson. How about it, all of you who were there?

Frances Boyle, Secy.

AN INVITATION

The Michigan State Conference Board requests the honor of your presence at the Spring Conference to be held at the Pennellwood Chapel 28 Allen Road, S.W., Grand Rapids on May 2nd, 3d, and 4th at half after seven each evening, and eleven a.m. and half after two p.m., Sunday

SOUTH LAWN PARK CHURCH

Grand Rapids, Michigan

Easter has come and gone again, and it is one that will never be forgotten by those who celebrated it at South Lawn Church.

According to custom, the church abstained from all social activities during the week preceding Easter. Palm Sunday was a memorable occasion, marking the completion of some of our plans for beautifying our church building. A dedication service was held in which these material blessings were consecrated to the service of God. Among these improvements are two heavy silk curtains at the back of the rostrum, one of which conceals an entrance, a paneled wood balustrade at the front of the rostrum, a new rug for the center aisle and across the front, and last, but not least, beautiful new opalescent windows throughout the auditorium. Like the beautifying of the Temple of old, everyone from the little children of the Sunday school on up to the oldest member present has had a part in helping to make possible these lovely things, and every heart thrilled to the goodness of God as we joyfully dedicated them to Him.

The Easter morning service was taken up largely by the presentation of the cantata, "Resurrection Morning," by the choir under the direction of Sr. Evelyn Barr. The church was filled to capacity. Even so, there was a vacancy because of the absence of Mrs. Fletcher and Shephard, who have been seriously ill.

Dinner was served in the annex at noon.

Baptismal service was held at 2:30 in the afternoon. It is hard to imagine any greater thrill in this life than we experienced on this occasion when twenty-six splendid people were baptized by Bro. F. E. Siple into the all-saving name of Christ. Fifteen ladies and eleven men—a church in themselves! The ladies and girls all wore white, and surrounded by the lovely Easter lilies with which the church was decorated, they formed a scene long to be remembered.

Brethren, it is with humility and great joy that we present to you these new members of the family of Christ:

Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, 2214 Wyoming, S.W., a grandmother with silver hair; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Holquist, 41 Elm St., S.W.; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Walbridge, 3349 Division, S.; and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Alger, 343 Corinne, S.W.—all these couples are in the prime of life; Misses Myrna Marshall, 32 Coolidge, S.W.; Marie Holmes, 3349 Division, S.; Bernadine Chickering, 39 Jordan Dr., S.W.; Virginia Siple, 140 Celia, S.E.; Mildred Stevens, 36 Conrad, S.W.; Virginia Ackerman, 128 Berkshire, S.E.; Gene Hunt, 3509 Reiser, S.W.; Althea Baker, 3440 Buchanan Ave., S.W.; Wanda Louks, 3565 Hillcrest, S.W.; Belle Doris Walbridge, 3349 Division, S.; and Ruth Becker, Allen Rd., S.E.—all of these are high school age girls; George Van Fleet, 38 Conrad, S.W.; Miles Doan, 3561 Hillcrest, S.W.; Paul Niles, 2428 Horton, S.E.; Dou Wassenaar, 46 Wesley, S.E.; Gerald Thomas, 137 Berkshire, S.E.; Gordon Bush, 21 Washington, S.W.; Fred Service, 5113 Carson, S.W.; and Roger Walbridge, 3349 Division S.—all of these are high school boys.

Pray that we may all stand together in the day of Christ's appearing.

The pastor, Bro. F. E. Siple, is holding a series of meetings for two weeks at Burr Oak, Ind. During his absence, the pulpit here will be supplied by Bro. Ellsworth Routson of the Bible Training School, Oregon, Ill., and Bro. M. W. Lyon of the Golden Rule Church of Cleveland, Ohio.

ATTEND THE SUMMER SCHOOL

The Summer Bible Training School is indeed well worth its keep. It provides opportunities beyond comprehension. The fellowship with other young people of "like precious faith" combined with the concentrated study cannot be measured in dollars or cents.

Having had the opportunity of attending last year's Summer School, I now urge that each of you young people make the most of your opportunities by sending in your name as one who will attend the Summer Training School to be held at Oregon, Ill., June 17 through July 25. Richard Parish.

SISTER WALTER WIGGINS, MATRON

Sr. Walter Wiggins, Eden Valley, Minn., matron of the last two Summer Bible Training Schools, will again serve in that capacity at this year's School, June 17—July 25. We trust that she will have a large family of students. All those who wish to be adopted for this period of six weeks should report today to the Summer Training School, Oregon, Ill. Sydney E. Magaw.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Ella Carpenter (for another); James Leithliter; Mrs. John Eckroy; Clara Barnum; Mrs. Ethel Buchanan (for another); Mrs. Mary McCune; Maurice Anger; Francis Burnett (for another); Mrs. A. E. Mock; Mrs. Sue Stuart; Silas Claypool (for others); Mrs. Mauvine Greene; Mrs. Eska Evans.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH OF GOD

Grand Rapids, Michigan

Another anniversary of our Lord's suffering and triumph has passed. On His triumph over death hangs our hope of eternal life. Therefore, may we bear our cross for Him as willingly and as patiently as He bore His for us, that we may be glorified for service in the coming Kingdom.

Special services were held on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings preceding Easter. Easter Day was a busy one, starting with a sunrise service. About twenty young people met at the home of the Harold Simpsons for an Easter breakfast. Sunday school and church services were held as usual with a good attendance. The Gospel Team conducted services at the Dutton church at 2:30 p.m.

Through the kindness of the South Lawn brethren, our baptismal service was held in their building at 4:30 p.m., at which time Bro. James McLain assisted two young people in the first ordinance of Christian life. We are glad to present to the brotherhood: Miss Virginia Parker, 46 Abbie St., S.E., and Mr. Clare Aleunbrach, Rt. 6, both of Grand Rapids. We are most glad they have taken the rock foundation (Christ) upon which to build the future they are planning together.

The day closed with the Young People's League at 6:00 p.m., and the evening service.

Our next big event will be the Spring Conference to be held May 2, 3, and 4, to which we extend a most cordial invitation to all. Remember the dates, and we will be seeing you.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secy.

SUMMER SCHOOL BENEFITS

It is hardly necessary to enumerate the moral benefits of the Summer Bible Training School; however, I saw some data not long ago that proved interesting. The data indicated that the largest group of American criminals is composed of young men and women from twenty to twenty-four years of age. Figures for the annual loss in the United States caused by crime showed that the average loss per family was about one hundred sixty dollars for last year. Lack of moral training was listed as one of the chief causes for crime. A graph prepared by the National Forum of Chicago shows the following percentage of homes broken by divorce, desertion, or separation in relation to religious affiliation of parents: 4.6 Jewish, 6.4 Catholic, 6.8 Protestant, 15.2 mixed, 16.7 none. If you should study the records of reform and penal institutions, you would also discover the remarkable power of religious training to keep young people from such institutions.

Another important benefit to be derived from the Summer Bible Training School is that of training leaders among our young people. We need all the trained young people we can get in our churches and Sunday schools, and could well afford to provide the necessary tuition to send one or two deserving and promising young persons from each church as an investment that should bring dividends in the form of valuable service.

Think it over, and determine to do all you can to see that our School has the necessary twenty students by June 1. The dates for the School are June 17—July 25. Students should enroll now!

Otto E. Dick.

(Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Summer Bible Training School

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder S. J. Lindsay:

We have been solicited to say a few words for the Summer Bible Training School. It seems to us that there is great need for such a School, and especially because we have had such successful work done since the idea has been put into operation. It would be better if such students could take advantage of the year 'round classwork; but, since there are many who cannot afford either time or money for the longer period, the Summer School gives opportunity to a greater number to get some of the good things with an expenditure of both time and money in a measure that they can meet. Indeed, the price of admission to this class has been made so reasonable that both board and instruction are so cheap that you cannot afford to stay at home.

Elder S. J. Lindsay

Remember that the School is not a place for "argufying," but a place where we come together to study the Bible that we may familiarize ourselves with its contents.

The School is a splendid place to bring our young people together from over the United States and Canada, that they may become better acquainted. Many friendships have been made in this way that never would have been made were it not for the School. This acquaintance is a great incentive for these young people to "stick" to the faith, and to press forward even in times of spiritual depression. This angle should not be overlooked.

Here's hoping for a large membership for the coming summer.

S. J. Lindsay.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 29, 1941

NUMBER 30

Straight From the Shoulder

By the Editor

DEFINITE plans are about completed for the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. In times past our brethren have challenged the General Conference to “go on faith” in advertising the School, whether or not the outlook was bright. Accordingly, another summer course of the Bible Training School is this year being planned, offered, and advertised. The instructors, Elders S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets of Elburn, Illinois, have been employed—which means that salaries have been promised them. The matron, Sister Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley, Minnesota, has also been employed. The Summer School has been advertised several weeks through The Restitution Herald and by means of letters to many of our Sunday school and church leaders throughout the United States and Canada. Also, personal letters have been written to many prospective students.

The Board of Religious Education believes, however, that the Summer Bible Training School should be self-supporting, if at all possible, as it otherwise tends to detract from the interest and financial support of the nine-months’ School. In fact, it has been suggested to us that the summer course should be discontinued after this year, unless there should be a deeper and bigger interest shown this summer than formerly. Last year’s Summer School was not self-supporting. It cost seven hundred ninety-eight dollars and thirty-three cents, and left an operating deficit of one hundred forty-five dollars and seventy-five cents, though there had been more than a hundred dollars in contributions. An effort was made at the General Conference to raise the money for the operating deficit; a sufficient amount was pledged, but to this day there is still a deficit of nineteen dollars and ninety-four cents.

Certainly, all should see the advisability, if not necessity, of making every effort to maintain the Summer School on a pay-as-we-go basis. Let’s do it.

The outlook for this Summer’s Bible Training School is not particularly bright. Though the School has been advertised for several weeks, there is today only one student officially enrolled. We pay our respects to Sister Betty Macy, Troy, Ohio, the only student thus far to sign on the dotted line. We hear indirectly of several others who are planning to come. These young men and young women should enroll immediately, as we need twenty students, at least, if the School this summer is to be operated on the pay-as-we-go basis.

Obviously, many of our young people have not roused to the merits and advantages of the Summer Training School. Here, the best possible specialized training is offered. Conditions both in the world and in the church demand that Christian leaders be well trained to successfully build in the Lord’s work. Here, too, youth meets youth—students coming from all sections of the country. Moreover, the School has a unifying effect on our doctrines and practices, without which we cannot properly finish the work to which we are entrusted.

We, therefore, appeal to our brethren, but especially to our young men and young women, to reconsider their sacred obligations to the Lord, to co-operate in all ways possible to make this year’s Summer School a success, both financially and spiritually. Primarily, we need students—students who are pledged to study and toil and pray that God’s will may be better done in ourselves and abroad wherever we serve. Who will enroll today?

See the back cover page for further information about the Summer Bible Training School, where also there is an enrollment coupon. Let us rally to the Summer School.

“The Lord Ordained”

According to the Apostle Paul, the Old Testament law commanding: “Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn” was not written primarily in the interest of oxen, but to prove that he who labors should be supported by his work—and this with particular emphasis to the support of those who labor in the ministry. Explaining, Paul said: “Doth God take care for oxen? . . . For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things? . . . Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel” (1 Cor. 9:9-4). Dare Christians despise an ordinance of God?

There is evidence, too, that Paul’s reference to this divine ordinance pertained directly to the teaching of Jesus. In sending the Twelve to preach, Jesus said: “Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses . . . for the workman is worthy of his meat” (Matt. 10:9, 10). Though the word “meat” refers to food, generally, or to one’s “hire” (Luke 10:7), it is not without significance that some ministers are almost vegetarians of necessity.

True, the Apostle Paul was a tentmaker (Acts 18:3). True, too, he labored with his hands that the gospel might be preached without cost to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 4:12), but Paul later saw his error and acknowledged to the Corinthians: “I robbed other churches, taking wages of them, to do you service. And when I was present with you, and wanted (unthinkable!), I was chargeable to no man: for that which was lacking to me the brethren which came from Macedonia supplied” (2 Cor. 11:8, 9). Moreover, at a little later time the Apostle, again saying, “I myself was not burdensome to you,” added, “Forgive me this wrong” (2 Cor. 12:13).

Both laymen and ministers should recognize and respect the Lord’s ordinance concerning the ministry being financially maintained by its own work. The minister who sells knickknacks to make a living is probably failing in his God-given mission as much as the congregation which thinks its minister should milk cows, raise beans, or in some other way copy the tentmaker Apostle who, learning better, asked to be forgiven his “wrong.”

Isaiah and Lindbergh

Said Isaiah: “Behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people” (Isa. 60:2).

Says Lindbergh: “It will be a tragedy to the world—a tragedy even to Germany—if the British Empire collapses. But I must tell you frankly that I believe this war was lost by England and France even before it was declared, and that it is not within our power in America today to win the war for England, even though we throw the entire resources of our nation into the conflict.” (Chicago speech, April 17.)

Charles A. Lindbergh may be wrong—if God mingles in the game, the tide of battle may change—but the Prophet Isaiah, inspired of God, could not have been wrong. Whether today or tomorrow, whether by Hitler or Stalin, whether the church escapes it or not, every student of the Bible may know that “darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people.” Then “the Redeemer shall come to Zion” (Isa. 59:20).

Though carnal men drench the earth in blood and vainly try to hide the gruesome sight by spreading a blanket of gross darkness over all the earth, the Redeemer shall come to Zion. “According to their deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adversaries, recompence to his enemies” (Isa. 59:18). “So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him” (v. 19). Then, “the Lord shall arise upon thee (Zion and Jacob, 59:20), and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles (the nations) shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising” (60:2, 3).

“The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light” (Rom. 13:12), “redeeming the time, because the days are evil” (Eph. 5:16). Only to those who fear God’s name “shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings” (Mal. 4:2).

That Blessed Hope

By George Walters

"Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

HOPE is called emphatically "that blessed hope" (Titus 2:13) because it refers to the greatest blessings for which we look and long and wait. The "glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" denotes both the time Christians' hope will be realized and the sureness and greatness of it. It will be at the second appearing of Christ, when He will come in His own glory, and in His Father's glory, and in the glory of the holy angels (Luke 9:26). Christ's second coming will be in majesty, to bestow majesty, and to instate His people in it. At His second coming, Christ will reward His servants and exalt them to glory with Him. There is a common and blessed hope for all true Christians in the next world. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable" (1 Cor. 15:19).

"Hope" implies the One for whom we wait, namely, Christ Himself, who is called "our hope" (1 Tim. 1:1). The design of the gospel is to stir up all to a good life by this blessed hope. "Gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 1:13).

How will Christ come? Christ will come in the clouds. "They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:30). The judgment of the great day will be committed to the Son of Man, both in pursuance to, and in recompense of, His great understanding for us as Mediator. (John 5:22, 27.) Christ went to heaven in a cloud, and will in like manner come again (Acts 1:9, 11). "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1:7). A cloud will be the Judge's chariot (Psalm 104:3), His robe (Rev. 10:1), His pavilion (Psalm 18:11), His throne (Rev. 14:14).

Christ will come at the "great day" which will bring both comfort and terror. His second coming will be with power and great glory, agreeable both to the dignity of His person and to the purposes of His coming. The coming of Christ will be sudden and a great surprise to some men, even "as a thief in the night" (1 Thess. 5:2). The knowledge of Christ's coming is more important than to know the exact time, because knowing of His coming should awaken us to stand upon our watch that we may be ready whenever He comes. "Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come. . . . For in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh" (Matt. 24:42-44).

What will Christ's coming mean to the Christian? The trumpet will sound, and this will awaken those Christians who are asleep in the dust of the earth. The dead in Christ shall rise first, that is, before those found alive at Christ's coming are changed. So, it appears that those who are alive shall not precede those who are asleep in Christ. Both living and dead saints will be forever with Him. (1 Thess. 4:16, 17.) We shall be made like Christ when He receives us—like Him in honor, and our vile bodies will be made like His glorious body. (Phil. 3:21.) We shall be filled with life, light, and bliss from Him.

We who are Christians will receive crowns of righteousness for our services, which "God is not unrighteous to forget" (Heb. 6:10).

Our holiness and righteousness will there be perfected, and this perfection will be our crown. God, the righteous Judge, will not let anyone lose his reward. (2 Tim. 4:8.)

"Be patient" (James 5:7), bear your afflictions without murmuring, your injuries without revenge; and, though the Lord should not immediately appear, wait for Him. "The vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come" (Hab. 2:3). "Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry" (Heb. 10:37). Let your patience be lengthened out to long-suffering. When we have done our work, we have need of patience to wait for our reward. Then, be patient to the coming of the Lord. This is a lesson Christians must learn, though ever so hard or difficult to them. It is repeated in James 5:8.

The results of Christ's coming. Christ "must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:25, 26). Death must be destroyed or abolished; its powers over its members must be disannulled. When saints live again, and die no more, then, and not until then, will all things be put under Christ's feet (v. 27). When these ends are obtained, Christ's power and authority will not need to be continued, for God will be "all (Please turn to page 10)

BAPTISM

By Alan McLain

THE word "baptism" is practically transferred from the Greek, the original word being baptizo. The word means to dip, or to immerse. In Luke 16:24, the word "dip" is a translation of baptizo. There is no scripture for "sprinkling." Sprinkling was ordained of men, and not of God. Too many people follow the traditions of men, rather than Christ's commandments and teachings. Not once in the Bible is reference made to "baptism" as if it were "sprinkling."

John the Baptist went throughout Judea preaching repentance and baptism for the remission of sins. In Matthew 3:5, 6, it is recorded that Jerusalem and all Judea were baptized of John in the Jordan River, confessing their sins. After Philip, the evangelist and deacon of the Jerusalem church, had preached out of the Scriptures unto the eunuch of Ethiopia, telling him about Jesus, the eunuch said: "See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" Philip said, "If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest." The eunuch answered: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Then "he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him." (Acts 8:36-38.) Would it have been necessary for both to go down into the water, if Philip was going to sprinkle the man?

Of what importance is baptism? Is it essential to salvation? Yes. It is a proof of our faith in Jesus our Lord. On the day of Pentecost, Peter said unto the Jews: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38). Repentance and baptism were necessary for forgiveness of sins. Jesus said, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:5). What does "born of water" imply, if it does not refer to baptism?

Was not Jesus our Lord baptized? "Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness. Then he suffered him" (Matt. 3:13-15). If Jesus was baptized, who are we to refuse baptism? Jesus said unto His disciples, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16). We read: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8:12). Saul of Tarsus was baptized (Acts 9:18). Cornelius was baptized (Acts 10:47, 48). Surely all who believed were immersed. Then, is it not evident that baptism is necessary for salvation? Is it not just as important to keep one of Christ's commandments as another? There are exceptions to almost every rule—the thief on the cross may be an exception to this rule.

What does immersion symbolize? It symbolizes the death, burial, and resurrection of our Lord. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection: knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin" (Rom. 6:3-6).

Peter, too, spoke of baptism's saving power and linked it with faith in Jesus' resurrection, saying: "While the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 3:20, 21).

Any important doctrine that God would have us know assuredly is given in a type or ensample. "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ" (1 Cor. 10:1-5).

The Israelites were overthrown in the wilderness because of their sin, after they had been baptized. So we should not lust after evil things as did they. Baptism is the proof of our faith in Christ. Immersion alone will not save, but it must be married with faith in the Lord.

Circumcision was also a type of baptism. We read in Genesis 17:9-13: "God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations. This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; Every man child among you shall be circumcised . . . And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed. He that is born in thy house and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant."

He that would not keep this covenant, said God unto the Israelites, would be cut off from his people, having broken God's covenant. This reminds one of those who will be cast into outer darkness; also of the man that stood before the Lord without having on a wedding garment, and was cast out. The lack of a wedding garment indicates that he had not put on baptism, for in baptism our sinful garments are made white and clean as a wedding garment. Abraham kept the covenant that God gave him and his seed. Shall we not keep the covenant given us?

We read in Colossians 2:10-13: "Ye are complete in him (in Christ), which is the head of all principality and power: in whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ: buried with him in baptism wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead. And you, being dead in your sins and the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses." Circumcision is not kept by Christians, because it was only a type of baptism which is the circumcision of Christ. We become dead unto the carnal, the sinful life, willing to denounce self; we are buried with Him in baptism, for it is the custom to bury that which is dead; we are risen with Him to walk in (Please turn to page 11)

Heirs With Christ

By Terry Ferrell

"If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Galatians 3:29).

THE Christian, if he lives according to commandment and is baptized into Christ's saving name, has been promised an inheritance in the world to come. If we are Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed, for in the genealogy of Christ, as recorded in Matthew 1:1, we read that Christ is "the son of David" and "the son of Abraham."

God made a covenant with Abraham, telling him that He would make his name great and all the land which he could see would be given to him and his seed forever. (See Gen. 12:2; 13:14-17.) That covenant was renewed to Isaac and Jacob, but that promise has never been fulfilled; for "these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise" (Heb. 11:39). God "gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession" (Acts 7:5). It is, therefore, to be concluded that the promise is yet to be fulfilled. God cannot lie. If God said He would make Abraham a great nation and give him the earth, He will do it.

We Gentiles could not in any way be included among the heirs if it were not for Christ, because we have no blood relation to Abraham. The only way the promise to Abraham can apply to the non-Jew is to be Christ's. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ" (Gal. 3:27).

We are in a sense grafted into the "family tree" of Abraham, but we can be cut off if we do not live according to the standard set by our pattern, Christ. Paul, in the Roman letter, speaks concerning this subject: "Because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear: for if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee" (11:20, 21).

It is our privilege to serve God and to live worthily of being called Christ's, thereby receiving the promise of an inheritance through Abraham. We should have great faith that God will do what He says, for we have the Bible and the promise right before our eyes. We should have more faith than had Abraham, for we have many more proofs and signs to increase our faith; he had only the invisible word and nothing that he could see or grasp, yet he had great hope and faith. Because we are heirs according to the promise, we should earnestly look forward to that day when Abraham and his seed shall inherit the earth.

We of the Church of God, because we understand that the promise includes us, should have more faith than those who are not aware of the fact that by being in Christ we are Abraham's seed and accounted worthy heirs according to the promise.

Born of Water

By C. E. Randall

IN OUR last article of this series, we concluded with the thought that those who really believe in the resurrection will evidence their faith by being buried in baptism, which in Scripture is recognized as a symbol of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. We now take up a study of this important subject.

Elder R. V. Lyon in his book on "The Kingdom of God and Life Only in Christ," which is a reprint of several of his sermons preached in various parts of the country, said in his sermon on The Birth of Water and of the Spirit: "Baptism is a significant term. It is the appointed law for the remission of sins. . . . It is the appointed medium by which the believer is inducted into Christ, and thereby takes the family name, sons and daughters of God. . . . In the act of being immersed, the believer acknowledges his faith in the coming of Jesus to rule the world in righteousness (Acts 17:31)."

Elder Lyon, like all of our early preachers, was a militant preacher, setting forth the inconsistency of errors believed along with the proclamation of the "gospel of Christ." The average person is not able to discern between truth and error if truth alone is proclaimed. The fallacies of error must be pointed out if people are to observe the advantages of truth. In this connection, the unquestioned place baptism by immersion occupies in the plan of salvation will not be discerned by many, except the uninspired origin of infant baptism is exposed, which will be considered in a separate article.

One of the eight truths set forth at the time our General Conference was organized at Waterloo, Iowa, and for which the Conference agreed to "utilize the contributed strength of the Church to affirm by print and voice," was: "That as many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." The history of the true Bible church as set forth in the Word indicates that the leaders were all of one mind in respect to baptism. The history of the Church of God also gives record of such unanimity of belief. With these preliminary remarks we come to our proposition.

PROPOSITION 31. The Scriptures state that the Lord Jesus Christ instituted baptism which all Christians receive, that is, water baptism.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you al-way, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:19, 20). This is called the Great Commission. It was not limited to territorial boundaries. It was for "all nations." Neither was it confined to the immediate days of the apostles. The Commission was to last until "the end of the age." This great gospel of salvation included baptism. There is no record of its abrogation. Mark records the Commission with more emphatic emphasis upon the importance of baptism in its relation to the acceptance of the gospel. He records it thus: "He said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (16:15, 16). Mark is very positive in his claim that those who are to be saved must believe the gospel and be baptized. Any gospel which does not include baptism as essential to salvation is not the kind which Jesus gave to the apostles, and they in turn to the churches which were subsequently organized. It is not difficult to trace this baptism to the "one baptism" of which Paul wrote in his Ephesian letter.

PROPOSITION 32. The Lord Jesus Christ during His ministry on earth, previous to His crucifixion and death, made disciples and baptized them or had them baptized.

In John 3:22, 23, it is written: "After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judaea; and there he tarried with them, and baptized. And John also was baptizing in Aenon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized." It definitely states that Jesus tarried in the land of Judaea and baptized. There are many who assert that Jesus did not do any baptizing. To accept this thought, this scripture must be completely ignored. We have just examined seven different translations of the text, and not one of them gives reason to think otherwise than that He that "tarried" was the One that did the baptizing. The words, "and John also," confirms the work of Jesus. "Also" means in "addition" to what Jesus was doing. In John 4:1, 2, it is apparent that people were aware of the fact that Jesus was baptizing more disciples than John. The parenthetical expression of verse 2, if read in the light of other scriptures, will not offer any material objection to the work of Jesus in performing the rites of the gospel of which He preached. If we continue to follow the example of Jesus in this respect, we will never have any regrets, and our church history when written will be a glorious page in humble obedience.

The Sin of Pergamos

By T. A. Drinkard

TO THE angel at Pergamos write; These things saith he which hath the sharp sword with two edges; I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth. But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balac to cast a stumblingblock before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication. So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which thing I hate. Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth" (Rev. 2:12-16).

In Revelation 1:4 these words are read: "John to the seven churches which are in Asia." Beginning with 2:1 and including 3:22, we find seven personal messages given to these seven churches that were in Asia. We have given in full the message that was given to the church in Pergamos, and wish to briefly point out a few things of vital importance. The message was true when first given, and I humbly say that it is no less true today, inasmuch as we see the same kind of tolerance practiced for those teaching the worst kind of doctrine that could possibly be taught. The church in Pergamos was commended for contending for the name, and for the faith. There were, however, a few things held against its members, such as: "Thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam," also, "them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes." In verse 14, we are told exactly what the doctrine was that Balaam taught. This church was guilty of tolerating and giving encouragement to teachers who were teaching doctrines that God hates, and which tended to undermine the faith of the gospel.

If the tolerance of the Balaamites and the Nicolaitanes was a violation of heaven's law, and may I say an insult to our God then, just how can we escape the same condemnation of God if we allow the same sin to be found among us? Go, if you will, to the time of Israel and view there how the Israelites tolerated, condoned, and fellowshiped every kind of sin and sinner. Did God allow them to go unpunished for their transgressions? Condemnation for toleration of those that teach destructive doctrines is not only taught here in this case, but elsewhere, as we read: "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed" (2 John 9, 10). This short letter was written to "the elect lady and her children"; in other words, to the church of the living God.

In warning the brotherhood of future activity of false teachers, the inspired Apostle Peter said: "There were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction" (2 Peter 2:1). Peter herein warned the brethren that false teachers would come among them in a private way and bring these "damnable heresies," even denying the Lord that bought them with His own precious blood. In what shameful way can the Lord be denied? Let us read: "Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?" (Heb. 10:29).

To count the blood of Christ, which was the "blood of the covenant" (Matt. 26:26-28; Mark 14:22-24; Luke 22:17-20; 1 Cor. 11:23-26; Heb. 13:20), an unholy thing, is simply to deny its saving efficacy; to deny that it was necessary for Jesus Christ the Son of the eternal God to shed His literal blood upon the cross, or in His literal death, for the Gentiles, that such was all for Israel. We have "done despite unto the Spirit of grace" when we count the blood of the covenant wherewith we were sanctified an unholy thing. Not only this, but the Church of God fails in her profession of faith and fidelity when she condones, endorses, and tolerates teachers whose faith and doctrine are founded upon this principle. Faithfulness to our God in these trying days of trouble is very necessary. Let us keep in mind that the Master said: "Whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother" (Matt. 12:50). The spirit of tolerance of those that taught error on the part of the brethren in Pergamos led them into trouble. They could not possibly profit with such a shame and disgrace hanging over them; neither will the Church of God profit as she should if she carries in her fellowship those who are at heart her enemies. Trouble came to Israel from within; it came to Pergamos the same way. With these examples before us, (Please turn to page 11)

Are You Discouraged?

By Vivian Kirkpatrick

"My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him: for whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. . . . They verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness" (Hebrews 12:5, 6, 10).

THERE comes into the life of every individual at some time—perhaps many times—the feeling that God has forgotten him, and that the whole world is against him; the feeling that there is nothing worth while in this life, and that the life of the future is not worth the sorrow and suffering, the sacrifices of those things everyone of the world seemingly is enjoying, the self-sacrifices that are necessary. Discouragement and self-pity are having their "inning" in his life.

That feeling, oddly enough, is caused by the individual who suffers from it. He has not yet brought himself under complete submission to the will of God. He is trying to assert his own will and desires into his life, and feels he is forgotten of God. Thus, sorrow and discouragement become his lot. We might even give him credit for believing in his own heart that the things he does are the things which should be the will of God. Alas, too often we act without "talking it over" with God! Or, perhaps, in our prayers we act like a person telephoning—only one can speak over a line at a time. We pray to God of our hopes, desires, and needs; we tell Him what we want from life and from Him. We pray that our words and acts might be acceptable in His sight, we pray for guidance; then, thinking we have done our duty, we "hang up"—without giving God a chance to reply. We close the line of communication, and then wonder why life seems so empty and why God seems so far away. We do not wait for His reply. We seem to think that when we are through praying, we have done our duty; whereas we should keep the line open and listen for God's instructions to us.

Too often we think we do God's will and service when in reality we are doing that which we desire to do. We are like Josiah who seemed to have attained an inflated idea of his own importance, and the feeling he knew God's will without ever going to Him for instruction. The record says, "After all this, when Josiah had prepared the temple, Necho king of Egypt came up to fight against Charchemish by Euphrates: and Josiah went out against him. But he sent ambassadors to him, saying, What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against the house wherewith I have war; for God commanded me to make haste: forbear thee from meddling with God, who is with me, that he destroy thee not" (2 Chron. 35:20, 21).

Apparently, Josiah, who was a godly man, was so sure in his own mind of what God desired him to do that he never bothered to go to God to find out His will, and whether or not Necho spoke the truth when he declared he was doing the will of God.

It was most unfortunate for Josiah, for we read: "Nevertheless Josiah would not turn his face from him, but disguised himself, that he might fight with him, and hearkened not unto the words of Necho from the mouth of God, and came to fight in the valley of Megiddo. And the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants, Have me away; for I am sore wounded. His servants therefore took him out of that chariot, and put him in the second chariot that he had; and they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried in one of the sepulchres of his fathers" (vv. 22-24). Josiah had been a godly king and may have spent a long and useful life bringing his people back to the laws and customs God had given to Josiah's people, if he had not done contrary to God's wishes.

Josiah was not the only one. Paul, too, was working contrary to God, and once again we might conclude he was so certain in his own mind he was doing God's service that he never took time to commune with God to make sure of His will. Not until Paul was struck down on the Damascus road would he make sure of God's will. His punishment was less severe than that of Josiah, and three days of blindness opened his eyes to God's wishes for him. It was not the end of his suffering, but it seems to have been the means of bringing him into complete subjection to the will of God.

Discouraged? Blue? Maybe the reason the world is so wrong is because we are trying to live without the guiding hand of God, as did Josiah and Paul, and, like them, are discovering it is hard to "kick against the pricks." God may have something different for us to do. Rather than complain about the difficulties we encounter, why not give God a chance to direct us into the channels He wants our lives to take? They will be much more happy, pleasant, and worth while.

Suppose we do not, however, allow that to be "the conclusion of the whole matter," but look at another phase of this thought. What if we find ourselves still experiencing the feelings expressed in the first paragraph? Are we to conclude, after all, that the thoughts and wishes of God are unattainable, or that we cannot understand aright His wishes for our life? What if we are certain in our own minds that we are doing as God has directed us, and still nothing seems to have a bright side? Are we to conclude that we are somehow out of favor with God, in spite of our continual attempts to do what we know He wants us to do?

We have no scripture that tells us that if we do faithfully all God has directed us to do "life will be a bed of roses," but we do have many references in the Word that we might well rejoice if the world seemingly is against us in all we do. Why should that cause rejoicing? Listen: "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten" (Rev. 3:19). "Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law; that thou mayest give him rest from the day of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked" (Psalm 94:12, 13). Again, let us look at other comforting words: "My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him; for whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons. Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live? for they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby" (Heb. 12:5-11).

From these last verses we might deduce seven points of interest and inspiration for ourselves, no matter how "blue" and discouraging life might be. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," writes the man of God. If that word "chasteneth" were to mean simply "punishment," we would find nothing in these words to cause rejoicing, but there seems to be a different definition implied here—"to purify or refine, by freeing from faults." Refining is not an easy task. With most precious metals an extremely hot fire is necessary. All dross must be removed. The physician's knife cuts deep and pain is intense, but renewed health results. Our refining, purifying, chastening, may be a painful process for us, we may not always understand why it is as hard as it is. We can rejoice, however, in the thought that God cares enough for us to purify us for His Kingdom.

He "scourgeth every son whom he receiveth," would seem to indicate two things which are really the same—purifying comes to all who are to be worthy of a place in "the church," and positions in that same body cannot be attained without God's purifying of the seeker. Should we not then have rejoiced when adversity came to us, since it seems to have been an indication that through the purification process a place in the Kingdom was to be ours?

Should we question the possibility of not being able to stand under the purifying process? We have the strengthening knowledge that "there hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Cor. 10:13).

If we endure the purifying process we shall be dealt with as sons, and if we are without the cleansing we are not sons of God. As sons of God we become "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ" (Rom. 8:17), and that thought in itself should help to sustain us in our trying hours.

Our reactions to our earthly father's care over us is used in trying to teach us the way God cares for us. We have respect for our father if his love for us is visibly demonstrated in the way he cares for us, corrects our mistakes, and chastises us for our errors. We have not a great deal of respect for our father if he allows us to live just as we desire—if he allows us to have our own way—for we feel that he does not have the love towards us that he should have; otherwise, he would care more about the way we were living. We throw ourselves more fully upon the mercy of our God, if we feel He has a personal interest in our welfare and cares enough for us to correct us and purify us of the errors we possess.

The Father has life, and is desirous of presenting eternal life to all who successfully endure the purifying process. It is very true that the purification and cleansing do not seem to be joyous at the time they must be endured. Yet, if we recognize the fact that they have not come upon us for the purpose of causing us anguish, pain, and suffering, but for our strengthening and profit, and that in the end correction "yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness," we should rejoice, for we should look beyond the days of our purification to the days when these things shall be forgotten in the rejoicing of the full life in the Kingdom, working with the Saviour.

When that time comes—when we feel God is not with us, when the world is against us, and when nothing seems worth while—it is time to (Please turn to page 11)

QUESTIONS FOR STUDY

By A. Nichols

IF CHRIST pre-existed as a mortal man, how could Adam have been the first mortal man? If He was Spirit, He did not die—and if He did exist in either case, when did He cease to exist?

If Adam was made with sin in the flesh, how could he bring sin into the world by transgressing God's law?

If baptism has nothing to do with Adam's transgression, how does one get rid of the condemnation that Adam brought upon the human race?

If, in Romans 8:2, Paul had reference to the Mosaic law, how could he be freed from something that did not exist—the law being dead, and taken out of the way some years before?

If John the Baptist was Elijah the Prophet, what did John mean when, being asked if he was Elijah, he answered, "No"? (John 1:21.)

Give references, if there are any, to show that Elijah the Prophet will come before the coming of Christ.

NEW JERUSALEM DESCENDING

By Alfred Anthon

"I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea" (Rev. 21:1).

IT WILL take all of the Millennium for Christ to fully and completely change "heaven and earth" Number 2 over to "heaven and earth" Number 3, but the foregoing verse speaks of the period of time immediately after the Millennium, for all judgment is then finished, as indicated by "there was no more sea."

Verse 2 speaks of the New Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven. It will not get to Mount Zion, completely, until the end of the Millennium—one thousand years from its "start" from heaven to the finished "has come." New Jerusalem signifies the new, perfected Kingdom of heaven on earth. "Coming down from God out of heaven" has reference to source and plans for this Kingdom of God. The material city of the New Jerusalem will require actual "elbow grease" to build—this during the Millennium when the wealth of nations will flow into it. The government, though, will have its origin in heaven, up at God's own Personal throne.

The Kingdom of heaven that is to be centered at Jerusalem will have its High Dictator in heaven. The New Jerusalem from heaven will have its Dictator in heaven, while the actual Kingdom is on Mount Zion where the High Dictator's Son, Jesus, will be ruling.

SPRING

By Eunice L. Zollinger

THE young lad cannot concentrate on his lessons—his mind wanders to the little girl's large blue eyes and yellow hair; the young teacher, too, finds it difficult to keep her mind on her tasks of the day; the spinster teacher is more strict than ever; and Mother smiles understandingly with the sulphur and molasses.

Consider now the blue sky, the clouds, the sunshine, the delicate flowers, the chirp of the birds, the pureness and tenderness of the budding green leaves, and the good smell of upturned dirt. Small plants are poking their tiny heads out of the ground for a bit of nature's bright sunshine. The grass is fresh and green from last evening's rain. The trees stretch their arms to God in praise for allowing us to have another springtime. Everything is pure, unspotted, and touched only of God. He has made the springtime beautiful for all people, that they may understand how infinitely beautiful it is untouched by man, untouched by spring floods and racing fires. Spring has an eternal beauty; it displays God's handiwork; it speaks of God to us; it shows us that we, too, should be "found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

THAT BLESSED HOPE

in all." The Redeemer must reign until His enemies are destroyed and the salvation of His church is fully accomplished. When this is attained, He will deliver to God the power which He received only for this purpose, though He may reign over His church "for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15).

Christ says, "Surely I come quickly" (Rev. 22:20). This is one of Christ's own promises of His coming. He assures His people of a speedy return. If any say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" (2 Peter 3:4), when so many centuries have passed since this was written, let them know that He is not slack in the keeping of His word to His people, but long-suffering to His enemies. His coming will be sooner than they are aware, sooner than they are prepared, and to Christians it will be seasonable. Let these words always be sounding in our ears and not die, and let us give diligence that we may be "found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless" (2 Peter 3:14). "Even so, come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. 22:20). "Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe, or to a young hart upon the mountains of spices" (Song of Sol. 8:14). Thus beats the pulse of the church, ever "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

THE SIN OF PERGAMOS

we need not think that we can escape if we follow in their path.

May God give us men and women of faith and courage and love of the truth that will go forth in these trying times, preaching the gospel of salvation to those in need. It takes strong hearts, and determined wills to carry on in the face of criticism and condemnation, and seemingly impassable barriers. It was the Father who said unto Moses: "Go forward" (Ex. 14:15). Our mission is to do the Father's will; not ours. May we ever remember the Saviour's words: "He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me" (Matt. 10:38). Had Pergamos done this, God would have commended her. But she failed!

ARE YOU DISCOURAGED?

search our lives. One of two things must be true: either we are going contrary to God's desires, though we may think we are doing Him service, or we are undergoing the purification which is to prepare us for God's Kingdom. If it is the former, we should cease kicking "against the pricks" and make sure of God's will, instead of doing what we think should be God's will in the matter. If it is the latter, we should look beyond the immediate present, rejoicing that God is purifying us for a place in His soon coming Kingdom.

BAPTISM

newness of life by His Spirit. If we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection. "As many . . . as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

The question is sometimes discussed whether one should be baptized in an outdoor body of water or in a baptistry. Though it may not make very much difference, I believe it is better to be immersed in an outdoor body of water, because Jesus was.

I am sure that those who refuse to be immersed are failing to keep Christ's commandment. If you love Him, you will keep His commandment. The children of Israel were to be punished for not observing circumcision; likewise, if we neglect to keep baptism, we shall be punished. "There are three that bear witness in earth, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one" (1 John 5:8). "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ" (Gal. 3:27).

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

Regardless of how the German pressure on British-Greek lines may have resulted by the time this appears in print, it is certain that the Balkan situation will continue to be of prime importance in settling the course of future world history. Yugoslavia may be destroyed; Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Albania, and (perhaps) Hellas itself may have lost their independence—the movements of war and diplomacy still will sway over Southeastern Europe in a way to stir chancellories from Tokyo to London.

Theodore I. Geshkoff, native Bulgarian, naturalized American, has produced an analytical study of the history of Balkan politics, power, and otherwise. His book, Balkan Union (Columbia University Press; $3.00), benefits from access to records hitherto unpublished in the English-speaking nations; Mr. Geshkoff has drawn heavily upon the most authoritative sources for his informational background, and he has quoted verbatim a number of treaties and lesser agreements which have served in the past to affect Balkan policies for better or for worse.

Mr. Geshkoff builds a fair case for his chief premise, that the Balkans are a cradle of unity rather than of disharmony, and that only the Machiavellian machinations of the great Powers have been responsible for the almost continuous disruption of international relations in the southeast of Europe. Events never mentioned in ordinary English or American history come to have, under the Geshkoff interpretation, an effect which gives grief to Nippon, Russia, England, France, and the combined Americas, to say nothing of blitzkrieging Germany and fading Italy.

Balkan Union is in no sense religious; it is simply a carefully authenticated interpretive history. But for the student who likes to combine Bible knowledge with secular knowledge—and the two, in our not-humble-enough opinion, are inseparable when they are effective—Balkan Union offers a great deal. As an essential part of his work, Mr. Geshkoff has included much mention of the place played in international affairs by the Moslemic and Greek Orthodox Churches, both of which may largely be blamed for the disunion which led to easy collapse under Teutonic propaganda and Panzer divisions.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MADGE SAVAGE

"Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word" (Acts 8:4).

The Word Scattered

The Christians were very badly treated at Jerusalem. Many of them fled to other parts of the country. Acts 8:1 informs us that the apostles did not leave on account of the persecutions.

Stephen was one of the seven men chosen for care of the business of the early church. We read of him last week. He began to preach and did "great wonders and miracles among the people" (Acts 6:8). Some men roused the people, to whom Stephen was preaching, against him. They caught him and took him before their council or governing body. When he was asked regarding the evil of which they accused him, he answered with a sermon. (Acts 7:54.) They were made very angry by his talk, and ran at him and stoned him! He is known as the first one to die for Christ, after Christ was taken to God's right hand. Men call him the "first Christian martyr."

Another man we know had a part in the stoning of Stephen. His name was Saul. Afterwards, his name was changed to Paul. He thought he was serving God. Our Bible differs from many other books, for it tells the bad things and good things about people, while other books tell only the good things they do. Saul went from house to house, catching Christians and dragging them to prison. As these Christians scattered, they took their stories of Jesus with them.

Philip, one of the seven deacons, began preaching in Samaria. Many people believed and accepted Christ, and "there was great joy in that city" (Acts 8:8).

Two of the apostles, Peter and John, were sent to help Philip. Philip did not have the power of laying on of hands, as had the Twelve Apostles. He had baptized the believers, but Peter and John prayed for them, and laid their hands upon them. "They received the Holy Spirit."

We are to pray for the Holy Spirit. God has promised to give it to those who seek for His power (Luke 11:13).

Be Obedient

We find that through repentance, baptism, and walking in newness of life, we are accepted of Jesus. That makes us happy, for we want to be like Jesus. If we will let Him, He will let us help Him win others. Yes! He can use you! He said God could make the very stones cry out. We are already able to speak. No matter how many or how great the drawbacks or hindrances you may have, He is able to put you to work for Him, if you will only let Him.

ECE Bible Study

Study the story of the call of Paul by Christ (Acts 9).

Think a While

We are saved to do good works, not by our good works (Phil. 1:9-11).

We are saved by grace, through faith (Eph. 2:8).

A Christian should do good. His good works are called "fruits." What good thing can I do?

Sky at Night

"I like to watch the sky at night
When all the blue has gone away,
And all the little stars come out
That never seem to shine by day.

"I like to wonder what they are,
And what they do to stay up there;
It seems so funny not to have
A thing to rest on but the air."

—Eleanor Dennis.

Bereanism—Searching the Scriptures

* * *

By Elwyn Stilson, South Bend, Indiana

One can go to Sunday school and church, listen to the speaker's words, and go home satisfied. However, that person is not the real truth seeker. It is the one who leaves a meeting with his mind full of queries as to what he has heard who is the fruitful member of Christ's church. If we always take for granted all that we hear, we would be as sheep before a driver. The Bible teaches us not to be blown about with every wind of doctrine. We must learn to think for ourselves—therein is our work.

Today we find a great many people who are in the "groove," so to speak; that is, they come to meetings regularly, but are never known to take part in the discussions, ask questions, and so forth. They seem perplexed at points brought out in class, but are not perplexed enough to do anything about it. This type of person might be classed as the "lukewarm" person, the one who is neither dead to the work or a fruitful member of the congregation. An entire congregation of this kind of persons would be very hard people with which to work, from a minister's point of view, not because they are backsliders or critical, but because they present no problems to him.

Nevertheless, you say, the Bible is so deep that there are many things which we are not given to understand. Yes, that is true in a sense. However, any deep-thinking Bible student will tell you that the more you study the Bible, the more you want to study to learn. You know, when one is positively ignorant of something, he doesn't pay much attention to it; but if one gets started on something—just enough of an inkling to arouse his curiosity and mental powers—he is very likely to investigate it more closely to satisfy himself. Thus, it is with God's Word, the Bible. Where might one find a better place to satisfy a hungry soul's desire for learning than in a Berean class?

Bereanism should be the magnet which tends to draw us closer and closer to the Bread of Life. So, let us make our Berean class not just another meeting through which we sit, but a place to test those things we hear from day to day. Let us put a zeal into the work that our Lord Jesus, should He come at any time, would not be ashamed of us.

Your Life Depends Upon It

It couldn't be done, but the Wright brothers did it; so did Lindbergh. They were just men, much the same as those we see around us every day, but they had the right amount of knowledge and a steadfast faith in their cause—and won.

Today many thousands of boys and even girls throughout the land build model airplanes. A good share of these little ships crack up before they have flown very far, and the builders have to go back to books or more experienced model builders to find better methods of construction so that the next job will perform better.

Aviation is only one example of the many activities in which men participate and increase in knowledge and accomplishment, primarily because they have a consuming desire to reach a higher degree of perfection in their particular line of endeavor. The model builders of yesterday are the pilots of today. They studied and practiced flying for many hours before they reached their present proficiency. They learned to fly because, to them, flying became about the most important thing in their lives. However, aviation is only the servant of man. As man progresses, so progresses the science. To what end is man working? The Bible tells us that he should be working for a place in God's Kingdom.

No man was ever raised to immortality—until Christ arose. Christ taught men the basic principles of the religion that would give them eternal life. His apostles added further to the instructions, and recorded these instructions for the edification of future generations.

The church leaders of today are those who yesterday foresaw the doom of ungodly man and who set about to learn the elements of Christianity, both in theory and practice. The Bible has been sent to all parts of the earth in all languages because millions of people during the past nineteen hundred years have set eternal life as their goal—and they were determined that others should have an opportunity to hear the gospel. If God's Word becomes your primary interest, you will make every effort to learn all you can about it. You will try to conceive new ideas for the improvement of your Berean class, Sunday school, and church. As a result, you, your Berean class, your Sunday school, and your church will grow.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

Our Spring Meetings came to a very successful close Saturday night, with a good attendance despite the worst road conditions in the history of Minnesota. Our week night attendance ranged from fifty to eighty-five and on Sundays—one hundred to one hundred forty.

The church was made to rejoice when twenty-one came forward and confessed Christ. Then it was the writer's privilege to assist nineteen in putting on Christ in the waters of Christian baptism at Eden Lake. Two could not attend on account of the roads, but will be baptized later. We are glad to announce the following: Mr. Chalmer Thoms; Miss June Thoms; Miss Deloris Thoms; Miss Betty Cloakey; Mrs. Gerald Mills and Mrs. Frank Coser of Richmond, Minn.; Mr. Arthur Otto and Edward Kirkpatrick of Paynesville, Minn.; Mr. Freeman Mills; Miss Margaret Coulter; Miss Marion Coulter; Mr. Wilbur Coulter; Mr. Walter Coulter; Miss Virginia Coulter; Miss Barbara Coulter; Mr. Alvin Ship; Mr. Gordon Roach; Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Mills of Eden Valley; and Mr. Emmett Berry and Jean Berry of Lester Prairie, Minn., the last two to be baptized later.

We had a variety of preaching through these meetings. Bro. John Mercer was with us three nights, and Bro. Thomas Savage one night for the first week.

We all rejoiced to have Bro. Gerald Cooper with us and he preached for us Sunday morning, April 13.

The writer preached throughout the week. Bro. Orris Mills preached for us Saturday and Sunday nights, April 19 and 20.

Bros. John Mercer and John Denchfield assisted at the baptismal services. Bro. Denchfield read the scripture and Bro. Mercer offered prayer. Then, they led the candidates in and out of the water. A large crowd attended. May our church continue to grow. We owe the success of these meetings to those faithful ones who, regardless of snow, rain, and mud, were in their places at each service, and to those who were praying for the success of the work here. May many more be added.
 Walter Wiggins, Pastor.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The students had a wonderful trip to and from Delta, Ohio, where they gave sermons and musical numbers. We were cordially welcomed and entertained. These trips are very beneficial to the students, as well as inspiring many others to larger fields of endeavors for the Lord. Besides this, it gives a bird's-eye view of our school and motivates a closer walk with Jesus.

We were glad to have Bro. Richard Smith with us again. He feels refreshed from his rest. On Sunday, April 27, Richard preached in Rockford, Ill., and Bro. Orris Mills preached at Dixon, Ill.

Our class in Missions had a test Tuesday, April 22.

Sr. Edna Brewer has again resumed her duties as matron. Sr. Paul Friebe served in that capacity a few days while Sr. Brewer was in Ohio.

The time is passing fast, for we have only about six weeks of school. The Summer Training School will soon begin. All churches should send students, if they expect to have trained leaders in the future. There certainly is a need for well-qualified officials in the church. Let us build for the future.
 C. Alan Melain, Reporter.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Since the front page copy was set in type, we have received one more enrollment for the Summer School, that of Iris Hall, Alto, Mich. Thank you, Iris.

"It seems incredible that man can be so stupid as to annihilate himself if permitted to continue ruling the earth."—Mrs. V. R. Kincheloc, Fairfax, Va.

"Late in the afternoon of April 10, Edwin Ward was baptized into the name of his Lord. The service was performed in the San Antonio River. Mr. Ward's address is San Antonio, Texas, Rt. 1, Box 316."—T. A. Drinkard, Handley, Texas.

"The Iowa Spring Conference will be held at the American Legion hall in Gladbrook, May 4. Sunday school will convene at 10:00 a.m., and there will be sermons at 11:00 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. by Bros. A. M. Jones and J. W. Williams. A basket dinner will be served at noon."—Esther Jenkins, Secy., Stunhope, Iowa.

Bro. A. Nichols, Cashmere, Wash., whose "Something for Study" appears in this Herald, was in good health on his birthday, April 18, when he attained the good age of eighty-two years.

Anyone having for sale a copy of Wiley Jones' little dictionary of Hebrew and Greek words, published at Norfolk, Va., in December, 1881, should write to Beryl Boley, care of C. C. Hughes, Arkadelphia, Ark., who is seeking one of these books.

Elder T. A. Drinkard has been preaching at Harlingen, Texas, a new field that is promising. He writes, too: "There seems to be a full summer and fall program of work for me in the Lord's cause, if I can keep well." His home address is Handley, Texas.

"I have secured permission from Aurora College to return for a few weeks and, unless something happens, I shall finish my work there this spring."—Vivian Kirkpatrick, Blanchard, Mich.

"On account of sin, the first man Adam never attained the image or likeness of God, although he did learn to know good and evil; but lost his life in the acquisition of that knowledge."—Scott G. Elton, 2206 San Marcos St., Ventura, Calif.

Articles appearing on pages three, four, and five of this issue of The Herald were prepared by students of the Bible Training School. We like the doctrine presented.

"The Missouri Conference is to be held from July 12-20, inclusive, in Fredericktown."—Ethel Mauken, Fredericktown, Mo.

We are glad to report that the following members of our church are well on the way to recovery from recent operations: Sr. Belva Knife, Tipp City, Ohio; Cecile Mattison, Oregon, Ill.; and Bro. Earle Mogle, Rockford, Ill.

"I pray our Lord may soon come to rule in righteousness."—Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 319 Cutler St., Waterloo, Iowa.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

The Blessed Hope Church of God in Rockford is continuing with services every Sunday. Sunday school is at 9:30 a.m., followed by morning worship service and sermon. We meet in the Odd Fellows Hall on North Third Street.

We have recently added a young men's class to our Sunday school, composed of four boys from our church at Gladbrook, Iowa, who are now employed in Rockford. They are Paul and Don Luckow, Ralph Williams, and Ray Lanolt. The class teacher is Bro. Francis Burnett of the Bible Training School, who is also our student pastor.

Bro. L. E. Conner preaches for us the first Sunday in each month, and Bro. Francis Burnett the other Sundays in the month. We are very much pleased with the work Bro. Francis is doing, and have asked him to serve as our pastor for the coming year.

Bro. Earle Mogle, our Sunday school superintendent, recently underwent an operation and is well on the road to recovery. We were very glad to have him back on the job Sunday, even though he did lack some of his usual pep.

We have entered the Sunday school contest with Oregon and Dixon, and our record so far gives us a good chance to win. Our adult class has entered a contest of its own, to extend until August 1. We believe it will be very interesting and helpful to those who take part in it. One point each per Sunday is given for: attendance, lesson preparation, attendance at church, and for each visitor. There are points for outside reading, as follows: 5 points each for the books on prophecy concerning Palestine by George T. B. Davis; and 10 points each for "In the Twinkling of an Eye" and "The Mark of the Beast" by Sidney Watson, "In His Steps" by Charles M. Sheldon, and "Armageddon" by Eleanor DeForest. We also give one point each per week for reading the editorial page and the Berean page in The Herald, and as an added inducement, 25 points for writing an article for the Berean page. (The article must be published before credit can be given, and reports do not count.) We have a ruled score card for each member of the class, and each member is responsible for making his own score.

We extend a cordial invitation to anyone in the vicinity of Rockford to come and worship with us. Estla L. Starbuck, Secy.

Send The Herald to your friends.

ELIZABETH HUTCHINGS

It becomes the sad duty of the brethren at Marshall, Ill., to announce the death of Sr. Elizabeth Hutchings. Sr. Hutchings will be well remembered by many of the brethren at large, having cooked for the General Conference for four years, from 1923 to 1926.

Elizabeth Ellen Murphy was born the daughter of Christian and Diana Murphy, September 14, 1871, and died April 12, 1941. She is survived by a daughter, Sr. Grace Richey of Martinsville, Ill., and a son, Bro. Chris Hutchings of Dolson; also two brothers, Bro. Zenas Murphy of Clarksville, Ill., and Como Murphy of Paris, Ill.; two sisters, Sr. Allen Claypool of Marshall, Ill., and Sr. Leticia Waller of Hickory Ridge, Ark. A brother, Silas Murphy, and two sisters, Mary Murphy and Lodosea Winters, preceded her in death, as did her husband, John Hutchings.

She was baptized by Bro. W. L. Crowe and united with the Salem church many years ago. She continued faithful to the last. After a few final words by the undersigned before a host of friends, she was laid to rest in Blue Grass Cemetery in the glorious resurrection hope of a life lived for Christ.

James M. Watkins.

TABLEWARE FUND

We still need about twenty dollars for the new tableware for use at the Illinois and General Conferences. The Summer Training School will also use this new tableware if sufficient funds are received in time for it to be ordered. If you intend to contribute to this fund, do so as soon as possible. Send to Delos Andrew, Oregon, Ill.

ATTENTION, ISOLATED MEMBERS

Do you like to receive visits from brethren who pass near you on their travels?

This would be much easier if it were known where all our isolated members live. The Church of God is planning a directory in which it is desired to list all isolated members. We want your name in it. Will you cooperate in sending me the following information?

- 1. Your name and mail address.
2. Location of your home with reference to nearest main highways. Give brief directions how to reach it from a given point on the highway.

For this purpose an isolated member is to be considered anyone who lives at a distance from an organized church, whether affiliated with it or not. So, even if you are a member of a Church of God congregation, but live at a distance of, say, twenty-five miles away, please report.

When the directory is published, only those who report will be listed.

Be sure your name will be included.

Send your report to: M. W. Lyon, 11405 Lake Shore Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio. A post card is a convenient way to send it. Do it soon. M. W. Lyon.

GOD'S PROMISES

By Mrs. Ione Saylor

We are promised of God in His Holy Word, A home in the earth made new, Where sin and sorrow, sickness and death, Cannot harm those who've been true.

Christ will then sit upon David's throne To judge the nations of earth; The saints are promised this glory to share, And to rejoice in the new birth.

There will be no question in the minds of men As to what God's plan is to be; For the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord.

As the waters now cover the sea.

The animals will then all be tame; A child need not then be afraid; The curse from the earth will be removed; For the price of sin has been paid.

To live in a land with all sin removed, Where the will of God is done, And enjoy the beauties He has prepared, Should be the hope of everyone.

HURD - RUHN

Wedding bells were in order again at Eden Valley, Minn., April 6, when Miss Orpha Hurd became the wife of Mr. Norman Ruhn. The ceremony was performed at the Church of God in Eden Valley with the writer officiating. The wedding vows were solemnized under an arch of candles, the double ring ceremony being used. The services were opened at eight o'clock p.m., with a solo "Because" by Mrs. Robert Flesland of Spicer, Minn., sister of the groom. At the close of the marriage vows, she also sang: "I Love You Truly." Miss Lorraine Gaspar of Eden Valley accompanied Mrs. Flesland at the piano. She played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the processional and Medelsshon's Wedding March as the recessional.

June Hurd, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid. The bride was accompanied by her father to the front of the church where she was met by the groom, Elton Ruhn of Litchfield, Minn., was best man. Richard Hoskins and Kenneth Bennett were the ushers.

A reception was given in the church basement after the wedding, where a lovely wedding cake was cut. After the reception the couple left on a trip to northern Minnesota. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hurd. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ruhn. Mrs. Norman Ruhn is at the present time teaching school at New London, Minn., and Mr. Ruhn is employed at Litchfield, Minn., where the couple plan to be at home to their many friends. May God richly bless this new home.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Summer Bible Training School

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder S. J. Lindsay:

We have been solicited to say a few words for the Summer Bible Training School. It seems to us that there is great need for such a School, and especially because we have had such successful work done since the idea has been put into operation. It would be better if such students could take advantage of the year 'round classwork; but, since there are many who cannot afford either time or money for the longer period, the Summer School gives opportunity to a greater number to get some of the good things with an expenditure of both time and money in a measure that they can meet. Indeed, the price of admission to this class has been made so reasonable that both board and instruction are so cheap that you cannot afford to stay at home.

Elder S. J. Lindsay

Remember that the School is not a place for "argufying," but a place where we come together to study the Bible that we may familiarize ourselves with its contents.

The School is a splendid place to bring our young people together from over the United States and Canada, that they may become better acquainted. Many friendships have been made in this way that never would have been made were it not for the School. This acquaintance is a great incentive for these young people to "stick" to the faith, and to press forward even in times of spiritual depression. This angle should not be overlooked.

Here's hoping for a large membership for the coming summer.

S. J. Lindsay.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

The Blessing of Sacrifice

By Emma C. Railsback

THE growing sentiment among the brethren for a building fund for a school and dormitory for the Bible Training School at Oregon, Illinois, has interested us very much. We feel that the exhortation, "Acres of Tombstones," by Brother C. E. Lapp was very timely and appropriate, and the example of Brother Alan McLain in making an effort to start the "ball rolling," by contributing one hundred dollars to a fund for that purpose, is indeed praiseworthy. As the signs thicken which indicate that the return of our Lord is not far distant, and we see all about us so very many in ignorance of coming events, we cannot afford to be slothful in the Lord's business.

We have experienced a foretaste of God's blessings here in Los Angeles, California, in the last four and one half years. By simply taking hold and doing our very best, our heavenly Father has blessed every effort. Four and a half years ago our possessions consisted of some hymn books and a piano. Now we have a commodious church and parsonage completely furnished, and entirely free from debt. For a number of years the work in this section had not been harmonious, but now all members are working in harmony for the promotion of the gospel, and the unity of the spirit is evident in every effort.

Sometimes we wonder from where all the finances came; yet, when we seriously consider that we are rapidly approaching the time when all our worldly possessions will be worthless and our whole hearts and minds are, or should be, centered on the establishing of God's Kingdom and the bringing in of peace and righteousness, how glad we should be to be able to make sacrifices that others might share our hope of rejoicing in the new earth! Let us get busy and with our whole hearts seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, then God will pour us out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

Mr. Railsback and I have personally experienced great joy in promoting the gospel work in every phase, and it is a joy to us now to be able to give toward this worthy cause. We feel sure that many others will want to share in this splendid undertaking, thus laying up for themselves "treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal." "The King's business requireth haste." "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few."

Never in the world's history has the foregoing statement of our Lord been more applicable than it is today. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." Pray that He may see fit to use you and me as laborers together with Him, in turning others to righteousness.

Thank You, Brother and Sister Railsback God Speaks Through Men

There are slackers and there are quitters, but always there are faithful men and women, too, who know no quitting, who, because of an implicit faith in God and love for the essential doctrines of the Bible, press forward, forward, forward, until victory is won. One sometimes hears it said that it may not yet be the correct time to plan toward a college for the youth of the Church of God, that the present Bible Training School may soon prove to have been only another fruitless experiment, but, thanks be to God, one also hears the voice of Faith that says: "Go forward." That voice was recently clearly sounded in a gift from Brother and Sister Ezra Railsback of Los Angeles, California, who contributed one thousand dollars toward our new Bible Training School building fund. Thank you, thank you!

This thousand-dollar gift is now safely deposited in the local bank, where our Bible Training School building fund will continue to grow both by interest and additional gifts from our optimistic and progressive workers. When the fund is sufficiently large, and when the youth of the Church of God a little more zealously respond to our calls to attend the Bible Training School, the Board of Religious Education will, with God's blessing, do all in its power to use the money wisely in building either a school or dormitory, or both. May many others cooperate in this good work. We must not become over-enthusiastic and begin to build when we are only half prepared. A college worthy of God's blessing will stand a long time, so let us build one of which we may be justly grateful in the years that may yet be before us.

Willing and Efficient Helpers

We are thankful to our secretary, Sister Eunice Zolinger, and to Brother Paul Johnson, assistant editor, for doing practically all the editorial work on this issue of The Restitution Herald. Co-operation of willing and efficient helpers is most important and necessary to the success of any enterprise. An average pitcher often receives credit for a game won by good teammates. Thank you, Eunice; thank you, Paul.

The Psalmist declares: "Through thy precepts I get understanding" (119:104). The precepts of God which we possess, which really reveal Him and His will to us, are recorded in the Bible. These precepts and testimonies are His thoughts put into such form that men may come to understand Him and know His will concerning them.

In giving His precepts to men, God has used men, they having uttered and recorded that which He wished men to know. "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets" (Amos 3:7). Peter declared: "The prophecy came not . . . by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21). Further evidence that God speaks through men is found in Hebrews 1:1, 2: "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." The Mediator between God and men is "the man Christ Jesus."

The ones who have thus spoken and whose words have been recorded for us as the Word of God were from many walks of life—rich men and poor men, kings and peasants. And God has always schooled each of His prophets and spokesmen for the particular work he was to perform.

Moses spent forty years in Pharaoh's courts, being instructed in all the learning of the Egyptians. Another forty years he spent in the wilderness, through which he was later to lead God's people. Moses, the great lawgiver, was a man, to whom "the man Christ Jesus" was likened.

The apostles, too, spent time in preparing for their work of revealing further the will of God in Christ. For three years they lived and worked with their great Teacher, receiving instruction and practice, that they might follow His example and go forth "preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God."

Even so, our Bible Training School is today filling a place by giving young people a chance to associate with and receive instruction from godly men, that they, as the apostles, may go forth "preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God." God speaks to men through men.—P. C. J.

ZECHARIAH

By Richard Smith

THROUGH the ages past, man has been concerned with gaining fame and fortune, concerned with helping others. Rising from chaos, another man reaches heights of fame heretofore unknown to man, others do great things in the sight of God, and still others do their small part in the service of the Lord. The latter statement might apply to the Prophet Zechariah, according to man's estimation. Though his writing is placed among the so-called "minor" prophetic works, it is one of the most deeply prophetic books of the Bible.

Rising from amid the chaos caused by a faithless generation, Zechariah came to do the bidding of the Lord—using the words of the Lord as he was seemingly commanded to do. Being a priest as well as a prophet (Neh. 12:16), Zechariah would have been in more direct contact with God than another might be.

Before attempting to interpret the Book, an understanding of the period of his writing must be had. After the return of the exiles from Babylon in 536 B.C., the people of God seemed to forget that their God had said that His house should be called a house of prayer, and burnt offerings and sacrifices should be made upon the altar (Isa. 56:7); yet, the house had not been rebuilt. Haggai and Zechariah were contemporaries, both calling to the minds of their people the work of the Lord which was to be done. This may seem to be a "jump" at a conclusion, yet in Ezra 6:14, we read that the Temple was completed, due to the prophesying of Haggai and Zechariah.

Though Zechariah's Book has much to do with conditions of his day, the Book is decidedly Messianic, apocalyptic, and eschatological.

The heavenly messengers (Zech 1:7-17) seem to symbolize God's protecting hand over His people, as He guides them in their work.

Though emphasis was placed on the present rebuilding of the Temple, and the glory to be there, in the future, the glory of the Lord shall go forth from Zion, and men shall know that God is there (Zech. 8:23). Jesus taught the reward of the faithful for service on earth. The faithful and wise stewards of the Lord's talents were told to "enter . . . into the joy of thy Lord" (Matt. 25:21). He also taught that judgment would come upon the unfaithful—those who did not do as they were bidden. It is to be a fearful time for the adversaries of the Lord (Matt. 13:49, 50). Thus, we can see that the teachings of God were the same in the days of Zechariah as in the days of Christ.

Though prophetic throughout, the last two chapters of the Book are the most profound in their prophetic applications. "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and uncleanness" (13:1). The atonement of Christ, here prophesied, became reality when Jesus was crucified at Jerusalem, though not to the fullest extent. If all was fulfilled at that time, the Jews would not at the present time be scattered as they are. Only when the river of living water flows from Jerusalem will all come to pass. (Ezek. 47:1, 7.) With relation to the trees spoken of in Ezekiel 47:7, turn to Revelation 22:1, 2, where we find the same river and trees of which are spoken. Thus, we see Zechariah's prophecy fulfilled in the "day of the Lord."

Richard Smith

Zechariah 13:6 records the following words: "Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends." These words were given of (we believe, prophetically speaking) Jesus in answering the question: "What are these wounds in thine hands?" His atonement was prophesied in the first verse; now it seems that He will return to the earth as prophesied (Acts 1:11) to show Himself to the world as King of kings and Lord of lords. His brethren, the Jews who crucified Him, shall know that they rejected the Messiah! A remnant of Israel that has been purified and refined shall be saved at the Lord's return.

It may seem that the two chapters, thirteen and fourteen, are chronologically mixed, but they are both speaking of the same thing—the "day of the Lord." So, it is not surprising in chapter 14, that during the great battle for Jerusalem, our Lord's feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives. He shall put down all rule and all authority (1 Cor. 15:24) by the power of God, and those who fight against Jerusalem shall meet a terrible end. (Zech. 14:12.)

It may be said on authority of the word of the Lord, spoken by Zechariah, that the men of all nations shall bring their treasures to Jerusalem that God might be glorified. In that day, the holiness of the Lord shall be exalted.

Though this has merely "scratched the surface" of the Book of Zechariah, we can form many applications for the present day.

Baptism and the Early Church

By C. E. Randall

IN OUR last study it was noted that baptism was a part of the gospel message which Jesus gave to the apostles for world-wide proclamation, and that Jesus put His own seal upon baptism by being baptized and by baptizing others (Matt. 28:19; John 3:22, 26).

PROPOSITION 33. The apostles of the Lord Jesus Christ, as well as other members of the early church, made and baptized disciples as the following cases indicate:

(1) Peter made disciples and baptized them (Acts 2:37, 38, 41). The purpose for which Peter set forth baptism is clearly defined in his own words: "For the remission of sins." F. W. Grant, editor of the Numerical Bible, in his comments on this scripture, says: "If Peter here bids his hearers to be baptized for the remission of sins, Ananias clinches the two things together in his words to Saul of Tarsus: 'Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.'"

(2) Philip baptized many in the city of Samaria when they believed the "things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," but those baptized were only "men and women," no children included (Acts 8:5, 12). In this same chapter, he is recorded as having baptized the eunuch (26-39), and in doing so, "they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch."

(3) The centurion and his family were baptized at the express command of Peter, who had been directed of the Lord to accept every man for baptism that "feareth God and worketh righteousness."

(4) Lydia and her household were baptized by Paul (Acts 16:9-15). The meetings at which Lydia heard the gospel and felt the need of yielding obedience were held by the riverside. It is not magnificent buildings that lead men and women to true acceptance of the gospel, but a love for the truth, and this can be acquired by the riverside or in a "bush meeting" as some of our older members here at Fonthill, Ontario, were led to accept the truth and yield themselves to baptism.

(5) The keeper of the prison at Philippi and his family were baptized by Paul. The conversion of the jailer was miraculous. It came about through the divine deliverance of Paul and Silas from the prison (Acts 16:25-33).

It is often argued by the opponents of immersion that the jailer could not have been baptized by immersion because there was no water near Philippi. There may not be any streams in that area at present, but it was by the River Gangas at Philippi that prayer meetings were held where Paul converted Lydia.

(6) Certain disciples of John the Baptist, at Ephesus, were baptized into Christ by the Apostle Paul (Acts 19:1-5). Whether all of John's immersed followers were re-immersed is not known, but these at Ephesus were re-baptized "in the name of the Lord Jesus."

(7) The Apostle Paul baptized the household of Stephanas (1 Cor. 1:14-16).

All of these cases cannot be passed aside in considering baptism, which must be done if baptism by immersion is to be ruled out of the requirements for salvation.

PROPOSITION 34. The Lord Jesus Christ, the apostles, and the teachers in the early church taught that baptism into Jesus Christ was necessary in order to obtain forgiveness of sins.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ affirms that he who believes the gospel and is baptized shall be saved (Mark 16:16).

(2) The Apostle Peter commanded those that believed his words to reform and be baptized for the forgiveness of their sins (Acts 2:37, 38).

(3) The Apostle Paul previous to his baptism was told to be baptized and wash away his sins (Acts 26:16).

(4) The Apostle Peter affirms that people are saved by baptism as surely as Noah and his family were saved by the ark (1 Peter 3:20, 21).

PROPOSITION 35. The effect of baptism into Jesus Christ is, that Jehovah imputes each one who is baptized into Christ as being vitally united with Christ in His death, resurrection, and life.

In support of the foregoing proposition, I submit the following compilation as arranged by Edgar Robison in his book on "Christian Baptism":

"(1) One has become clothed with Christ by baptism (Gal. 3:27).

"(2) One has become crucified with Christ by baptism (Rom. 6:3, 6).

"(3) One has died with Jesus Christ by baptism (Rom. 6:3; Col. 2:12).

"(4) One has been buried with Jesus Christ by baptism (Col. 2:12; Rom. 6:3, 4).

"(5) One has been planted with Christ by baptism (Rom. 6:5).

"(6) One has been resurrected, raised from the dead, with Jesus Christ by baptism (Col. 2:12, 13; 3:1).

"(7) One has become a new creature by baptism into Jesus Christ (2 Cor. 5:17)."

For additional reading on the subject of baptism, secure Elder S. J. Lindsay's tract on "Baptism, Its Significance, Its Importance, Its Form." This treatise approaches the subject from the standpoint of the "seal of faith." Another tract is "Obedience" by F. E. Siple. Both of these tracts are short and interesting to read. They may be obtained from the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Our next article will treat of the "Origin of Infant Baptism."

Bring Others to Christ

By Paul Cala

---

"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Matthew 16:24).

IF A BROTHER or a sister shall transgress any commandment of the law and commit sin, or trespass against and offend one another; or if he believes some doctrine that is unscriptural and that is contrary to the Bible doctrine, we should go to him alone and tell him his fault. (See Matt. 18:15.) Probably, after talking with him, he will acknowledge his fault. (See 2 Cor. 2:1-11.) However, if the individual will not acknowledge his fault, and continues in his unrighteous ways, we have a right to withdraw from him. (See 2 Thess. 3:14; 1 Cor. 5:11; Gal. 5:12.) These persons should not eat the Lord's Supper. Nevertheless, we should not count these persons as our enemies (2 Thess. 3:15), but "admonish him (them) as a brother" (v. 16).

The church doors should always be open to welcome strangers that they may hear the Word of God. How else could they learn the Word, if we do not accept them?

We have no authority to judge whether one should partake of the Lord's Supper. One must examine himself to find whether he is worthy of partaking. We should keep the Lord's Supper at least once a year, if we be Christians, but those who are not worthy and who partake will be committing sin. "Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world" (1 Cor. 11:27-32).

In 1 Corinthians 5:1-10, we read: "It is reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not so much as named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife. And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed might be taken away from among you. For I verily, as absent in body, but present in spirit, have judged already, as though I were present, concerning him that hath so done this deed, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, to deliver such an one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. I wrote unto you in an epistle not to company with fornicators: yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then must ye needs go out of the world."

Luke 22:15-18 shows clearly that in New Testament times people were faithfully keeping the Feast of the Passover in its season from year to year. Christians should likewise faithfully keep the Lord's Supper. "Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end. . . . He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself" (John 13:1-4). Here Christ is seen at the Feast of the Passover before His crucifixion.

In Matthew 18:12-14, Jesus teaches us, saying: "How think ye? if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray? And if (Please turn to page 11)

A Water Softener

By Vivian Kirkpatrick

"He cried unto the Lord; and the Lord shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet" (Exodus 15:25).

WE ARE all familiar with the differences between hard and soft water; we know that soft water has little or no foreign substances in it, whereas the hard water is hard because it contains many substances which render it unfit for many of the uses to which we put water in modern living. In order to make it more acceptable for our use, we often add some substance called a "water softener" which coagulates the foreign substances and allows us to remove them easily.

Once in Egypt a period of plagues was visited upon the people. They resisted until the first-born were taken by death; but, when that happened, they submitted to the dictates of Moses and allowed the children of Israel to leave the land. Moses led his people to, and through the Red Sea and into the wilderness of Shur on the other side. For three days they journeyed into this desolation without finding water until they came to the springs of Marah: "When they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called Marah. And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink? And he cried unto the Lord; and the Lord shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet" (Ex. 15:23-25). We can only conjecture as to the cause of the healing of the waters. It makes little difference whether it was by miracle that the waters were healed or whether the particular tree pointed out was one whose branches contained the chemicals necessary to purify the waters and make them usable. We do know the waters were healed, and that is all that really matters.

Truthful tales come to us out of our country's western deserts of springs containing water that is unfit for human or animal consumption. We hear of springs that are ringed with skeletons of animals and perhaps even of men—skeletons of once living beings who were so overcome with thirst that they could not overcome the temptation to slake their thirst, so added their skeletons to those already ringing the water hole.

We read, too, of oases in the deserts where clear, springing, life-giving water may be had by the thirsty wayfarer as he journeys along the road.

Life is much like a spring of water. Life can be hard, bitter, and misleading to the wayfarer who is seeking life. Our life can entice the journeyer to sip of the things we can give, and it can cause the partaker to lose sight forever of the promised land he had been seeking, leaving behind to grace the growing circle—the latest victim of our selfishness and lust. We can see the enticing things the worldly are supposedly enjoying, and it can cause a feeling of rebellion, "Why can't I do that? Others are doing it. I don't care if it isn't entirely Christian, I can't see much harm in it." We might say it would not be so bad if we did it, if it were not for the fact that we are not now, never have been, and never will be entire masters of ourselves alone. If we were, perhaps we could indulge in more questionable things than we do. However, our life is the enticing mirage that lures many to their destruction, because we have not the will power nor the love of man to bring us to the place where we can think of anything except our own selfish wants, desires, and lusts. It is too bad that we cannot see the skeletons around us of those we have led astray.

All life is not like that, however. There are countless numbers of lives along the road that beckon just as strongly to the wayfarer to stop and quench his thirst—springs of water that give hope and encouragement and a renewed zest for life—that give strength to the weary.

If we go back to our text, we find that after the branches of the tree had been cast into the waters, the waters were healed and became useful once more. Again, life is much the same way. However, before we pursue that thought it might be best to clarify something else.

"There shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots" (Isa. 11:1). "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth" (Jer. 23:5). "In those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land" (Jer. 33:15). "Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou, and thy fellows that sit before thee: for they are men wondered at: for, behold, I will bring forth my servant the BRANCH" (Zech. 3:8). "Speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, saying, Behold the man whose name is The BRANCH; and he shall grow up out of his place, and he shall build the temple of the Lord" (Zech. 6:12).

There are a great many brands of water softener on the market today, from which we may take our choice. When it comes to life, however, there is only one "softener" that can heal, and purify. The name of that one is found in the foregoing verses.

The branches of a certain tree, cast into the waters of Marah healed those waters and made them life-giving. The Branch, of the root of David, the servant of the Lord, the righteous Branch, is the only branch which can heal the waters of a misguiding life, the only softener that can come into a life and remove the influences that can and do destroy not only the life there, but the lives of those who are attracted to the life of that one.

Let us pray for ourselves and for each other, that the Branch may come into our lives, and into the lives of those we love, that we might be wells of hope springing up, that all journeyers along the rough road of life might receive from us the life-giving waters of hope and joy and courage, and that they in turn might become dispensers of the same eternal hope.

Thoughts on the Rich Man and Lazarus

By Herbert F. C. Hill

THROUGH the very descriptive article of Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., that appeared in The Restitution Herald of January 7, we have been led to write this article. Our brother says that the most convincing evidence in the Bible that death is a sleep is the complete silence concerning anything about thought or activity of the dead. This is a profound statement, and all seekers after truth will acknowledge this fact. There are a number of good tracts issued on this subject, and the subject has been treated many times in The Restitution Herald. However, like our brother, we believe it would have been better if it had not been mentioned than to leave us in the dark concerning its meaning and application.

I believe there are a number of sincere and devoted Christians who, if they could really understand and know this was the doctrine of the Pharisees, would discard their old garments for the "garments of salvation." (See Isa. 61:10; Zech. 3:1-4.) In Bible language, this means to purge out the old leaven that "ye may be a new lump," and, according to Scripture, this is most essential, for Matthew 5:22 states very distinctly that they shall not enter in. Remember, dear reader, God is not sentimental. He will not use coercion. He must have obedience. (1 Sam. 15:22.) Christianity is more than a profession, it is a life.

Now, in reading the parable, let us view the Lord with His surrounding enemies. Who were they? The disciples were often warned of this sect. These people were very pious, composed mostly of the rich class—self-righteous—and they held themselves aloof from all others, occupying the foremost seats in the synagogues to be seen of men. Jesus said of them that they said and did not. They have their reward. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." The scribes and Pharisees came to Jesus, disputing with Him. Jesus said to them: "Full well ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition." "Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me" (Mark 7:6). "Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel" (Matt. 23:24). "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

Most people think that the Parable originated from Jesus Himself, but this is not so. It was a doctrine of the Pharisees long before Jesus came into the world. If anyone wishes to prove this, get Flavius Josephus at any of our libraries. There you will find the identical story. It is headed "Josephus' Discourse to the Greeks on the Doctrines of Hades." Now, we are all aware of the fact that hades is the Greek word for the English "grave," and sheol is the Hebrew equivalent. (How calm and peaceful is the grave.) Before we proceed further, let our minds be settled on this—hell, Hades, and Sheol—and we shall arrive at the other side of the cloud and see more clearly. By Scripture, we are told that the body and soul go to hell. (See Matt. 10:28; 5:29, 30). So, the body goes to Hades, Sheol, or the grave (hell)—all having the same meaning. Now, where does the soul go? It goes to hell. Now, we have established a fact, and by this evidence I am brought to the conclusion that Jesus, when He approached this sect, was using their own doctrine in a parabolic form, and was trying to convince them that they were all wrong, but in vain. The modern Pharisees are the same—one cannot convince them. The Lord said: "Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind." In Matthew 16:12, we can be assured that the Lord had convinced His disciples of this false doctrine. "Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees." (Please turn to page 10)

The New Creature

By Sadie Skeels

"There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Ephesians 4:4-6).

FOR this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles, if ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God which is given me to you-ward: How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery; (as I wrote afore in few words, whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ) which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit; That the Gentiles should be fellowheirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel" (Eph. 3:1-7).

"He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" (4:11-14). Paul continues, saying, "If so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus: that ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness" (vv. 21-24).

Paul writes concerning the Gentiles: "At that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: but now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace" (2:12-15).

Continuing, it states in verses 18-22, "Through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father. Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth into an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

"Yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (2 Cor. 5:16-19). Also, "Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; and have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him: where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all" (Col. 3:9-11).

Paul said, "By revelation he made known unto me the mystery; as I wrote afore in few words, whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ" (Eph. 3:3). We seem to find these few words written in Romans 11, from which we will quote a few references. "God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life. But what saith the answer of God unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who hath not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace. . . . What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded. (According as it is written, God hath given them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear;) unto this day. . . . I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their fulness? For I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the apostle to the Gentiles, I magnify mine office: if by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them. For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead? . . . And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in; for God is able to graff them in again. For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree? For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins."

Can this Deliverer be other than the new creature spoken of in Galatians 6:15 and Colossians 3:10, 11, or the body of which Christ is the head in Ephesians 4:11, 12? Romans 11:28-36, says: "As concerning the gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance. For as ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief: even so have these also now not believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all. O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever. Amen."

TRADITIONS

By Ellsworth Routson

"Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epistle" (2 Thess. 2:15).

THE Church of God has stood for various traditions for many years, but how many of our church members can fully explain our doctrines and beliefs? Many think they can until they are put to the test; then, they find that they are very weak in the most important traditions of the Church of God. We hear these words: "Go out and preach to others." "Let us go and hear what other churches have to say." Still, we cannot explain our own doctrines. How are we going to teach others, if we do not stand fast for the traditions for which our fathers in the Bible have fought, both by word and epistle from the very beginning? It is time for us to study as we should and to teach our young people the traditions and doctrines of our fathers. The young people are to become the backbone of the Church of God; and, if we do not prepare them now for the future, how will we carry on? It is a challenge to each and every member—young and old.

It is spring; let us do some house cleaning at our church. We have no reason to speak against other churches, when we do not keep our own doorstep clean. Let us seek out the good and continue in the traditions of our church. Remember the words of Solomon in Proverbs 22:28: "Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set." We read in Proverbs 22:6: "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Do the parents of today train their children in the traditions of our church, or do they take for granted that their children will learn for themselves? Who is at fault?

What did the eunuch answer Philip when he asked the eunuch if he understood what he read? He said: "How can I, except some man should guide me?" (Acts 8:31.) Let us be missionaries at home, then go out into the world and seek the lost. It is true that Christ said, in Mark 16:15: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." However, His apostles were well equipped for the task. He had taught them, and they were firm in their belief. Likewise, we must mold our people as the apostles were molded by Christ.

One might say that we are narrow-minded in the thought of preaching to others, but we wish to acknowledge that the world is the field and we are the laborers. What are we going to do about it? We should equip ourselves with the Word of God, written by the apostles and prophets.

Here are some of the landmarks or traditions that we hold: 1) The literal birth of Christ—that He was born of woman (Luke 1:26-38); 2) that He is the Son of God (Matt. 3:17); 3) the second coming of Christ (Acts

1:11); 4) baptism only by immersion (Col. 2:12); 5) death and resurrection (Rom. 6:5); 6) Kingdom on the earth (Rev. 5:10); 7) conditional immortality (Phil. 3:20, 21); 8) nature of man (Eccl. 9:10); 9) joint-heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:17); and 10) prayer (Rom. 12:12).

THOUGHTS ON THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

This undoubtedly is the key to the parable. Couple these two together and you have solved the problem (Matt. 16:12; Luke 16:19-31).

Now, a few brief details will be instructive, leaving plenty of room for study. Is the principle of verse 25 in harmony with Bible teaching? Who is the rich man? Can we not see the Aaronic priest in his purple and fine linen (no blue)? Was he rich, and did he not fare sumptuously every day? What about the tithes and offerings for sacrifices, skins from all the animals, and so forth? The five brethren seem to be very closely connected here. The Levitical priests serve as number one; Jesus Himself gives us three—scribes, Pharisees, and Sadducees—and the fifth, another very popular brother at that time, was Essenes. There we have the five.

To conclude, Jesus said, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead" (Luke 16:31). Now, let us just scan the five books of Moses. First, we have the creation story in Genesis. Adam was created and he died at nine hundred thirty years of age. He begot a son named Seth, and he died at nine hundred twelve years of age. We come now to the Flood, and God destroyed all that had the breath of life. They all died. Of course, we understand there were eight persons saved, and God said unto Noah: "Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth." Two years after the Flood we arrive at Arphaxad. Noah died at four hundred thirty-eight years of age, and so on down to Terah, who died in Haran at two hundred five years of age, and God told Abraham to get out of his country into the land of Canaan. Abraham took Sarah for his wife. She died, and Abraham bought the cave of Macpealah and buried her. Abraham died at a good old age, one hundred seventy-five years, and was gathered to his people. Isaac died at the age of one hundred eighty years, and his sons buried him. Jacob died at one hundred forty-seven years of age, and was buried in the place that Abraham purchased for a burying place. Jacob said: "There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekkah . . . and there I buried Leah" (Gen. 49:31). "Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt (not in Abraham's bosom).

We now arrive at the time where six hundred thousand of the children of Israel died in the wilderness. Aaron died on the mount and was buried. Moses died on Mount Nebo, and the angels of God buried him. Moses told us that man is mortal. One cannot believe the parable; Moses, and the prophets (Luke 16:31).

The foundation of all error is the teaching of the natural immortality of the soul. The Bible teaches conditional immortality. The only hope of life after death is to be raised from the dead, the same as Jesus was. He died—"he poured out his soul unto death" (Isa 53:12). What Jesus says of the poor and rich man is based on His knowledge of the Scripture. Make your calling and election sure (Ezek. 13; 2 Peter 1:10). Study 2 Timothy 1:13 and Acts 26:11. Paul was also a Pharisee before the Lord called him, and the teachings of Moses give us only birth, life, death, and burial.

THE WORLD'S "PAY-OFF"

By Arthur G. Young

THE passion week began with Christ's entry into Jerusalem. As the week progresses, the gloom deepens. We see the betrayal in Gethsemane, the trials before world authority, the sufferings, the death on the cruel cross, then three days in the tomb. However, today, we view these events in the knowledge of the resurrection. Evil did its worst when it took the life of our dear Lord and Saviour, the Son of God, but the "pay-off" for evil came through the superior power of God, when Christ arose to immortal life.

There is a close analogy between this and world conditions today. We see the world in its greatest agony. It is being tried and tested, and all that is good seems crucified. As Christ said to the leaders of the Jews, who then represented the evil forces of the world, when they came to arrest Him in the Garden of Gethsemane: "This is your hour, and the power of darkness." What significant words these were, and they are worthy of much meditation. However, after that "hour" came the resurrection, with new life and hope.

So it is today. The "pay-off" of the ages is soon to come. The world rushes fast to the judgment of God. Evil always has definite limits, but good has no limit. Soon the heights of evil will be reached, and overcome by the superior power of God. May we meditate on the prophetic words of Christ in Luke 21:28, as he looked down the centuries to our very day and said: "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up . . . for your redemption draweth nigh." Therein lies our true hope. May we keep the faith and remain steadfast in it, always remembering that this is our "day" and our responsibility to watch and be faithful.

ZECHARIAH

ebbed and there seemed little that could be done. He accomplished much because of his zeal in the Lord's work. His name—"He whom Jehovah remembers"—implies that God was with him because of his faith, as God is with each who reverently and fervently serves Him today.

Zechariah often spoke of God's "house." His frequent allusions to it showed of what importance it was to the Prophet. He thus showed that, with the building of the House of God, a new era of blessings would come. From this we might conclude that where the church is strong, there are blessings; wickedness, strife, and destruction are found where the church has failed in its purpose—where it has not been strong enough to bring in "permanent social blessedness." Strength lies in unity; Christ is not divided.

The "day of the Lord" is coming; we know not when except for the word in our Bibles. The time is short, there is much to be done. The fields indeed are white unto harvest, but the laborers are few. We may not be a Zechariah, a Peter, a Paul, but we are one of those upon whom the Lord has called for a little work in His vineyard, before the night comes. We should put on the whole armor of God, and when the light seems about to go out, we should remember that the Lord is the friend of the weak. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts" (Zech. 4:6).

The Basis of Our Hope. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord," and "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore." The earth will give up its dead, and we, too, hope to be resurrected to live again. "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth . . . they that have done good . . . and they that have done evil."—E. L. Z.

BRING OTHERS TO CHRIST

so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray. Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish." Christians worthy of the Lord's Table will likewise labor to bring the lost ones into the fold.

We should ever help to bring others to Jesus Christ and to our Church of God. In doing this, we work out our own salvation. We should be living examples of Christ, if we want others to follow Christ.

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

A great many books on Bible history have appeared since Josephus wrote his monumental work on the Jews, but few have appealed to us quite so much as William G. Blaikie's Manual of Bible History. This was first published a good many years ago, but last year it was completely revised by Charles D. Matthews and republished by Thomas Nelson & Sons ($2.00). It does, consequently, take advantage of the most recent historical researches.

What sets the Manual apart from the majority of its competitors is its naive belief that the Bible is true. Other volumes on Bible history have for some decades taken it for granted that Biblical accounts of events prior to Saul are more fiction than fact; but the Blaikie-Matthews product assumes, with no effort at argument, that the narratives of Genesis, Exodus, and so on through Joshua, are correct. To be sure, the authors concede that interpretations of these narratives may differ—they do, for example, feel personally that others than Adam and Eve were created at about the same time of the Garden of Eden—but they still manage to hold tenaciously to the idea of divine inspiration.

Necessarily, the one-volume Manual is sketchy; but this makes it more, rather than less, usable for the average reader. After all, one seldom needs to know the intricate details of Biblical history; it is the general passage of events, the trends of cause and effect, that are important. And despite its sketchiness, the Manual somehow succeeds in blanketing the whole range of Bible history, from creation to the late apostolic age.

Footnotes, fortunately, are held to a minimum; and there are few parenthetical or bracketed references to Biblical passages to break in on the even flow of one's reading. The text is tied in with the Bible by means of sectional headings, which mention the source of the Biblical account of events about to be told by the Manual. An excellent index and a fairly complete bibliography add materially to the value of the Manual for any serious student. Casual readers will find the style to be, although by no means gripping, not in the least dull.

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6).

My Mother

"Her house is a house kept for my friends,
A resting place when the busy day ends,
A home that is filled with colorful bloom
Where warm fires glow in every room.

"Her house is the house that travelers find,
Where hearts are gay and voices are kind,
Where rafters ring with delightful song,
And hearts do good and forget all wrong."

—Roy Eddy.

Mother's Day

Yes, this is Mother's day. When children are small and their needs great, it's Mother's day. They hunger for bread. She not only gives them bread, but teaches them of Jesus. A baby a year old will bow his head in prayer of his own free will if he sees and hears family prayer every day. Perhaps you did that when you were small.

Then, a little later, you reasoned about the things you were taught. Perhaps at first you doubted the power of God. One little boy said: "Aw! He can't really see us! I can't see Him!" However, as daily devotions continue, perhaps you said, as did one little boy of my acquaintance: "Mother, when I get big, I think I'll step down into the water." Already he is thinking of being obedient in baptism!

Mother's day is a period of time. In it she trains her children in the way. If such home training is not given, the world has a way of training the children.

Selfishness is one thing mothers train their children to see and avoid. The radio, with its sales talk, asks you to do "such and such" a thing so you will appear better than the child next door. Mothers say: "God first, others second, and yourself last." God says we are not to think of ourselves more highly than we ought.

If there are other children in your family, help your mother, for every day is "her day."

Johnny and the Bee

"Little Johnny was just three years old. One warm, bright afternoon, while playing in the garden, he learned a lesson which he remembers yet. In the rich green grass, a bright dandelion caught his eye, but he did not notice a certain spot about the middle of the flower—a honey bee! Quick as a thought, down went that little hand, and back with the flower, bee and all!

"The poor bee was very much surprised. He decided not to give up his life without a trial, so twisting his little body around, he sent his sharp sting deep into Johnny's hand. Didn't that little hand let go in a hurry! As nurse ran to his aid, as Johnny screamed, the bee flew off toward home. But the sting had not only marked Johnny's hand; it had also written this lesson in his memory—that sometimes very pretty things have very sharp stings."—Selected.

The Rechabites

The Rechabites refused to drink wine. Their father had told them not to drink wine, and they obeyed.

We, too, should be brave and kind and obedient to our parents. We know that such drinks as wine and beer have alcohol in them. We also know that alcohol is a poison. You wouldn't give little brother poison, would you?

Alcohol is a poison. A man who has charge of a group of motor police said that the man who drinks "a little" is more dangerous on the highway than one who is "staggering drunk." Let us not drink any of the poison, for it keeps us from thinking and acting quickly. Both of these abilities are needed to prevent accidents.

Another interesting fact from the daily advertisements is this: druggists now offer the same remedy for smoking too much, drinking too much, and eating too much. We must remember to "eat to live," not "live to eat."

Your Berean Book—and You

* * *

By Arlen Marsh, Los Angeles, Calif.

Over the last few years, I have been surprised so frequently at the misuse of Berean lesson books among Berean classes that I have come to feel my eyebrows must be raised in a continual expression of astonishment.

It seems so very obvious that no Berean book—whether of the old or new adult series, or of the series for children—was planned for verbatim study. Yet, time after time, in class after class, teacher after teacher insists upon confining himself to the exact questions and texts set down by the printed lesson.

Actually, as has been inferred, the Berean outlines are no more than suggestive. New texts, new ideas, new questions—these are the lifeblood of any Berean lesson.

The Berean group is a dull and worthless thing if the members do no more than read a question from the printed outline, then read a verse (mentioned by the outline) from the Bible which “answers” the question. The teacher should have new references at his fingertips—or at least in his notes—ready to build a solid structure about the shaky framework of the outline; he should be prepared to pop questions that will provoke intelligent discussion. “Any fool can ask questions a wise man can’t answer” is true indeed, but the majority of Berean classes appear to lack even the more maronic element. The teacher reads from the lesson book and the Bible, and the class sits. Or the teacher talks, and the class sits.

There should be no fear of getting away from the subject of the lesson if circumstances warrant. If it proves more important to answer a query about the mortality of man during a lesson presumably on the Good Samaritan, then by all means answer the query on the mortality of man—the Good Samaritan will be quite as good tomorrow or next week, and the inquirer, who has shown at least a flash of interest in learning something more, will not go away dissatisfied and empty. On the other hand, permitting a discussion to wander aimlessly is as short a road to intellectual disaster as to forbid free inquiry. The leader must exercise some judgment in the matter—but the class should exercise as much!

So when you lead, don’t kill your class—and your own reputation as a leader—by using the lesson book word-for-word. I have taught Berean lessons of which only the title was drawn from the book—and which probably would have surprised the author with the exactly opposite conclusions the class ultimately reached in regard to his ideas. It’s hard enough to hold the interest of a class without deliberately setting out to be as boring as can be: no class is boring when the majority of its members have ideas—whether they are your ideas or not.

Prophecies Come True

For many years we have heard warnings of many troubles to come. These warnings have come from both ministers of the gospel and men prominent in national affairs. It has been said that the depression was bad, but that the days in the future would be worse. Interwoven among all this has been the ever-approaching threat of war.

Now, Bereans, the beginning of those days is upon us. Is this the beginning of the end? Who can tell? However, it is certain that a new phase of history is opening, a phase in which we will have to face hardships, disappointments, and sorrows which many of us have never been through before. Even our national leaders tell us this.

It has been said: “There is no future for young people.” The future does look pretty dark for the person who would plan a life of pleasure and ease on a living standard above that which is enjoyed at the present time. He who would fashion his life on the pattern that has been created during the past few decades will probably be quite disappointed.

However, we have been praying for the Kingdom of God to be established on this earth. For nearly two thousand years men have fought every kind of fight, hoping that they might come a little closer to the promises of God. Now the Kingdom appears to be just beyond the horizon—not centuries away, but only a matter of years. Shall we complain because we must bear the inconveniences incident with the preliminary stages of the establishment of the Kingdom; or shall we enter into active church work with renewed vigor, striving to help spiritually and temporally those who are in need? “Whatever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.”

TO THE BRETHREN

On April 8, it was my privilege to leave the Minnesota State Sanatorium, where I had been confined for nineteen months, and return to my home in Illinois. I was indeed thankful to God as I stepped out of the building, and I pray that I may have complete health so I may be able to again enter the ministry.

While I was in the Sanatorium, many of you wrote to me, sent me gifts, and cards of remembrance. If I had done as I desired I would have answered each one of you, but I found that impossible. Therefore, I desire to take this opportunity to thank everyone who remembered me in any way.

If it is God's will, I hope to be able to attend the General Conference for a very few days this summer. However, there is nothing very certain about it yet.

Again I say thanks, and may God's blessing be yours.
 Gerald L. Cooper.

LOUISIANA CHURCH NOTES

The folks here are in the midst of the strawberry season, and it surely is a busy time for everyone. Berries are shipped out of Hammond, not by the carload, but by the trainload.

Miss Clara Barnum, who recently underwent a major operation, is now home and is able to be up most of the time. She desires to thank everyone who has been so kind and helpful in her sickness.

Funeral services were held April 23 for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bollin of Hammond.

Bro. M. W. Lyon of Cleveland, Ohio, his sister Jeanne of Grand Rapids, Mich., and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lyon of Citronelle, Ala., paid the churches here a flying visit, Sunday, April 20. We were surely glad to see them and sorry that their visit had to be so short.
 Harry Goekler, Pastor.

FONTHILL MAY MEETING

The thirty-seventh Annual May Meeting of the Fonthill, Ont., church will be held May 20-25, with Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp as our guest workers. We feel sure that the spiritual messages of Bro. Lapp will be timely and edifying and will compensate all attending for the efforts put forth. Then, too, the countryside is very beautiful at this time of the year, and nature will provide you with an additional blessing.

The Fonthill church extends a hearty welcome to the brethren in the United States to join with us in this meeting. It will refresh you and bless us.

There are no border restrictions in entering Canada or hindrances after reaching here. All you need is your birth certificate or other means of identification for the United States immigration officials on your return. Send us word of your coming, and every arrangement will be made for your care and pleasant stay.

C. E. Randall, Pastor
 Fonthill, Ont.

NORTH SALEM, INDIANA

We enjoyed very much meeting with the brethren at North Salem, Ind., for dinner and the afternoon service on April 27. An all-day program had been arranged, with Bro. J. H. Anderson speaking in the morning and evening. A splendid group from various points in northern Indiana was present for the day, and we deeply enjoyed the fellowship.
 F. E. Siple.

HOPE CHAPEL, SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Hope Chapel Sunday school has, for some time, had Sunday school night once a month, on which occasion various social gatherings are held with an enjoyable time for all. For the month of April, a return banquet was given for mothers and daughters, which followed the father-and-son banquet given by the ladies in February. The banquet, held April 24, was well attended, one hundred sixteen being present.

Five very competent chefs, headed by Bro. Lynn Leighty, all dressed in white uniforms, served a meal of which any restaurant would be proud. The dinner was served in three courses, the first being a salad dish followed by a plate of chop suey, rice, rolls, with small cups of honey at each plate, and butter. Milk and coffee were served for youngsters and adults. The last course was a strawberry shortcake topped with whipped cream.

A program of after-dinner speeches followed which proved very interesting. Slides were shown by Bro. Rolland Stilson, which added pleasure to the evening. Decorations were very pretty, with canopies of different colored paper over each table. The guests' hats corresponded with the color of the tables. Colored lights added beauty to the atmosphere of the evening. Eight waiters served the food in genuine style, with very few slips of the wrist, almost setting a record for changing the courses.

We are sure that the good time had at this Christian banquet was well worth the effort put forth to make it a success.

Elwyn J. Stilson.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

The following six students have now enrolled for the Summer Bible Training School: Betty Macy, Troy, Ohio; Iris Hall, Alto, Mich.; Mrs. Dale Dunbar, Delta, Ohio; Alberta Leighty, South Bend, Ind.; Linford Moore, Jr., Niagara Falls, N. Y.; and Grace Schier, Oregon, Ill. We hope and pray others will enroll soon; we need fourteen more to make the School a success financially and the more who come will add to the spiritual attainments of the School. Who will be next to join!

Bro. and Sr. George Siple of Oregon, Ill., plan to leave Wednesday, May 7, on a trip to Louisiana.

"We have $556.00 in our church building fund and have a choice lot in view for $600.00. Everyone is very enthused about the work, and as soon as you hear some hammers pecking down here you will know we have started building."—C. E. Lapp, 512 S. Madison, Macomb, Ill.

Plan now to attend the General Conference. See the "Calendar" for the dates.

"God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name" (Acts 15:14).

Bro. Leland Marsh, Grinnell, Iowa, sends us a clipping from a recent issue of a Des Moines, Iowa, newspaper advocating that present conditions indicate the soon coming of Christ.

The editor and Mrs. Magaw and son, Sidney David, were in Elgin on business, April 30. They visited Mrs. Magaw's former home in Harvey, Ill., and Mr. Charles Anderson and Mrs. Edna Beck of Downers Grove, Ill.

"Linford Moore, Jr., is planning on attending Summer Training School. We would like to have several more of our number attend. Pray for this Summer School."—C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ont.

Sr. Cecil Patrick is a patient in the Elyria Hospital, Elyria, Ohio, convalescing from an operation. Inasmuch as her parents live at a distance and she has few acquaintances in Elyria, we venture that a few words from any of our church people would be more than welcome.

Bro. and Sr. George Loudenslager returned to their home in Oregon, Ill., after an extended trip to the South and West to California.

HARLINGEN, TEXAS

Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Handley, Texas, came to Harlingen to hold some meetings, there being only a few members here. We had a very good attendance. The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hanes.

The first week we averaged from fifteen to twenty-one in attendance, and the second week, on account of rain, the attendance dropped off to an average of twelve to fifteen.

We had good gospel sermons, and two were baptized. They were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Williams, 222 N. 7th St., Harlingen.

Out-of-town members who attended the meeting were: Sr. Robbins of Riviera; Bro. and Sr. Ross Woodul, and Bro. Robbins of Raymondville; and Bro. and Sr. John J. Hayse of San Benito.

We all regretted to see a good meeting come to a close. This was Bro. and Sr. Drinkard's first trip to the Rio Grande Valley. They certainly did enjoy themselves and left us with the assurance that it would not be their last trip here. Mrs. John D. Hanes.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

It was our privilege to be with the brethren of the Burr Oak, Ind., church from April 14-27, and we wish to report a very healthy and encouraging condition of the church. Splendid co-operation and attendance each night gave evidence of the genuine desire of the brethren to back the church work. They are earnestly desirous of obtaining a full-time pastor; and, if this can be done, we predict a splendid work at Burr Oak.

Brethren from several distant points drove in for different evenings. On one occasion there were guests present from South Bend, Nappanee, and Knox, Ind., also from Alabama, Ohio, and Michigan. Three carloads from Oregon, Ill., containing the Training School stopped for the noon hour both enroute to and from Delta, Ohio, and we were all pleased to see them.

Our prayers and best wishes go with the Burr Oak church for its successful work during the coming year. F. E. Siple.

PUSH TO VICTORY!

King Khama said, "You Englishmen know how to take care of your goods, but throw away your children, unto whom some day you must relinquish all." The greatest weakness of the Church of God in the past has been our failure to properly train our young people in the doctrines of the Church and qualify them for competent workers in the various branches of our Church organization.

The sturdiness of the Catholic Church and the unchanging loyalty of Jewish orthodoxy can be traced to their training of their young. The Church of God of tomorrow will be the measure of the stature which we build today. If we can catch the vision of trained minds in spiritual values and then go about the task of making the vision reality, we shall witness the spreading abroad of the Church of God. For a stable and expanding Church, we need three imbedded principles, love for truth—love for the Church—and loyalty to both.

Our Bible Training School work is a strong factor in accomplishing these ends. As parents, we need vision, the spirit of sacrifice, and an unwavering faith in the Church of God, and if we possess these, it will not be necessary to be urged to make it possible for our young people to have this training—we shall see to it of our own initiative.

Then, we have need of young people with a purpose in life, ambition to achieve, strength of character, and possessed of sufficient zeal to be crusaders for truth.

I believe that the Church of God has enough such parents and young people in its membership to make the Summer Training School for 1941 a red-letter success. The Board of Religious Education is counting on you—each one of you—to make a glorious success of this effort. Be positive and prompt in your support. Sign up for attendance, or encourage and help another to attend. Pray—pay—push the School to victory!

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

We enjoyed having Bro. John Mercer from St. Cloud, Minn., with us on April 28. He taught the Ambassador Bible Class in the evening. The class met at the Students' Home. Bro. Mercer is pastor of the Church of God in St. Cloud. The subject discussed was, "Suffering for Christ." How much do we suffer for Christ? It is through much suffering that we will be permitted to enter into the Kingdom of God; suffering tempers us to endure hard times. The trying of one's faith works patience. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God; and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us" (Rom. 8:16-18).

Bro. Ellsworth Routson preached in Dixon, Ill., Sunday, May 4. On the same day Bro. L. E. Conner preached in Rockford, Ill. Bro. Francis Burnett preaches in Rockford three Sundays each month. The writer will begin his work as pastor of the Dixon church the first Sunday in June.

Bro. Ellsworth Routson was home for a few days, due to the serious illness of his mother.

A short time in class was given to speak of the love that prompted such a generous gift of $1000.00 from Bro. and Sr. Railsback of Los Angeles, Calif., for the Bible Training School building fund.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Summer Bible Training School

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder S. J. Lindsay:

We have been solicited to say a few words for the Summer Bible Training School. It seems to us that there is great need for such a School, and especially because we have had such successful work done since the idea has been put into operation. It would be better if such students could take advantage of the year 'round classwork; but, since there are many who cannot afford either time or money for the longer period, the Summer School gives opportunity to a greater number to get some of the good things with an expenditure of both time and money in a measure that they can meet. Indeed, the price of admission to this class has been made so reasonable that both board and instruction are so cheap that you cannot afford to stay at home.

Elder S. J. Lindsay

Remember that the School is not a place for "arguifying," but a place where we come together to study the Bible that we may familiarize ourselves with its contents.

The School is a splendid place to bring our young people together from over the United States and Canada, that they may become better acquainted. Many friendships have been made in this way that never would have been made were it not for the School. This acquaintance is a great incentive for these young people to "stick" to the faith, and to press forward even in times of spiritual depression. This angle should not be overlooked.

Here's hoping for a large membership for the coming summer.

S. J. Lindsay.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

The Situation in the East

How It Affects Us

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

WHILE the eyes of the civilized world are watching Hitler and his maneuvers in Europe, a danger to our own country is looming up in the Orient, a danger of which most Americans are woefully unaware. Such is the opinion of a Christian American who was stationed in the Far East when tension took a decided upturn early in the year. He recently returned to America, after twenty-two years of residence in the East, and it has been our privilege to hear him lecture on conditions there, showing that a crisis for our own country may come very soon. Having established Oriental Schools of Languages at Tokio, Shanghai, and Singapore during the time of his residence there, he is well qualified to speak on the world situation as it is today. We shall tell some of the main thoughts of the lecture which we heard in our city a few days ago.

He began by quoting what Matsuoka said recently in Japan: "The year 1941 will go down in history as the first year, or the beginning, of the fall of modern civilization." Speaking of his own experience in the East, he said that he could see a grave crisis developing because of two major problems. One of these is in the Atlantic, the other in the Pacific. Civilization will have to face both of these, but the one in the Pacific concerns us most.

In giving a history of Japan's military growth, he went back as far as the year 1862, after two great ports in Japan had been bombarded by America and Britain because an English soldier had been killed. That awakened Japan, and she began to study the Western technique of warfare. She started at that time to build great enterprises to compete with the United States and other civilized nations.

In thirty years she was ready to test her strength. She began on China, who up to that time had been the leader in the East. When China tried to take Korea, Japan stopped her in spite of protestations from Russia, Germany, and France. That was her first lesson in diplomacy, and it gave her great confidence, for in 1904 Japan declared war on Russia. Russia moved in a short time, giving up vast territories in Manchuria. After that, Japan built up her navy, her mercant marine, and her army; and joined the Allies to drive Germany out of the Pacific. At that time, most of the islands north of the equator became possessions of Japan.

Mrs. H. H. Kent

Shortly after the World War, England and the United States got together and tried to call a halt to Japan's aggressiveness. In 1921-'22, the five-five-three ratio was adopted. To this, Japan showed deep resentment. Americans had made remarks in Japan that the Japanese Race was inferior, and that the Japanese were not fit citizens of the United States. The Japanese have not forgotten, and in response they said they would never be satisfied until the Empire Building in New York City would be in their possession.

The world was astonished September 18, 1931, when Japan obtained all of Manchuria. One by one, the nations told her to move out of Manchuria. She then told them that she wanted to stand alone and would not tolerate interference. Japan then left the League of Nations. Matsuoka, who was then the delegate, made the remark that Japan would come back at the United States for that. She has had England and the United States "on the run" ever since.

Soon after this, the Japanese established what they called, "The New Order in the East." It says, "Hands off Asia." The main trouble has always been that the United States has stood in the way of their taking possession of China. The Open Door Policy gave all nations equal rights in China. Japan has always (Please turn to page 10)

Gomer's Bands Farther East

The strength of the British Fleet in the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea is largely dependent upon oil that is pumped through a pipe line from Iraq to Haifa. It is significant, therefore, that Bagdad and much of the Arab sentiment, generally, has suddenly and without much apparent provocation thrust a cold and begrudging shoulder toward British interests in the East, especially as pertains to the oil interests. Furthermore, it is reported from London that Raschid Ali Al Gailani, premier of Iraq, has asked Germany for military help. It is not contrary to Hitler's procedure to "help" countries which may or may not need his "protection"; and he may most certainly be expected to run to the rescue when asked for protection—protection, too, which may give him a drink to quench his oily thirst and maintain his bombers in their relentless rain of fire. At any rate, the British oil supply at Haifa is seriously threatened. Hitler's long fingers may soon reach into Palestine. . . . Russia, why do you wait?

Was Christ, Too, Responsible?

One sometimes hears it said that if politics are rotten, the church is somewhat to blame. We read our Bible differently. Was Christ's mission to reform society and fumigate politics? Rather, Jesus called men to forsake the corrupt world, to leave all and follow Him. Said John, "The world knoweth us not, because it knew him not" (1 John 1:1). The world rejected Jesus, and the world rejects those who follow Him. Peter said, "God . . . did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name" (Acts 15:14). Now, if God calls His children "out of" the world, they are hardly responsible for the sins committed in and by the world. Well did Jesus say, "My kingdom is not of this world (of this chaotic order): if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight . . ." (John 18:36).

The social and political world was so corrupt in Jesus' day as to crucify Him. Was the Messiah somewhat to blame? Was the spotless Lamb of God, faithful unto death, in any degree responsible for His own crucifixion? Positively, No! Rather than attempting social or political reform, Jesus preached and lived the gospel, that He might thereby call from the world a few faithful ones who by close communion with Him would qualify to reign with Him in the coming and eternal Kingdom of God. Wise is the Christian who faithfully follows in "his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). He who anticipates much political or social reform in this age will sooner or later become so disappointed as, in all probability, to fail even to "preach the gospel," which work is his God-given commission and a work big enough to keep him busy most all the time. (We were once foolish enough to believe that by accepting the presidency of a Parent-Teachers' Association we might add members to the Church of God.) It is the gospel, and the gospel only, which is "the power of God unto salvation" (Rom. 1:16).

Not until Christ can be proved responsible for the sins of Jewish and Roman politics in His day, should it be said that Christ's followers are in any sense responsible for the corruption that is in the world today. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you" (2 Cor. 6:17). "Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world . . . touch not; taste not; handle not" (Col. 2:20, 21).

Thank You, Brother Dielman

Following our return with the Bible Training School from Delta, Ohio, we received an appreciative letter from Brother Frank C. Dielman, president of the Community Bank in Napoleon, Ohio, who attended the Delta services. We quote: "I want to commend the boys for the splendid sermons they preached at the Raker church near Delta. They surely will become great preachers and teachers as they become older and more experienced. . . . I wish them my best and will pray for their success." Thank you, Brother Dielman; by the grace of God we hope for a rich fruitage from the Bible Training School.

If congregational appreciation of a minister's preaching has anything to do with his success, therein may lie part of the explanation for the boys' good sermons at Delta. Surely, Delta's interest in the Bible Training School has been most encouraging. Mizpah! (Gen. 31:49.)

BIBLE PROPHECIES

In Three Parts—Part One

By J. M. Morgan

REVELATION 19:7 and 19:17 prophesy two suppers: verse 7 tells of the marriage supper which will be enjoyed by the saints of God, and verse 17 tells of that supper which is to be relished by the fowls of heaven at the close of earth's final war, when all nations will fight at Jerusalem. "Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations" (Zech. 14:3).

It is not uncommon that one hears the teaching that Christ returned in 1914, and that the Kingdom of God was then established. This cannot be true, however, for Zechariah 14:5 teaches that when the Lord comes, He will be accompanied with "all the saints," and we know that there has been neither a resurrection of dead saints nor a rapture of the living saints. Some of our adventist friends are teaching that the thousand-year reign of Christ was in the past, having been fulfilled in the dark age of Papal Rome. Christ's reign, however, will not fit there, for the dark age of Papal persecution lasted over twelve hundred years—which fact alone destroys the assumption that the thousand-year reign of Christ and His saints was in any way then fulfilled. It was, in fact, an antichrist, and not the Christ, doing the reigning in those days.

No saints have ever reigned with Christ. Instead of a present victory, this is an evil age and a time of suffering. The Apostle Paul said, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him" (2 Tim. 2:12). Now is the suffering time, but Jesus said: "In the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye (the apostles) shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel" (Matt. 19:28). Jesus also said: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Rev. 3:21). Christ will not reign in His throne until He comes and restores it at the beginning of the "times of restitution"—for "the heaven must receive (Him) until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken through the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). Jeremiah prophesied of the coming reign of the Messiah, saying: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely" (23:5, 6).

Inasmuch as there are no judgment and justice executed in the earth, and inasmuch as Judah has not been saved, nor does Israel dwell safely, and knowing that Christ does not yet sit upon the throne of David, we are sure that the reign of Christ and His saints is yet in the future. Therefore, the Millennial reign of Christ is yet future. (Rev. 20:5, 6.) Consequently, the great marriage supper of the Lamb and His virgin saints is yet future, as is the gluttonous supper of the nations.

The Apostle Paul prophesied the millennial reign of Christ, saying: "He (God) hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead" (Acts 17:31). This "day" in which Christ is to reign has no reference to Sunday nor to any twenty-four hour day, but refers to the longer day of judgment and restitution. Peter said: "Beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day" (2 Peter 3:8).

"Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" (1 Cor. 6:2.) There are some students who believe that Christ and His saints are to reign up in the clouds for a thousand years, during which time all the wicked dead will be raised, and they with all the living wicked will be destroyed or cremated, and that the earth will be made entirely new before Christ and the saints come down to the earth. If this should be true, when would the saints judge the world, and when would Christ have any occasion to rule the nations with a rod of iron? (Rev. 19:15; 2:26, 27.) Moreover, Satan, bound for a thousand years (Rev. 20:2), is to be "loosed a little season" at the end of the thousand years, and he "shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth." (20:3, 7, 8.) How, though, could Satan deceive the nations if they had been destroyed during the preceding thousand years?

David clearly prophesied about the reign of Christ over the nations, saying: "I will declare the decree: the Lord has said unto me, Thou art my Son . . . ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for (Please turn to page 10)

Bible Youths Challenge the Youth of Today

By Mrs. A. M. Jones

*"Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy . . . your young men shall see visions" (Joel 2:28).
"Where there is no vision, the people perish" (Proverbs 29:18).*

HOW important it is that our young people be given the religious training necessary to direct their vision toward the things of God!

Among the outstanding youths of the Old Testament, that child of promise, Isaac, son of Abraham and Sarah in their old age, stands prominent. We are not told the age Isaac had attained when his father was directed of God, saying, "Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of" (Gen. 22:2). Various Bible students estimate his age at from twelve to twenty years, and even more. This we know, however, that he was old enough to have been thoroughly trained—as a youth should be—to obey his parents, for he accompanied his father willingly.

Isaac carried the wood for the burnt offering; his father, the knife and the fire. To Isaac's query as to the lamb for the burnt offering, Abraham answered, "My son, God will provide himself a lamb for the offering." When they reached the designated spot, Abraham bound Isaac—though we must remember that Abraham was a hundred years old when Isaac was born, and would have been no match in strength to the youth—and laid him on the altar. With what great thanksgiving both heard the word of God which directed the father's gaze to a ram caught in a thicket, the ram to be used for the offering! We read in that great chapter on faith, the source of Abraham's obedience to God, even to the offering of his son: "Accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure" (Heb. 11:17-19).

Like Sarah, another childless woman, Hannah, prayed long and earnestly for a son, and received one. She promised God that as soon as he was old enough to be weaned, she would present him at the Temple of the Lord, to be dedicated to God's service. How great was her rejoicing when each year she would visit her little son, bring him a little coat made by her own loving fingers, and watch his growth and development under the able training of Eli, the aged priest. Turn to 1 Samuel 3, and read the story of God's first direct message to Samuel, telling of the terrible judgment pronounced by the Lord on Eli and his whole house because Eli knew his sons' wickedness "and he restrained them not." But Samuel "grew, and the Lord was with him" (v. 19).

Consider, too, the young Hebrews who were selected to be taught the learning of their captors, the Chaldeans. They were required to be without "blemish, but well favoured, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had ability in them to stand in the king's palace" (Dan. 1:4). What strength of character it required for them to refuse the rich food from the king's table! and how well were they rewarded by the Lord for their steadfast faith in Him! Three of these young men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, steadfastly refused to fall down and worship the golden image set up by Nebuchadnezzar the king. For this, they were thrown into the terrible fiery furnace, the flames of which were so intensely hot that they burned to death the men who threw them in, but God miraculously preserved the lives of the faithful three. This caused the king to make proclamation that the God of the Hebrews was the only one who could deliver in that way.

Because of his great wisdom, Daniel found great favor with the captor king, but wicked men plotted against him. They induced Darius the king to sign a decree that whoever should ask a petition of any god or man, saving the king himself, should be thrown into the den of lions. Though Daniel was one of the three men highest in authority, and though he was well aware of the plot against him, he went into his house three times a day, and prayed to God as was his custom. The king was sorely displeased when word was brought to him that Daniel was guilty of breaking the royal edict, and tried to find a way to free him. No way was found; Daniel was thrown into the den of hungry beasts. After a night of fasting, the king approached the den and was overjoyed to find his favorite still alive. He immediately sent forth another decree that the God of Daniel was the only true and living God, whose Kingdom shall never be destroyed, even unto the end.

We are told very little of the boyhood and youth of our Saviour, but we know that in those days when He lived upon the earth all Jewish boys were very carefully taught the religion of their fathers, the history of the Hebrew people, and the prophecies as we have them in the Old Testament. That He was thoroughly familiar with both Jewish laws and prophecies was evidenced all through His teachings. Luke 2:52 tells us that "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man."

Now, what is the challenge of these Bible youths to the youth of today? First of all, there is the challenge of steadfast faith—faith in God, that He will keep all the promises He has made. Read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, that great chapter of faith! We have not yet been called upon to suffer persecution unto death—but who knows what may yet come? Possibly in the not very distant future, young men and women of the faith may have to make their decisions to relinquish this life or relinquish hope of eternal life!

Next, there is the challenge to obedience—obedience to God who commands obedience to parents! "Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise" (Eph. 6:1, 2). Obedience is a hard lesson to learn, but Hebrews 5:8, 9 (Please turn to page 11)

Ways and Means of Spreading the Gospel

By Mabel Fletcher

THE word "gospel" means good news or glad tidings. The gospel of the Kingdom is the good news of the Kingdom of God which will be established at Jerusalem, with Christ as King, when Christ shall return to earth with power and great glory. It was the gospel of the Kingdom which Christ preached during His ministry. In Mark 1:15, Jesus said: "The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel."

One of Christ's last commandments to His disciples, shortly before His ascension into heaven, is found in Matthew 28:19. It reads: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." In Mark 16:15, 16, we read: "He said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."

Dear friends, the Great Commission which Christ gave to His apostles is given also unto us. Therefore, we should do all in our power to spread this blessed gospel. You may ask: "How may I spread the gospel?" The gospel may be spread in a multitude of ways.

The foremost and greatest means, I believe, is God's own Word, the Holy Bible. "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me" (John 5:39). Therefore, we should cherish this great Book, search the Scriptures daily, and tell others of this precious truth.

The gospel is spread by missionaries who leave friends, homes, and the comforts of life to take to the heathen in distant lands the glorious message of the gospel. Evangelism is a great means of spreading the gospel. An evangelist is a preacher who branches out into new fields, establishing churches and ordaining leaders to carry on the work. He spends several months at each place, not leaving until the work is established.

Our ministers and Sunday school teachers do much to spread the gospel. One may help his pastor in the furtherance of this work by regularly attending church and Sunday school, and by giving financial aid to the church. Also, we should buy church papers and publications. Our own Restitution Herald is an excellent paper, well worth our support. Who knows what untold blessing some person will receive from the reading of a tract given him by some Christian? Therefore, let us make a practice of distributing more tracts! Brother C. E. Randall, our minister at Fonthill, Ontario, by publishing his bulletin, "The Messenger," does a very worthy work. We, as Christians, should help in this work by giving our financial support.

Although we may not be great orators, yet by speaking or writing about the gospel to some friend we may start him thinking of God's Word. Who knows what benefit may be derived from some timely and well-chosen word spoken by us? Some may not have a talent for speaking, but do have one for singing. Is that not also a means of spreading the gospel?

More and more, the radio is becoming a great means of spreading the gospel. However, we should always remember that it is not enough to listen to ministers preaching the gospel over the radio; we must also attend our own church services.

One's daily life has perhaps more influence on others than he imagines. From day to day, one's actions show more clearly than any words he may utter what kind of Christian he is. Thus, he should try to live a pure, Christ-like life, not hiding his light under a bushel, so that men may see his good works and glorify the Father in heaven.

May we ever be awaiting the return of our Saviour, and may our prayer ever be, "Thy kingdom come."

Origin of Infant Baptism

By C. E. Randall

IT WILL not be possible to follow the same pattern of previous articles and set forth Bible propositions, as our subject is not of Bible origin. It may sound strange to certain ears for us to say that infant baptism is not of Bible origin. The reason for making such a statement is not to condemn, but to enlighten. Infant baptism, if indeed it can be called baptism, is of human origin, and being of man, we must of necessity turn to the writings of men for information on the question. The only way that the Bible treats of the subject is by positive elimination, and that by setting forth the mode and purpose of genuine baptism. In speaking of baptism, reference is made only to water baptism, thus eliminating for present consideration any thought of baptism of the Holy Spirit, and the use of other fluids than water, which some groups who accept sprinkling use.

There are three ways practiced for baptism at the present time: 1) dipping in water (immersion); 2) pouring of water (affusion); 3) sprinkling the water (aspersion). This later method is of quite recent origin in relation to the start of baptism by immersion.

Elder Wiley Jones, in his book on the "Gospel of the Kingdom," under lecture of "The Subjects of Christian Baptism," gives a striking quotation on the origin of infant baptism. It follows: "In a periodical entitled the Nineteenth Century, for October, 1879, Dean Stanley, called 'the Queen's preacher,' says, 'The change from immersion to sprinkling has set aside the larger part of apostolic language regarding baptism, and has altered the very meaning of the word. The reason of the change is obvious. The practice of immersion, apostolic and primitive as it was, was peculiarly suitable to the Southern and Eastern countries for which it was designed, and peculiarly unsuitable to the tastes, the conveniences, and the feelings of the countries of the North and West. There is no one who would now wish to go back to the old practice. It had no doubt the sanction of the apostles, and of their Master. It had the sanction of the venerable churches of the early ages, and of the sacred countries of the East. But, speaking generally, the Christian civilized world has decided against it. It is a striking example of the triumph of common sense and convenience over the bondage of form and custom.'"

Then the Elder adds his own comments in most effective language. He says: "But he ought to know that to 'change' and 'decide against' what Christ has ordained, and to 'set aside the larger part of apostolic language regarding it,' are things that pertain to the anti-Christian, and not to the 'Christian world.' Contrast what the holy prophets have said with what this modern 'Dean' says about such changing (Dan. 7:25; Isa. 24:5). The 'Dean' is candid enough to admit and confess that immersion is the 'apostolic and primitive' way, but his effort to justify 'the change' on the grounds of 'common sense and convenience,' is a piece of impious effrontery, and a striking example of 'wickedness in high places' (Eph. 6:12). I use this pointed language because truth requires it, and because I am trying to save people, not to flatter them."

It was not until the Thirteenth Century that sprinkling was substituted for immersion. We quote from Whitby: "This immersion being religiously observed by all Christians for thirteen centuries . . . it were to be wished that this custom might be again of general use."

According to the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge by Sanford, "All early descriptions of baptism, such as Tertullian's De Baptismo, use such words as going down, and plunging in the water."

The Catholic Encyclopedia, in quoting from Justin Martyr (Apol. 1) where he describes the ceremony of baptism, says, "Then they are led by us to where there is water, and then they are laved (immersed) in the water." The article continues: "The most ancient form usually employed was unquestionably immersion."

Conybeare & Howson comments on baptism thus: "It is needless to add that baptism was administered by immersion, the convert being plunged beneath the surface of the water to represent his death to the life of sin, and then raised from this momentary burial to represent his resurrection to the life of righteousness. It must be a subject of regret that the general discontinuance of this original form of baptism has rendered obscure to popular apprehension some very important passages of Scripture."

Quotations could be multiplied many fold to show that sprinkling of children is of human origin and is not by commandment of God. The requirements for baptism are such as to bar children from this service. A few are submitted:

(1) Baptism follows a belief in the gospel (Mark 16:15, 16).

(2) Baptism must be preceded by repentance, and repentance brought forth through knowledge of the goodness of God (Acts 2:37, 38; Rom. 2:4).

(3) Baptism is an exercise of faith in the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ (Rom. 6:1-6; Col. 2:12).

(4) Baptism is the answer of a good conscience toward God (1 Peter 3:21).

(5) Baptism must be followed by a walk of faith (Gal. 2:20).

Because some form of baptism is not administered to children is no reason for supposing that such children are under the condemnation of God. There are many Biblical examples to indicate that God does not hold a child responsible for wrongdoing before he comes to the age of discerning the difference between right and wrong. When Israel came out of Egypt, none under the age of twenty was numbered. This was not a handicap. As a matter of fact, it became a blessing to them, for they were the only ones permitted to enter Canaan, save Caleb and Joshua.

On the question of sprinkling, there can be no compromise, nor should there be any smoothing over of the issue. Sprinkling is a commandment of men, and worship in accordance with the "commandments of men" is vain (Matt. 15:9), and will perish with their using (Col. 2:22).

Beating a Sin

By Verneille Lawrence

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good" (1 Thessalonians 5:21).

G OSSIP, temptation, sin, and all begin with imagination. The mind acts with great rapidity, and imagination is swifter than light. All unexpectedly, a thought flashes before one's mental vision which may be caused by any one of our senses. The fragrance of a flower, a strain of music, a quick glance, a passing sentence, anything ever so slight may set in motion the imagination. An incident, a passing experience, may have in it nothing wrong, yet memory through the power of association can so divert the mind and associate it with sinful suggestions that before one knows it, the imagination runs away with itself and is enveloped in evil.

any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

"Confound the jazz on the radio," we say, "I've a good mind to give the whole outfit away; I'm sick of the stuff they're giving us." The fault is not with the radio or with the programs, but with us. The programs of the world are full of jazz, but if one will only adjust the dial he does not have to listen. The imagination is sensitive and responsive to what it sees and hears, but no one is forced to "listen in." We listen in to that which we really want to hear. Why complain about sin, if that is what we tune in? We must fight evil thoughts with all our power and God's help and guidance. We must shut our minds to gossip, imagination, and all evil thoughts that, if concentrated upon, will eventually lead to sinful action and ultimate sorrow. When a drifting, idle mind is slowly but surely, and sometimes swiftly, moving toward the falls of a Niagara, it is high time to turn and investigate and check that mind.

Sin began with doubt, and is still thriving on doubt. Why, oh why, can't we trust first our God, then our brother? The love that we are commanded to have for our fellow man is built on trust. Why can we not have the strength to say No, and tune out gossip, imagination, and temptation.

It is worth while to consider the quality of that which we accumulate mentally. With what are we filling our minds? Is the inspiring, the useful, the helpful, filling our brain cells, or are our heads the recipients of the worthless and the worn-out junk of life? "Hold fast that which is good."

But the evil is not likely to become action unless one's wicked thought is encouraged. Here comes the Scripture application: "Prove all things." Evil suggestions require immediate investigation. A post-mortem examination of one's thoughts will probably reveal that the real sin is within one's own imaginations. Encouragement develops concentration, and the mind, leaping from one evil thought to another, sweeps into control of the whole body, and presently the evil thought has taken expression. Kill the tempting thought when it first raises its vicious head.

The way to prepare against sudden attacks of imagination is to fill the mind with truth and trust and to "hold fast that which is good." Evil will not be slain until the rule of Christ. The way to safety is that of eternal vigilance. Beat temptation and sin by immediate opposition. Never think the worst, but "whatsoever things are true . . . honest . . . just . . . pure . . . lovely . . . of good report . . . think on these things" (Phil. 4:8). Also, "if there be

The Trinitarian Catastrophe

By Celaine Randall

"Who (Christ) being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God" (Philippians 2:6).

THERE are certain doctrines that the Church of God sets forth as truth, and there are others which we as a denomination consider false. We accept the doctrines which we teach, not because they agree with our own personal ideas or whims, but only because we believe they are taught in the Bible. Too many times sacred pulpits are infected with speakers who teach for the doctrines or teachings of the Bible their own preconceived ideas that are as different from the truth as night is from day. Christ instructed us to teach doctrines of the Bible, and not the commandments of men. We read the following words of Christ in Matthew 15:9: "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." If Christ wanted us to teach the commandments of men, He would not have told the scribes and Pharisees that they were worshiping Him in vain because they were teaching other doctrine than that which He was teaching and which was not in accordance with the Old Testament writings, which they could have read and studied to have gained a knowledge of the truth.

One of the doctrines that we believe is somewhat in error is that of the Trinity, or the supposed three Persons in one. It does not seem logical to us to believe that Christ, God, and the Holy Spirit are one and the same being. Let us leave out the logic part of it, and say that we do not believe it is right because of our understanding of the Word. Even if it did not seem logical to us, if God's Word taught such doctrine then we as true followers of Him should accept it, regardless of the fact that it did not seem logical to us. We think, though, that God's Word is logical and that it is also harmonious; therefore we must make our interpretations logical, reasonable, and harmonious.

One of the texts that is often taken out of its context and used to prove the Trinity is the one quoted at the beginning of this article. The usual interpretation of this text is that Christ who was in the form of God thought it not robbery to be on an equality with God, assuming the same nature, power, responsibility, honor, and reverence that God received, because He was the same person as God. This interpretation presents the thought that Christ was God, the same person manifest in the flesh. Since He was the same person, only in a different form, He would not be usurping any power from anyone else by assuming the equality with His other self (the God that wasn't there)—the thought being obtained from the particular wording of the King James translation of this text in consideration. It is well known that the translators of the King James Version were believers in the Trinity. With this thought in mind, it is logical to believe that they would in their translating present the thought which they had on the subject whenever there was ample opportunity to do this. They did not receive this doctrine after they had studied the manuscripts, but from their preconceived ideas which they had before they started the translation of the Bible according to the King's command. The truthfulness of the statement that they had these ideas before they studied the ancient manuscripts may be questioned by some who set forth this doctrine as truth. We make this statement on the basis of other translations that we have studied. (Cp. Emphatic Diaglott, page 6, "To the Reader.")

Other versions do not translate the common texts on the Trinity with as many clear positive statements as did the King James translators. Since they do not present the thoughts as strongly as did the King's translators, there is some question as to the truth of the clear statements that have been presented on the subject. If there are such plain statements on the Trinity, why do they not make it more sound-proof than it is at the present time? You may say that they are sound-proof now. The question then arises in one's mind why many translators disagree on the truth of the Trinity as presented in the ancient manuscripts that were studied. Many past and present-day scholars of the Greek and Hebrew texts tell us there are many doctrines presented in the King James text which are not presented or taught in the earlier manuscripts, and the doctrine of the Trinity is one of these.

If this is not the interpretation of Paul's statement to the brethren at Philippi, what is the meaning? We should not tear down an interpretation unless we give one that is more logical, fool-proof, reasonable, and one that harmonizes with the context and other scriptures relative to the same subject. We cannot fully explain this text unless we read more from the same chapter. The preceding verse reads as follows: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." First, we must understand the mind that was in Christ. Although He was the Son of God and heir to the cattle upon a thousand hills, heir of thrones and dominions, and all power was given unto Him (Matt. 28:18), yet He disregarded all this pomp and glory and became the servant of men. He went to the lowest degree of service to set an example for His apostles, and you and me. In John 13:14, 15 we read: "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." We believe Christ did not mean here that we should wash one another's feet, but to have the humble spirit He manifested in the washing of His apostles' feet. That, however, is beside the point we wished to express from this text. The main point is that Christ was not above His followers, but even became their servant. That was the mind which was in Christ, a humble mind, one that was not always concentrating on ways of exalting the body. For, we read in Hebrews 5:5: "Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, to day have I begotten thee." It would have been necessary for Christ to have exalted Himself if, as some believe, Christ, God, and the Holy Spirit are the same being. According to such an illusion, Christ was glorified by Himself, only in a different form. That is not what the text says; it states, "Christ glorified not himself."

Christ lived as men, suffered and died as men. He died as a rejected King. During His lifetime on earth, He was tempted as we are today, but faithfully endured every temptation that He might become the pure Son of God. When Christ was tempted of the Devil, He was promised the kingdoms of this world if He would bow down and worship him. Do you not think that this was a temptation to Christ? It was a temptation to Him the same as men are tempted today. It was a temptation similar to this that caused the fall of the first Adam. In Genesis 3:5, we read the words of the Serpent to Eve, saying: "God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." In some translations of the Bible, the rendering of the word "gods" is "God." (See Rotherham; American Revised Version; margin in King James.) The evil desire to be as God caused the downfall of Adam from his position in the Garden. He wished to acquire the same plane as God, have the same power, and assume an equality with God. Inasmuch as this caused the downfall of the first Adam, does it not seem reasonable to believe that if the second Adam had yielded to the same evil desire, He, too, would have fallen? This temptation to be as God, which caused the downfall of the first Adam, did not overcome Christ, the second Adam, because He never allowed it to develop. Thereby, He conquered where the first Adam fell. This shows the mind that was in Christ.

The next point in consideration of this text is the verse following the text in question. We quote: "But made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men." It does not seem right to believe that Christ, who thought it not robbery to be equal with God, would then take upon Himself the form of a servant. The next verse is also one that we must consider, if we are to rightly assume an interpretation of this text. Again we quote: "Being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

The Scriptures definitely teach that Christ died. Therefore, if Trinitarians were correct, there was a catastrophe at the time of Christ's death such as never before happened in the universe, and which will never happen again. That catastrophe was the non-existence of Christ, God, and the Holy Spirit: Christ was dead, and if He were just another form of God and the Holy Spirit, there was no Christ, no God, and no Holy Spirit. It was not only Christ that was dead, if we believe the Trinitarian erroneous ideas, but God and the Holy Spirit, for Christ, God, and the Holy Spirit are one and the same being—they say. If you kill one, you have killed them all. That seems to be an illustration of killing three birds with one stone. We hope that such a catastrophe never happens again, if such reasoning of Trinitarians is true. Of course, we do not believe such fallacy as this, because of our understanding of the Word. According to their view, at the time Jesus was on the cross there was no one in heaven to whom He could have prayed, yet He offered a prayer to His Father in heaven. There is lack of harmony in this interpretation. Christ was either praying to the God that wasn't there, or God and Christ are not the same person.

In support of our teaching that the King James text presents the wrong thought when compared with ancient manuscripts, we shall quote from the Emphatic Diaglott, direct from the Greek text. The Diaglott renders it thus: "Let this disposition be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Who, though being in God's form, yet did not meditate a usurpation to be like God, but divested Himself, taking a bondman's form, having been made in the likeness of men; and being in condition as a man, he humbled Himself, becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." You can plainly understand by this translation that Christ thought not to usurp God's authority, but became a servant to men.

It would be impossible to deal with all the texts that Trinitarians use to substantiate their beliefs, but this one text that has been considered is one which presents difficulty to some people when confronted with this theory. Let us present the thought, in closing, that Christ and God are one, not in being, but one in purpose and one in ideals. They are one as husband and wife are one, and as he that plants and he that waters are one (1 Cor. 3:8).

ORIGIN OF INFANT BAPTISM

In doing research work on this subject, we have found some very enlightening information on immersion in the Old Testament. We have been amazed to discover the extent to which immersion was used by the children of Israel. Our next article will be on "The Origin of Immersion."

thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel" (Psalm 2:7-9).

Thus, men await the fulfillment of the two great suppers of Revelation 19:7 and 17. The nations, like gluttonous fowls, await the supper of God's wrath; but the saints will soon be invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb, from which time they will enter into joint-rulership with Christ to judge the earth and to restore it to its Edenic beauty and purity. (To be continued) ignored this, so she keeps her troops there. China is noted for its vast resources and abundant vegetation. This is what Japan wants for her increasing population. She herself has few resources, and must expand.

THE SITUATION IN THE EAST

Coming to the present time, we find that Japan is down in Indo-China. Here, she has come for gas, tin, and rubber. Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies produce about eighty per cent of the rubber that our country uses. So these islands and Singapore are a bone of contention between England and the United States. Just recently, Japan has made the boast that she is going to get the Philippine Islands. Some nation asked the question, "How about England and the United States? will they let you do that?" To this, Japan replied, "Hitler will take care of Europe and England, and we will look after the United States."

Since 1931, England has taken more or less of the appeasement policy, and the United States is left alone. England's back is against the wall. She is retreating—retreating. England recently sent delegates to have a conference to stop the trouble. Japan said, "We will give you twenty-four hours to get off the Burma Road, or we will bomb your cargoes. You must be careful." And Japan made them sign on the dotted line.

Our country would have no appeasement at the time, so Japan has stiffened toward us more and more, especially since our country has taken that stand and has told Japan that we would interfere if she did not keep the Burma Road open.

On September 22, 1940, Japan gave out the word that she had joined with Germany and the other Axis Powers. Soon after, our country put an embargo on forty-one articles that Japan bought from us. However, we did not put a complete embargo on scrap iron and gas, of which Japan buys great quantities. At that time all Americans were ordered out of the Orient. Japan said that as soon as the complete embargo was put on scrap iron and gas, she believed the deck would be cleared for action. A little later, England tried to open the Burma Road. Japan immediately began to bomb supplies on the Road, and sent her fleet down there.

The powers then began to wake up, and England, Australia, and the United States sent troops. Our government mobilized its navy and sent her three fleets to the Atlantic, the Pacific, and one to Manila. Our navy and its every battleship are on a war footing. Millions of dollars have been spent on navy bases in California, Canada, Alaska, Guam, and other places in the Pacific.

When Matsuoka visited with Hitler, he had thirteen naval officials with him. It is reported that the Japanese Navy is the one upon which Hitler is depending to keep busy in the Pacific, while he battles in the Atlantic.

Through Hitler's recommendation, Japan says that she has worked out a complete program between Russia and herself. Russia has released all her rights in Singapore to Japan, and they tell us there will be no more trouble between Russia and Japan. Japan has announced that she had three problems to work out. The first one was with Russia, which, she says was satisfactorily worked out by their recent treaty. The second one is with China, which is about accomplished, as seen in the recent order for the withdrawal of foreigners from the Orient. Her third aim, she says, is to make a great push down to Singapore and drive the American Fleet out of the Pacific. When that time comes, the battle of the Pacific will begin. Japan has made the remark that our country has been made the arsenal of democracy, and that the war will strike us on both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

It is the opinion that upon Matsuoka's return to Japan from his conference with the Axis Powers, the clash may come at any time. The lecturer said, "It is no longer a question as to whether there is to be a war in the Pacific, but how soon it will come." He also stated that for a long time the Axis Powers have had thousands of pounds of poison gas which they have kept in store, ready to use when the time comes that they think it may be needed.

The Scriptures tell us that there are three unclean spirits (Rev. 16:13, 14) that are to go to the kings of the earth and the whole world, to gather them to battle. In other words, there is to be a universal war that will involve all nations. Who is there at this late date who does not recognize these three unclean spirits as Communism, Nazism, and Fascism?

God grant that our leaders may turn to God in sincerity in these dark hours for help and guidance in this great crisis.

BIBLE YOUTHS CHALLENGE THE YOUTH OF TODAY

tells us of Christ: "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him."

There is also the challenge to training. Which of the people we have considered could have succeeded in his great tasks without the training we are told in each instance was received? From kindergarten age through high school, five days each week, nine months each year, is commonly conceded necessary to equip any child to face the task of making a living: many are then just ready to go forward with further study. How few, though, of our Christian people consider more than one or two hours a week necessary for even teen-age youth to study for religious poise and power! "The days of our life are three-score years and ten." How many hours of common school it takes to prepare one to live this brief period! How much more necessary to prepare for eternity!

For many weeks we have read notices in The Restitution Herald of an opportunity for six weeks of Summer Training School, conducted by able teachers, and how few have availed themselves of the opportunity offered! Vacations will be enjoyed somewhere. Those of us who have been at Oregon, Illinois, for even brief stays, can assure you there is no more pleasant, or profitable, or educational place to be. Parents, I beg of you, do not neglect your child's religious education. None of us can foresee far into the future—but we do not need to, for even now it seems to be becoming increasingly difficult to keep young folks steadfast in the faith.

According to 2 Timothy 3:15, Paul told Timothy: "From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

Young people, will you accept the challenge of these Bible youths? Will you study to show yourselves "approved unto God"? Will you be obedient to the commands of God's Word? "Hear thou, my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way" (Prov. 23:19). Will you plan now to give six weeks—or nine months—or three years—or more—to training yourselves for eternity? It is time to THINK NOW!

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

Adapted from the larger Egermeier's Bible Story Book, reviewed in this column some months ago, is Egermeier's Picture-Story Life of Christ, illustrated with 105 pictures based on the life of the Messiah. This book, like the Bible Story Book, is published by the Gospel Trumpet Company ($2.00).

In addition to the 105 illustrations, there are 61 stories—very short, all of them. Type is large and clear. (Why are children's books always done in big type, while children's Bibles are printed in type so small it take a reading glass and an arc light to read them?) The stories normally avoid any mention of doctrine; so the book should be acceptable for almost any family. Like Thornton W. Burgess, Miss Egermeier somehow manages to make her tales interesting for children, delightful for adults. The book's chief appeal is for those of 8-10, approximately.

Although we usually hesitate to recommend any commentary or book tinged with modernism, the Abingdon Bible Commentary (Methodist Book Concern; $5.00) is so outstanding that it's being suggested despite the normal taboo.

You won't like the tone of the book—it's issued by a house which specializes on higher criticism. But you will like many of the suggestions it contains. Definitely, it is not recommended for anyone but an experienced student; but for him, it has a great many valuable uses. For teaching what the other half of Protestantism thinks about the Bible, for example, this commentary has few parallels. You'll find it useful in comparing other views with your own, in learning what recent thought about Biblical authorship has become, in discovering how modern criticism, as distinguished from the older German criticism, works.

Each book is covered fairly closely; in addition, each book (of the Bible, of course) is given a separate introduction which undertakes to tell when, how, and by whom the book was written. You won't agree with the introductions. The textual analysis is much superior. Good maps and an excellent index make the volume more usable than most commentaries.

Meditations in Scripture

"Either make the tree good, and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit. O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things. But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned" (Matt. 12:33-37).

Saul Meets His Master

Saul was a very sincere worker for the synagogue leaders. He thought he was serving God! We do not know why he was "chosen" by our Lord to work for Him. There are many sincere people today who do not have the truth of the Scriptures, yet seem to remain unchanged. However, Saul was suddenly in the midst of a great light which came from heaven. Before it, he fell to the ground. As he sank down he heard a voice which said, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

Saul answered, "Who art thou, Lord?"

The Lord answered, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest."

Paul, with all his sincere desires and works, found he had been doing just the opposite of what pleased his Master. When he met Him, he was quick to ask sincerely, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" -Jesus told Saul what to do, as He always will when we wait and seek His will.

There is a time coming when sincere people who are not doing God's will, will not be given the opportunity of learning God's will until it is too late. They will hear the fearful words: "Depart from me, I never knew you." Therefore, let us study now, that we may be right.

As Saul arose from the earth, he could see nothing. The brave and fearless Saul had to be led by the hand! He could not see one step ahead! We, too, cannot see ahead. However, if we dwell in His will, we will be led surely and rightly—if we steadfastly dwell in His will.

Saul did not enter Damascus in the manner he had planned, nor for the purpose with which he left his home. Yet, was he as blind as when he could see and was persecuting Christians? His inner blindness was gone, for he knew Jesus and he was following Him.

A Certain Disciple

Ananias was a disciple of the Lord who lived in Damascus. In a vision, he was told to go to Saul. Now, Ananias had heard of Saul. The Christians feared him, as perhaps Jewish people today fear Hitler. Saul had done much evil among Christ's followers. Ananias told the Lord: "Here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that call upon thy name."

Jesus told Ananias to go, for Saul was a "chosen vessel" to Him to "bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel" (Acts 9:15).

Saul was now willing to follow Jesus. His name was changed to Paul, which means "small." Paul became one of Jesus' best helpers.

Will you, too, become one of His helpers?

Let's Think a While

Those who are truly converted live differently afterwards. How did Saul change?

Can we be "bad trees" and bear "good fruit"?

What are "idle words" that we must "give an account thereof"? (See first paragraph on the page.)

Willingness to Serve

* * * By Thelma Richardson, Hammond, La.

The most beautiful theme portrayed in the New Testament for our understanding and acceptance is Christ's teachings. Throughout the four Gospels can be found the direct words of Christ as He taught His disciples and the multitude. The remainder of the New Testament deals with Christian living after Christ's ascension. The name "Christian" truly means "a follower of Christ." It is the duty of every Christian to follow Christ's teaching—to be Christ's servant, giving his or her best to Him.

It is very evident that the joy and pleasure derived from service lies in the willingness with which one does the service. "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver" (2 Cor. 9:7). Let us give willingly our lives in service for Christ.

Let us consider the results of willingness as revealed in the Bible. One of the most outstanding features of the Old Testament was the building of the Tabernacle, God's sanctuary. In Exodus 35:29, we find that "the children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the Lord," which made it possible to construct the Tabernacle with the best materials.

We all recall that when David asked for offerings to build the Temple, men with high positions offered willingly. Willingness to serve brought success then.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service" (Rom. 12:1). Only with a willing heart and mind can we do our reasonable service to God. There is a beautiful hymn entitled, "Willing Am I."

"Willing am I and ready alway,
Willing am I His will to obey,
Willing am I to speak in His name,
Willing His love abroad to proclaim."

If we would sing those words, I think we would be more often reminded that it takes willingness to give one's best in service. May we grow more willing to do the Master's work, for in that work there is joy which cannot be compared to the enjoyment derived from any worldly pursuit.

Brings Help From Above

Thelma has given us reasons why we should be willing to serve. Suppose that you are willing to serve the Lord—willing to do anything for Him, but someone near you just will not let you alone. You know he is trying to disprove Christianity and all for which it stands. He might even get antagonistic. What will you do then?

Remember David? He was that righteous ruler of the Israelites who lived a thousand years or more before the birth of Christ. It seems that he was quite beset with troubles, as you will find if you will read Psalm 56. He had enemies that were on his trail every day—he had no peace. Men sought to turn his very words against him. Even though David was king over Israel, those very unworthy people disturbed him to no end.

However, David had assurance. When things began to get a little too thick for him to withstand, he would call upon his Lord, "God is for me." He knew that he was doing his best to follow the will of the Lord, and he also knew that in so doing he was assured the guidance and protection which he would need.

David also looked beyond the many troubles of that day to a time when there would be no more trouble. "Thou hast delivered my soul from death: wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?" He believed in the promises of God and was fulfilling the requirements of one who would be saved. He realized his weakness under the constant torment of his enemies, and asked God to help him over the rougher places, for he knew that in the future a Kingdom would be established that would be filled with people who were righteously happy, living under the perfect leadership of Christ.

Did you ever build a model of something; then, after you had finished it, place it alongside that which you had tried to copy? Your model looked pretty good alone, but it lost some of its beauty when compared with the original. Life today, and which we take so seriously to the point of worry, will surely seem rather lusterless when compared to life in the Kingdom. Since we must live this life to its fullest, let us take the attitude of David, doing our best and calling on the Lord when our best is not enough.

THE MORNING STAR CHURCH OF GOD South Bend, Indiana

Attending Sunday school, May 4, was very inspirational (as is always the case), but it seemed especially so this morning. The enthusiasm toward learning and teaching the Word, as manifested by the twenty-six students and teachers present, was really a big thrill. We know that God is blessing His work through our efforts. May we continue to work in the path that is pleasing to Him.

Next Sunday, being Mothers' Day, a special program is in process of preparation to entertain the mothers, to be followed by a picnic dinner as a means of making the acquaintance of the new mothers. We are looking for a large crowd next Sunday.

Frances Boyle, Secy.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Bro. Richard Smith preached in Dixon, Ill. last Sunday, May 2.

Bro. Orris Mills has secured a position near his home in Eden Valley, Minn. To have this position, it was necessary for him to leave the School, May 12.

A delightful time was enjoyed at Sr. Marion Wilde's birthday party, Monday evening, May 5. Members of the Ambassadors' Bible Class constituted those present. Games were played which made the party interesting. Delicious refreshments were served. Bro. Orris Mills gave a short farewell address to the class, then the class sang, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." We wish Bro. Mills much success in his endeavors for the Lord.

The students were quite surprised to receive three May baskets. Those who were so kind and considerate were Miss Shirley Beck, Miss Betty Claussen, and Sr. Edith White, all of Oregon.

The writer recently enjoyed a pleasant visit with his brother and . . . in Grand Rapids, Mich.
 C. Alan McLain, Reporter.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

The Ripley church has secured the services of Bro. J. R. LeCrone as pastor for the year beginning September 1, 1941. Bro. LeCrone is not a stranger to most of us, and comes highly recommended. We are looking forward to great accomplishments by his and our united efforts.

Bro. Gerald Cooper, who for some months past has been a patient in a sanatorium at Ah-Gwah-Ching, Minn., has returned to his home here. We are very glad to have him in our midst and to see him looking and feeling well.

Juanita Logsdon has returned to her home from Schmidt Memorial Hospital at Beardstown, and is somewhat improved.

Saturday, March 22, Bro. Vernon Robins and Miss Wanda Everhart were united in marriage by Pastor Rippey at Middle Grove, Ill. Many readers of The Restitution Herald will remember Bro. Robins, and all wish these two happiness and success throughout life. They are residing on a farm near Mt. Sterling, Ill.
 Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Secy.

THE GLADBROOK CONFERENCE

We enjoyed a good Spring Conference at Gladbrook, Iowa, last Sunday, May 4, 1941. There was Sunday school in the morning, with Bro. C. W. Howe leading the adult class. Bro. A. M. Jones delivered the forenoon sermon. Both Bros. H. S. Hunt and J. W. Williams preached in the afternoon, after which services Bro. Hunt administered at the baptismal service of Mrs. Wanamaker of Marengo.

Representatives from several of the churches attended. The Gladbrook brethren were gracious hosts. Thank you, Gladbrook.

Esther Jenkins.

MINNESOTA STATE BEREANS

The Minnesota State Bereans met at Eden Valley on April 26, 27, in what was considered a very successful conference.

Several enlightening and well-attended classes were conducted by Bros. Walter Wiggins, John Mercer, and John Denchfield.

On Sunday afternoon, the State business meeting was held, at which time the following State officers were elected for the ensuing year: Stanley Ross, Litchfield, president; Grace Johnson, Hector, vice president; Lorraine Gaspar, Eden Valley, secretary; and Elton Ruhn, Litchfield, treasurer.

Among other things, it was decided to send out gospel teams to the various isolated groups and to any place that the committee might select to carry on meetings and to assist in any way possible to help carry on the Word of God. Bro. John Denchfield, Bro. John Mercer, and Sr. Lorraine Gaspar were appointed as a committee of three to go ahead with this work and many of those in attendance signed up as willing workers.

June 1, 1941, was set as gift day, at which time all Bereans and anyone else who wished could and should send their donation to the treasurer, who is Elton Ruhn, at Litchfield.

We wish God's blessing on this and any other work in the furtherance of God's true Word.
 Stanley O. Ross.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"We are leaving home this Thursday (May 8) for services over the second and third Sundays in Arkansas; then we shall start a meeting about fifty miles northeast of Springfield, Mo., at Lockwood."—T. A. Drinkard, Hand-ley, Texas.

The five-dollar contribution to the Ministers' Fund recently credited to the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church of God was, instead, a personal contribution from Bro. and Sr. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Bro. Krogh being the pastor.

"We are taking thirteen members of my Sunday school class to see the Passion Play at Bloomington, Ill., Saturday, May 10."—Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Tipp City, Ohio.

"I volunteered into the California State Guard. . . I'm in the Marines—Company G of the local Guard regiment, and the strictest of them all—by my own choice."—Arlen Marsh, Los Angeles, Calif.

Accompanied with Grandma Hatch and Uncle Paul, the editor and family were royally entertained at the Earl Koontz home, Adeline, Ill., on Mother's Day.

"We are interested in the Summer Bible Training School. Four or five may attend from here, and we are sure of one or two."—Walter Wiggins, Eden Valley, Minn. . . . That's the spirit! If all five enroll by June 1 we may faint, but we shall gladly take the chance. Somewhere there will be a respirator.

Bro. F. L. Austin will preach, D.V., at the morning service, the first Sunday of General Conference, planning to use as his title, "The Shepherd and His Sheep." Other speakers will be announced soon. Plan now to attend the General Conference. It is a good place to go.

"The enemies of righteousness are sometimes more determined and co-operative than are the adherents of truth," says C. E. Randall in the next Truth Seekers' Quarterly.

"I am planning to again attend the Summer School. It is such a wonderful opportunity for young people, one should not let such a chance slip by. I hope there will be the twenty students to make possible conducting the School, plus many more who wish to better fit themselves for Christ's service."
 —Grace Johnson, Hector, Minn.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

The attendance at Sunday school, April 20, was forty-six. This is an improvement over the preceding months, as there has been quite a bit of sickness and the roads have been very bad.

With the death of Sr. Elizabeth Hutchings on April 12, we have lost a faithful, devoted member.

Due to an increase in our Sunday school attendance, it has been necessary to divide the adult class. This has been needed for a long time, but until now we have been short of teachers. Bro. James Watkins is conducting a teachers' training class each Sunday he is with us, and much new talent has been discovered.

Bro. Sylvan Riehey is the editor of our new church paper. It is published monthly and contains short articles by different members of the church and news items.

Ruth Goekler, Secy.

IN MEMORY

The Restitution Herald of this week brought to me the notice of Sr. Elizabeth Hutchings' death. As I read it, my heart ached because I shall not see her again until the coming of our Lord. Sr. Hutchings was a member of the Murphy family. It was in the home of Christian and Diana Murphy that we were cared for in the many visits we made to that locality. Here we met the influence that we then stood so much in need of. No one could know Sr. Diana Murphy without being made the better for having met her, and the members of her family have to a very large degree inherited her many fine qualities. Sr. Hutchings inherited her mother's qualities to a very high degree. Kindness and charity were among the fine qualities manifested in their lives. These qualities had much to do with the success of the work in the Salem community. No matter what people may have thought of their religious faith, their lives commanded respect wherever they were known. When these qualities are manifested by members of the church, the church can never fail. Our love and sympathy go out to Grace and Chrissie and all other members of the family. May the day hasten for which we look.

S. J. Lindsay.

ATTENTION, ISOLATED MEMBERS

Do you like to receive visits from brethren who pass near you on their travels?

This would be much easier if it were known where all our isolated members live. The Church of God is planning a directory in which it is desired to list all isolated members. We want your name in it. Will you cooperate in sending me the following information?

1. Your name and mail address.

2. Location of your home with reference to nearest main highways. Give brief directions how to reach it from a given point on the highway.

For this purpose an isolated member is to be considered anyone who lives at a distance from an organized church, whether affiliated with it or not. So, even if you are a member of a Church of God congregation, but live at a distance of, say, twenty-five miles away, please report.

When the directory is published, only those who report will be listed.

Eight have reported so far.

Be sure your name will be included.

Send your report to: M. W. Lyon, 11405 Lake Shore Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio. A post card is a convenient way to send it. Do it soon.

M. W. Lyon.

FLYING BLIND

By Beatrice (McChesney) Walter

Life, today, is but a turmoil;
Weary and worn, we run the race.
We seek rest, though cannot find it,
As uncertainty we face.

Dear America, we love thee,
As our leaders seek today
To protect our life of freedom—
It has well begun to sway.

As today our armies gather,
It is very plain to see
That our statesmen and great leaders
See great danger there might be.

Today our hearts are heavily burdened,
As our sons are called to go—
God Almighty calls to battle,
The Armageddon of the foe.

Weary souls with patient murmurs
Seek His mercies as you go,
For today we are uncertain,
"Flying blind," as we all know.

It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Summer Bible Training School

June 17—July 25, 1941

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder Harry A. Sheets:

TRAINING FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

A trained mind as well as a consecrated heart is a necessity for effective Christian service today. Many people have been led to Christ in days past by consecrated leaders whose knowledge and usage of correct English were woefully limited. But those with whom they worked were likewise untrained. With our increased educational facilities, people now demand more refinement and polish in the linguistic ability of their leaders. Any appreciable defect causes a distrust in the accuracy of one's knowledge of God's Word. This has influenced the Board of Religious Education to include English in the Summer Training curriculum.

Paul faced a group of religious zealots at Mars' Hill in Athens. These people were neutral in mind toward Paul, but strongly biased in their religion. Reformers had been killed because they dared to speak against their gods. The efficacy of Paul's sermon depended upon his ability to keep his listeners in a friendly, listening mood. He succeeded because he knew how to handle people. Another phase of our Summer School will be to teach some of the methods used to handle people successfully. This will be from a Christian standpoint to aid in the spread of salvation.

Our work will be to give instruction in applied Christianity. We hope, thereby, to make our students more effective in their work when they return to their respective localities. The students should be much better prepared for Sunday school and general church work as a result of attendance this summer.

Christ needs the services of all who can attend.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

O Christian, Keep Thy Trust!

By Barbara Fish

"O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called" (1 Timothy 6:20).

THE Apostle Paul's first Epistle to Timothy was written as a personal letter not only to him, but to others who in succeeding centuries were to benefit from it. This letter is a part of the inspired Word of God, therefore it has survived throughout the years, that it might be passed on to us.

Said Paul to Timothy: "Keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings" (1 Tim. 6:20). It is in the Bible that we find the perfect answer to any important and worth-while question. God seemed to foresee and understand the questions that would perplex us, and He made it possible for us to learn the answers by diligently studying His Word.

As members of the Church of God, we disbelieve the doctrine of the immortality of the soul; we reject as unscriptural the teaching that when we die some part of us will flutter away to heaven. We believe the Bible does not uphold such unwarranted teachings. God did not tell Adam that if he were good his soul would go to heaven. Much to the contrary, these are the words God spoke to Adam after Adam had sinned: "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19). We are Adam's seed and we, too, must die and return to dust as did Adam, for through his sin, death was passed to all mankind. Christ, however, was victoriously raised from the dead to immortality. So, through His victory, we shall be raised when Christ returns to reward His people and to rule the earth in righteousness. Paul said, "Christ died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him" (1 Thess. 5:10). Likewise, Daniel prophesied: "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake" (Dan. 12:2). When one is sleeping, no part of him is absent; the whole body is present and at rest. So it is when one dies; he is sleeping, every part of his being is present, and it is not until Christ returns that he will receive his reward—the new life.

There are many other unfounded and unstable beliefs, and if the person who believes them would only study his Bible, he would then learn the truth. Such beliefs have gradually crept into the church. Surely, Paul did not teach the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, for not once did he use the term "immortal soul," nor in any other place in the Bible has this phrase been used. How strange, then, that the majority of people who go to church believe they have immortal souls!

Christians are to guard the true gospel, to avoid talking vainly, and to teach those who are willing to listen. We are to help them understand the truth as we know it, keeping "that which is committed to (our) trust."

There is, too, another form of false teaching, that of so-called science—not that there is no true science, but that there is today taught a "false" science. Recently, the writer heard that certain children not more than eight years of age are being taught against Bible truth. Much has been said about the false teachings in colleges, but now we have come to realize that not only the young people, but tiny children are being taught that the earth is only a dismembered piece of the sun, and was without plan or purpose thrown into space from that molten mass. We believe that it is the duty of every parent to find out what his child is being taught. If the child is being taught "so-called science," the parent should then take his Bible and show the child the falseness of his school textbook. The Bible is our only perfect textbook. ## “Meat in Due Season”

Jesus taught that he who gives “meat in due season” is a faithful and wise servant. (Matt. 24:45.) Further, Jesus promised: “Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods” (vv. 46, 47). The “meat in due season” of which Jesus spoke refers, obviously, to sound doctrine which the wise servant will teach, and which he will be particularly careful to teach as he sees the time drawing near for the return of the Lord to reward both him and his hearers. The Word of God, in its simplicity, beauty, and power, is the “meat in due season” that will so nourish our lives as to prepare us for the coming of Jesus Christ. . . Shepherds, feed your sheep.

There are certain Bible doctrines considered by the Church of God to be especially important, doctrines that are either disbelieved or woefully slighted by the leading and popular churches of this man-do-it-his-own-way day. The Restitution Herald, official organ of the Church of God, advocates those doctrines, and attempts to give prominence to those articles which are in close keeping with the standards and doctrines of the Church of God. That our contributors may know the type of articles for which there is especial need, we are inserting in the center of this page a statement of the doctrines widely advocated by both the Church of God and its Restitution Herald. Let us all “stand fast in the faith.”

There is a need and likelihood of publishing some good tracts concerning Signs of the Second Coming, the Restoration of Israel, the World-Wide Restitution, and the Present Challenge of the Church of God. The editor, therefore, will be watching for articles that are especially good along these lines, and will within the next few months select several articles for recommendation to the Executive Board of the General Conference for publication in tract form. The articles should not be lengthy; we suggest under no consideration to be over two thousand words, and preferably not over one thousand words. Let us publish more tracts and shorter tracts.

Write, writers, write! Let us have more “meat in due season.” We are appreciative of a good measure of cooperation, and now have an ever-growing force of good writers, yet it is unfortunate and somewhat annoying that some of our most talented and influential writers so seldom address our widespread Herald congregation. Come in, partners, we need and want your help. Somebody is going to write an article that will be selected for tract publication and wide distribution. “Is that somebody you?” There will, in fact, be two or three such selections; so lend us a hand, and let us set a table before our brethren—a table as laden with “meat in due season” as some of the various annual-meeting tables are “loaded down” with the necessities and sweets of mortality. Surely, as ministers of God’s Word, we should as bountifully supply the “manna” as conference hosts supply the “mammon.” Wrong?

Who Will Challenge the Champion?

Yes, Illinois is Champion—having 202 paid subscriptions to The Restitution Herald. Ohio zooms along with 137; Indiana’s 115 raises only a little dust for California who, once determined, may yet with her 89 subscriptions romp into the home stretch to challenge the Champion.

We suggest a little friendly rivalry. Who will challenge the Champion? It is altogether possible for some states not herein mentioned to overtake Illinois, if they will really “lean into the bit.” The Restitution Herald may be sent to new readers for $1.50 per year, or $1.00 for nine months. (Renewals cost $2.00 per year.) “To the work! To the work! We are servants of God.” The race is on!

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the “restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began” (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

What Is the Soul?

By R. H. Judd

THE writer was much interested in the recent remarks of an esteemed friend on the above topic and his incidentally calling attention to the fact that no subject of Scripture can correctly be considered as having yielded all the information that is available from a study of it.

There is a strong, and very natural tendency among collective gatherings, as well as with individuals, to overestimate the value of the teaching of those who have been instrumental in bringing us to fuller light on any particular Bible theme. We continually chide our "orthodox" friends with too readily accepting the statements of others, without first verifying for themselves the pros and cons of the subject under review.

For many years we have felt that not even Conditionalists have, as yet, gone to the root of the matter in this important and interesting study of this word "soul." Canon Constable, Moncrief, Dr. Thomas, and others have given us much valuable information, and have to a considerable extent cleared away the mists that surrounded the subject. Our "orthodox" friends make far more frequent use of the word than do others, but if we endeavor to get from them an explanation or definition of what in actual fact "the soul" is, we are met with a haziness of thought and a variety of expression which confuse, rather than help, the inquirer. Most of our own writers, namely conditionalist writers, on the subject of "What Is the Soul?" go back to Genesis 2:7, where the formation of Adam is recorded, and from it deduce the conclusion that the man formed from the dust of the ground is himself the living soul; and that all the subsequent and varied uses of the word are only expressions of the results which emanate from the living personality, whether they be the material acts of the body, or the supposed immaterial processes of the brain which produces thought. That they are unquestionably right in the conclusions drawn from the language of Genesis 2:7 is readily admitted, for the man Adam became a living soul. It may, however, very reasonably be questioned whether the man Adam, formed in full stature at the beginning of his career, but without life (or soul), and never having had it, could properly be designated "a soul." So far as we are aware from present knowledge of Scripture, use is only made of the word "soul" of those who previously had, or at present have life (or soul). Under such conditions it is applied to vegetable and animal, including man, whether dead or alive.

It cannot be denied that human nature the world over, both ancient and modern, have tenaciously clung to belief in the existence after death of "soul" or "spirit." The latter term is perhaps in much more general use by the heathen past and present, at least in some regions of the world, and the former word (though not infrequently both interchangeably) by the professing Christian. It is true that widespread belief does not guarantee the truth of that which is believed, but it does afford sufficient ground to warrant inquiry.

Matthew 10:28 reads: "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul." This text is undoubtedly largely responsible for the average Christian's belief in the survival of the soul after death, with conscious life. Is there any question that he is correct insofar as he assumes from the language used, that clear distinction is made between "soul" and "body"? We think not. He is, however, mistaken in supposing that the former is immaterial and imperishable, while the latter is plainly both material and perishable, for the language clearly proclaims that both are material, for the verb "kill" is used of each. We think that from the wording of the passage the thought is correctly surmised that "to kill the soul" (if it were humanly possible) would certainly result in the death of the body, while the reverse would not necessarily be true. To keep the suggested line of thought definitely before our readers, we restate it as our conviction that Matthew 10:28 makes two points clear: 1) evident distinction between soul and body; 2) that both are material, because both can be "killed."

Our next question is: In going to Genesis 2:7 for our information, have we gone to the source of the whole matter? Or, to put the question another way, Is there any earlier Bible statement regarding the soul? Most decidedly, Yes! For many years the writer has felt that the key lies not in Genesis 2:7, as so generally understood, but in that wonderful chapter of Genesis 1, where the beginning of all life (in its renewed state; see Psalm 104:30) is recorded. Here we find life divided into two great classes—first, the vegetable kingdom, next the animal.

For continuance of the vegetable life, God provided that its "seed" should be "in itself" (Gen. 1:11). The "itself" of the vegetable world mentioned here is "the body" (or plant) which God gives to the seed (see 1 Cor. 15:37, 38), for vegetable life cannot, any more than animal life, actively live and express its individual life without a body. As Paul so clearly pointed out, the body of the wheat seed is the wheat plant. (Please turn to page 10)

Why Is Christ Coming?

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

ONE of the greatest events that will ever take place in the history of man is the second coming of the Son of God. His coming will change world conditions more than anything has ever changed them thus far. The present systems of government will be dissolved and will become the "kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ." The distress among nations and individuals will be relieved. The suffering and sorrow will cease. Christ's second coming will terminate this age when men are clamoring for gold and the Golden Age will be ushered in.

"God . . . Spoke . . . Unto the Fathers"

There are four divisions that we might make in the time from Adam to our present day. From Adam to the Flood, God dealt with only a few individuals, and probably revealed to Adam and Enoch some of His great plan for redeeming men. From the Flood to Moses, God again spoke to a few faithful men. To Abraham, God gave the definite promise that through one of his descendants all families of the earth would be blessed. The promise was renewed to Abraham's son and grandson. When Moses led the descendants of Abraham's grandson, Jacob, out of Egypt where they had become a great nation, God began to deal with them as a nation. He gave them His law, and revealed Himself by the strong arm with which He delivered them from their enemies.

From the time of Christ, who is the promised Descendant of Abraham, until now, God has been calling all who will, to hear His Son. "The times of this ignorance (when God spoke only to a few) God winked at; but now commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30). Now, God is asking all men to have fellowship with Him and His Son. He has revealed Himself to more people since the birth of Christ than ever before. However, God has not yet done any great and notable thing in this age to convince the world of His mighty power. It is true that at one time God did such a thing, when He brought the Flood upon the earth, but many of the people of this day try to explain it as a natural thing that "just happened."

It remains for the coming of the "great and notable day of the Lord" to convince the world that there is a God in heaven who rules. This great day of the Lord is the time when Christ will come to this earth the second time.

"Be Not Deceived"

It has been and still is thought by many that the prophecy of Christ's second coming is to be interpreted spiritually, and that He was to come to the individual at conversion. It is true that if Christ does not enter one's life at conversion he is not converted, but this is not mentioned in the Bible as being the second coming of Christ. Some have also thought that the Kingdom of God was established at the time of conversion in the heart of the converted. Indeed, Scripture is sometimes used to prove the above, even Luke 17:20, 21: "Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you." It sounds convincing, but when we discover in the verse before that Jesus was speaking to the Pharisees who hated Jesus, and who would have nothing to do with God's highest Representative, we can hardly believe that the Kingdom was in their hearts. The better translation which is in the margin of the King James Version is: "among you," instead of "within you." We can see how the Kingdom of God was among them, with the King standing before them and many of His servants, who would be rulers with Him, being in their very midst. They were walking in the land upon which the Kingdom would be established. Because the nation at that time rejected the King, the Kingdom was not then established.

"He Cometh With Clouds"

The second coming of Christ will be literal, as will be the establishment of the Kingdom. The last time the disciples were with Jesus they said, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6.) Jesus informed them that it was not for them to know the things that God kept in His own power. "When he had spoken these things (concerning the power they were to receive and their work of witnessing), while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:9-11). Christ ascended literally, bodily, and a cloud received Him; so will He return, "and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:30). "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1:7).

Restoration of David's Throne

There are several real things to be accomplished when Jesus comes. One of the most important of these is the literal re-establishment of the Kingdom of God. To understand what the Kingdom of God is we turn to 1 Chronicles 28:5, and read the words of David at the close of his life: "Of all my sons, (for the Lord hath given me many sons,) he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." The "kingdom of the Lord" is the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Jehovah. "Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king, instead of David his father" (1 Chron. 29:23). The Kingdom is not now established, because the Lord spoke to the last king of Israel by Ezekiel the Prophet, saying: "Thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him" (Ezek. 21:25-27).

Jesus Will Be King

The following prophecy was to the mother of the One whose right it is: "Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David" (the 'throne of the Lord,' 'the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel'): and he shall reign over the house of Jacob (Israel) for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:31-33). It is the "right" of Jesus to have the throne, and He will have it when He comes this second time. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory" (Matt. 25:31). It will be at His appearing that He will be given the Kingdom, as indicated in Paul's words: "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1).

World-Wide Restitution

Restitution will be the result of the establishment of this Kingdom of unending righteousness. It was prophesied by Peter that God "shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:20, 21). It will be a time of restoring and re-establishing of all things pleasant and worth while, for "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new" (Rev. 21:4, 5).

The Hope That "Maketh Unashamed"

The only hope of man is found in the accomplishment of the resurrection from the dead. "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (1 Cor. 15:22, 23). "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thess. 4:16).

A resurrection to life without health and peace and happiness is hardly desirable. We could not expect the survivors in some of the war-ravaged countries to wish for their dead loved ones to be raised, only to suffer once more the agony of war and strife. Therefore, when Jesus comes again to raise the dead, it will be under very different circumstances than now exist in the world. When Christ comes, "the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity" (Isa. 33:24). This shall be the cry of that day, "Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert" (35:3-6).

"My Reward Is With Me"

The time of Christ's coming is definitely the time of reward for the Christian. "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works" (Matt. 16:27). Jesus also said, "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be" (Rev. 22:12).

When Jesus comes to establish His Kingdom, the atheist will see his mistake and weep; the rich man will see his weakness and be ashamed. The dictator and his co-rulers will see their folly and cry for the rocks and mountains to fall on them. Those who say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" will cry for mercy.

Are You Ready?

The Apostle Paul earnestly looked for the second coming of our Saviour and wrote to Timothy, saying: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Do you understand and love His appearing?

BIBLE PROPHECIES

In Three Parts—Part Two

By J. M. Morgan

WHEN CHRIST returns there will be nations—as in the present time—over which He will reign.

Jerusalem's Blessing to Nations

Micah prophesied: "In the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Micah 4:1-3).

"Thus Saith the Lord"

Those who do not believe there will be nations on the earth, and who deny that Israel will be restored as a nation, say: "Oh, it is only 'the people' who say there will be nations going up to the mountain of the Lord's house to learn." Reading a little farther in the prophecy of Micah, however, we see that it is clearly stated: "The mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it" (4:4). We read, moreover, "In that day, saith the Lord, will I assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted; and I will make her that halteth a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the Lord shall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever" (vv. 6, 7).

New Testament Confirmation

New Testament prophecies also give assurance that the Israelitish nation will be restored when Christ reigns in the earth. Gabriel, "sent from God," told Mary: "The Lord God shall give unto him (Mary's promised child) the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:32, 33). The Apostle Paul said, "Blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Sion a Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob" (Rom. 11:25, 26), and Jesus Himself spoke of Jerusalem as "the city of the great King" (Matt. 5:35).

Blessings and Growth of the Kingdom

There will be many great and blessed events when Christ "shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously" (Isa. 24:23). One of the blessed events of that day will be that "the government shall be upon his shoulder" (Isa. 9:6). "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this" (v. 7). This scripture shows that Christ's Kingdom will not be fully grown when first established, and this is likewise indicated in the prophecy of Daniel 2 in which the Kingdom is likened to a "stone" which will smite the carnal governments of men, but will, itself, become "a great mountain" and fill "the whole earth."

The conquest of Christ will begin when He judges and makes war against the "beast" and "false prophet" of Revelation. Then "his enemies shall lick the dust. . . . Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him. . . . His name shall endure for ever: his name shall be continued as long as the sun: and men shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed. Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his (the King's) glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory" (Psalm 72:9, 11, 17-19). It is then that "the Lord shall send the rod of (His) strength out of Zion" and commission Him, saying: "Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power" (Psalm 110:2, 3). It is then that Christ "shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over many countries" (v. 6).

Second Coming Precedes Restitution

Some people teach that Christ will stay in heaven until all things are subdued unto Him, and that Christ will then deliver up the Kingdom to God. By so teaching, they destroy all hope and any necessity of Christ's return to earth, and they nullify the promise of God that His Son will reign upon the throne of David. Moreover, they forget that the Bible teaches that God "shall send Jesus Christ . . . whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:19-21).

Jesus plainly told the high priest, "Ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven" (Mark 14:62). Likewise, Jesus plainly said unto His apostles: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations" (Matt. 25:31, 32). "In mercy shall the throne be established: and he shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging, and seeking judgment, and hastening righteousness" (Isa. 16:5). The Bible speaks of "one new man" (Eph. 2:15), and of "that man of sin" (2 Thess. 2:3). As the "one new man" is made "of twain" (Jews and Gentiles), and is an organization, even the true church of God, so will "that man of sin" be an organized system, a combination of both Jews and Gentiles who follow the Antichrist and all his false teachings. "The mystery of iniquity" was already at work in the Apostle Paul's time. He referred to this evil power as "the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders" (2 Thess. 2:9). We read of the spirit of Antichrist in John's writings, too, for he said:

We Shall Know

By Alfred Anthon

---

"I create new heavens and a new earth ('third heaven,' 2 Cor. 12:2): the former shall not be remembered, nor come upon the heart" (Isaiah 65:17, margin).

WHEN Christ was resurrected, did He remember His people and former associates; places: as cities, fields, the Temple, and Mount Olivet? Did He know His apostles? Could He call them by name? Certainly! He remembered all these things.

Did Christ say that the righteous will sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the Kingdom of heaven? How could this be if the righteous do not know Abraham and Isaac?—if the righteous cannot remember who Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob were? If we as immortalized saints cannot remember this life, would we be ourselves or as somebody else? Why, we would be as if we had never before been. Will persons be judged according to deeds done in the flesh, and not be able to recall having performed those deeds?

When the children of Israel came up out of Egypt, they remembered their sojourn in Egypt. The flesh pots of Egypt "came upon their heart." They wanted to go back to them. They loved those Egyptian conditions more than the conditions under which God placed them. In the "third heaven" and earth, the righteous will remember things of their former days; but those former things will not "come upon the heart." They will rejoice in the things of their "third heaven" and earth.

For a while, there may be heart-rending recollections. It will take the whole Millennium for Christ and God to wipe away all tears. Surely it will not be gleeful joy to be within Jerusalem when fire comes down out of heaven and devours the followers of Satan during that "little season" at the end of the Millennium. Remember that the saints will have been working among those "followers of Satan" for more than one hundred years (Isa. 65:20).

Will some grudge come "boiling up" when a saint sees some wicked person in the Millennium? Will a saint have fury come up in his face? Keep this thought as a great neon sign before your face—if you are of that kind you will not be with the saints. This is one of the simple rules by which you can judge yourself and know whether you will be one of the saints, or not. A true mother loves her wayward child. A saint has the same love for a wayward neighbor. (It is easy to judge to which class one belongs.)

In the Kingdom, when a saint meets an "enemy," the saint will gladly take advantage of circumstances to be a blessing to the "enemy."

Again; Rachel is promised that if she repents, she will again clasp her onetime massacred baby boys to her bosom. Can she do this if she cannot remember? She most certainly will remember that it was because of her sins that her baby boys were slain. Will she have to remember her sins in order to do this? Yes. Will those sins "come upon her heart" again? No, no; ten thousand times no! She will not desire to do those sins again.

It seems to me that Revelation teaches that wicked parents (this does not include the heathen) will never see their dead babies again. This class of wicked persons will not be resurrected until the thousand years are finished. They will have none of the opportunities and advantages of the Millennium. They are for eternal death.

The great healing oil of all grudges is real love and time.

SERIES A

INTEREST and attendance have been doubled! Wouldn't you like to be able to say that about your church? If you would, then you are the person for whom we're looking. To two or three up-and-coming members in each church we offer for only a small amount—to cover postage and necessary expenses—the means of making this ambition come true. In accord with a popular demand, we are opening up a new field in a completely new and different type of interest-awakener type of tracts, and are offering them at almost give-away prices for the special benefit of Christian interest in your locality.

It has been determined that the interest of an individual shifts at least every four seconds. You have, then, just four seconds to claim the attention of anyone whom you desire to interest in a further study of the gospel. Double, triple, or greater increase in interest is simply a matter of those first four seconds. That is the reason we call this new issue of tracts our Four-second Series. (The above illustration shows series A and B of the NATIONAL BIBLE INTL. OREGON, ILL.

SERIES B

YOUR ETERNAL LIFE INSURANCE?

Four-second Series as the printed sheet appears when it comes from the press. After being cut apart, there are four separate tracts in each series, eight tracts in all.) These little tracts are designed for the express purpose of claiming that first little bit of attention, and to get people to read that first verse of Scripture. They are not intended to replace the better types of tracts which we list, but are intended as a valuable supplement to enlist a spark of interest that will make the giving out of the better tracts profitable. We feel that it is effort wasted to give out lengthy tracts until a reading is assured.

The secret of doubling interest is volume. If one tract in twenty-five is effective, that is a good average. So, in order that you may accomplish something, we recommend that you take a group of at least one hundred families, and see that they receive a tract once a week, or at least once every two weeks. These tracts can be used in many different ways. Simply stamp your church's name on them and drop them in (Please turn to next page) cars parked along the street; place them in screen doors at various homes along the street; or, simply address them on the reverse side, put on one-cent stamps and mail them to a certain list. It adds much to their effectiveness for people to receive them in the mail. But, in any case, see that they are followed up by another tract in a very short period of time, so that anything gained in the first distribution is not lost. A nightly presentation of tracts of this kind is necessary for a well-rounded effort at any special meeting you may have, so do not neglect this angle of distribution. As fast as these issues are taken off our hands, we plan to continue complete new issues with entirely new and original ideas so that this method of creating interest may be continued by constant distribution.

Due to the method of production, these tracts can be put out only by the bundle. A bundle consists of twenty-five of each of the four kinds in a series (one hundred tracts in all). If you plan to send to fifty families, order two bundles. This will give you fifty tracts of each of the four kinds in a series. Order as many bundles as you need, of either the "Four-second Series A," or "Four-second Series B." We ask that you simply include with your request twenty-five cents per bundle. Or, if you will order five bundles of both series A and B at one time, we shall send you the entire one thousand tracts, consisting of one hundred twenty-five of each of the eight varieties, for only two dollars. Due to printing conditions, this offer can be made only to include an equal number of all eight varieties shown. If you want to put on a really wholesale distribution, the only kind that is effective, this is your golden opportunity. Send your order to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Four-second Series A—per bundle (100 tracts) $ .25

Four-second Series B—per bundle (100 tracts) $ .25

Special A and B (five bundles of series A; five bundles of Series B; 1,000 tracts in all) $2.00

These tracts in series A and B come printed on heavy orange-colored stock that is certain to claim attention wherever they are used. If your order amounts to fifty cents or more, and you request it with your order, we shall include free of charge a special instruction sheet on successful methods of distributing tracts. Better get your order in right away so that these little tracts may go to work in your community at once!

BIBLE PROPHECIES

"Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world . . . and this is that spirit of anti-christ, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world" (1 John 4:1-3).

The spirit of truth and the spirit of error had their beginnings in the Garden of Eden. God told Adam, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17), and Satan said, "Ye shall not surely die" (3:4). So, the Devil had his false system of religion in the very beginning. Soon Cain killed his brother Abel, which proved both the truth of God's words that death would be the punishment for sin and that the fruitage of Satan's theology was most bitter and disastrous. That people before the Flood worshiped this false system of religion is evident from Joshua's plea to Israel, saying: "Now therefore fear the Lord, and serve him in sincerity and in truth: and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt; and serve ye the Lord" (Josh. 24:14). Babylon and Rome perpetuated the false religion.

The "beast" power of Revelation seems to be the outgrowth of this ancient false religion, which previously flourished in Babylon and Papal Rome. According to Daniel's prophecies, he will make war with the saints until Christ returns to "take away his kingdom, to consume and to destroy it unto the end" (7:26; see also vv. 21, 22.) The "beast" power is still prevailing over the saints (v. 21), which proves that the Christ has not yet returned. If Christ has not yet returned, the Kingdom has not yet been restored, and without the restored Kingdom there can be no possibility of anyone having already ruled with Christ. When "there shall come out of Sion the Deliverer" (Rom. 11:26), a "king shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS" (Jer. 23:5, 6).

Error must fall, and truth must rise; but the coming of the Lord to rule in justice and righteousness over the nations of earth is necessary to bring about these blessings.

WHAT IS THE SOUL?

To "every seed," he said, God gives a body of its own. Thus the body of the acorn (seed) is the wonderful and magnificent oak tree, which lives, breathes, and functions as truly, though not so fully, as you and I. Identity (of kind) is preserved in the dormant (sleeping) seed; its individual personality and practical life is manifested through the body.

Now notice that the very same procedure pertains to the animal kingdom, for in verses 20, 21, and 30 of this same chapter the descriptive process is identical with that of the vegetable, but with one exception—the exception referred to being the use of the word “soul” (margin “living soul”) in place of the word “seed.” Thus, in Genesis 1:11, we have the statement, “wherein is the seed” (R.V.); and in Genesis 1:30, “wherein there is life” (margin; Heb. “living soul”). So here, as in Matthew 10:28 and 1 Corinthians 15:37, 38, there is clear distinction made between “soul” (or seed), and body. That the processes in the vegetable and the animal spheres are regarded in Scripture as identical, is shown by the fact that in subsequent records the word “seed” is applied to all vegetable and animal life, including man, of whom “thy seed” and “his seed” are not uncommon expressions.

Now, for another remarkable point: when Paul spoke of “bare grain” (seed), he used precisely the same word as in 2 Corinthians 5:3 where it is translated “naked.” It is both interesting and significant that all seed life is dormant (sleeping), and “sleep” is the Bible term for death in both the Old and the New Covenants (Testaments). A large and well-known body of Conditionalists, and one to which I owe much for help received, teaches that when death takes place nothing remains to preserve identity, and that consequently at resurrection an entirely new being is brought forth. The writer finds difficulty to logically believe that when Scripture says, “Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake” (Dan. 12:2), there is after all really nothing that either “sleeps” or “wakes.” The same is true of the statement of Paul, “them that sleep in Jesus.” We ask again: Is there nothing that sleeps? Paul compares resurrection to sowing. To him the thing of consequence that is buried or sown, is not the body, but the seed. Many speak of the resurrection of the same body that is laid down. That may be true of those laid to rest just prior to the coming of Christ, but can it be true of those long dead whose bodies are scattered to the four winds of heaven, and in many instances assimilated in the living bodies of plants and animals? Indeed, we would ask: Is it necessary to be so? Does not Paul himself say: “Thou sowest not that body that shall be”? May we not quite reverently come to the conclusion that it is a logical impossibility to reassemble such a body as that referred to? A much loved friend of ours (many years deceased) the well-known author, G. P. McKay of London, England, and writer of that beautiful hymn, “There Is Life in the Living Lord,” agreed with me that identity is thus preserved, for we both believed that God’s wonders are as marvelous in the infinitely small as they are in the infinitely great. His view, however, differed from ours in that the preserving agent went forth with the expiring breath, but it seems to us more Scriptural to regard it as sleeping “in the dust of the earth,” and that it will be awakened from there by the command and power of God.

THUS JESUS LEAVES THE NINETY AND NINE

So sorrowfully did David lament the death of his rebel son, Absalom, that Joab was constrained to cry: “Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants, which this day have saved thy life . . . in that thou lovest thine enemies and hatest thy friends.” Who erred, David or Joab?

MY PURPOSE

To be a little kindlier,
 With the passing of each day;
 To leave but happy memories,
 As I go along my way;
 To use possessions that are mine
 In service full and free,
 To sacrifice the trivial things
 For larger good to be:
 To give of love in lavish way
 That friendship true may live,
 To be less quick to criticize,
 More ready to forgive;
 To use such talents as I have
 That happiness may grow,
 To take the bitter with the sweet,
 Assured 'tis better so;
 To be quite free from self-intent
 Whate'er the task I do,
 To help the world's faith stronger grow
 In all that's good and true;
 To keep my faith in God and right
 No matter how things run,
 To work and play and pray and trust
 Until the journey's done.
 God grant to me the strength of heart,
 Of motive and of will,
 To do my part, and falter not,
 This purpose to fulfill.

O CHRISTIAN, KEEP THY TRUST!

“Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus” (2 Tim. 1:13). We must fight the false beliefs and doctrines that have crept into our schools and churches, and we can best do so by faithfully advocating the true teachings of Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Only His teachings and the teachings of other inspired men of God are sound and worthy of our complete trust. O Christian, keep thy trust!

"Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34).

God Loves All

Cornelius loved God and tried to do right always, praying and giving alms. He had a vision of an angel who told him to send to Joppa for Peter. Peter, said the angel, would tell him what he should do. At once Cornelius sent three messengers for Peter.

As the messengers drew near to Joppa, Peter went to the housetop to pray. Houses then had flat tops, and the roofs were used as an extra room. Peter became very hungry, and while waiting for the meal to be prepared, he fell into a trance. He saw what looked like a large sheet, let down to earth from heaven. In it were all kinds of beasts, creeping things, and fowls of the air. A voice came to him, saying, "Rise, Peter; kill, and eat." Peter answered, "Not so, Lord." He kept the Jewish laws which forbade them to eat certain animals. For example: eel, swine, hare, oysters, and turtle are among those called "unclean."

The voice came to Peter again, saying: "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common."

This was done three times; then the cloth and all were taken up again into heaven.

As Peter sat thinking what God meant by the vision, the Spirit told him that three men were there to see him.

Unexpected Events

The three men were the ones Cornelius had sent to get Peter to come to him. Peter was the one of whom the angel had told Cornelius would "tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved."

The Spirit not only told Peter that three men had come for him, but now it made known that he should go with these men. Peter had been taught that the Gentiles were unclean. A Jew who walked and talked with a Gentile was unclean. Now Peter was told to go with these men to the home of a Gentile—Cornelius. Peter did not go alone, but took six brethren with him.

As they entered Cornelius' home, he told them of his vision. The Holy Ghost fell upon Cornelius as Peter began to tell him the things which Cornelius needed to have the hope of eternal life. Now, Peter was sure he had done right, for Cornelius, a Gentile, had received the Spirit in the same way that Peter had!

There is another unexpected event we must not forget. Our lesson today is the story of these visions and works of God's Spirit as told by Peter to the Jewish brethren at a church meeting. (Acts 11:1-4.) Only Peter had seen the vision of the unclean made clean of God. Only Peter and the six brethren had seen the Holy Ghost come upon Cornelius. Peter finished his story before the church brethren with these words: "Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; what was I, that I could withstand God?" (Acts 11:17.)

The brethren to whom Peter spoke, "when they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life" (v. 18). Are we not thankful that this was true, and is still true?

Specializing in Fundamentals

By Charlotte Rahn, Pomona, Calif.

In the world there is a tendency among religious people to say that doctrine is not important, that the important thing is to be sincere. It is very important to be sincere in our religion, but sincerity alone will not give us salvation. Inasmuch as the Church of God believes and advocates certain fundamental doctrines which the Scriptures inform us are very important, it would seem that its mission should be to stress the fundamental doctrinal subjects found in God's Word. Our Saviour said in John 8:32: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Again, the Apostle Paul exhorted Timothy, saying, "Rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). Solomon said, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 16:25).

To one church member a certain fundamental doctrine seems most important; while to another member, a different doctrine seems more fundamental. To those who from the beginning have thoroughly understood the lost condition of the human family through Adam's disobedience, the nature of man does not seem to be fundamental; but it does seem to be so to those who have imbibed the teaching of the immortality of the soul when once they have learned that it is all founded upon Genesis 3:4, "Ye shall not surely die." This error would seem to rest at the bottom of all false teachings: the most prominent of which is eternal torment in hell for the wicked and eternal bliss in heaven for the righteous. Some believe this because Matthew says that Jesus came preaching the Kingdom of heaven. Yet, the prophets, the apostles, and Christ Himself all made it clear that the Kingdom is to be on the earth.

In Jeremiah 23:5 we read: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth." "The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him" (Dan. 7:27). "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (Psalm 72:8). The angel said to Mary: "He shall be great, . . . and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David" (Luke 1:32).

What, then, are the fundamentals that should be stressed that are found to be plain? When once the wrong teachings are eradicated from the mind, people can be taught the doctrine of conditional immortality, the second coming of Christ to establish God's Kingdom upon the earth and bring in the "times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Christ is to be King in that Kingdom, and the church will be redeemed by Him and will be heirs with Him. These are a few of the fundamentals which we should devote our time in promoting in the brief period that remains before the Kingdom is established.

Indestructible

The mathematician, the scientist, and the engineer use the rule "two plus two is four," and develop it further into the higher branches of calculus; and, as a result, are able to utilize the elements which God has made available on this earth in such a way as to make life more pleasant. Certain formulas have been developed and proved through the years, and the man who would be successful in the natural sciences is forced to learn these rules and abide by them.

Many millions of men in time past have spent their entire lives learning the rules of nature, and in applying these rules have built great works of mechanical and artistic perfection. In many instances, all that was required to destroy their beautiful works was a little time—time and the elements.

However, above all, man shall endure. The things that man has made from the elements of the earth? Perhaps not. Nevertheless, the Bible assures us that the human race shall continue on this earth, though in a more perfect form. Since the Lord takes such an interest in developing man, would it not be well for man to make a real effort to understand himself and his relationship to his Creator? A little time spent in diligent study at the Summer Bible Training School will help to put you on the right road to learn more of God's rules for man.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"I thought the article by Hubert B. Choat, entitled "Causes of Wars," carried a very thoughtful and important message to the Christians of this war-torn world."—Vernis D. Wolfe, Gatesville, Texas.

"Inasmuch as our Government is calling young people into its service, we wish our young people could hear the pleading of the Master who calls youth to enlist in His service. What a golden opportunity our young people have—there being such able teachers—in the Summer Bible Training School. We hope that many will take advantage of this opportunity while the door is still open."—Mrs. Mabel Burk, 208 E. 31 St., Tacoma, Wash.

"Christ is coming to those who love His appearing. The important question is: Do we love His appearing?"—Mrs. May Moore, Bartley, Nebr.

Mr. C. J. Chegwin, Clinton Heights, Rensselaer, N. Y., inquires for the address of our church nearest him. We have suggested his writing Bros. C. E. Randall and M. W. Lyon.

"We have employed Bros. C. E. Lapp and Grover Gordon as speakers for our Western Nebraska Conference which convenes August 16-24, inclusive."—Icel Stedman, Arapahoe, Nebr.

"I am old-fashioned enough to believe that the spirit of retaliation is not a Christian spirit."—E. O. Stewart, Sweetwater, Texas.

Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay plan to leave their home in Tempe, Ariz., May 27, for their annual trip to Oregon, Ill., and other places where Bro. Lindsay is scheduled to conduct special meetings.

"I have one good prospect for the Summer School."—Mrs. T. J. Ellis, Waterloo, Iowa.

"All five of us are well and happy. Larry Wayne Magaw was born Monday, May 12."—Vivian Magaw, Tipp City, Ohio.

The Bible Training School plans soon to publish a fully illustrated prospectus-catalog. It will be used as an advertiser for next fall's term. If you can use one or several of these booklets, please send us your name and address, stating, too, the number of books you need for distribution among prospective students.

Mrs. Magaw and our family plan to accompany us to Tipp City, Ohio, for the annual meeting of the Brush Creek Church of God.

Bro. Tom Savage, Waite Park, Minn., will soon resume his writing for The Restitution Herald.

"I hope that some day in the near future I can get time to write a little for The Herald columns."—F. L. Austin, 1705 S. Leer St., South Bend, Ind.

Be sure to turn to page 8 of this issue to read of "The New Tract Project."

"We at Brush Creek shall try to get another student or two to attend the Summer Bible Training School."—Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Tipp City, Ohio.

Writes Sr. Reighard, Delta, Ohio: "The booklets you sent came safe and sound, but not enough to go around"; thus, we have another order for books telling of the rebuilding of Palestine (25 cents each).

Truth Seekers' Quarterly for the third quarter of 1941 is in the making; order ten or fifteen copies and start that new Sunday school you have been visioning.

Yes, Yes: "I have subscribed for The Restitution Herald for each of my five children which, I believe, is better than subscribing for myself, as they get the good and wonderful articles in it and I am sure of always having a Herald to read, regardless of which of the five children I may be near."—Mrs. C. L. Venard, Sherrard, Ill.

Bro. F. E. Siple, pastor of the Southlawn Park Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., will soon present to The Herald readers a picture of the members recently added to this congregation.

We are pleased to report that all the tracts have now been sent to England, and that sufficient money has been received to pay all expenses. Thank you!

It's Done: It is a pleasure to report that all expenses of building the laundry room at Golden Rule Home are now paid, and the Laundry Fund is discontinued. (Contributions for general maintenance, however, are always most welcome.)

Bro. C. E. Hatch, residing at the home of his son, Will Hatch, Arcadia, Calif., fell asleep in death, May 9. He would have been eighty-two years of age, had he lived until June 24. Bro. J. E. Adamson of Pomona, Calif., conducted the funeral services.

Sr. Florence E. Tuttle, Geneva, Ohio, reported as "deceased" by a postal employee, is evidently very much alive, for she has sent us an article entitled "The Golden Age." Further, she reports having recently taught the first principles of the gospel to Mrs. Bert and Miss Betty Eastliek, who were recently baptized by Bro. R. G. Huggins.

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE

The next conference of the California Churches of God is to be held in Los Angeles, June 1, 1941.

AUSTIN, TEXAS

We are glad to introduce to our brotherhood a young man of our State who, though little more than a boy, is already a good preacher of the Abrahamic Faith. We refer to Bro. Vernis D. Wolfe, Gatesville, Texas, Route 3. After I received a letter from Bro. Wolfe concerning his visiting Austin, I remembered the report in the Gospel Trumpet over a year ago, in which it was mentioned that he was a prospective student for our Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill. At that time Bro. Wolfe was finishing high school; since then he has had one year in college. He now conducts himself in the pulpit as well as many matured ministers, but when we asked him if he would like to enroll in our nine-months' Bible Training School, he said that he would like to enroll and complete the three-year course offered there.

All of us in Texas must admit that the South has in a large degree been handicapped by the lack of young leadership. Many of us hold fond memories of the late beloved Bro. Bradley, who was one of the foundation stones of the Church of God in the South. From the root of his preaching this young branch, Bro. Vernis Wolfe, has now come forth. It is by no means our thought to "lay on the shelf" our senior workers in the State, but the day has come that demands younger leaders in the Church of God, so that as a church we can better compete with the worldly forces so cunningly bidding for our young people, and thereby sapping the strength of the church. Bro. Wolfe is a young branch that we should not lose; he will bear fruitage if we give him opportunity. Let us therefore give him encouragement to take full advantage of our Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Wolfe is now preaching for us in Austin, every third Sunday. Let us co-operate with him, and all of us be really busy in our "Father's business." F. B. McCullough.

MOUNT OLIVE, ARKANSAS

Father (H. Scott Smith) and I recently went to Mount Olive for services over a week end. Large crowds were present at each service. Mrs. Shridly Cox of Paris obeyed the gospel and was baptized Sunday afternoon, May 11. Mrs. Cox is a young married lady, and may be addressed at South Elm St., Paris, Ark.

The young folks at Mount Olive plan to organize a Bereau class next Sunday. We shall return for services the fourth Sunday in June.

Virginia Smith.

ACTIVE VERSUS PASSIVE INTEREST

This is the season of conferences. It is not so much a time to be passively fed by sermons and Bible lessons, as it is to actively engage in the work of winning souls for Christ. To the work; to the work!

MRS. W. E. MARSH

It was at Post Hope, Huron County, Mich., that Mazie was born to William J. and Mary J. Cummings on March 26, 1878.

Her girlhood days were lived at Millbrook. It was there that in early life she consecrated herself to her Lord Jesus Christ, and was baptized into His saving name by Elder B. W. Woodward. True to her consecrated allegiance, her life evidenced a constant faith in her Lord, as also her feeling of assurance of a place in the first and better resurrection, unto immortality, at the return of her soon-coming Saviour.

In 1907, Mazie graduated from the Sanatorium School of Nurses in Battle Creek, Mich.

In 1908, she was united in marriage with W. E. Marsh of the same city. To them were born W. E., now of Chicago, and Mary E. and Dorothy J., of Battle Creek.

Following a period of failing health, the life of this beloved wife and mother quietly terminated on April 15, 1941.

Besides her husband and children, the deceased is mourned by four brothers and their families: W. R., of Ionia; Benjamin A., of Lainsburg; Delbert E., of Lansing—all three of Michigan; and F. R., of Olympia, Wash.

Interment was made in the Memorial Cemetery of Battle Creek, there to await the call of Him who is "the resurrection and the life."

May it be so.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Recently, the Ambassador Bible Class was again privileged to have Bro. John Mercer, who is pastor of the Church of God in St. Cloud, Minn., teach the class. The subject discussed was the Holy Spirit. After the meeting, there was a farewell party for Sr. Hazel Reed and Bro. Orris Mills at the Reed home. Bros. John Mercer and Orris Mills left for Minnesota after the party.

Mr. Paul Pearson was a guest at the Students' Home, May 11. He is stationed at Camp Grant, Ill.; his home is in Ohio.

Bro. Ellsworth Routsen preached in Dixon, Ill., May 18.

The students are very grateful to Mrs. Edith Burchell for the liberal gift of a piano to the School. If more people would feel their responsibility to the School, the work would never lack for advancement, but would grow by leaps and bounds.

The students plan to have an all-day picnic, May 29. Those who attended the picnic last year certainly had a delightful time.

Some of the local young people went to see the "Passion Play" at Bloomington, Ill. Those who went were Miss Donna Peterman, Sr. Muriel Randall, Mr. George Walters, Bro. Harold Hardesty, Sr. Betty Lindsay, and Bro. Robert Hardesty.

If every church would send someone to the Summer Training School, the amount of good derived could not be imagined. Let us train for the defense of our faith. Good building today secures the future.

Every Friday at 7:30 p.m., in the Church of God in Dixon, Ill., is held a Bereau Bible class.

The Summer Bible Training School

June 17—July 25, 1941

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder Harry A. Sheets:

TRAINING FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

A trained mind as well as a consecrated heart is a necessity for effective Christian service today. Many people have been led to Christ in days past by consecrated leaders whose knowledge and usage of correct English were woefully limited. But those with whom they worked were likewise untrained. With our increased educational facilities, people now demand more refinement and polish in the linguistic ability of their leaders. Any appreciable defect causes a distrust in the accuracy of one's knowledge of God's Word. This has influenced the Board of Religious Education to include English in the Summer Training curriculum.

Paul faced a group of religious zealots at Mars' Hill in Athens. These people were neutral in mind toward Paul, but strongly biased in their religion. Reformers had been killed because they dared to speak against their gods. The efficacy of Paul's sermon depended upon his ability to keep his listeners in a friendly, listening mood. He succeeded because he knew how to handle people. Another phase of our Summer School will be to teach some of the methods used to handle people successfully. This will be from a Christian standpoint to aid in the spread of salvation.

Our work will be to give instruction in applied Christianity. We hope, thereby, to make our students more effective in their work when they return to their respective localities. The students should be much better prepared for Sunday school and general church work as a result of attendance this summer.

Christ needs the services of all who can attend.

Harry A. Sheets.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

Willing to Suffer

By Mrs. Walter Wiggins
Matron of the Summer School

"He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me is not worthy of me" (Matthew 10:38).

WE as Christians often speak of being willing to suffer for Christ, but are we really willing to suffer for Him? Is it not true that even church people suffer more today in the satisfying of their own lusts, and in the care of their own bodies, than they suffer for the things of Christ? How much better it would be in the sight of God if all His children were more willing to sacrifice for the cause of truth!

Christ said, "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for their's is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 5:10). Though we profess to be followers of Christ, we fail to realize the importance of sacrificing, and we fear persecution. Christians have great opportunity in this life to work for the Lord. There is not only great joy in serving Him, but the promise of blessing for that service when the heavenly Kingdom is established upon earth.

Though in the early years of church history there were many martyrs, it is doubtful if the Christian today often asks himself the question: Would I be willing to give my life for Christ? Could I stand the test not to deny Him, if I were hungry, reviled, or beaten, as were the Christians of long ago? If tempted to deny Christ, what would I do? Would I have the faith to stand for Christ as did Paul? He was many times whipped and beaten, but He never denied His Lord. If there were more Christians today like the Apostle Paul, our churches would grow—and not the saloons and tobacco factories.

Christians are today seen everywhere except where Christians should be. Why? Because they enjoy the things of the world more than the work of the Lord. The Bible foretold: "In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves . . . lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away" (2 Tim. 3:1-5). The Word of God also indicates that those who will be true unto the Lord will be persecuted, the Apostle Paul saying: "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (3:12).

Are there many, if any, members of the Church of God suffering today for the cause of Christ? Are we not, instead, in too many instances turning to the world and making sacrifices for the things that pertain to the flesh? Let us examine ourselves to see if we are faithfully serving the Lord as we should. That we may be sure there is a reward for suffering as Christians, the Apostle Paul wrote, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him" (2 Tim. 2:12).

Though Christians are tempted, God's Word says, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Cor. 10:13). Let us pray that God will keep us in that "strait" and "narrow" way that Jesus said "leadeth unto life" (Matt. 6:14). That few Christians are today walking in that path is all the more reason why we who know and believe the truth should be willing to suffer for the truth.

As an incentive for youth of the Church of God to yet enroll in the Summer Bible Training School, we should remind them that Jesus' suffering on the cross provided their only atonement with God and their only hope for eternal salvation. If they appreciate Christ, they will sacrifice for Him.

“He Was Moved With Compassion”

Jesus was moved with compassion when He saw the multitudes. He saw the weak when they fainted; He heard the lost sheep when they cried for their Shepherd. It was Christ's limitless understanding and appreciation that won for Him many friends among the lowly, and gave Him opportunities to serve.

Contrary to Christ's appreciative spirit, man is invariably deaf and blind to the cares and sorrows of his fellow man. What does one see in the care-worn brow of the digger in the ditch? “Let 'im dig, that's his job,” do you say? What does one see in the widow who “does washings” that she may live—a little? “Well, she really doesn't need much money,” do you say? What of the orphan? Does his heart throb with milder pain than if he were a millionaire? “An urchin!” you say. Of whom do you speak? What of the homeless, the maimed, and the poor?

When Jesus “saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd” (Matt. 9:36). It is well, indeed, to know the doctrine at the time of baptism, but it is unfortunate that, knowing the doctrine, and being baptized, we do so little doctoring. Appreciative of the needs of the multitudes, Jesus said unto His disciples: “The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest” (vv. 37, 38). He “was moved with compassion.” Am I? Are you?

“Be Not Deceived”

When one sows early in the spring, it may seem an eternity to wait until fall for the harvest. God has promised, however: “While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest . . . shall not cease” (Gen. 8:22). Moreover, he who sows the precious gospel seed will receive certain reward by patiently waiting for the “latter rain.”

Well did the Apostle Paul say: “Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. . . . Let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith” (Gal. 6:7-10). To passively be good is inadequate qualification for the Harvest Day; Christ's servants must “do good.”

Eternal Torment? Upon Whom?

Students of the Bible who believe in endless torture as God's punishment for sinners fail, evidently, to consider the importance and meaning of Revelation 21:8. We quote the verse: “The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.” That this verse speaks of fire, and even of a lake of fire, is not to be overlooked, but it is utter folly to see in these words even a suggestion of eternal torture, for these words definitely refer to that punishment “WHICH IS THE SECOND DEATH.” Let it be further observed that the “fearful,” “unbelieving,” “abominable,” “murderers,” “whoremongers,” “sorcerers,” “idolaters,” and “all liars” are to be punished in this place—in this “second death.”

Seeing that all the foregoing classes of sinners are to be punished in the “second death,” pray tell, who are the incorrigible candidates for eternal torture?

God's punishment for sin is death, not torment. Plainly God said unto Adam, “Thou shalt surely die” (Gen. 2:17). That death refers not to torture, but to the loss of life, is evident from God's words: “In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return” (3:19).

God told Hezekiah, “Thou shalt die, and not live” (Isa. 38:1); Jesus said, “Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction” (Matt. 7:13); Solomon said, “The dead know not any thing” (Eccl. 9:5); and the Apostle Paul said, “The wages of sin is death” (Rom. 6:23). Now, it would seem that God, Christ, Solomon, and Paul were most excellent authorities, yet none of these taught hell-fire torture to be inflicted upon anyone throughout the endless ages of eternity. All these authorities taught that death will be the punishment for sin. Believe God, not theory.

Following Seven-League Boots

By Vivian Kirkpatrick

"Hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps".

IT WOULD be odd, indeed, should there be a reader who did not, in his early school years, read the all-absorbing story of the magic boots which allowed the wearer to take strides of seven leagues.

Too, most of us have had experiences of trying to follow footsteps which for us were as difficult as though they were seven-league steps in reality. My father still towers six inches above me, and years ago that difference was much more marked. Though he might have purposely shortened his steps for my benefit, it was a number of years before I could so much as travel in his footprints by adding a hop to the elongated steps I tried to take. It is yet a difficult task to try to match him step for step.

As we youngsters followed our fathers and tried to walk in their footsteps, we are now, having reached the age when we are matured enough to make our own decisions, called to continue footstep following, but under a different Leader—a different Caller and a different calling: "Even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). These are the "seven-league boots" that are now marking the way that we must know. The writer of Hebrews tells us that Christ becomes to us both the Leader and Finisher of our faith: the Leader because He has traversed the path we tread when it was a far more difficult road than it is now, for He broke the path, blazed the trail, that we might know the way we go. As youngsters, we had implicit faith that our fathers would find the easiest and best paths for us, and take into consideration our strengths and abilities. That faith, if we would transfer it to our present Leader, would ease our road very much. The Christ is the Finisher of our faith in that there is no higher faith we might have, the end of faith, for Christ is our goal.

Because of that, we should heed the admonition of John to be true to our confessions of faith, saying: "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also to walk, even as he walked" (1 John 2:6).

It is inconceivable to think that anyone who calls himself a Christian has not read enough in his Bible to know what following Him means. Neither should it be possible that anyone who calls himself by His name could do otherwise than follow His footsteps as closely as possible. Admitted, of course, that falls must come because of man's weakness, they should only stir us to greater attempts. Yet we hear, "How can I know, how can I be sure I follow Him as I should?" The answer seems to be found in these words from 1 John: "Hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments."

We can set ourselves up as judges and decide that the majority who call themselves Christian are far from the footsteps of the Master. It may be true—much more true than we realize. Christianity may be the cloak used to try to cover a multitude of sins. However, can we read the thoughts and intents of the hearts of our fellow men? Can we, when we see others far from what we think is the path of Christ, see the pitfalls and obstructions that are making them stumble and waver? Let us beware lest we watch them so closely that we may never see the pitfalls under our own feet. We should check our feet and make sure they are on the path, before we criticize our companion. It may be his path is closer to Christ's than is our own. We should make sure our feet are on solid ground before we help our fellow traveler, lest we drag him lower than he was.

Beware of hypocrisy! It is so easy to try to make the world believe we are not what we really are. The world contains many attractive people and many attractive pleasures. How easy it is to try to live like them and enjoy what they enjoy! How often the cry reverberates, "I can't be too religious, or I'll lose my friends and won't have any fun!"

Foolish! That cry would never have been uttered had we been sincere in answering the challenge of the footsteps of Jesus Christ. We have been afraid to lose our contact with the forces of evil at large in the world which are called the pleasures of the world. Lip service says, "I'm a follower of Christ," while actions render a different verdict.

See the footsteps of the Master stretching forward into the unknown? Let us throw off the shackles of the opposing forces which now hinder us. Let us "lay aside every weight . . . which doth so easily beset us," and follow the footsteps that have marked the only safe passage from the present to the great Kingdom. Pleasures of this life are attractive, but each relentlessly forges another link in the chain which retards our Kingdom travel, and may become so strong they bind us fast and forever—destroying all hope of following the "seven-league boots" into eternity.

BIBLE PROPHECIES

In Three Parts—Part Three

By J. M. Morgan

IF, AS some teach, Israel will not be restored and there will be no other mortal nations on earth after Christ returns with His saints, then pray tell over whom Christ and the saints will rule "the thousand years" (Rev. 20: 4, 6). Further, wherein would the thousand years differ in any way from the great eternity beyond this period? The fact that it is called the "thousand years" indicates that this period is not eternity wherein time will not be reckoned. It seems, too, that this Millennial day will be different from all ages that preceded it, or will ever follow it, for the "light" of the Millennial day "shall not be clear, nor dark"—not clear as the light of eternity, nor dark as in this present day which might be more properly called "night."

Zechariah prophesied concerning the special day in which Christ and His saints judge and rule, saying: "It shall be one day which shall be known to the Lord, not day, nor night: but it shall come to pass, that at evening time it shall be light. And it shall be in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be" (14:6-8). The greatest event of all time is prophesied in the very next verse, saying: "The Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one."

That the Bible student may be thoroughly certain Zechariah's prophecy refers to the coming of Christ with His saints to reign, we read, also: "His feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives . . . and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee" (vv. 4, 5). That the children of Israel will then be restored as a mortal nation in their own land, where Christ's Kingdom will obviously begin, is clearly shown in the following texts: Jeremiah 23:7, 8; 30:8, 9; Isaiah 11:11, 12; 43:1-7; 49:22-26; Ezekiel 37:12-22; and Hosea 3:4, 5.

In Revelation 20:5, 6, we read: "The rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Why will the saints be priests, if there are to be no mortal nations following Christ's coming?

Revelation 22:2 clearly prophesies about the "tree of life," the leaves of which will be "for the healing of the nations." Why would God provide leaves for the healing of the nations, if there are to be no nations? Zechariah 14:16, 17, 19 tell about nations left after the great "plague wherewith the Lord will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem" (v. 12). Verse 19 clearly states that "all nations that come not up (to Jerusalem) to keep the feast of tabernacles" shall be punished. Daniel 7:27 likewise indicates various nations in that it prophesies: "The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." Isaiah prophesied: "The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee (restored Israel with Christ as King) shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted"—"violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders" (60:12, 18).

In speaking of restored Israel and the nations which are allowed to continue in that day, Ezekiel, speaking as of God, prophesied: "My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And the heathen (the nations) shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore" (37:27, 28).

Someone may ask, Why should the sanctuary be restored, and why should nations be commanded to go up to Jerusalem, annually, to keep the old tabernacle services? To this question we give answer by further asking, Why will the church eat the bread and drink the fruit of the vine? and why will Christ drink it "new" (Matt. 26:29) with His saints in the Kingdom? Plainly, the broken bread and the "blood" of grapes will point back to the death of Christ, as the Passover lambs pointed forward to His death. If one service is renewed and kept, why not the other? Moreover, we do not know how long the restored tabernacle service will continue, but the Lord says, "As the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble; for they are the seed of the blessed of the Lord, and their offspring with them. And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear" (Isa. 65:22-24).

The prophecies referring to restored Israel and the sur-living nations of that day should not be confused with prophecies about the victorious church. The saints, immortalized like Christ, will be the rulers with Him in that day, and it is obviously over these nations that Christ and the saints will rule. Israel, restored that the heathen may recognize the power and glory of God, and to which nation the Redeemer will come, will be chief over the other nations until God is all and in all. Then Christ will deliver the Kingdom to the Father, and there will be joy and gladness, age without end.

The Golden Age

By Florence E. Tuttle

MY dictionary defines "Golden Age" as, "the fabled primeval age of perfect human happiness and innocence." Is it only a fable that there was a time of perfect happiness and innocence?

Symbolically, and as often used in the Scriptures, gold denotes a supreme state of purity and perfection according to God's standard. In the world, gold is used as a standard of material wealth. "If I have made gold my hope, or have said to the fine gold, Thou art my confidence; if I rejoiced because my wealth was great, and because mine hand had gotten much . . . this also were an iniquity to be punished by the judge" (Job 31:24, 25, 28).

"Gold and more gold" is the cry of the Gentile rulers today. Matthew 6:32 says, "After all these things do the Gentiles seek." The desire for wealth is crowding out all that is human and good in mankind. Is not this the Golden Age of the supreme satanic power over the earth? Is it not time that God's vengeance come? "O Lord of hosts, that judgest righteously, that triest the reins of the heart, let me see thy vengeance on them: for unto thee have I revealed my cause" (Jer. 11:20). When will God's standard of gold—truth and righteousness—be fulfilled upon the earth? After Jesus and the saints have finished their work, which will begin when Jesus returns to sit on the restored throne of David in Jerusalem! (See Isa. 9:6, 7.) Jesus and the immortalized saints will rule this earth with God's righteous judgments until purity and perfection are established, which will require a thousand years according to man's standard of time. (Rev. 20:4).

Most predominant is the belief that men go into a state of perfect bliss at death, if they have lived what is considered to be the good life. There will be no work to do—just playing and listening to the beautiful music of the harp. This truly can be called a fable of the Golden Age, or a perfect existence that never will be realized, for these persons think it will take place in a bodiless state up in heaven in the presence of God. Truly, Jesus did ascend into heaven, He now sits at the right hand of His Father, and is our mediator (1 Tim. 2:5), but in John 7:34, 36, Jesus said, "Where I am thither ye cannot come." John

14:3 states that He will come again to us here on earth. Will He find conditions here on earth in a perfect state, or paradise? No, He will find a thousand-years' work to do, for He must reign until He has destroyed the last enemy which is death. (1 Cor. 15:25, 26.)

There will be mortal people who still will be subject to sin and death during Christ's reign, who must be taught and some of whom will be converted to God's will. (Zech. 14:17; Isa. 29:24.) "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power" (1 Cor. 15:24). Then will come the real Golden Age, the age of purity and perfection, when God Himself will be on earth among men.

John prophesied: "I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away" (Rev. 21:3, 4). Will this not be an existence as pure and precious as gold? Surely the pure in heart will then "see God" (Matt. 5:8).

O, Church of God, may we keep ourselves in the love of Christ, for Job 23:10 says, "He knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold." Someone has said, "Better rich in God than rich in gold."

Let us build upon the true foundation, which is Jesus Christ (1 Cor. 3:12), with the purity and perfection of fine gold. Christ will "change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself" (Phil. 3:21).

Before the fall of Adam and Eve, God was with them in the Garden of paradise on earth. (Gen. 3:8.) When perfection is again restored to earth, God will talk with sinless mankind, immortalized, face to face, on earth, and He will dwell among them. What a glorious future is in store for us!

Why Make a Pretense?

By Eunice L. Zollinger

"A double minded man is unstable in all his ways" (James 1:8).

IF AN individual promises one thing and enacts another, he is certainly not to be trusted. One may have all the appearances of goodness and pureness to another when in close contact with this person, but the other side of this individual's alternating personality does not spell faith. This person may seem to portray everything good. One cannot be supposedly true and at the same time disrupt all the promises ever pledged.

Are we acting faithfully as true Christians? The same may be applicable to our faith in Christ. Before baptism we repent; at baptism we arise to walk in newness of life. Obedience in baptism signifies that we are Christ's, and that we believe in His death, burial, and resurrection. (See Rom. 6:3-5.) After professing our faith, we should exercise it and continue to be faithful. Baptism is nothing except an "all wet" process if we do not adhere to our previous professed faith. Baptism is one of the first steps in our Christian walk of life.

We may now study more "to shew (ourselves) approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (1 Tim. 2:15). Again, the Apostle Paul stated: "Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth." We may always study, we may always increase in learning. One does not have to secure a social education to derive the most beneficial profits. The one who seeks for himself worth-while, attainable, and required knowledge is the one who will receive the greater reward: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" (7:7). If we do this diligently with faith, so will our reward be: "He that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his labour" (1 Cor. 3:8).

Why are we forgetful of others? Why must we think only of ourselves? Can't we understand that living for Jesus should be the cardinal goal for which we are striving? We should endeavor to bring others to Jesus Christ, and explain to them that He is our only Redeemer. In Him only shall we find life: "Whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Before Christ ascended into heaven, He admonished His disciples, saying to them: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." There are many, many of those who have not heard of Jesus who are hungry to hear truth—who would appreciate hearing of the hope through Him. Too, some who have heard have rejected our Lord, but we can ever labor to bring them in. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few." Without laboring we shall gain nothing.

We are to do these things, not only appear to be doing them. We cannot be Christians on Sunday only. We should always be Christian. We should always live acceptable lives, no matter where we may be. We should display a singularity from worldly persons. In being good Christians we certainly cannot seemingly confess Christ, sometimes doing His will, and at other times acting the very opposite. Because the crowd enjoys dancing and all other worldly forms of entertainment, we should not be drawn to them. We must be singular in living for Christ. Maybe we envy these persons in their hilarity and good times, but Solomon said very wisely: "Envy thou not the oppressor, and choose none of his ways." Also, "Let not thine heart envy sinners . . . fear . . . the Lord."

In church and Sunday school we read of Christ; we are supposed to be ensamples to other youth and the younger folk. We should guard our speech and actions not only when in church or visiting the minister, or when partaking in some church activity, but we should always guard our speech and actions. Every little kindness; every little action; every word, good or bad; should show that we are truly living for Him, not just when certain ones behold us. "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me."

We know, too, that some persons do not care to associate with one who attends church and practices that which he has learned, because, "They are just too good. They can't do this and they can't do that." Associating with these persons would cause some to entirely drop their cloaks of righteousness and turn in the opposite direction. True, sometimes we draw our cloaks too securely about us, so much that sometimes we do not even appear to be reasonable. However, Christ said: "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:13, 14).

In prayer we shall find God; we can talk to Him of our various troubles. He does not wish us to pledge one thing and enact another. He will always help us if we ask Him for guidance and correction. "My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord; neither be weary of his correction." Each one of us should dedicate his very small life to God's service.

Expedience of Christ's Absence

By Lottie E. Young

THE Gospel according to John is probably the best loved book in the Bible. Matthew tells of Jesus as the coming King; Mark talks of His busy life among men, the oft-repeated "straightway" carrying out the words, "I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work"; Luke records Him as the Great Physician, curing the woes—spiritual and physical—of the many with whom He came in contact; but John doubtless came nearest to an understanding of the mission of Jesus. His account of the life of the Master is full of the most comforting words ever spoken by the Saviour. This is especially true of chapters 14 to 17, descriptive of the scene in the upper room on the last night of the earthly life of Jesus. Those who were together then, though they were puzzled as to some of His sayings, must in later days have cherished the memory of those hours as the most precious in their lives.

In chapter 16, Jesus told the disciples plainly that He was going to leave them, and though He knew it would make them sorrowful, He said, "It is expedient for you that I go away." Why? True, He promised a "comforter," but what did that mean? Could anybody ever take the place of the One who had slept, eaten, talked, and walked with them as they traveled from town to town, along the road, and over the hills of Palestine?

Let us ask ourselves the same "why" of the early disciples. How many of us have thought if Jesus were only here in visible form and we could talk to Him as His followers in old times did, how much help and comfort His advice would give us! Now we are often in doubt as to how to act, but if we could only speak to Him it would be plain. Suppose the early life of Jesus had been prolonged many years, and He had continued to live in Palestine telling His followers what they should do, and where they should go. Would they have developed into the strong men they afterwards became, when the "comforter" came and "they were all filled with the Holy Spirit," ready to travel into far lands, to endure untold hardships, and finally to suffer the death of martyrs? The word "comforter" means strengtheners, and so these men and women were made strong for the warfare Jesus said would be the lot of all those who denied themselves, took up the cross, and followed Him.

No, it was truly "expedient," or necessary, that Jesus should leave these sorrowing ones, because His power was going to be manifested in a so much greater degree than it had been while He was with them. Think of the few followers who were won to Jesus Christ by His preaching, and when Peter was filled with the power of the Holy Spirit later on, remember the three thousand who on the day of Pentecost were pricked in their hearts after his memorable sermon and cried out: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" The Saviour's promise of "greater works" when the Comforter came than He was able to perform was realized when "believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes of men and women." Even the shadow of Peter falling upon the sick was able to help them, while handkerchiefs, which had touched the body of Paul were able to cure diseases, instead of the personal touch of the Great Physician.

No one living has ever seen Jesus, but His followers claim the promise, "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed," and, through the medium of prayer, we can talk to Him as frequently as we wish. If we "ask in faith, nothing doubting," and the Father knows it is for the best that our petition should be granted, the answer will come sooner or later. Let us, too, ever remember that "No" is a reply, even as the "Yes" for which we generally plead. Someday it will be possible to talk to Jesus face to face as, on the day when He ascended to the Father, the promise was given that "this same Jesus" would return to earth again. If we have been faithful, we shall be "for ever with the Lord."

It was "expedient" that Jesus should leave His disciples in order that they might become strong men and women, rooted and grounded in the faith, and it is "expedient" for us in this latter day that He has not yet returned, that we may know the power of prayer, the need of patience, and really believe the promise: "Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry."

The Two Adams

In Four Parts—Part One

By S. G. Elton

"God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God said . . . , Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth."

THE LORD GOD formed man (the first Adam) of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7). "God said, It is not good that the man should be alone: I will make for him an help meet" (2:18). Although Adam had given "names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field"; yet for Adam there had not been found a suitable help meet (v. 20). God therefore "caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam"; and, while he slept, God took one of his ribs, and closed up the place with flesh. "The rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man (Adam). And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh" (2:21-24). This language implies that the man should be conformed to the nature of the woman, as we shall see later.

Moses repeats, "In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made he him; male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created" (Gen. 5:1, 2). Paul added to this description of the first Adams: "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. And so it is written, The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit" (1 Cor. 15:44, 45). The spiritual was not first, but the animal, then the spiritual. The first man was of the dust from the earth, and the second man was the Lord from heaven. As he was of the dust, so also are those who are of the dust; and as was He who was from heaven, so also are the heavenly. (See 1 Cor. 15:44-48.)

According to the testimony of the Apostle Paul, the first Adam was wholly of the earth; not only his body, but the spirit of life that animated his body was of earthy origin. Because he resisted the command of God, God said to him: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; . . . for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19). Thus God made final disposition of the first Adam and his seed.

We shall now consider the second Adam, whom Paul has declared to be the Lord from heaven. The creation of the two Adams occurred in that period of time, described by Moses as "the beginning." Now listen to the Apostle John: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:1-3). Again John spoke: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life; (for the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;) that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (1 John 1:1-3).

S. G. Elton

Now read Revelation 1, and note verses 8, 10, 11, 17, 18. "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty" (v. 8). "I (John) was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last" (vv. 10, 11). "He that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful. And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son" (21:5, 6).

It is evident that everything that is in the world has proceeded from a point of beginning, except the almighty Creator Himself; even the Son had His inception in the mind of the Father. The creation of the second Adam was perfected that the Son might be manifested; and, when the fullness of time was come, God sent His Son who was made of a woman.

Sin also had a beginning—when it was conceived in the mind of the first Adam, the man that was formed of the dust of the earth as no other man was formed. Sin is that quality of mind that works in opposition to God. As the Prophet Isaiah has said: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts" (55:8, 9).

It was to the first Adam that God gave the simple instructions concerning the fruit that he should eat, and the fruit that he should not eat, lest he die; but the man manifested his true nature by his failure to observe the command of God. To add to his evil reputation, he then perverted the mind of the woman by telling her that which was not true; which brought humiliation upon her, until the price of redemption had been paid for her by the death of the Son of God.

The Voice of Prophecy

By Laura Skeels

ALL the things which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began either have been, are being, or will be fulfilled completely as spoken. We shall yet see the fulfillment of Isaiah 41:8-14: "Thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away.

"Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish. Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought. For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee. Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the Lord, and thy redeemer, the Holy One of Israel."

Isaiah 43:1-7 also foretells the future of Israel. We quote: "Now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour: I gave Egypt for thy ransom, Ethiopia and Seba for thee. Since thou wast precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee: therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy life. Fear not: for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west; I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him."

Jeremiah, who was a contemporary of Isaiah, plainly prophesied that Christ would be the One to bless Israel. He said: "In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but The Lord liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land" (23:6-8). The Lord says, moreover, "Mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes" (Jer. 16:17).

Here is something new that will be fulfilled, even a new covenant: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with . . . Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the Lord: But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more" (Jer. 31:31-34).

As God punished the Israelites by scattering them, He will yet bless by regathering them. Jeremiah 32:37-42 says: "Behold, I will gather them out of all countries, whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath: and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God: and I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them: and I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them, to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me. Yea, I will rejoice over them to do them good, and I will plant them in this land assuredly with my whole heart and with my whole soul. For thus saith the Lord; Like as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, so will I bring upon them all the good that I have promised them."

Ezekiel, too, foretold Israel's new birth. "Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God; I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel. And they shall come thither, and they shall take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence. And I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh: that they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God" (11:17-20).

"I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God. I will also save you from all your uncleanness: and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you. And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen. Then shall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations. Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord God, be it known unto you: be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel. Thus saith the Lord God; In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded. And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by. And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited. Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it. Thus saith the Lord God; I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them; I will increase them with men like a flock. As the holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord" (Ezek. 36:24-38).

All nations and languages will then be willing to follow the Jew to find favor with God, because they will have heard the good news that God is with him. "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you" (Zech. 8:23).

"Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all: neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwelling places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God. And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever. Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore. My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore" (Ezek. 37:21-28).

NEVER AN IMMORTAL SPIRIT

By Lottie E. Young

The following usages of the word "spirit" occur in the Bible, but there is never mentioned an "immortal spirit."

Dumb spirit—Mark 9:17
 Evil spirit—Luke 7:21
 Familiar spirit—2 Chronicles 33:6
 Foul spirit—Mark 9:25
 Lying spirit—1 Kings 22:22
 Perverse spirit—Isaiah 19:14
 Sorrowful spirit—1 Samuel 1:15
 Unclean spirit—Mark 1:23
 Wounded spirit—Proverbs 18:14
 Hasty spirit—Proverbs 14:29
 Haughty spirit—Proverbs 16:18
 Grieved spirit—Isaiah 54:6
 Faint spirit—Ezekiel 21:7
 Troubled spirit—Daniel 2:1
 Proud spirit—Ecclesiastes 7:8
 Broken spirit—Psalm 51:17
 Faithful spirit—Proverbs 11:13
 Humble spirit—Isaiah 57:15
 Patient spirit—Ecclesiastes 7:8
 Excellent spirit—Daniel 6:3
 Meek and quiet spirit—1 Peter 3:4
 Right spirit—Psalm 51:10
 Fervent spirit—Acts 18:25

If man has a so-called "immortal spirit," as is so commonly thought, how does it happen that the Bible makes no mention of it?

PERHAPS TODAY!

"O Blessed Hope! Perhaps today—
 A moment more, and then—away!
 Caught up in clouds to be with Him
 Beyond the reach of conflicts grim,
 Of disappointment, pain, and tears.
 O Blessed Hope, the rapture nears!
 Today? Perhaps! We hail the dawn
 Of Eden's glad, eternal morn.
 Christ's 'Lo, I come!' His children hear;
 All things declare, 'The time's at hand!
 God's schedule will mature as planned.'"

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

The repetitions of history (which have made it so very difficult to interpret Biblical predictions with any degree of accuracy) have rarely been so notable as in the propagandizing carried on by foreign Powers and by United States agencies during the first and second World Wars.

For this reason, as the Americas south of the Great Lakes grow constantly nearer to military action, H. C. Peterson's study of Propaganda for War (University of Oklahoma Press; $3.00) has become increasingly important. Mr. Peterson's contribution to the book lists of 1939 was published only four months before the heroic last stand of now-forgotten Danzig, and it carries with it an amazingly vivid picture of the current scene, though ostensibly (and actually) it is based altogether on the earlier war years of 1914-1919.

Strangely enough, Mr. Peterson devotes himself to breaking down the propaganda methods of the British exclusively, the while he insists quite firmly that, if war guilt can be fixed, Germany was more responsible for the first World War than either Britain or France. "Strangely enough," we say, because as Mr. Peterson admits, a study of British propaganda cannot but be deleterious to the British cause in the United States, and there is apparent inconsistency in laying at Germany's door the major fault for the world's military holocausts and still holding up English methods as a system of smart lies.

To get down to cases, however: Anyone at all interested in the war situation (and who is not?) will find more than a little to whet his cerebrations in Propaganda for War. The origins of reported "facts" of 1914-1918 are shown to be British censors; the reactions of American opinion to these "facts" is shown to be the wild emotionalism of the typical democratic mob. Numerous footnotes pointing to official source references add to the value of the book for the serious student.

There is a distinct similarity between the propaganda of the first World War and the propaganda of the second. Mr. Peterson helps no end in putting a correct—if somewhat cynical—interpretation upon the latest flood of "information" about the progress of the war and our position in it.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Romans 1:16).

Memory Thoughts

Saul, a sincere worker, did not believe in the new gospel and wanted to completely destroy it. He was not allowed to continue harming Christ's followers. He saw a great light, heard the voice of Jesus, and became a true Christian.

Philip helped spread the gospel to the Samaritans.

Peter, by a vision, was shown the way he was to travel for Jesus. He was to convert the Gentiles.

Both the Samaritans and Gentiles who accepted Christ received the Holy Spirit as had those who preached to them.

The Rechabites, not only would drink no wine, but they would not raise the grapes which were used to make the wine. Should Christians now raise tobacco crops, if they do not believe in the use of tobacco?

In Judges 13:14, we read that the angel of the Lord told Manoah that his wife was to have a child. Now Manoah was a Nazarite, so he did not drink wine. The angel told him that his wife was not to drink—and more: "She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink." This was told Manoah before Samson was born. Judges 13:5 tells us that Samson had some special work God wanted him to do.

Working Together

Christians, or disciples as they had been called, were still being scattered by persecutions. More and more people heard the Word of God.

Whenever the leaders (elders) in Jerusalem learned that the Word was being well received, they sent some other helpers to preach. This case was different. Barnabas was preaching, and it was said of him that he "was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith" (Acts 11:24). (How we would like to be so well spoken of today, and have it true!) Many were "added unto the Lord"; so many, in fact, that Barnabas went for help. He found Paul, for whom he was looking, and brought him back to help him "preach the word" in Antioch. For a whole year they held services. Christ's disciples were first called "Christians" in Antioch.

How wonderful it will be when Jesus returns and all the living and working will be centered around Him, and not around money as it is today.

Every Man Helped

Prophets came from Jerusalem to Antioch. One, named Agabus, told them that there would be "a great dearth throughout all the world." A dearth means "scarcity" or "lack." That meant little crops for food, didn't it?

The disciples or Christians at Antioch decided to send help to those in need at Judea. They sent their help to their elders, Barnabas and Saul, who sent it on to the elders who were near the people in need.

Everyone of us can be of help today. God's Word must be told. Everyone of us can help! God gives as much credit to a penny, if that is all one can give, as to a larger amount from one who has more to give. Jesus especially spoke of the widow's small offering, for she gave "all her living." So give to your elders all you are able to give.

ECE Club

How many are going to be at General Conference in Oregon, Illinois, this year? I hope to be there, and will be glad to see you.

Send or take your scrapbooks or other work you have for the ECE exhibit at Conference. The Cleveland, Ohio, members plan to send exhibits again. Begin to plan your part now.

Poetry for All Ages

"In the daytime, in the nighttime,
Jesus cares for me.
He will keep me from all danger,
So I need not fear.

"Just to do what Jesus tells us,
Just to follow out His plan,
Just to listen when He calls us—
Every child however small
Can help, for there is work for all."

The Gospel Team

* * * By Mrs. Elmo Gaspar, Eden Valley, Minn.

Other places, like Minnesota, may be confronted with the problem of many isolated Bereans and inactive societies throughout their respective States. At our recent Berean conference many isolated Bereans were in attendance with our two active societies, Eden Valley and Saint Cloud.

At the business meeting we discussed ways and means of keeping in contact with these isolated ones. Since our State has an evangelist who at regular intervals holds services at numerous places, it was agreed that the Bereans could support their part of the work by sending along a gospel team comprised each time of different ones who are willing to serve. We know there is an active gospel team at the Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and from the reports, their work receives high praise.

There is no reason why a group of Bereans from an active society would not be able to help those who are not fortunate enough to be able to work in a society. By this means, we hope to so establish the seed, that permanent societies may be organized. Then from these old fields, there is always the prospect of working into new fields and bringing light to those who have so little.

We fully realize that we are receiving much in return for these extra activities. We should serve as a unifying band between all Bereans and a means of strengthening each society and individual.

The National Berean Society can be of considerable assistance through the publishing of all the ideas and problems of the various teams. We cannot concentrate our efforts in only one place; we must pass the word on, and in this way our work is most effective. We cannot close our eyes and ears to the crying need all around us, for we have the need at home and abroad. A sure way of keeping a local society active is to give each one something to do—expecting results.

Stand Back—Give 'em Room

It is advertised that one year's service in the army will do you good, though you will learn the principle points of destroying life. Can six or eight weeks be too long a time to spend in learning how to save lives through the power of God's Word? Come on, fellows, sign up for the Summer Bible Training School.

What Mother Thought on Mother's Day

* * * By Esta Starbuck, Rockford, Ill.

I would not wish you ease and comfort
all along the way,

But rather, strength for every task and the trials of each day;

I do not pray that burdens shall always be made light,

For character is builded by the tests
we meet aright;

I do not ask that life may be all sunshine
bright and warm,

For mankind, like the mighty oak,
is tempered by the storm.

And though sometimes the clouds hang dark and hide the sun's bright ray,

There is a Friend who never fails, and night will turn to day;

The mountains stand serene and firm though fierce the storm may beat,

And faith enduring through the years can never know defeat;

So place your trust in Him who notes
the tiniest sparrow's fall,

And rest assured no harm can come,
He watches over all.

Go forth each morn with strength renewed to greet the rising sun,

And reward will come at eventide
in the joy of work well done;

Then give of your best in work, in play—
in everything you do,

For the greatest gift to God or man is loyal service true;

So may your lives be filled with service,
bringing countless joys;

This is my wish, my earnest hope, my prayer for you, "my boys."

FREDERICKTOWN, MISSOURI

Our church services were held one week earlier this month in order that Bro. C. E. Lapp might have services elsewhere. These services were very inspiring. We also had very good attendance, considering that it was near the closing of our school.

Our Mother's Day program consisted of the honoring of the mothers of our church with a beautiful carnation for each mother in attendance. The oldest visiting mother and the youngest visiting mother were also honored and given a carnation. Bro. Lapp's sermon to the mothers was enjoyed.

Our church having adopted a plan by which the offering at the Sunday school each time we have church be applied to the church debt, has made it possible to make some good sized payments on our church. With the same results, in a few more months we shall have our building free of debt.

The next service will be over the third Sunday in June. Plans are being made for a basket dinner, that all who come might have a good time visiting together.

Our conference will convene July 12-20. Make plans to attend; we extend a hearty welcome to all.

Mrs. J. C. Cooper, Reporter.

TRACT ANNOUNCEMENT

We have printed a special circular by Bro. James M. Watkins on planning a successful tract campaign. In it he has listed very definite and systematic ways of accomplishing the most with either large or small tract campaigns. He also tells you what tracts to use and exactly how to go about your campaign. If you are planning to spend fifteen cents or twenty dollars in giving out tracts, you will find it very worth while to write the National Bible Institution for one of these circulars. Please enclose three cents in stamps with your request.

ARE YOU ISOLATED?

We want the name of every isolated member listed in the Church of God directory which we hope to publish this year. One reason for this is so that our brethren, traveling by auto, will know where isolated members of families live so that they can drop in for a visit on their way. You have probably yourself passed right by the homes of brethren and never known it at the time.

For this purpose we want the following information:

- (1) Name and mail address.
- (2) Location of your home with reference to nearest main highways. Give brief directions how to reach it from a given point on the highway.

An isolated member may be considered anyone who lives at a distance from an organized church, whether a member of that congregation or not. So, even if you belong to a nearby church, but live even twenty-five miles away, please report.

Up to May 22, twelve reports have come in. We appreciate these, but there are many more isolated members in the country than that. We cannot include your name if we do not have it. You want your name in the directory. So hurry and report at once. A post card will do. Send your report to:

M. W. Lyon, 11405 Lake Shore Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio.

LOUISIANA CHURCH NOTES

The attendance at both churches has increased considerably the past few weeks, and all services show good interest.

It was our privilege, on May 18, to baptize Miss Viney Hutchinson into the all-saving name of Jesus. We pray God's blessing to be with her in the days to come.

The Dorcas society of the Happy Woods church recently picked and canned about seventy quarts of strawberry preserves, and it plans to send them to Oregon, Ill., to be used during General Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. George Siple of Oregon, Ill., are visiting relatives and friends in Hammond and, of course, they attend all services at Happy Woods and take part in the various services. We are always glad to have brethren from other sections of the country visit us and worship with us.

Harry Gockler, Pastor.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

The attendance at Sunday school, May 18, was forty-four. The young married people's class is proving to be a great success with Bro. Ray Galeener as the teacher.

Bro. Sylvan Richey is our new choir director. The choir meets for practice the second and fourth Sundays of each month at eight o'clock at the church. It is planned once a month to meet at the home of the different members for practice and a social "get-together." Mrs. Anna Cline is the chairman of the social committee.

Three members of the Sunday school and church will graduate from high school the first of June. Miss Lois Claypool will graduate from the Marshall High School, and Roger Richey and Miss Reba Cline will graduate from the Martinsville High School.

Bro. William Melton has been quite ill the past month, and is bedfast all of the time. He is eighty-five years of age, and is the oldest living member of our church.

Ruth Gockler, Secy.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Since last week's report, we have received the following enrollments to the Summer Bible Training School: Alva Huffer, Michigantown, Ind.; Charles T. Pearson, Troy, Ohio; and Malcolm McLeod, Pomona, Calif. Several others are expected to enroll soon, thus assuring us of the sufficient number of students to make possible another Summer School. Definite and official announcement will be made next week.

Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick, who for two years has served the Blanchard, Mich., congregation as its pastor, was recently given a surprise party as he was making plans to leave for Aurora College, where in two or three weeks he will complete his college work. Following his graduation, he plans a trip to Minnesota where, starting June 22, he will conduct a three-weeks' series of evangelistic meetings at White Pine.

"Editorially you have been wondering why Russia is waiting. Judging from reports by news commentators, it will be only a matter of Russia finding an opportune moment. The spoil must be the oil."—Otto E. Dick, Frankfort, Ind.

"Bro. John Garard is having the church painted; and as soon as someone can do the work, we plan to have the basement ceiled. . . . Bro. Rufus Curtis gets to church frequently. If the younger members were as faithful as he, we would surely be 'going strong.' . . . Everyone is making plans for the Brush Creek Annual Meeting and the Ohio Conference to come a little later."—Mary Pearson, Tipp City, Ohio.

Bro. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., reports the baptism of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Black, Tipp City, Ohio. Complete report next week.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

All of the students recently went to Chicago, except Sr. Verneille Lawrence, Bros. Ellsworth Routson and Richard Smith, where we visited the Field Museum, the Art Institute, the Planetarium, and Chinatown. We were privileged to hear an interesting lecture in the Planetarium. We went down on Maxwell Street (Jewish street market) and observed the manner in which business is there conducted. In the Field Museum, we saw mummies, inscriptions, images, and many implements of all sorts that are thousands of years old. We saw the mummies of some of the Pharaohs of Egypt. Much of this material we have studied in our Archaeology class. The day was a day in which there was an entrance fee, Bro. L. E. Conner, who is a jovial fellow, pleaded our cause with the deft of an able lawyer, and we were permitted to enter free of charge. Bros. Paul Johnson and Robert Hardesty used their ears to take the students. Srs. Ethel Johnson and Eunice Zolinger also went.

Bro. Terry Ferrell visited the Aquarium to find out how to best care for "fish."

We, the students and the matron, extend to the Dunbars in Delta, Ohio, words of appreciation for the magnificent and useful gift of an automatic electric toaster. We consider the love that prompted such a gift.

May 22 we enjoyed a lecture by an Anti-saloon League man.

Bro. Ellsworth Routson and Sr. June Maey will be united in marriage, June 7, in the Brush Creek Church of God near Tipp City, Ohio, with Bro. S. E. Magaw officiating.

The Church of God in Burr Oak, Ind., has employed Bro. Celaine Randall as its pastor for the three vacation months.

Bro. Richard Smith plans to preach at Blair and possibly Omaha, Neb., this summer.
C. Alan McLain, Reporter.

INDIANA BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

The Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem will open on June 18 and continue through June 29. The assisting ministers will be Bros. J. H. Anderson of Frankfort, Ind.; F. L. Austin of South Bend, Ind.; and J. R. LeCrone of Woodstock, Va. There will be classes for all ages, and plenty of activities are being arranged for young people. An earnest invitation is extended to all brethren to attend.

We are in need of more iron beds for the dormitory. If you have one that you would like to give to the School, we should be glad to have it. Mattresses will also be very acceptable.
Otto E. Dick.

MY WISH

O, sing a song of hope to me,
To soothe the anguish in my heart,
Tell me of love deep as the sea,
And joys from which I ne'er shall part.

Tell me of Jesus' tender love,
How He will help my sorrow bear;
How broken hearts His pity move,
And He will raise them from despair.

I want to know He's with me most,
When deep affliction weighs me down;
In Him I then would fully trust,
And realize, "No cross, no crown."

O, blessed Jesus, let me still Like patient Job e'er trust in Thee;
Tho' sorrow's frost each hope should kill,
Thy grace sufficient is for me.

Then let this wayward heart of mine,
Within Thy crucible be tried
Until Thy face shall in it shine
And with me Thou shalt e'er abide.

—Alice B. Curtis.

The Summer Bible Training School

June 17—July 25, 1941

Oregon, Illinois

Young people who are sincerely interested in training for better Christian service should attend the six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School to be conducted, D.V., at Oregon, Illinois, June 17—July 25. Courses of study will be presented in: "Christ in the Old Testament," "The Old Testament in the New," "English and Public Speaking," and "Christian Principles in Everyday Life." The instructors will be Elders S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Arizona, and Harry A. Sheets, Elburn, Illinois. Both these men are experienced teachers and well founded in the doctrines of the Church of God.

Students should enroll immediately, or as soon as they can be reasonably sure of attending, as at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1, 1941, for the School to open June 17. Use the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We are pleased to present the following message from one of the instructors, Elder Harry A. Sheets:

TRAINING FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

A trained mind as well as a consecrated heart is a necessity for effective Christian service today. Many people have been led to Christ in days past by consecrated leaders whose knowledge and usage of correct English were woefully limited. But those with whom they worked were likewise untrained. With our increased educational facilities, people now demand more refinement and polish in the linguistic ability of their leaders. Any appreciable defect causes a distrust in the accuracy of one's knowledge of God's Word. This has influenced the Board of Religious Education to include English in the Summer Training curriculum.

Paul faced a group of religious zealots at Mars' Hill in Athens. These people were neutral in mind toward Paul, but strongly biased in their religion. Reformers had been killed because they dared to speak against their gods. The efficacy of Paul's sermon depended upon his ability to keep his listeners in a friendly, listening mood. He succeeded because he knew how to handle people. Another phase of our Summer School will be to teach some of the methods used to handle people successfully. This will be from a Christian standpoint to aid in the spread of salvation.

Elder Harry A. Sheets
Dean of the School

Our work will be to give instruction in applied Christianity. We hope, thereby, to make our students more effective in their work when they return to their respective localities. The students should be much better prepared for Sunday school and general church work as a result of attendance this summer.

Christ needs the services of all who can attend.

Harry A. Sheets.

Please enroll me as one of the first twenty students planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School to be conducted June 17—July 25, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. It is my understanding that at least twenty students must be enrolled by June 1 for the School to open June 17; and that the cost of my six-weeks' special training will be only thirty dollars, plus a small amount for one or two textbooks:

Doctrine Versus Faith

By J. R. LeCrone

THERE is a word, formerly much used, that in recent years has fallen into disrepute among Christian churches. Perhaps this is a natural result of the crimes that have been committed in its name, or possibly it is one result of the growing indifference to the teachings of Scripture—of man's tendency to rely upon his own opinions rather than the plain spoken Word of God. At any rate, the word has been pushed into the background of the average Christian's vocabulary and when used at all is often used with scornful accents. The word is "doctrine."

The Companion Bible defines "doctrine" with one simple word—"teaching." Webster's Unabridged Dictionary enlarges upon the thought by saying that doctrine is "that which is taught; what is held, put forth as true, and supported by a teacher, a school or a sect; a principle or position, or a body of principles, in any branch of knowledge." Thus, whatever any denomination holds to be true and teaches to its members and prospective members, whether it be Biblical or not, becomes the doctrine of that group.

In times past, various Christian leaders have read the Scriptures and interpreted them differently. The doctrines formulated by one group, studying under the direction of one man were often irreconcilable with those accepted by another group studying under different leadership. Over these various interpretations of Scripture, they often quarreled most bitterly. Many of the results of this strife—hatred, bitterness, and even persecution—were definitely anti-Christian and undoubtedly did much harm to the cause of Christ.

Eventually a consciousness that such conduct violated one of the most important principles of Christianity began to be felt in the hearts of many. They remembered the words of the Master, placing the love of a man for his neighbors as second only to his love for God. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind," is the manner in which He answered the question concerning which was the greatest commandment, and then added that "the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." (Matt. 22:37-39.) "How," reasoned many Christians, "can I love my neighbor when I must be eternally fighting him because of his erroneous doctrines?"

J. R. LeCrone

Following this line of thought, the attention of the Christian world began to focus upon the many faith passages of the Bible. "For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith" (Rom. 1:17). "But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, The just shall live by faith" (Gal. 3:11). As this thought gained prominence in the Christian mind, doctrinal debates became less frequent and discussions of doctrines between laymen less heated.

Once started in the other direction, however, the pendulum of Christian opinion has continued to swing until it has finally reached the opposite extreme. "Doctrines," we are often told, "are relatively unimportant, and since they tend to divide rather than to unite Christianity, we will dispense with them. Faith is the thing! 'The just shall live by faith.' You may worry your head about doctrines if you wish, but not we. We will live by faith!" That attitude is plainly reflected in the almost universal tendency among Christians to join the church which is most conveniently located, without knowing or caring whether or not the doctrines that it teaches are according to God's Word of Truth. "We can," they insist, "live by faith in one church as well as another."

For the sake of more lucid reasoning, let us get a clear idea of what we mean when we (Please turn to page 11)

Twenty Students, or More

We are more than pleased to be able to report that there will be twenty or more students in attendance at the Summer Bible Training School. This large enrollment not only assures one and all that the School will definitely open as planned on June 17, but is sufficiently large to assure us that there will be no unpaid bills at the end of the School.

That we have now reached our goal of at least twenty students is no reason, however, for us to be lazily contented. We could well care for another ten or more students, and hope others will yet enroll. It is not so much a case of "the more—the merrier," as it is: the more who come, the more good can be done.

Further, it should not be thought that we do not need any financial support from the brethren. When we set our goal for an enrollment of twenty students, it was with the expectancy that there would also be some little revenue by way of contributions from the brethren.

The instructors, Brothers S. J. Lindsay and Harry A. Sheets, are planning enthusiastically for the School.

The Conference Season

A study of the "Calendar of Evangelism" on page 14 will reveal that many interesting and profitable meetings are now being planned. It is the season for conferences. To all these gatherings we send best wishes, and pray God's blessing. May the Lord's work prosper.

It is not too early to plan a journey to the General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, where, also, the Illinois State Conference and Bible School convene. These meetings assure one and all a menu of gospel food that will satisfy those hungry for spiritual manna. The dates are July 29-August 10. May we see you then! Bring the family; Jesus still loves children. (Heb. 13:8.)

Business Is Business

It is not begging the question, as some might suppose, to ask the leaders in various conferences and series of special meetings to lift at least a modest voice in behalf of The Restitution Herald. Plainly, the subscription list to The Restitution Herald is pathetically meager—there being less than thirteen hundred fifty paid subscriptions. Year after year, The Herald proclaims the best it can the message of the Church of God; year after year it advertises your various meetings and reports your church news; year after year it is your weekly visitor of cheer and hope. It indirectly helps churches to secure pastors and evangelists, and it helps pastors and evangelists to secure work. Its cost is small—it is, in fact, sent free for life to ministers of the Church of God who are enough interested to accept it.

The Herald never gets discouraged; never dares to "get mad" at anybody; never quits serving because the weather is too hot or too cold. When someone is a little timid about telling his neighbor about the true Bible teaching on some "touchy" subject, he sends The Herald in his place.

So, conferences throughout the country, and preachers near and far, if you really believe in fair play, why not give The Herald a boost? With very little extra work, and with much more joy, we could be printing two thousand Heralds, each week, instead of the present thirteen hundred plus. Business is business, and we want some of it. Who will help?

Look Into the Water

Said Solomon: "As in water face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man" (Prov. 27:19).

We once saw a bantam rooster try to fight himself by looking into a mirror. Obviously, he saw a rooster who wanted to fight—himself. Likewise, if a man, sour as a crab apple, looks into a clear pool, he will see mirrored a fellow that might well be called a "crab."

One need not, however, look into a pool to see himself mirrored, for the same principle applies in man's looking at other men. He who scowls at another will see a rising storm; he who cheers another will find a warm friend. Thus, one's friend or associate becomes his photograph, and he sees himself not on dusty pianos, but imprinted into the lives of those about him.

The best preparation for this little game is to look into the water; then drown that malice and let the sun drive away the fog!

The Book of Revelation Revealed

By J. W. McLain

THE Book of Revelation is, as it says, "To shew unto his (the Lord's) servants things which must shortly come to pass." It is not, and never was a sealed book. "Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book."

This work of interpretation is undertaken with the deepest humility of mind, knowing that many noble and worthy men of God have endeavored to search out these same things.

May this work be received by humble hearts, earnest in their search for truth, as an aid in their understanding of and preparation for the events that shall precede the return of our blessed Lord Jesus.

Method of Biblical Interpretation

The very character of the language of the Book of the Apocalypse is such as to hide its message from the casual, the shallow, the curious, the indifferent, or the unbelieving reader. It is a message to the faithful. It is written in their language, the language of the Bible. Almost its every statement is taken bodily from the writings of the prophets. The only key, therefore, is the Bible itself, especially the Old Testament. This one fact eliminates from understanding all those modernists who have thrown away the Old Testament as entirely historic, fulfilled, and having no special significance to Christian study.

As it is easy for the student of shorthand to understand shorthand writing, so it is easy for the exhaustive student of both the Old and New Testaments to understand and interpret Christ's language in His Revelation message.

There are so many interpretations of the Book, that only confusion can come from trying to piece together a new interpretation from the various interpretations.

So often, in the interpretation of a symbol, we reach out to the very obvious things about us, hoping to find something that will fit the description. Usually we find something that will fit. This method can only result in numerous results and much wild guessing. What we desire is truth. Guesses are for those who are not so concerned with truth.

The interpretation of the language of Revelation will be found in its sources. This is the wisdom of God. We are dealing with His Word. We need not that any man should teach us. "The things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things which are given to us of God.

Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2: 11-14). "No prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation" (2 Peter 1:20).

If the Bible does not interpret Revelation, let us say we have none until God gives us one.

The Purpose of the Book

This is plainly set forth in the words of our Lord as He began to speak: "To shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass" (Rev. 1:1). The whole work, obviously, is to prepare a definite group for the events of the Day of the Lord.

It has for its task the opening of the sealed vision of Daniel concerning Israel's great tribulation and the time of the end. The purpose is better understood through understanding the people of the Book, and the character of the Book.

The People of the Book

Much confusion of interpretation can be dispelled when we cease trying to read the church into every passage of the Bible, without giving proper consideration as to whether the context, setting, and language warrant it. Because of this tendency, Israel is almost completely read out of, or spiritualized away from, the Scriptures—substituting the church instead. This is especially true in the New Testament. We often overlook the fact that at least two books of the New Testament are addressed directly to Israel. See James 1:1; 1 Peter 1.

The Book of Revelation is a message to Israel to prepare the people for their own particular time of trouble. It seems doubtful if any portion of the Book deals with, or is addressed to, the church.

The mystery of the church is revealed in the Pauline epistles. The church is called the body of Christ, and the temple of God. (Rom. 12:4; 1 Cor. 10:17; 12:12; Eph. 1:22; 4:12; 5:23; Col. 1:18; 2:19; 3:15; 1 Cor. 3:16; 6:19; 2 Cor. 6:16.)

As the body of Christ, the church must not be confused with the bride of Christ, which is the New Jerusalem, made up of the elect remnant from the nation of Israel. It is the union of both these (Please turn to page 9)

The Bible Answers

By Verneille Lawrence

"I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep" (1 Thessalonians 4:13).

PAUL would not have Christians laboring under a misapprehension. He would that we should understand the Holy Scriptures as they were intended, particularly concerning "them which are asleep."

There is only one right answer to every question. If questions were considered without prejudice and with honest reason, every person would necessarily arrive at the same conclusion. You can no more destroy the Bible than you can destroy the Milky Way, but we know that the use of the Bible is in various locations modified. Christians read it from different viewpoints and, consequently, new lights are continually breaking forth. We know that there are multitudes of men and women, young and old, from Christian homes who know surprisingly little of the Bible. We know and are appalled at the slight hold the Bible has on the average Christian, and what little progress he has made in the understanding of it. This revelation, however, is hardly more startling than the discovery that many religious teachers do not know how to use the Bible. Christian ministers of reputation and even learned Doctors of Divinity have many times given the most surprising exhibitions of ignorance of the Bible.

Much depends on the way in which a book is used. Even the Bible may be so interpreted and applied as to completely baffle the best scholars. No book in the whole world has been so persistently misused as the Bible. It does not matter much how earnest or sincere a man may be, if he perverts the Scriptures and twists them into teaching things which are not true or right. He damages the reputation of God's Holy Word, and retards the progress of the church. Nothing has so plagued the church as false conceptions and mistaken interpretations of the Bible.

No matter what may be the subject of controversy, the Bible is certain, sooner or later, to be "dragged" into it. This is inevitable. Christians, believing that the Bible is a message from God, search the Scriptures for sentences which seem to support their personal arguments. Agnostics and unbelievers are also glad to quote the Scriptures when they can, because the Bible is a book of vast prestige and adds weight to any argument. The Bible is often quoted by men who have no interest in the Christian religion. It answers all questions. It was used in the astronomical controversy of the Sixteenth Century, in the witchcraft controversy of the Eighteenth Century, controversy on the use of anesthetics, practice of vaccination, use of lightning rods, scheme of life insurance, prohibition, suffrage, slavery, and many others. Today people are asking, "Does the Bible sanction war?" The Bible is an inexhaustible supply of advice and information, but only if it is interpreted as it was meant to be. Some people make the mistake of dipping into the Bible anywhere and pulling out a sentence which seems to contain the answer they want to give. They make no distinction between what the Bible teaches and what is said in the Bible. That is a fatal mistake. The Bible does not teach everything that is said in the Bible, any more than Shakespeare taught everything that is said in the plays of Shakespeare. There is a multitude of speakers in the Bible, speakers of all kinds, including the Devil himself, and we must be careful, unless, in our effort to get the Bible on our side, we misuse it.

Does the Bible sanction polygamy? David was a man after God's own heart, and he had wives and concubines. It seems that there is nothing immoral about polygamy.

Does the Bible sanction slavery? Read Leviticus 25:44-46: "Both thy bondmen, and thy bondmaids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you; of them shall ye buy bondmen and bondmaids. Moreover of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families that are with you, which they begat in your land: and they shall be your possession. And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for a possession; they shall be your bondmen for ever." The slave holders of the old South quoted the Bible.

Does the Bible tell men to drown their sorrows in drink? Read what is written in Proverbs 31:6: "Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy hearts. Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more."

Does the Bible teach witchcraft? and does it sanction the execution of witches? Turn to Exodus 22:18: "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live."

Does the Bible sanction war? Read what is written in 1 Samuel 15:2: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel; how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt. Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass." Saul refused to carry out this fearful command. "Then came the word of the Lord unto Samuel, saying, It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is turned back from following me, and hath not performed my commandments" (v. 11). What Saul would not do Samuel did. "Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the Lord in Gilgal" (v. 33). Hitler must keep the Bible open to 1 Samuel!

Does the Bible sanction persecution? Elijah was one of the greatest of the prophets, so great that his countrymen refused to believe that he could die. In 1 Kings 18:40, we are told that Elijah said this: "Take (Turn to page 10)

Troubled Ones

By Ellsworth Routson

"To you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels."

ARE we, as Christians, troubled today? Many people are troubled. What is the cause of this condition which has encircled man with this thought of anxiety? Let us read Matthew 24:6: "Ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet." We, as Christians, must look at the things that are happening in this present day as the things that are to be. We should be glad to see prophecy being fulfilled, and lift up our heads and rejoice, for we are to be looking for Christ's soon return.

We could quote different ones who are troubled in regard to present-day conditions of: foreign wars, our economic system, our defense program, and other perplexing problems. These have a tendency to take root and grow in men's minds, and the words of our Saviour are soon vanished from their thoughts. Instead, they think of "Down with Hitler!" "Onward Britain!" War! War! This is the thought that dominates the minds of millions of men, women, and children. The reverence toward God that at one time was supreme in many homes is now only weakly practiced or completely forgotten. One cannot serve God and mammon. He should hold to the one, and hate the other. He should not say he despises God, as God is the Creator of all.

Christians are sometimes troubled when things go wrong, and we then seek to find Christ to relieve us of our burdens. Still, when things go our way we sometimes forget Christ and give ourselves the praise, when we should praise God. The defense program is urging men to work Sundays, the one day set aside for worship by the people of our Nation. "Freedom of religion," though, is the standard which was adopted at the founding of our Democracy.

We Christians are too easily troubled at these times and look toward the perils that may soon face us, when we should be looking for Christ's soon return with power and glory, when the righteous will be raised to meet Him. This hope should be foremost in our lives, and it is possible for us to rest assured if we are living as Christ taught us.

If we have been planted in the likeness of Christ's death, we have nothing to fear or with which to be troubled. If we have been baptized into Christ, we are His and will abstain from the things of the world. A true follower of Christ seeks to build character and spirituality into the lives of others. He has no time to be troubled with the cares of this world. Yes, we should be patriotic, and we are when we build the character and morals of the men and women, boys and girls of our great nation—the nation which stands for freedom and liberty for all, where we can worship as we understand. May our flag long wave and our country continue to stand firm for what it does today.

From the writings of Paul we understand that there were many faithful men of the Bible who were persecuted and had many tribulations for the cause of Christ. We read in 2 Corinthians 11:23-26 about the tribulation that Paul endured, and how he continued to look forward to the time when Christ will return to reward the faithful and punish the wicked. Christ was rejected and despised of men. He was crucified for our sins. He suffered affliction without murmur, and paved the way for us to salvation. Little does one esteem the love that was manifested for us by the Father who gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth might have eternal life. When Christ returns, He will rule and put all enemies under His feet. He will gather His loved ones, and there will be no more sorrow, death, or sickness, but all will rejoice and happiness will prevail. The Lord, our Saviour, will come down to earth, and "so shall we ever be with the Lord."

The Tribes of Israel

By Charles W. Howe

THE attempt of this Bible study is to locate Israel's tribes as they may exist today, using as the basis of our study the prophecy of Moses as recorded in Deuteronomy 33, and in Jacob's prophecy of Genesis 48 and 49. Jacob said in Genesis 49:1: "Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you that which shall befall you in the last days."

It seems to us that some of the tribes are today fully known, that of others we may be reasonably certain, while still others are fairly well indicated in the prophecies of Moses and Jacob. We shall give an outline of the tribes as we understand them.

(1) The Known Tribes:

1. Levi. "I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel" (Gen. 49:7). Being priests, the Levites were retained in Judah and scattered with Judah.

2. Judah. "Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies" (Gen. 49:8). "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come" (v. 10). This is a good description of the Jew, and a good statement of the promised rulership therefrom.

3. Benjamin. "In the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil" (v. 27). This is also a good description of the Jews as they are known from a business standpoint. The tribe of Benjamin was given to David as a light. (1 Kings 11:36; 12:21.)

(2) Tribes Reasonably Certain:

1. Manasseh. We believe this tribe may be seen in the United States. Of Ephraim it was prophesied: "He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother (Manasseh) shall be greater than he, and his seed (Ephraim's seed) shall become a multitude of nations" (Gen. 48:19). (The division of Manasseh from Ephraim never occurred prior to the banishment of Israel from Palestine.)

2. Ephraim. We believe this tribe points prophetically to the British Empire as indicated, again, in the words: "He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations." Great Britain and the United States are the only modern nations answering this description. "With them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth: and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh" (Deut. 33:17). This prophecy points to the colonization and conquests of this great people. Please notice that Ephraim's seed were to become the "multitude of nations," hence we must look for the remainder of the tribes outside of Britain, and among kindred races. (We think it is not proper to speak of British Israel, but of British Ephraim and Nordic Israel.)

(3) Tribes Fairly Well Indicated.

1. Reuben. We believe this tribe may be seen today in France. "Reuben . . . unstable as water, thou shalt not excel" (Gen. 49:3, 4). The rest of verse 4 indicates lewdness. (This instability lost the present war for France.)

2. Simeon. We believe there is more difficulty in locating this tribe than any of the others, as it was prophesied of Simeon: "I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel" (v. 7). Thus, Simeon has been scattered as completely as Levi was scattered, and so cannot be known.

3. Zebulun. This tribe may be seen in Sweden. "Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for an haven of ships" (v. 13). The Baltic Sea has long been such a haven.

4. Issachar. Of this tribe it was prophesied that he "became a servant unto tribute" (v. 15). Norway may here be prophesied, as this nation has paid tribute to Denmark, to Sweden, and now to Germany. Deuteronomy 33:19, reads: "They shall suck of the abundance of the seas," may also point to Norway, and is definitely a prophecy of Issachar.

5. Dan. This tribe may be seen in Denmark. "Dan shall be . . . an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward" (v. 17). (History shows that Denmark has always been a source of annoyance to Germany.)

6. Gad. We believe this tribe may be seen today in Germany, for it is prophesied of Gad: "A troop shall overcome him: but he shall overcome at the last" (v. 19). The Revised Version probably better translates what will happen. It says: "A troop shall press upon him; but he shall press upon their heel." Deuteronomy 33:21 prophesies of Gad, "He executed the justice of the Lord, and his judgments with Israel." (God has given Gad the work of bringing His judgments against the other tribes of Israel, and this may now be happening—God's method of breaking down the old order, preparatory to establishing the Kingdom of God.)

7. Asher. This tribe may be seen in Austria. "Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties" (v. 20). Austria was called the granary of Europe.

8. Naphtali. This tribe, we believe, may be seen in the Netherlands. "He giveth goodly words" (v. 21), no doubt refers to the work of The Hague.

The reader will note that we mentioned thirteen tribes instead of twelve, but Joseph was divided into two tribes to compensate for Levi which had no landed inheritance. That accounts for the difference. Jacob not only blessed the sons of Joseph regarding their becoming, respectively, a great people and a multitude of nations, but he also blessed Joseph with his brethren, concerning things to happen in the "last days," with words which should greatly encourage us in these days when Gad is pressing sorely upon Ephraim, and Manasseh is wondering what his lot will be if Ephraim fails. According to Genesis 49:22-26, Joseph, consisting of both Ephraim and Manasseh, will not fail. "Joseph is a fruitful bough . . . the archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him: but his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob . . . even by the (Please turn to page 10)

Unseasonable Meat

By Francis Burnett

"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season."

THESE words, which are taken from 2 Timothy 4:2, were written as advice to Timothy. In the epistles to Timothy, Paul instructed him concerning the duties of a preacher and evangelist. He also told Timothy of situations and problems that would confront him—problems, too, that would confront all who would follow Christ. Paul said, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Tim. 4:1). Therefore, this commandment of Paul's was made not for the satisfaction of himself, but it was written by one having authority, Paul, as being in the presence of heaven's Witnesses, God and Jesus Christ.

"In season, out of season." It may be that someone might ask, "What does 'out of season' mean? Is not the Word of God 'in season' at all times?" Perhaps the following explanation might help. There are seasons of the year that are especially suited for the preaching of the Word. Examples are: Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day, Memorial Day, Thanksgiving, and so forth. Of course the preceding examples refer to our present day. However, we must remember that the people to whom Paul, Timothy, and others preached had certain days and events that they celebrated or commemorated. Therefore, it seems that Paul thought that the Word should be preached not only on these days or events, but at all times.

Furthermore, he stated this, "Be instant." According to Chrysostom, we should "keep at the post," be persistent and devoted, not only embracing the opportunities that we have, but making them. What a warning and, likewise, a blessing these words should be to the Church of God and its people! Three years ago, through the efforts of a few persons, the Summer Bible Training School was started. It is one of the best opportunities that any young person can have. The cost of living is very reasonable, and the students have the privilege of associating with other young people from different environments and localities. The greatest of all these blessings is that the students are taught the ways of righteousness and truth.

In this town, Oregon, Illinois, we know many young people, not by name but by sight, who drink and smoke. We know that drinking and smoking lead to other sins, and that they are harmful to the body. It seems that it might be worse here than in many places, but we think not, for the trend of the world today is not for better living, but toward degrading living. Why is all this? Why are these young people doing these things? Because their parents have not been "instant" in teaching the Word. They have not taught it in all seasons.

Again we read, "Reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine." Let us study the word "rebuke." Rebuke means to reprove with authority. We read in 2 Thessalonians 3:15: "Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother." Paul was talking about one who would not obey the Word. Again, we read in John 16:8: "When he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." We can reason and understand by the foregoing verses that to rebuke does not mean to scoff and scold, as one who "knows it all," but to encourage and to teach in an unrepulsive manner.

Therefore, let us meditate on these words to see whether or not we are doing our duty in preaching or teaching the Word "in season" and "out of season."

The Two Adams

In Four Parts—Part Two

By S. G. Elton

GOD, having adopted the biological system of reproduction for every living creature, both animal and vegetable, made no exception for man. When God observed man's need for a suitable helpmate, He designed the woman to be the mother of all the living, and presented her to the man; who recognized her as a creature superior to himself. If the man had followed the instructions that God gave him, he might have become one flesh with the woman on a spiritual plane. However, as a natural man, he could not discern spiritual things, choosing rather to follow the emotions of the animal man, and deceived the woman by his subtlety. Thus he retained her in his power, and by his attitude toward God, enmity was placed between the two Adams.

In these two Adams that were created male and female, reposed the two seeds that God blessed and commanded to be "fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth." Because the first Adam was disposed to resist the will of God, he became the medium by which sin came into the world, and death came by sin. So death passed upon all men, for all have sinned because of the impotence of the seed. Although sin was in the world, sin is not imputed where there is no law, because of the spiritual nature of the second Adam. No law was imposed, therefore, no sin imputed to her or her seed—death being transmitted through the seed of the first Adam. The seed of the woman passed from generation to generation, until the "fulness of the time was come," when God sent the angel Gabriel to a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin named Mary, and the angel said: "Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS" (Luke 1:27-31). "Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God" (vv. 34, 35). Thus was fulfilled the many prophecies that foretold the coming of the Son of God.

Now, listen to the Apostle Paul: "Now I say, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the time appointed by the father. Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the elements of the world: but when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman (the second Adam), made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons" (Gal. 4:1-5). Paul used the word "we" in a special way, to denote a certain type of persons, which he defined in his epistle to the Ephesians, saying: "Blessed be the God and father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love: having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace" (Eph. 1:3-7).

Because of sin in the first Adam, the children of the first Adam's seed are destined to mortality. Because of the righteousness in the second Adam, the children of the second Adam's seed are predestined for adoption of God as children of Jesus Christ, in whom is the Seed of Abraham. Moreover, listen to Jesus: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh (the seed of the first Adam) is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit (of Christ) is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again" (John 3:3-7). The first birth required a dual parentage, the first Adam and the second Adam; likewise, the second birth—the seed of the woman and the seed of Abraham that is in Christ Jesus. The nature of the first Adam being animal, his seed begets a body fitted for animal life. The nature of the Christ being spiritual; the seed of Abraham in Him, begets a body fitted for spiritual life. The animal body is fitted to produce the life force from the food we eat and the air we breathe, while the spiritual body is fitted to retain an unlimited quantity of the "water of life," and be an acceptable abode for the Spirit of Christ.

This reasoning is indicated in Paul's words: "They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you" (Rom. 8:5-11). So much for the Apostle Paul, now listen to the Apostle John, according to the Syriac Translation:

"My children, let no one deceive you: he that doeth righteousness, is righteous, as the Messiah also is righteous. And he that committeth sin, is of Satan (the first Adam); because Satan was a sinner from the beginning: and for this cause the Son of God appeared, that he might destroy the works of Satan. Every one that is born of God, doth not practise sin; because his seed is in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. By this are the children of God discriminated from the children of Satan. Every one that practiseth not righteousness, and that loveth not his brother, is not of God: because this is the commandment, which ye heard from the beginning, that ye should love one another. Not like Cain, who was of the evil one, and slew his brother. And why did he slay him, but because his own works were evil, and those of his brother righteous?" (1 John 3:7-12).

THE BOOK OF REVELATION REVEALED

saved groups that will compose the marriage supper of the Lamb (Isa. 61:10; Rev. 21:2; 22:9, 10).

The servants addressed by Christ represent a class of Israel called to the election of grace, a remnant of truth-loving, devout persons who live true to God despite the persecutions of the Beast and the apostasy of their intimate neighbors, even those of their own families. Christ's parable of the citizens and the servants is harmonious with this idea. The promises in the seven letters are for them, and are shown fulfilled in the latter chapters of the Book. (Isa. 65:8-16; Luke 19:12-27; Rev. 11:18; 1:1; Rom. 11:1-5.)

In giving signs concerning the end of the age and His coming again, Christ said, "Behold the fig tree, and all the trees." (Luke 21:29; Matt. 24:32; Rev. 6:13.) This Book, being a record of the events in connection with Israel's great tribulation, becomes a medium of watching the fig tree develop for those events. In the Zionist Movement of today for the purpose of repopulating Palestine and providing a haven for the persecuted Jew, we see the fig tree putting forth tender leaves of reawakening. The term, "fig tree," originates from Judges 9:10 in connection with the choosing of a king over Israel. Two other important symbols find their origin in the same story, the olive tree, and the vine. Through usage by the inspired writers, the vine is associated with the spiritual condition of Israel. It is the true fruits of spirituality that is symbolized in the gathering of the grapes from the vine.

The term, "olive tree," seems to be associated with the Covenant of God.

The "fig tree" seems to be always used in connection with the political life of Israel, especially in regard to the political reawakening of the nation. (Study Judges 9:7-15; Isa. 24:13; 17:6; Jer. 6:9; Hosea 6:11; Rev. 6:13; 14:18-20; Rom. 11:17-26.)

The Hebraistic character of the language of the Book was one of the objections offered to including the Book of Revelation in the canon of the Bible. When understood, this is one of the strongest proofs that its message is for Israel, and should by all means be included in the New Testament.

It remains for the exhaustive student of the Word of God to search out for himself the verification of these statements which seem such a radical departure from the usual interpretation of the Book. Whether or not these views are accepted, if you have been encouraged to study more carefully, a certain good will have been accomplished.

The Character of the Book

The Book is as a gallery hung with pictures, each dealing with a separate, but complete, scene and subject. The Book naturally divides itself into portions dealing with complete subjects, such as: the judgment, the reign of the Beast, the tribulation, the salvation of an elect remnant, the salvation of tribulation martyrs, the wrath of God, the resurrection, the New Jerusalem, the new heavens and earth, and so forth.

There are seven pairs of visions occurring alternately, first in heaven, then in earth. The purpose of this arrangement seems to be to give divine knowledge and insight by the heavenly vision as to the purpose of the things that are taking place in the earth.

The Book is built of contrasts. The close of man's day is followed by God's new day. The true Christ overcomes Antichrist. The rule of God supplants man's selfish, destructive rule. Old Jerusalem in harlotry and apostasy is judged and destroyed to make way for the New Jerusalem. Death and its work are overcome in a season of resurrection. All hatred, carnage, selfishness, iniquity, and rebellion are put down in the ushering in of the new heavens and earth, "wherein dwelleth righteousness."

The outline of the contents of Ezekiel, from chapter 4 onward is practically the same as the Book of Revelation.

Isaiah reveals the principles of God's dealing with the nation Israel. Especially is the harlotry of Judah and Jerusalem with the Beast borrowed from his writings.

Daniel gives the visions of the events as well as the time measures of the particular era of the great tribulation.

The plagues of Egypt and the exodus of Israel interpret the plagues of Revelation.

The service of the Tabernacle opens many a passage.

Self-Made Eunuchs in 1941

Said Jesus: "There are some eunuchs, which were so born from their mother's womb: and there are some eunuchs, which were made eunuchs of men: and there be eunuchs, which have made themselves eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake" (Matt. 19:12). Origen, early Christian educator of Alexandria, so thoroughly consecrated himself to the Christian life as to make himself a eunuch, lest he be tempted in his affections to do that which would shame his Lord. In the quoted text, Jesus did not definitely advocate mutilation of the body, and Origen, it is said, was later sorry of his extreme action, but one is challenged by such sincerity to walk loyally, faithfully, and cleanly before the Lord insofar as he is able. Further, considering the sincerity of Origen, and knowing that Jesus at least recognized that manner of devotion, one blushes at the slipshod morals of 1941, and asks: "Where is a self-made eunuch today?"

THE TRIBES OF ISRAEL

God of thy father, who shall help thee . . . the blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills." So, we can, indeed, take courage in these trying times.

Perhaps the reader wonders where the Gentile nations are, if Israel takes in such a large portion of the world. The Gentiles were never blessed as Israel was. Of the people of Israel, as distinct from Judah, Hosea said, referring to the last days: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sands of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered" (1:10). Such a statement was never made of Gentile peoples, so we can expect them to be very few in comparison.

Out of the twelve tribes of Israel, the hundred and forty-four thousand were to be sealed, according to Revelation 7. It is interesting to note from this standpoint, that a great portion of the Christians in the world come from the nations which we have named.

Another point of interest is that the Kingdom was to be taken from the Jews and given to "a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21:43), while we are told, too, that in the latter days Ephraim shall say, "In me is thy fruit found." Therefore, we do not wonder that Palestine finally fell into the hands of the British, and we cannot see how Gad can take it away from them, for Jesus Himself said that it was to be given to a "nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Now we shall conclude the quotation which we did not finish concerning the blessings pronounced upon Joseph: "They shall be upon the head of Joseph, and upon the crown of the head of him that was separated from his brethren."

THE BIBLE ANSWERS

the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape. And they took them: and Elijah brought them down to the brook of Kishon, and slew them there." Many of the persecutors in Christian history, the pitiless judges and executioners, the wild fanatics of many lands have quoted the Bible as justification for their acts.

Lastly, does the Bible teach that death ends all? Here is what Ecclesiastes 3:19, 20 records: "That which befall-eth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast . . . All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."

Today, the Church of God cannot expect the public to take belief in the resurrection for granted. Multitudes of people—even religious people—do not have an unquestioning faith in the resurrection. For many, it is at most a possibility, not a definite and assured conviction. The exhilaration which the resurrection brought to the disciples was not only the comfort of knowing that Jesus was still alive, but the joy of being assured that He was God's Chosen. The resurrection experience assured the disciples. It should assure us, and instill within us faith in God's power even over death.

What the Bible contributes to our belief in immortality is not the assurance that life continues after death, but it is the grounds which make reasonable an anticipation of a resurrection. Christians have felt the need for direct proof, such as would be given if one could receive a communication from one who had already died. Such a communication has been given in the resurrection of Jesus. To true Christians, this should be the one sufficient and conclusive proof of the resurrection and a future life. With this promise and proof, Paul says that we must not grieve for the dead, as others do who have no hope.

DOCTRINE VERSUS FAITH

use the word "faith." "Belief" is Bullinger's one-word definition. Webster says that it is the "inward acceptance of a personality as real and trustworthy; of an idea as true and obligatory, or a thing as beneficial."

The acceptance of God as a personality, real and trustworthy, and of service to Him as being beneficial to the one who serves, are pointed out by the writer of the Hebrew letter as being absolutely necessary to the person who would please God. "Without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." We must believe that God exists and that He will reward those who seek to do the things that He requires of men. There are no exceptions to this rule.

If we accept God's Word as being true, there is no possible way for us to escape the obligation that it lays upon us. Paul promised the Romans that God will "render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life: but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath" (Rom. 2:6-8). If men are to be judged according to their obedience to the truth, isn't it a matter of the utmost importance to determine as nearly as possible whether our beliefs are true or false.

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1). Or, as Weymouth translates the same verse: "Now faith is a well-grounded assurance of that for which we hope, and a conviction of the reality of things which we do not see." We respectfully submit that the only "well-grounded assurance" of things for which we may hope are those assurances found in the Bible. Any other assurances do not constitute the faith mentioned in the foregoing quoted verse, neither are they the faith by which the just shall live. The just are not to live by just any faith, but by the faith. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Eph. 4:4-6). Faith, by which the just are to live, is several times spoken of as the faith, never as a faith.

But when we accept God's assurances as true, and begin to teach that they must be believed in order to obtain salvation, and to support that contention with our organization, we have doctrines. We heartily agree that it is a great mistake for the various denominations to fight and persecute each other because their doctrines differ, but we also believe that those who think that they can maintain a faith acceptable to God without doctrines are equally mistaken.

Among others, the doctrines of the resurrection of the dead and of eternal judgment are mentioned in Hebrews 6:1, 2 as being among the first principles of the doctrine of Christ. Do not these things also form "the substance of the things for which we hope?" If our faith is "the substance of that for which we hope," and if that for which we hope constitutes a part of our doctrine, how can we separate the two and have anything of spiritual value left?

It is interesting and instructive to note how many times the "Faith Chapter" (Heb. 11) of the Bible points out the definite doctrine that influenced certain acts of the "faithful men of old." Noah built his ark because he believed the doctrine of a coming flood for the purpose of destroying the wicked and cleansing the earth. His belief in this doctrine led him to obey God's command to build an ark, and to follow God's plans for the ark, neither adding any of his own, nor omitting any of God's.

Abraham built his altar upon which to offer up Isaac, "accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead." This doctrine is still a part of the faith of the Church of God, as are the others mentioned in the chapter.

Moses chose to suffer affliction with the people of God, rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, because he believed the doctrine that the reproaches of Christ should bring him greater and more lasting riches than the treasures of Egypt. These men could not separate their doctrine from their faith.

To bring the matter close to home; if you believe that Jesus died and rose again, you have a certain historical faith that the records of the gospel represent events as they actually happened. But if you believe that this same Jesus is going to return to earth to establish a Kingdom over which He will reign in righteousness, you have placed your trust in a doctrine which has become the basis for your assurance concerning that which you have not yet seen. This assurance will affect every department of your life. While it may be possible to teach doctrines in which we have no faith, it is definitely impossible to have a faith without a doctrine. To discard doctrines would be to discard the Scriptures, and without the Scriptures we would be without any well-grounded assurance concerning the things which are not seen as yet, which assurance is our faith.

The title that heads this article is vastly misleading. There is no legitimate question of doctrine or faith, but rather it is a matter of doctrine and faith. Other things being equal, the more doctrine that we know and understand, the greater will be our faith, and the more acceptable to God our fruits. "He that received the seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty" (Matt. 13:23).

Christian Hardships

The church people near Jerusalem were in need. Their brethren in Antioch—everyone—had sent help by Saul and Barnabas. It is a hardship to be hungry and have nothing to eat. Meanwhile, King Herod began to do evil to the Christians. James was killed and Peter was put in prison.

Do you recall the story of Peter's escape from prison?

The Word Grew

"The word of God grew and multiplied" (Acts 12:24).

After Saul and Barnabas returned from Jerusalem, they met with the other teachers and leaders. As they fasted and prayed, they were told by the Holy Spirit to set aside Barnabas and Saul for special work.

This special work was to preach the gospel to others who had not learned about Jesus and His plan of salvation.

When, after several stops, they arrived in Paphos, they found a false prophet. His name was Elymas. He was a sorcerer, or like our fortune tellers or magicians. This evil Jew was hindering the Word of God. The governor of Cyprus, Sergius Paulus, wanted to hear the Word. He sent for Saul and Barnabas. Saul, or Paul as he is now called, spoke to Elymas. He told him he was an enemy of righteousness. "Wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?" Paul said. Then Paul told Elymas that he would be blind, through the hand of the Lord, for a while.

At once, the deputy, Sergius Paulus, believed. He saw who had the power of God.

Today we, too, will come to believe, if we seek Him open-mindedly and trustingly.

These Uncertain Times

Not long ago a lady said we should teach you boys and girls never to feel safe—that you should be ready to expect anything, either good or bad. Especially was this said for children in countries that are at war.

Such teachings are far short of what we need today. We should never depend upon worldly things for peace and safety. There is a peace and security to be felt within us, even though bombs fall and sirens screech. That security is found in the Bible. It is in the knowledge we have of Christ's soon coming. It is in our faith in Him—feeling His watch and care over us.

Some people think children should not know anything about death. To die means to stop living. It is like a long sleep. We are told in our Bible that the dead "know not any thing." To know the right things about death is instructive and will add to our peace of mind.

In olden days, Stephen was stoned to death. James was killed by a sword. Jesus died on the cross for us all.

We have this present life to live. Let it be lived for Jesus, come what may. When we lie in death's sleep there is no knowledge of the passing of time. When we die, it is as though we meet Jesus soon, even though we sleep in the grave a long time! We cannot change ourselves then. The time to improve ourselves is now. We should be living so full of faith and trust daily that we are ready to meet Jesus any day—any hour. In these uncertain times we must be sure of our faith in Him who is our salvation.

Monday

"I'm always glad when Monday comes
And busy as can be;
I set my washtubs on the bench
Beneath the maple tree.

"I always do my white things first,
As I don't have a maid;
And then I wash my colored clothes
And hang them in the shade.

"You see my family is quite large,
So when my washing's done,
I rest in my red rocking chair;
But really, it is fun."

Correspondence Committee Reports

* * *

By Mrs. Elmo Gaspar

If we knew how many people are familiar with the activities of our Junior Social Correspondence Committee, we would know how far our efforts reached. However, it seems as if we have gone into many states throughout this country by way of letter, yet a great many states apparently receive no contact from any Church of God organization. We also know that in a great many states we have isolated members and Bereans. I believe our most beneficial work has been toward the isolated Bereans. They have not enjoyed the great blessing of "assembling . . . together." By means of correspondence, they can keep in contact with all other activities, and in a great many instances these first letters have been influential in starting Berean classes and Sunday schools.

In another way we have found these letters beneficial to both the committee member and the correspondent who may be a member of a prominent and active church, for in discussing the activities they have in common, many ideas are exchanged that are helpful in passing on or for being used in a local community to rebuild or renew the activity of societies that may be slipping.

Of course, the primary purpose of our work is to contact all those who have newly put on Christ with the earnest desire to serve Him. In innumerable instances, these new ones are confronted with questions and temptations that may prove too much, and our committee has the desire in mind to help these new ones and to show them the beauty of service. It is true enough that it calls for good qualifications, but we are confident that we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us; and, if we ask, the ability will be given to us.

There are fifteen committee members from many different sections of the country, and in a recent arrival of the circuit letter, it was gratifying to note from each one of their letters how much they are capable of doing, and from their reports how much they are doing.

We have much faith in the Christian Worker's Kit as an aid to new correspondents for studying Church of God doctrines and to the committee members for answering questions. We hope to determine through the use of this Kit in what way we may aid the Publishing Committee to make it more complete and instructive.

We also extend our appreciation to the various churches, their pastors, secretaries, and reporters for sending in such complete information concerning the names, addresses, and approximate ages of those baptized, for this service has increased our field of work greatly in the past two years.

If, through this Berean page, we may contact any isolated Berean who desires correspondents or anyone who wishes to serve on our committee as a member, please write to me at Eden Valley, Minnesota. We desire more boys to serve on the committee, so both boys and girls are invited to join and serve with us.

More

As a result of Sister Gaspar's description of the work of the JSC, we have thought that chairmen of all committees should give a report of their activities during the past year, some of the problems which they have had to meet, and an outline of the things they would like to see accomplished during the coming year. We should also receive similar reports from local societies.

This information will help you who are planning to attend the General Conference to roughly plan the action to be taken at the National Berean business meeting. Everyone will have an opportunity to learn what is being done, what needs to be done, and will be better prepared to give constructive ideas than were they to be forced to make a decision only a few minutes after a report is presented orally. Our business meetings are so infrequent that we cannot afford to make snap decisions without proper deliberation. These reports should be in now. Right now!

Let There Be Music

To you who will be attending either the Summer Bible Training School or General Conference, the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois, invites you to bring with you any musical instrument which you may be able to play—pianos excepted. This request is being made far enough in advance to give you time to brush up a bit on your technique. A sincere effort will be made to organize an orchestra scheduled to burst into full bloom during conference.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

Relatives and friends visited with Sr. Edith Richardson on Saturday afternoon, May 17, to help her celebrate her eighty-second birthday. We think Sr. Richardson is the oldest member of the Church of God in Michigan. Is she?

A baptismal service was held Sunday afternoon, May 25, at which time Bro. J. W. McLain assisted two mothers (sisters) to start the new life in Christ. We are glad to present Mrs. Gladys Bultman, 3547 Hillcrest Ave., S. W., and Mrs. Lucille Ratering, 2216 McKee Ave., S.W., both of Grand Rapids.

We are glad to welcome home Bro. and Sr. Charles Simpson from the South where they spent the winter.

Several members of Pennellwood, including the pastor, attended the funeral service of the mother of Bro. Glenn Clark, at Sand Lake.

Of the seventy-one draftees leaving Grand Rapids, May 27, two were from Pennellwood, Clair Aleumbrack, recently baptized, and George Parker. The young people had a farewell party for them at the Townsend home the evening of May 18.

May 29, Bro. McLain went to Oregon, Ill., to speak to the Bible Training School.

Last Tuesday evening the members of our Teachers' Training Class started the course in "New Training for Service" by C. J. Sharp which we think is going to be very interesting as well as instructive.

The 84th Annual Michigan State Conference will convene at the Southlawn church, Grand Rapids, from June 9-15. Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Ariz., will be the guest speaker.

Bible classes for all ages will be held each afternoon except Saturday, at 1:30 and 2:45. The business meeting will be held Saturday afternoon. An all-day meeting is scheduled for Sunday, with a picnic dinner at Ideal Park.

If you thank God for the freedom of worship granted by your country and State, let your actions correspond with your words, take advantage of this opportunity with an active part in these meetings, and receive your share of the blessings derived from such gatherings.

BAPTISMS AT TEMPE, ARIZONA

On Thursday evening, May 22, at our regular Bible study hour, Dorothy and Julia Dimmick were baptized at a beautiful service held in the church. These girls are daughters of Bro. and Sr. Almus Dimmick who live on a ranch in the vicinity of Tempe, and who have for many years been faithful members of the church. They have had the matter of baptism under consideration for some time, and finally determined to take this step of all steps in life. There was an attendance of thirty or more at the regular Bible study. The subject for the evening's study was "The Brazen Serpent." May these dear girls continue ever faithful, and receive the crown of life when our Lord comes. Pray for them.

TRACT ANNOUNCEMENT

We have printed a special circular by Bro. James M. Watkins on planning a successful tract campaign. In it he has listed very definite and systematic ways of accomplishing the most with either large or small tract campaigns. He also tells you what tracts to use and exactly how to go about your campaign. If you are planning to spend fifteen cents or twenty dollars in giving out tracts, you will find it very worth while to write the National Bible Institution for one of these circulars. Please enclose three cents in stamps with your request.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The students appreciated the picnic at the Pines, May 26, given them by the Ambassador Bible Class.

Those preaching Sunday, May 25, were: Bro. Robert Hardesty who spoke in Macomb, Ill., in the absence of Bro. C. E. Lapp, and the writer preached in Dixon, Ill., in the morning. In the afternoon of the same day he participated in the Memorial service in Sugar Grove Church west of Dixon.

Bro. James W. McLain and wife were in Oregon, Ill., May 28, 29. Bro. McLain presented a very interesting discourse to the students on the afternoon of May 28.

We are sure that everyone who went to the School picnic held at the Pines, May 29, had an enjoyable time. The Herald staff also enjoyed the picnic with us. We played "kitten ball."

The students were royally entertained at the home of Bro. and Sr. Frederick Claussen, Sunday evening, May 25. We especially liked the homemade strawberry ice cream.

One hot day last week when we were having a short recess between classes, Mrs. Conner and Loudenslager played the part of the "good Samaritan" by bringing cups of refreshing ice cream to all the students and the editorial staff. These are not the first kindnesses they have shown.

History in the making: Sr. T. J. Ellis, Waterloo, Iowa, wrote us that she would be glad to pay the tuition of some worthy student to the Summer Bible Training School. Studying a little, we were encouraged by a friend to write a certain young man in Nebraska. Now, we have the enrollment of Bro. Eugene Grant of Alliance, Nebr. . . . Who will be next to write an encouraging chapter in church history?

"Recently the State Conference Board issued a student ministerial certificate to Bro. Delbert Jones, who is at present a student at Upper Iowa University, but who last year attended our Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill. According to present plans, Bro. Delbert will preach at Koszta one Sunday each month during the summer."—The Searchlight of the Iowa State Berean Society.

Sr. Elizabeth Dauterich, Baltimore, Md., who at eighty-five years of age is recovering from a fall, writes: "I surely enjoy The Herald, as I get so much to encourage me in these evil days through which we are passing. The coming of our glorious King draws near."

BABCOCK - GREEN

Miss Iono E. Babcock and Mr. Melvin Green were married at our home in Tempe, Ariz., on Saturday evening, May 17, 1941. Ione is one of our girls, having been baptized some years ago. She is the daughter of Bro. and Sr. Roseoc Babcock of Phoenix, and has been engaged in the telephone central in Phoenix for some years. The groom is now in camp in Texas, and has four months more to serve in that capacity before returning to his employment with a large furniture company located in Phoenix. Both are talented young people. We predict for them a happy journey through life. Our congratulations and best wishes go with them. S. J. Lindsay.

TAFT - WHETSEL

A beautiful wedding was quietly solemnized in the Church of God, Oregon, Ill., at 7:30 p.m., May 26, when Miss Nina Taft of this city became the bride of Mr. Wilbur Whetsel of Mount Morris, Ill., where the groom is employed as a machinist and where the newlyweds will establish their home. The bride, who became a member of the Oregon Church of God during the pastorate of Bro. G. E. Marsh, was given in marriage by her father and attended by her mother. May the Lord bless these young people as they begin the "God hath joined" life together. Sydney E. Magaw.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

We are glad to give the names of two new members of the body of Christ. They are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Black of Tipp City, Ohio, who were baptized in Brush Creek on the afternoon of May 23. Sr. Black has been ill for a long time and would appreciate the prayers of the brethren for her recovery. The Brush Creek Church is undergoing some changes. Thanks to the generosity of Bro. John Garard, the church has a new covering of white paint. Several of the members spent three days preparing and rock-lathing the basement ceiling and by this time the plasterers will have completed the work. The name, "Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith," will soon appear above the door, thanks to the Gospel Gleaners' Class. To see the other things being done, you will have to attend the June meeting which starts June 8 and continues through the 15th. Don't forget the Ohio Conference—August 17-24. Harvey U. Krogh, Pastor.

MORRIS - CRUNDWELL

On May 3, at 6:30 p.m., in the Wee Kirk O' the Heather in Forrest Lawn Memorial Park of Glendale, Calif., in the presence of a large group of friends, we witnessed the marriage of Miss Wilma Ann Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Morris of Baldwin Park, Calif., to Joseph Bradley Crundwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Crundwell of Los Angeles. The ceremony was read by James Schaffer, a minister of Burbank. Miss Charlotte Rahn sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because." A friend of the bride, Miss Jean Campbell, served as bridesmaid, and Mr. Robert Fuller as best man. Promptly at 6:30, to the strains of the wedding march on the pipe organ, the bridal party entered. The bride was given in marriage by her father. At the close of the ritual, a wedding bell, suspended from the ceiling, opened, and the happy couple were showered with rose petals as a spotlight was thrown upon them. Congratulations were extended after the bridal party had marched out and were seated in the patio. Bradley is a member of the Church of God, and is at present in the employ of the Douglas

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53,54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"Evangelize or Fossilize!"

SPONSORED BY THE MINNESOTA STATE CONFERENCE

J. L. Denchfield, Editor

Greetings:

Sure thing, friends, it is about that time of the year again—the time when we begin to anticipate with great eagerness the inspiring days of Christian fellowship as we attend our Annual June Conference. This year we plan to meet again at Eden Valley, Minnesota, June 11-15. You will find the complete program published in this issue of The Restitution Herald, and you will especially notice that Brother L. E. Conner is to be our leading speaker. It is hardly necessary for me to say that we are thereby assured of exceptionally fine inspirational messages. Don't miss them!

The following special invitation to all is given to us by Brother Walter Wiggins. Hear ye:

"We are expecting a good Conference this year in Eden Valley, and wish we had a larger church to provide room for the crowds. Our attendance has been very good and is increasing since the spring meetings. This has been a very fruitful year, as we have had thirty added to our church through baptism. We hope to have several more during Conference.

"We are looking forward with great pleasure in having Brother L. E. Conner with us. We shall have a good variety of speakers and teachers this year, so come and be with us through this 1941 Conference.

"Meals will be served in the church basement—noons and evenings. Sleeping will be provided in the homes. Come for the full five days—Wednesday through Sunday, June 11-15. You will receive a hearty welcome at Eden Valley. We shall be seeing you." Walter Wiggins.

Such an invitation from the pastor of the entertaining church and personal knowledge that his words are backed by his congregation and especially the Ladies' Aid assures us of a fine reception and entertainment. Ever taste its cooking? Try it, June 11-15.

"When it is our meat and drink to do His will, it will never be His will that we should lack for meat and drink."

Now let's read a bit of mighty good advice from another of our active young workers, Brother John Mercer, in this great State of ours:

Defense!

No! It is not compulsory, but it is your duty and your privilege to better prepare yourself for Christian service. (2 Tim. 2:3.) Be sure to get your name on the registration papers at the Minnesota State Conference. Both young and old are eligible, and will be accepted. Examine yourselves. Bring the sword of the Spirit with you, which is the Word of God. Come shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. You will be assigned to quarters. Daily maneuvers will help you to arrange your armor for better service. When you leave Conference, you will be permitted to take the whole armor of God home with you.

The cares of this life will keep some people away from Conference. What excuse will you use? (See Luke 14:16-24.) It is easy to make an excuse, but how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation? "Come; for all things are now ready."

This is your Conference, Minnesotans. Let's make it a big one. It may be the last one before our Lord returns.

"Assemble yourselves together," says the Word of God.

"We will, June 11-15, at Eden Valley," replies the Church of God in Minnesota. John Mercer.

Now, as we look over the program, we understand what Brother Mercer means when he says we may take the "whole armor of God" with us as we leave, if we attend. Of course, we will attend. Suppose we do have to sacrifice some other things in order to be there. What of it? Remember: "No worship ascends where nothing is given up." Then, too, "Almost all things we get for nothing cost more than they are worth," so we shall spend our time, effort, and money and receive that which is really worth something—"treasures in heaven."

Just now, as we are arranging our plans to attend this great Conference of Christian workers, let's keep in mind always a thought concerning the application of the inspiration and instruction we receive. Thus, we shall in the coming year go forward even more effectively than in the past, as "the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world: holding forth the word of life" (Phil. 2:15, 16).

Of the church as of the individual, it is time that, "when one ceases to be in touch with another world, one is no longer a torch to this world." How can we see without a light? "Let your light . . . shine."

"I Was Glad"

Said David: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord" (Psalm 122:1). It is unfortunate that many people think of church attendance merely as a duty. The Minnesota Conference to convene at Eden Valley, June 11-15, is planned for both the Lord's business and the pleasure that accompanies doing the Lord's work. Worship was a pleasure for David, and we believe you will find pleasure in attending this meeting.

Faith of Our Fathers

By Mabel Lindsay

"In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Genesis 12:3).

THE history of the Hebrew people and the Hebrew Kingdom began, properly, with the departure of Abraham out of Ur of the Chaldees—about two thousand years before Christ. At Haran, the Lord appeared to Abram, telling him to leave his home and kindred, to go into a strange land, promising that he would receive great blessing and that through him all the families of the earth would be blessed. In the promise, "In thee shall all nations be blessed," the gospel was preached to Abraham. (Gal. 3:8.) The same gospel was preached by our Lord and His apostles; and His followers today preach the same good tidings—the blessing of the nations when the Kingdom is established and Israel restored.

Abram, because of his faith, went into the land of Canaan as the Lord had commanded. Later, God again came to Abram, repeating His promise, promising also that his descendants would become a great nation and that the land of Canaan would be theirs for an inheritance forever. In token of this covenant, God changed Abram's name to Abraham, and as a seal of the covenant, circumcision was ordained.

It was through the faith and obedience of Abraham that this covenant was made. Many years later, the same promises were made to Isaac, Abraham's son, God saying to him, in renewing the promise: "Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws." Isaac's son, Jacob, likewise received the same promises in his day.

God's promises are sure. The nation that was promised to Abraham's descendants began its development in Egypt where Jacob's sons dwelt. As generation succeeded generation, the number of Israelites increased until the time of Moses, when they were not only numerous, but "exceeding mighty" (Ex. 1:7). The record of Moses becoming their leader and journeying with them out of the land where they were oppressed, and leading them to the Promised Land, is familiar to all.

After entering the Promised Land, they were ruled by judges for about four hundred fifty years. "Afterward they desired a king" (Acts 13:20), like the nations about them. So the nation of Israel became the Kingdom of Israel, with Saul as its first king. David, of the line of Judah, was the second king.

Now, the children of Israel were God's people. He chose them. He cared for them. They were a "peculiar treasure" unto Him (Ex. 19:5). So the Kingdom of Israel was God's Kingdom. For a time the Israelites obeyed God's voice and were a "kingdom of priests and an holy nation," as He had promised they would be, but later they turned to idol worship with all its attendant evils. Gradually this proud nation was reduced to degeneracy.

The Kingdom Divided and Overthrown

Even a brief sketch of Israel would not be complete without recalling the division of the Kingdom, and its subsequent passing from existence. King David was succeeded by his son Solomon. After Solomon's reign, the Kingdom divided into two parts and so remained as long as either part existed as a nation—the southern Kingdom of Judah being the last to perish. Its national life ended about five hundred eighty-six years before Christ. However, the Jews, under the reign of the Persian king Cyrus, were allowed to return to their homeland, the Temple was restored, and the Hebrew religion again established. So, at the time of Christ, the (Please turn to page 10)

Conference Delegate Forms

Within the next two weeks, General Conference delegate forms will be mailed to our various church and conference secretaries. These forms should be filled out and returned to headquarters before General Conference begins (July 29), and sooner is better. The form provides for the listing of all active members and the names of the delegates chosen by their respective churches. Indeed, it is by this record that the various churches and state conferences qualify for representation at the General Conference, particularly in any matters requiring a ballot vote.

Youth, Protect Your Name

Solomon wisely said: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold" (Prov. 22:1). Unthinkingly, foolishly, and sinfully, young people sometimes say: "I'll do anything once," or, "I don't care what people think of me." Often, these same young people are disturbed with such questions as: At what college can I have the most fun? Why do I have so few pals? Why can't I keep a "steady"? Where can I make a good salary? What is the best life insurance policy? How can I buy a car? Where can I borrow some money? Why don't I ever get a "break"? Ad infinitum.

Actually, these bad-as-Hitler problems would usually shrivel into imprisoned Hesses, if the more important matter of maintaining a "good name" were given scrupulous consideration. No man spurns the poverty of an "Honest Abe." Who, though, would share the spoils of a Dillinger? A man may have little money, yet be a Shakespeare. He may preach and receive no salary, yet be a Livingstone. He may, like Stephen, be a martyr for Christ, yet see his Lord and the throne of God. The Messiah had "not where to lay his head" (Luke 9:58), was sold and crucified! Then God, respecting His Son's "good name," raised Him from Joseph's new tomb. Where is any loss when there is the keeping and enriching of one's name?

He who has a good name will always have friends. They may be few, but they will be true. Friends who are lured with money are only sunny-weather friends; "they leave you when the sun goes down."

Despite the Depression, he who has a good name can invariably find employment. He may not get the position he wishes, but the wise and good God of heaven often disappoints one in not giving him exactly what was desired, that He might surprise him with something better. There is still applicable truth in David's words: "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

As to getting a "break," Solomon said: "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all" (Eccl. 9:11). God, who is "able to," probably does "make all grace abound toward you" (2 Cor. 9:8).

Youth of the Church of God, protect your good name; it is your most valuable asset in life, and it is worth more to you than any occupational or professional success. Be honest; be true. "Live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works" (Titus 2:12, 13).

Our Highest Compliment

I knew a minister about "fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth;) such an one" had the good fortune to become pastor of the Church of God at Eden Valley, Minnesota. Trouble flared! Someone asked, "What will our new pastor do?" To this question, Sister E. E. Mills confidently replied: "Our pastor won't quarrel."

Though often tempted to quarrel, the confidence of this dear woman did much to guide us aright both then and since. No praise of sermon, no majority vote, no gift of love, has more definitely blessed our ministry than did the words: "Our preacher won't quarrel." After these several years, we think it correct to reveal to Sister Mills the blessing of her words and trust.

The Time Measures of Revelation

Article Two

By J. W. McLain

MUCH disrepute has come upon the study of prophecy because of the date setters who have proclaimed that on a certain day, such and such an event would take place. The date of the returning of Christ has been set numerous times, with the same result in each instance—the event did not occur as promised. People who had trusted in such revelations were shaken in faith. On at least two such occasions, the people had sold all their possessions, giving their money to the poor, awaiting the event, believing that they would no longer have need for material things. The result of such disappointments was a widespread belief that no time measures were reliable in connection with the Scriptures. Consequently, there has been a marked tendency on the part of most Bible students to completely ignore the many obvious time measures both in Daniel and Revelation.

We must first understand the difference between date setting (which we have no intention of doing) and the study of time limits, definite periods of prophetic history set forth. The beginning dates of these periods we may not know. For example, we may say that when Aunt Mary comes to visit us, she will stay two weeks. By this we have a definite knowledge of the length of the period of her stay, but we may not know the date of her arrival until we see her. Thus, we may not know the date of the beginning of Israel's tribulation, but we most certainly know the duration of that period as revealed by the Scriptures. The beginning dates will only be known infallibly in the day of the fulfillment.

Naturally, the students who are constantly studying the forecasted events of prophecy will be the ones to know what is taking place in the earth when the day of trouble does arrive. Those who have made light of prophetic study will be in the dark. It is important to have in mind the pictures and images of the prophetic visions, that we may constantly compare world events in the light of revelation until we see the complete fulfillment.

It is fallacious to have such fixed ideas of interpretation in our minds that we are unable to know the real thing when it arrives. This was the reason for the failure of the nation of Israel to recognize the Messiah when He arrived. Israel's traditional mental conceptions of the Messiah were vastly different from the suffering Lamb of God! Isaiah had revealed Him as such in the fifty third chapter, but they preferred to see only a king of great glory.

In the same sense, the people outside of Israel have been willing to acknowledge, after a fashion, the suffering Messiah, but because of their traditional mental conception, they are just as unable to see Him as a king coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory to rule the nations.

Let us be diligent students, keeping an open mind, trying to arrange the mental images of the prophetic visions, willing at any time to rearrange them all if we find that we have overlooked some consideration vital to the complete picture.

The "Seventy Weeks" of Daniel

Daniel 9:24 is the basis of this study. The week mentioned in verse 27 is the key to the time measures of the books of Daniel and Revelation.

According to the text, there are seventy weeks to be determined upon Daniel's people, the Israelites. The first sixty-nine deal with their return from captivity and rebuilding the Temple until Messiah the Prince who was to be cut off. From the edict of Cyrus to rebuild the Temple until Christ was approximately the four hundred eighty-three years required to complete sixty-nine weeks of years. Therefore, the seventieth is a week of seven years, rather than of literal days.

Many students object to separating this seventieth week from the sixty-nine by an indefinite period of time. The very meaning of the Hebrew word for "determined," is "divided." Therefore, "Seventy weeks are divided upon thy people." Jesus established this principle of dividing a passage into its proper time applications. He read to a comma in the middle of a verse, closed the book, sat down and said, "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." The remainder of the sentence dealt with the day of God's vengeance, and was not fulfilled that day. (Read Luke 4:16-21 and Isa. 61:1, 2.)

If this were the only instance of the covenant, the taking away of the daily sacrifice, and the abomination that maketh desolate, we might be inclined to agree with the critics that the seventieth week was in some manner fulfilled along with the other sixty-nine, but numerous other passages dealing with the same situation and the same time measure lead us to the

Blotting Out Ordinances

By C. Alan McLain

THE scribes and Pharisees had made laws that God did not authorize. They could not keep the laws they made, and failed to keep God's laws. Jesus denounced these self-sophisticated Jewish leaders. He told them that they strained at gnats and swallowed camels. They were so strict to keep the letter of the law, that they neglected to keep the spirit of the law. (Cp. Rom. 9:31.) Through the "deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified" (Rom. 3:20). The law did not, nor could not, disannul the promises given to Abraham. The "promises," being the gospel, were independent of the law. "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:24, 25, 29).

The Jewish leaders condemned Jesus for healing on the Sabbath day, for on that day no work was to be done. Jesus asked if it were better to do good or evil on the Sabbath. Which of you having an ox will not lead the ox to water? Jesus was Lord of the Sabbath. Nowhere in the New Testament is there a commandment to observe the Sabbath, although some of the Ten Commandments are mentioned. If Sabbath-keeping is so important as some teach, it should have been mentioned. If one is determined to keep the Sabbath, he must also keep the rest of the Mosaic laws, for if we offend in one part we are guilty of breaking the whole law.

The commandment of the Sabbath was given to those under the law—the Israelites. Christ did not set any special time to rest and worship. Christ performed many miracles of healing on the Sabbath. According to the Mosaic laws, no work was to be done on the Sabbath, yet Jesus worked and was not condemned of God, because He did good. One day a week should be set aside for rest and worship, but no special day is now commanded. The disciples met on the first day of the week. That is one reason we have our services on Sunday. We should not only keep one day, but every day alike—not having a Sunday religion, but a real religion every day we live.

We cannot be under two covenants at the same time. When Christ came, the law was fulfilled by Him because none could keep the law. It is through Christ, who kept the law, that we have obtained a better covenant—which is a covenant of grace. Christ has made for us a better way: that is, through Himself. Jesus said: "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other" (Matt. 6:24). Neither can we keep two covenants, for either we will try to keep the covenant of the Mosaic law, thus rejecting the covenant through Christ; or, we will accept the covenant through Christ and reject the Mosaic law which became dead after Christ fulfilled it. (Read Rom. 7.) Man is bound to his wife until death. If she dies, he is free to marry again. Romans 7:4 reads: "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God."

The law could not give life, as we read in Galatians 3:21. Only through Christ can we have eternal life.

Paul wrote that Abraham was not justified by the works of the law, and that he himself had nothing whereof to glory before God, although he might have gloried somewhat among men. Faith and the works of faith, not law, are essential to salvation. It was Abraham's faith and works according to that faith that counted for his good. Paul warned the Colossians, who were Christians, against those Jews who taught observance of the Mosaic laws.

In Colossians 2:14-17, we read: "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross; and having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in it. Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holyday, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days: which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ." Continuing, we read: "Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances, (touch not; taste not; handle not; which all are to perish with the using); after the commandments and doctrines of men?"

We read in Acts 13:39: "By him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses." We shall be rewarded according to our faith and the works that are in accord with that one, true faith.

The more we try to live like the Lord, the more we shall become like Him. We are to live above the law. If we serve Christ because we love Him, we shall be more blessed in God's sight than the person that serves because of fear. Perfect love casts out fear. There is little praise to the person who does work because he is compelled.

We are not slaves of Christ, but friends. Jesus said: "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you" (John 15:14, 15). Jesus also said: "If ye love me, keep my commandments," and, "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:9). Jesus did not command men to keep the Sabbath, but He did teach repentance, baptism, and the new life as being essential to salvation. (Mark 16:16).

A certain lawyer of the Jews tempted Jesus by asking Him which was the greatest commandment. Jesus said unto him: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Matt. 22:37-39). The more we love Jesus, the greater becomes our desire to do His will.

"What God Hath Cleansed"

PETER was very reluctant to answer the call when the Voice sent him to tell the saving Word to a Gentile. Peter could not believe his ears, and said, "Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean." Later, in Acts 10:28, Peter said, "God hath shewed me that I should not call any man common or unclean."

Now, we change scenes by reading from Romans 11:29-31: "For as ye (Gentiles) in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief: even so have these (Israel) also now not believed, that through your (the members of the one body) mercy they also (the Israelites) may obtain mercy." "Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand" (Rom. 14:4). "Blessed is the man whom thou chasteneth, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law; that thou mayest give him rest from the days of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked. For the Lord will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance" (Psalm 84:12-14). God will not forsake, nor cast away, but cleanse. "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean."

It was said of Israel, "He feedeth on ashes: a deceived heart hath turned him aside, that he cannot deliver his soul, nor say, Is there not a lie in my right hand?" (Isa. 44:20). Yet Israel was not forgotten of the Lord, who said: "Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me; for I have redeemed thee. Sing, O ye heavens; for the Lord hath done it: shout, ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel (vv. 21-23).

In Isaiah 49:14, we read, "Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me," but God replied: "Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee. Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me" (vv. 15,16).

Jeremiah prophesied: "They shall all know me (i.e., God), from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sins no more," and "They shall no more teach every man his neighbour . . . for they shall all know me" (Jer. 31:34). The New Testament agrees with the words of the prophets, as Paul wrote: "I (i.e., God) will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more" (Heb. 8:12).

We read further of the forgiveness of Israel: "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me. I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness" (Micah 7:8, 9).

Then, Micah praised God for His mercy, saying: "Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy. He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old" (vv. 18-20).

Studies From the Revelation

By Alfred Anthon

DAVID'S prophetic words: "Thou shalt break them (the nations) with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel" (Psalm 2:9), agree well with Revelation 2:26, 27, saying: "To him will I give power over the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers."

God began His rule over transgressors in the Garden of Eden. He is yet ruling, and will continue to rule until the complete consummation at the end of the Millennium. At the beginning of the Millennium, however, God is going to give this work into Christ's hands, to the supervision of Christ who will have His followers obeying Him in this great work of subjugating all mankind to obey and learn His laws.

Now, we shall quote Isaiah 26:10 for a parenthetical statement: "Let favour be shewed to the wicked; yet will he not learn (to approve) righteousness: in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold (approve) the majesty of the Lord." In the Millennium, the mind of the wicked may be filled with the knowledge of the Lord "as the waters cover the sea," yet in this "land of uprightness will he deal (choose) unjustly." Mere knowledge of the Lord, understanding of God, knowing God's laws without choosing to "approve" them, does not bring salvation. "Faith without works is dead." Faith without works is only knowledge. Therefore, knowledge without works is dead. Knowledge with works is faith. Therefore, though every human being may come to required knowledge of the Lord, that is not saying or proving all will "approve" of the Lord unto salvation.

No human being can obey God without knowledge of God. Therefore, get knowledge; get all that God has given "ability" to get—"every man according to his several ability" (Matt. 25:15). "Talents" in this parable is not "ability to perform," but work given to perform according to ability. The person who does not do the work God gave him according to the person's ability will be cast out. Let us search the Scriptures daily, that we may have knowledge to perform work for God and Christ.

We are not interested in knowing the exact time when Christ will take into His own hands the work of dashing nations to pieces—the beginning of the Millennium. We are interested, rather, in having knowledge and ability to use the talents given us—how to perform the work God has given us. We want knowledge, understanding of our duty, not the date of payday. The poorer the workman, the more he asks about payday.

"The Nations Were Angry"

To understand when "the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come" (Rev. 11:18), one needs to know the general outline of the Book of Revelation. Chapters 1, 2, and 3 seem to be prophetic of the successive changes in the church, beginning with the apostles and continuing until the Millennium. Chapters 4 through 11 seem to be a prophecy or vision all to itself. It deals with a period of time immediately after chapters 1, 2, and 3. Later in the Book of Revelation, this same period of time is considered, but is another separate prophecy. Somewhat similarly, Daniel explained the Great Image in his Book, chapter 2. Then, chapter 7 is a different, separate, unrelated vision, but deals with the same period of time—each giving its own peculiar details. Likewise, is the Revelation.

The four beasts and the twenty-four elders probably typify the classes which will meet Christ in the air at the Rapture. The first six seals probably typify such prophetic events as: the Translation, the Great Tribulation, the Time of Jacob's Trouble—during which time there will be a great battle. Jerusalem will be spoiled (Zech. 14).

One of the last things to take place during the sixth seal (Rev. 7) will be the resurrection of another class of people permitted to be palm bearers in the Millennium. The "multitude" of verse 9 seems to contain the one hundred forty-four thousand Israelites. In this multitude there must also be included many from the beginning of man's history, but who are not to be with the crown wearers (the four beasts' and twenty-four elders' class). We believe this multitude is mentioned again in Revelation 20:4. They will live and reign with Christ during the Millennium.

In the seventh seal (Rev. 8), Christ comes to Mount Olivet. This seal is divided into seven trumpets (more detailed—four trumpets and three woes). The fifth, sixth, and seventh trumpets are called "woes." This whole seventh seal deals with the period of time after Christ comes with His Rapture saints and the Revelation saints are resurrected, after both are together at Mount Olivet, and until all who are living of mortal nations are judged, until all these have lived their period of time called "one hundred years" in Isaiah 65:20.

Now we shall quote Revelation 11:18, which closes the seventh seal, the seventh trumpet, and the third woe—all three expressions being one and the same period of time, the close of the judgment of mortal nations who live through the first part of the Millennium. Every mortal person yet alive will know the Lord. "The nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldst destroy them which destroy the earth."

These mortal nations "were angry," and God's "wrath is come" upon them. They have all been judged. They were disobedient, they died "accursed." The obedient continued to live. Next, it will be time to resurrect the dead who were "left" in their graves when one was "taken" and the other "left," at Rapture and Revelation. (Matt. 24:41.) Then it will be time that "thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great."

Note carefully that at the close of the seventh trumpet the righteous do not yet have their reward. They are the "debtor" gone free at the end of the sixth year. Under Mosaic law, every sixth year every debtor was freed of debt, went free; but did not get possession of his real estate until the jubilee—every fiftieth year. The antitype is here seen with these saints. They are free from death (debt); but do not yet have possession of their real estate. Much of their estate—the earth—will yet be occupied by wicked persons. This circumstance will exist until the last sinner is cast into the second death at the end of the Millennium. When every sinner is "rooted out" (Prov. 2:22) the righteous will receive all their reward. As long as there is a sinner in the earth, so long the righteous will not be in possession of all their inheritance. The Millennium is the antitypical seventh year; the period of time thereafter will be the antitypical jubilee.

Therefore, Revelation 11:18 is far in the future, and probably refers to a time more than one hundred years after Christ comes with His saints to Mount Olivet. The words, "And shouldst destroy them that destroy the earth" will not be completed until the end of the thousand years of Revelation 20.

The Two Adams

In Four Parts—Part Three

By S. G. Elton

IN Genesis 4, is the record of the birth of Cain, the history of his life, and the genealogy of his family. His offspring were engaged in worldly pursuits. In verses 25 and 26 we read: "Adam knew his wife again; and she bare a son, and called his name Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew. And to Seth, to him also there was born a son; and he called his name Enos: then began men to call upon the name of the Lord," or by names that signified their spiritual relationship to their God. In Genesis 5:4, we read: "The days of Adam after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years: and he begat sons and daughters: and all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died." He had fulfilled the purpose for which he was created, and died in that period of time known as "the beginning."

Thus, we have two genealogies that began in Adam: the first was through Cain, whose record is discontinued after three or four generations. The second genealogy runs through Seth and Enos, and through Abraham, David, and on to Mary the wife of Joseph; of whom was born the Son of God. By tracing the genealogy as given by Luke, it goes back through David, Abraham, Noah, and Enos the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God. According to Genesis 4:25, Seth is accounted to be the son of the second Adam (Eve, the second one of the Adamic creation), through whom the line of the woman's seed has been transmitted, until the fullness of the time had come for the seed's appearance as the Son of God.

In Genesis, Moses has given to us the record of things that transpired "in the beginning," when the Lord God spoke the Word, and it was done as He commanded. Seven times the Lord God had spoken the Word, and "God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good" (Gen. 1:31).

Among the creations that God pronounced as being very good, there was included, "the Alpha"—the beginning of that lineage by which the Son of God was manifested in the world through the medium of a virgin woman. Of this Son, the Apostle John testified: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life . . . that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (1 John 1:1-3). In Revelation 1:8, John added these words of Jesus: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty."

As the alpha and omega were the two letters at the extreme ends of the Greek alphabet, so the Lord Jesus Christ had His incipency as the seed of the woman: whom Paul described as "the Lord from heaven," the "second man" in the order of creation, which was made to be spiritual. Nearly four thousand years elapsed before the seed was vivified by the power of the Almighty God. In due time a Son was born, and His name was Jesus.

For thirty years, Jesus lived with Joseph and Mary at Nazareth: "It came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him: and there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Mark 1:9-11). For three and one half years He went about doing good, healing the sick, and preaching the Kingdom of God, until He was taken by wicked men, and put to death upon the cross. He was then placed in the grave. After three days, He was raised to life again. After instructing His disciples for forty days, He was caught up out of their sight into heaven, to appear before the Father, not as the Alpha, but as the Omega to whom is given all power in heaven and earth.

Between the letters alpha and omega there were other letters. Likewise, between the presentation of the woman to the first Adam in the Garden of Eden until the appearance of the Son in the presence of the Father, we have the record of many phases of the development of the Kingdom of heaven. Perhaps the most important phase was the death of the Son on the cross. "When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost" (John 19:30). At this point, the Alpha phase of the Kingdom had been completed, and the price of redemption had been paid. A state of oneness was perfected—oneness between the Father and the Son. The way was then opened to other phases of development of the Kingdom—the preaching of the gospel, and the calling out of the church which He had purchased with His own blood.

It is evident that the Psalmist regarded a duality of meaning in the word "man," when he inquired, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" (Psalm 8:4). In Psalm 49:12, 14, 19, we find the answer to the first question: "Nevertheless man being in honour abideth not: he is like the beasts that perish," and, "Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling. . . . He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light." (That this is common to the natural man, see Job 7:8-10; Psalm 78:39; and 1 Peter 1:23-25.)

The Psalmist began the answer to the second question, prophetically, which was completed by the Apostle Paul in Hebrews: "Thou madest him a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands. . . . We see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man. For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings. For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren" (vv. 7, 9-11).

The two Adams of Genesis 5:1, 2 were of opposite natures, that is, the first man Adam was animal by nature, and the second Adam (the woman) was more spiritual and was mother of the Lord Jesus. As already shown, the lineage of this Son of man is traced back to God through the seed of the second Adam. Likewise, His brethren trace their lineage back to the second Adam through Seth. "I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee. And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold, I and the children that God hath given me. Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil (the seed of the first Adam); and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage (the seed of the second Adam)" (Heb. 2:12-15). Because the second Adam yielded herself to the will of the first Adam, she was abandoned to his possession, but only for as long a time as he might live. (Gen. 3:16; Rom. 7:1-6.)

PRAYER

"We may well take the lesson which Christ's prayers teach us, for we all need it—that no life is so high, so holy, so full of habitual communion with God that it can afford to do without the hour of prayer, the secret place, the uttered word. . . . The life that was all one long prayer needed the mountain top, and the nightly converse with God. He who could say, 'The Father hath not left me alone, for I do always the things that please Him,' felt that He must also have the special communion of spoken prayer. What Christ needed we cannot afford to neglect."—McLaren.

Report of Fonthill, Ontario, May Meeting

By Mrs. Irene Holland, Reporter

AFTER seasons of class prayer and individual supplications for God's blessing on our Annual May Meeting, our first gathering assembled Tuesday evening, May 20.

We were all very glad to welcome Brother and Sister C. E. Lapp and Elaine, also Brother and Sister Wayne Laning, into our midst and to Canada.

The seventy of us gathered in God's house listened to Brother Lapp's message from Philippians 3:13, 14. If Paul counted himself to have not yet apprehended, and considered it necessary to emphasize doing "one thing," surely we need to forget "those things which are behind," and reach forth for "those things which are before." May we all be more zealous in pressing toward the mark for the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Wednesday night, Brother Lapp talked to us concerning belief and trust. How few, these days, realize that if they believe not in Christ, they are already condemned! How true the words of the chorus: "He who is not with Me is against Me, neutral you cannot be"!

With attendance and interest steadily growing, Thursday's message concerning "Five Peas in a Pod" was very well received. We were cautioned not to remain still, drift, or fall back, but that we should strive to progress upstream. The five peas in the pod will give you a hint on how to avoid backsliding. Here they are: progress, proclaim, pay, prayer, and praise. Our hearts were made to rejoice at the close of this service by two of our young people going forward, and confessing Jesus before men.

Up to this point, music was given by our own choir, but on Friday night we had the pleasure of sitting in the congregation while the Niagara Falls, New York, choir provided the musical part of the service. The address, following, warned us of spiritual deadness, divisions, and "falling away." Man looks on the outward condition, but God is concerned with the heart. If you hide secret sins in your heart, or hold there ill will or anger against a brother, your heart is decidedly not right in the sight of God. Should we not often examine ourselves to see if our hearts condemn us? God will not dwell in a filthy temple. Our hearts must be made right through sincere repentance. After repenting, we must continue in a humble condition. If a mistake is made, repent and make it right at once. The fruit each and every one of us is bringing forth proves whether we have truly repented, or not.

The chalk talk by Brother Lapp on Saturday night was enjoyed by all. God does not tempt man, but man is led away by his own lust, and "then cometh sin"—and death. If we continue to build and walk according to God's Word, and permit the cables of prayer to help hold us, we will by faith and works overcome sin, and finally receive a new name. (Rev. 3:5-12.)

Sunday was a day filled with spiritual food, beginning with Sunday school under the able leadership of our superintendent, Brother Joseph Fletcher, Jr. Brother Fletcher's message was very helpful, and many remarks of approval have been heard concerning the extra music given by the little children's choir. These little folk have been under training for a very short time. This work of love is being undertaken by Brother Fletcher's two daughters, Rena and Mabel.

At the following service, the "Falls" choir again gave us sweet music, and Brother Clyde Shea favored us with a solo. Brother Lapp spoke on "The New Order," and brought us wonderful thoughts based on Proverbs 30:18, 19. We hope the young people will heed the admonition not to become unequally yoked together with unbelievers. May we all try to fit ourselves to be a part of "the bride" Jesus is soon going to call unto Himself.

Following the dinner hour, Sister Lapp gave us the recipe for a happy life. This was much appreciated by all, and will be very helpful in our everyday lives. If you will read Philippians 4, you will get a little taste of what we enjoyed. You will, however, miss the added charm of Sister Lapp's bright smile and pleasing personality.

Next came a splendid address by our pastor, Brother C. E. Randall, at the conclusion of which we drew even nearer to Jesus in keeping the Communion service.

After supper, Brother Lapp brought us his closing address on "World Conditions in the Light of Bible Prophecy." Everyone was especially interested in this discourse, present world conditions causing great concern over these things to come.

Here and there, all through these meetings, sweet music was much enjoyed from Sister Lapp and her accordion. Personally, we shall not soon forget "Master, the Tempest is Raging," for when it was played, outside the wind blew, the lightning flashed, and the thunder roared. It was, indeed, a selection with true sound effect. Sister Wayne Laning also favored us with several vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed.

We believe we express the sentiment of all when we say it was good to have had Brother and Sister Lapp and Brother and Sister Laning with us. We enjoyed the fellowship we had with them in our homes as well as their messages in gospel and in song.

We wish to thank all the brethren who remembered our meeting in prayer, and we are so grateful to God for the increase He has given.

We fear we have written a very long report of this meeting. Indeed, some of it may have to go into the editor's waste basket. However, our thought was, that this might bring a little of the joy of such a meeting to our more or less isolated brethren who do not have the pleasure of such spiritual feasts together.

God help us all to work together in love and unity while looking for "that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

On Sunday last, June 1, Brother Randall baptized into Christ the Brother and Sister who came forward during the meeting. They are Miss Grace Davis and Mr. James Savigny, both of Fonthill, Ontario.

While attending a funeral a short time ago, at Solina, Ontario, it gave us, truly, holy joy to stand reverently in the little Church of God at this place. Here Brother R. V. Lyon brought the gospel message many years ago, and our dear father (T. A. Weldon), now asleep in Jesus, worshiped as a young man. Our only heartache was that this little place is not still active in God's work.

THE JEW

Before the Christian Era, the nations did their utmost to exterminate the people of whom even Balaam had enough sense to say, "How shall I curse whom God has not cursed?" Pharaoh tried to drown them, but God had made them waterproof. Nebuchadnezzar tried to burn them alive, but God had made them fireproof. They were thrown to the lions, but somehow the lions had no appetite. Haman tried to hang them, and once more God intervened, for they were unhangable! Rome burned them alive, drowned them by the boatload, branded their bodies with red hot iron crosses, ravished them, tortured them with agonies too horrible to recite, and yet of all the nations of antiquity the Jew still lives and occupies a place in the world of today. A great king once asked his prime minister what was the greatest proof of the authenticity of the Scriptures, and the answer came—"The Jew, Sir."

THE BOOK OF REVELATION REVEALED

conclusion that the seventieth week is future in regard to Israel's great tribulation. (Read Dan. 8:11; 9:24; 11:31; 12:1-13; Matt. 24:15; Rev. 11:2, 3; 12:6, 14; 13:5.)

The prophetic week of seven years is based on the Jewish religious calendar of thirty days to the month, three hundred sixty days to the year. Therefore, the seven years are twenty-five hundred twenty literal days. The half week after the daily sacrifice is taken away is twelve hundred sixty days, forty-two months, or three and one half years, called, "time, times, and an half."

The measure, "a time," has its origin in Daniel 4 in relation to the banishment of Nebuchadnezzar from the throne for "seven times." (Read Dan. 4:16, 23, 32.) Since this measure was applied to a man within his lifetime, it is obvious that the "seven times" would be a matter of only a few years. If this is the interpretation of a "time," the "time, times, and an half" of the Scriptures could in no sense be the long measure of twelve hundred sixty literal years, so popularly applied in interpretation of the term.

If the "time, times, and an half" of Daniel 12:7; 7:25; Revelation 12:14 are to be taken as twelve hundred sixty literal years, then we may well interpret that the king was banished for twice the time, or twenty-five hundred twenty years.

The covenant is to be made for a week of years, or seven years, or twenty-five hundred twenty literal days. The daily sacrifice being taken away in the middle of the week and the covenant being broken at that time, there remains half of the week for tribulation, or a period of twelve hundred sixty days, or forty-two months, or three and one half years, or "time, times, and an half." It is this period of time that the Book of Revelation considers in telling about the two witnesses (Rev. 11), the woman (12), and the beast (13).

FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

Jews were in their homeland and Jerusalem was their center of worship. Not many years after Christ's time, Jerusalem was laid in ruins by the Romans and many of its people were slain, some perished by famine, and those remaining became exiles in other lands. Thus the descendants of Abraham were sifted among all nations, as recorded in Amos 9:9.

Christ Preached the Kingdom

When John the Baptist began to preach, he said, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." This was the theme of his preaching. When Jesus began His ministry, He, too, began by saying, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." "Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom" (Matt. 4:23). Many of His parables were to teach facts about the Kingdom—for example: the parable of the marriage of the king's son (Matt. 22), that of the leaven (Luke 3), and of the grain of mustard seed (Mark 4). "With many such parables spake he the word unto them" (Mark 4:33). When the apostles went out, they likewise preached the Kingdom gospel.

After Christ's resurrection, during the forty days He was with His followers, He was "speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God" (Acts 1:3). It was of "things concerning the kingdom of God" that Philip taught (Acts 8:12). The same gospel is taught in the Church of God today. It is hard to separate the terms "gospel" and "kingdom," they are so closely related.

The Kingdom of the Future

In 2 Samuel 7:16, we read: "Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever." This was God's promise to David, but we know that the throne of David, because of sin, was overturned as prophesied in Ezekiel 21:27. Here the Prophet stated that the Kingdom would be no more "until he come whose right it is: and I will give it him." Long after David's time, the Kingdom passed into history and has not been restored to this day.

Almost six hundred years after the Kingdom was overturned, Christ was born in Bethlehem. He was a direct descendant of David (Matt. 1:1), and therefore an heir to the Davidic throne. His mission at that time, however, was not to rule as King. The apostles, understanding that a time of restoration would come, questioned Him, saying, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6). At the time this question was asked, Christ's first ministry was almost ended, and it was soon afterward that the apostles witnessed His ascension into heaven. As they watched, two men appeared to them, saying: "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11).

We believe that Christ will surely come the second time, that He will establish the Kingdom and receive the throne (Matt. 25:31). He will rule over the earth in that day, and the blessings promised so long ago will be accomplished. Many things for which we now long in vain will come to pass in that new day. The dead will then be restored to life. Peace, righteousness, and beauty will bless the land. The curse will be removed (Rev. 22:3) during the Kingdom Age which will extend over a period of a thousand years. "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God . . . And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all" (1 Cor. 15:24-28).

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

Time out for discussion of a magazine which we feel should be on the reading table of every minister and every teacher of religion: Your Life (Kingsbury Press; $3.00 a year, or $5.00 for two years).

Pocket-sized for convenient handling and unillustrated, Your Life monthly produces an assortment of practical information on psychology—which is nothing more than a fancy name for the study of human behavior—which could be, if put into active use, of untold value to the pastor or teacher. Or, for that matter, of untold value for almost anybody.

In recent months, Your Life, like Reader's Digest, has been particularly rich in articles on the effects of Christian teaching on human thinking, and on the use of religious teaching in counteracting the effects of neuroses and sundry complexes. Moreover, all this material is written in the popular vein, so that it combines high readability with genuine helpfulness.

Religious Digest (William B. Eerdmans Publishing Company; $3.00 a year, or $5.00 for two years) is more strictly religious in tone than Your Life, but less valuable for the average reader. Also pocket-sized and monthly, and without illustrations, Religious Digest purports to condense the best material from papers of all denominations. Many of the articles are interesting, to be sure, some of them are well worth reading—but we're inclined to regard a magazine of this type with a jaundiced eye, inasmuch as the editors necessarily cannot publish controversial matter, and the definitely religious element is consequently lost in a maze of sociological twaddle that belies the magazine's name. But to be altogether fair, it must be said that Religious Digest is the best and most convenient method of keeping in touch with what other churches and religious leaders are thinking and doing.

Both Your Life and Religious Digest are available on better news stands; free sample copies of Religious Digest are available on request to either the publishers (Grand Rapids, Michigan) or the National Bible Institution.

A Timely Menu

Did you ever visit a little friend for a whole day, or over night? Sometimes when several friends visit at the same time they call such a visit a "house party."

Shall we all go to a house party today? We are not much concerned about our clothes. The ones we have on will be suitable. At this party our chief concern is food. We all know how important it is to have plenty of food, and proper foods, if we are to grow tall and strong.

Orange Juice Appetizer

The daily morning devotions will be our appetizer. Our songs of praise, prayers, and reading of a few verses of Scripture surely only "whet the appetite" of a Christian for further spiritual food. Our daily devotions do not give us enough spiritual food for growth and health for a day, do they? We would not care to go to school or on a picnic with just a glass of orange juice for strength.

Milk for Babes

The young ones are the only ones who can live on milk alone. They soon grow strong enough for other foods. In 1 Corinthians 3:1, 2, we read in part: "Even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk." "Every one that useth milk is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe" (Heb. 5:13). We read also that milk causes growth: "As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby" (1 Peter 2:2).

"Bread of Life"

Again, we read the words of Jesus: "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst" (John 6:35). From the following verse we see that bread for physical food is much less important than bread for spiritual food: "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matt. 4:4; also Deut. 8:3).

So far, we have had just enough "food" for our spiritual needs. The time at our "house party" is swiftly passing.

"Meat in Due Season"

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world" (John 8:12). We have been told that milk is for babes, "but strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age" (Heb. 5:14).

Let us, then, study deeply for a few minutes upon the lesson for today. Paul and Barnabas were traveling and preaching. The Jews and Gentiles were gathered before Paul. The Jews were filled with envy because others were there to hear Paul, too. Barnabas and Paul became bold enough to tell the group that the Word was first preached to the Jews who refused Jesus. Then the Gentiles were given the Word of life. This made the Jews angry, but the Gentiles were "glad, and glorified the word of the "Lord" (Acts 13:48). We are glad salvation includes us.

The Jews were so angry they stirred up trouble which caused Paul and Barnabas to leave their cities. They shook the dust off their feet, and went on their way. No one is to be forced into serving God. Christian service is an act of love:

Paul, in his letter to the Galatians, told the people that we are all children of God through Jesus: "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." We know how very important it is to be baptized, for then we have "put on Christ" and are all one in Him.

Favorite Dessert

If we are faithful unto death, we will get a crown of righteousness "which the Lord . . . (said Paul) shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. 4:8).

Remember, boys and girls, we need "spiritual food" every day, just as we need physical food every day.

We Need More

The United States Government has recognized the fact that it cannot have all men under arms at once, and still carry on important activities of life throughout the country. For some time the government has been content to limit the number of our armed forces to those who have been willing to volunteer. Those who did volunteer in past years are now the backbone of the tremendous fighting machine which is rapidly being assembled today. Draftees are being given sufficient training that, in the event of an armed conflict, they will be able to do all that is required of them.

We are happy to learn that sufficient numbers have enrolled in the Summer Bible Training School to permit its operation this summer. This means that we will soon have many more Christian workers who will be prepared to do their part in many phases of church work. However, more and more we are feeling the need for leaders with sufficient Biblical knowledge and practical experience to further instruct these young people when they return home and begin to put into practice the things they have learned from their studies during the summer. It takes considerably more time to prepare for leadership of a large group of workers. The nine-months' Bible Training School will be composed of those who have volunteered to make the teaching of God's Word their life's work, or at least an important part thereof. Plan to attend, won't you?

Defense Preparation

* * * By Mrs. Elmo Gaspar, Eden Valley, Minn.

Not one of us can escape the constant din of war and everything that goes with it, for it is presented on every side—in the newspaper, on the radio, and in our personal activities. Not only do we have the actual thing abroad, but now at home we come in close contact with every phase of it. Because of the gruesomeness of it, we would like to become as ostriches and close our eyes and ears to the sufferings in European countries, but with the activities here in our country it is impossible. We have the inescapable defense preparations and the draft.

For our national peace and safety, diplomats say we should have been prepared long ago to defend our country, but now all man power and money power must be put feverishly to work to make up for lost time.

Where most of the world today is concerned with national military powers, the work of the Christian is left to a small minority, and that is where we, who call ourselves the army of the Lord, have to look to our defense. The world thought there had been a period of peace, of relaxation, but that was not so. Now a good many of us find that we have been lax, and our defense is not as strong as it should be. Yes, there should be feverish activity on the part of everyone, but we are all a little slow to respond to the demand. Perhaps the demands on us, on our conscience, haven't been so great that we could not get by, but are we going to be blind enough to think that it will be always this way? Many believe the Christian has yet to see persecution for if we are to reign with Christ, we must suffer with Him.

Our motto, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God," has been impressed upon us so often that every Berean should know it, but I believe it is true that a constant reminder or rebuke will put us on our toes, until we realize how much we need that great store of knowledge that is gained by a concentrated and prayerful study of God's Word. That is our defense.

Just recently, American citizens were offered the opportunity of investing in savings bonds backed by the strongest government on earth. True enough at present, but we cannot help think of the government that will be the strongest ever, when Christ begins His reign. Our savings bond was prepared for us by our Father when He gave His Son as a sacrifice to redeem us. Why have men's eyes remained so blind to this, while every manmade offer is accepted by so many?

It is up to us to realize the full value of our Christian savings bonds, for if our treasures are laid up in heaven, they are unquestionably secure. If our defenses and our security, spiritually, are jeopardized through our own unconcern, right now is the time for feverish activity. Bereans, let us increase our faith by our works in every way, by our everyday living habits, by activity in our local church and community, and by spreading the gospel as far as we can. Where there is a will there is a way—God will provide it.

SPECIAL TRACT ANNOUNCEMENT

From Maine to California, there's a hustle and a hustle as everyone prepares to do his bit for the Lord by giving from one to one thousand tracts, as every Christian worker steps out in determination to rally interest in the plan of God in these closing days.

If you are one of the few who have not yet made your plans, we realize that it isn't because you lack the desire to do your bit for the Lord, but merely because you have neglected to do so. Neglect no longer! Drop us a line as to your intentions and we will send a sample of each of the eight varieties of our new Four-second Series and a leaflet by James M. Watkins on planning your distribution. Just send a couple of three-cent stamps to cover postage and cost of handling. We'll be looking for your order in the next few days, while we still have a full line of tracts and can supply you. Address: National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

LOUISIANA CHURCH NOTES

Plans are still being made to build a new church at Blood River this year. The building fund is growing slowly, but steadily. The present building is too small to properly take care of the growing membership. This is especially true of Sunday school, as it is necessary to hold four of the five classes out of doors.

Laura Mae Bankston, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bankston, of Ponchatoula, recently underwent an appendectomy and is recovering nicely.

Funeral services were held May 21, for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Richardson of the Blood river church.

After spending several weeks here with relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Siple left last week for their home at Oregon, Ill. Hurry back! Harry Gockler, Pastor.

LAST CALL FOR STUDENTS

This is the last call that will appear for our young people to attend the Summer Bible Training School. We have done our best for you. We believe you want the School to be a success, and as big a success as possible. The work is for the Lord.

So, if you have not yet enrolled, and if your heart is in the work, let us hear from you or see you the morning of June 17. First assembly will be at 8:30 a.m., June 17, in the auditorium of the Church of God, Oregon, Ill. Will you be there?

Sydney E. Magaw, Chairman.

TO PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

Last year when the Summer Bible Training School ended, I promised myself that, if able, I would enroll in this year's class in order to obtain some more knowledge and experience that I had lost through inactivity. However, at this time, my doctors tell me that I must continue to be very inactive for two years or more.

I appeal to those of you, then, who are not quite decided whether to attend or not, to do so, while you have your health or before something else happens to prevent your attendance. God needs workers of all kinds, but especially young, healthy ones, who can stand up under the pressure. This is not just a sentimental appeal, but please seriously consider these things that I have written to you.

Thanks! Gerald L. Cooper.

Sr. Rowena Randall is visiting friends in Oregon, Ill. She came with Bro. Harold Hardesty, who had been visiting in Minnesota.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Mother Magaw, a patient in the Miller Hospital, St. Paul, Minn., is recovering from an operation.

Through the kindness of Sr. T. J. Ellis, Waterloo, Iowa, we had a much better trip to Ohio than planned, as she volunteered to take us, including the family, via her car.

Next week's Herald will present a front-page picture of the new members at the Southlawn Park Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich.

We rejoice with Sr. Irene Holland, whose interesting report of the recent Annual May Meeting at Fonthill, Ont., appears on page 9.

Youth, hadn't you noticed? Bro. F. L. Marsh of Oregon, Ill., who was hale and hearty to celebrate his eightieth birthday June 7, continues to set the right example by regularly attending the church services—including the mid-week devotional service.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard, now busy in an evangelistic meeting at Bristow, Okla., writes that, the Lord willing, he will be at the General Conference.

Bro. James McLain has started an evangelistic effort at the Dutton church, trying to revive the work. Since February 9, we have had regular services every Sunday afternoon, and now we are having services every Friday evening. . . . We are very much interested in the Bible Training School. Religious training is so very essential to the youth of today, to help them battle with evil."—Mrs. William Hanson, Caledonia, Mich.

"The 'east wind' (Psalm 48:7) is getting some of the ships, but will not get all until the fulfillment of Ezekiel 38 and 39."—H. B. Hathaway, Corvallis, Ore.

A clipping handed us by Sr. George Loudenslager, Oregon, Ill., tells that in 1940 the Bible was published in twelve more tongues, making a total of 1,051 tongues in which at least a part of the Bible has been printed. The 1940 publications were made in the tongues of the Zuni (New Mexico) Indian and dialects of Africa, Burma, Palestine, and Ecuador.

Sr. Ida Vogel of St. Louis, Mo., is again able to work, following several months of sickness. She writes, too, that she plans to attend General Conference.

"I cannot get along without The Herald; it gives me so much help in these trying times."—Mrs. R. A. Robinson, Clyde, N. C.

Bill Cullen, who for several years faithfully served in The Herald print shop, is now employed in Rockford, Ill., where we trust he will "make good" as he did with us.

Any church not having a pastor which might wish the services of Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick, one or two weeks before General Conference time, or two or three weeks after Conference time, may find it profitable to write him. Inasmuch as he will, within the next few weeks, be in several different places, we suggest communications be addressed to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill., and we shall forward them to him.

"I still find that The Restitution Herald is my best reading except the Bible."—Mrs. R. Skeels, 1216 Eastern Ave., S.E., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Latest word indicates that both California and Virginia will be represented at the Summer School; thus youth meets youth from coast to coast. Who is coming from the South?

ILLINOIS QUARTERLY CONFERENCE
Eldorado—June 28, 29

We remember that everyone at the Ripley Conference planned to be present at Eldorado, June 28, 29. This is to remind you that the time is not far off. In fact, you might even fill up on gas now and get ready, for we are expecting you bright and early on the 29th. We know that you will feel that you have missed something if you miss the fellowship of another Quarterly Conference. We have driven nails in the walls on which to hang the extra ones, if worse comes to worse, so don't be afraid to bring the family and friends.

As a prelude, Eldorado has planned a series of meetings for the week preceding the Conference. The undersigned will be the speaker each night. Our brother, Fred T. Watkins of Franklin, Ind., is to be with us and lead in family hymn singing each night; also, many special numbers have been arranged. So, you are invited to drop in anytime during the week and stay with us until Conference.

All the plaster has been removed from the church, and ornamental ecotex is being applied. With the church redecorated, we hope to make this a red-letter time at Eldorado. To do so, we must have you with us. A program will soon be announced. Plan to be with us. Mark these dates—Eldorado, June 28, 29.

James M. Watkins.

MARY HOGARTH

Mary Hogarth was born in Ontario, then called Canada West, on April 7, 1852, and died at her home near Solina on May 10, 1941. About sixty years ago, she was baptized by Eld. R. V. Lyon, who organized and built a small church at Solina. Sr. Hogarth remained faithful to her church until the very end. Truth was an important part of her life.

She was the seventh of a family of fourteen children of Daniel and Elizabeth Hogarth. She spent her whole life on the farm where she was born, and from which the funeral services were conducted by the writer. She is survived by two sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Eva Fleteher, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Mrs. Laura Pascoe, Solina; G. H. Hogarth, Toronto; and Dr. L. N. Hogarth, Detroit, Mich. All were present at the funeral, except Sr. Fleteher, who was quite ill at her home. Six nephews acted as pallbearers.

She was laid to rest in the little cemetery back of the small Church of God at Solina. This little "city of the dead" has many tombstones of the Hogarths and Pascoes, and on the majority is engraven some phase of their hope in the coming of Christ and the resurrection. There is much sacred history connected with the little church, and while no services are held there, it is diligently cared for and maintained as a hallowed spot.

Eld. R. V. Lyon did a good work there in his day, and it was with a sense of honor and blessing that the writer stood behind the pulpit from which Bro. Lyon preached the gospel of the Kingdom so faithfully seventy-five years ago, and sat in the seat which he occupied on the platform. God bless the memory of these faithful workers! We pray the Father's sustaining and comforting grace upon those who mourn the passing of Sister Mary Hogarth. She sleeps in hope of a glorious resurrection.

C. E. Randall.

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE REPORT

The California Conference of the Churches of God was held in Los Angeles, June 1, 1941. The day was ideal for such an occasion and the various meetings were enjoyed by all. Approximately one hundred twenty-five people attended. Sunday school began at 10:00 a.m., and preaching services at 11:00 a.m. Bro. Norman McLeod was the speaker for the morning service, his topic being, "Behold, the Days Come."

Bro. G. E. Marsh conducted the Communion service. Lunch was eaten in the pergola. Following lunch, at 2:00 p.m., a business meeting was held. The Conference voted to send two students from our churches, Betty Luper and Malcolm McLeod. Following the business meeting, Bro. J. E. Adamson gave a sermon on, "What Shall Be the Sign of Thy Coming?" A question box was conducted by President Norman McLeod. The following ministers answered the questions asked by various members of the audience: Bro. J. E. Adamson, Sr. E. C. Railsback, Bro. G. E. Marsh, and Bro. Arlen Marsh.

At 7:00 p.m., a play was presented by several of our Los Angeles young people. The play was written and conducted by Dr. Samuel Meyers, and entitled, "What Think Ye of Christ?"

Charlotte Rahn, Secy.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. ## NEW MEMBERS AT SOUTHLAWN PARK Grand Rapids, Michigan

We are pleased to present this encouraging picture of new members of the Southlawn Park Church of God, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Brother F. E. Siple, pastor of the church, immersed them Easter Sunday. They are now risen from the watery grave to walk in newness of life, in that "strait" and "narrow" way that leads unto everlasting life. May they share the victory of Jesus when He returns to restore the Davidic throne and rule in peace, mercy, and righteousness.

David and Jonathan

David and Jonathan, despite possibilities for jealousy, were inseparable friends—pals! “The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. . . . Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul. And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him (his royal robe, for he was son of King Saul), and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle” (1 Sam. 18:1-4). Never was this covenant broken; never did Jonathan resent David’s being chosen of God as successor to Saul. Indeed, Jonathan saved David’s life, when by withholding such help he might have soon become king as the lawful successor to his father, Saul.

Mourning the death of Jonathan, David said: “O Jonathan, thou wast slain. . . . I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women” (2 Sam. 1:25, 26).

Plainly, the Word of God foretells the coming of a day of such manifest insincerity and selfishness as to be described in the following words: “They shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour” (Zech. 14:13), and, “Every man’s sword shall be against his brother” (Ezek. 38:21). It is not too bold, we believe, to suggest that this spirit of mistrust and deception is rapidly growing. Are you sure of your friends? Count them today. Count them tomorrow. Beware!

Truth, though, like a gleam through the clouds, casts its encouraging ray upon the dark and dismal world. There was a David-and-Jonathan friendship. Further, whether or not the hags would talk, there was a lasting companionship between Jesus and Mary. There was a “beloved” disciple, and He who had the greater love, He who “sticketh closer than a brother” (Prov. 18:24), is still that Friend who is “the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever” (Heb. 13:8). Jesus never fails. “He doeth all things well.” Let Sauls arise, let neighbors flash their swords; Jesus says: “Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world” (Matt. 28:20). Further, Jesus’ true friends are necessarily friends to one another.

Happy is the man who has a Jonathan friend, a friend whose very soul is “knit” with his, a comrade whose very joy is in that friendship, irrespective of gain or loss. If such ties of love as were long ago knit between David and Jonathan, between Jesus and Mary, are no longer to be found, it is not because such loves ever failed. Rather, it is because the carnal mind does not and cannot understand, appreciate, or obey the pleadings of the Spirit. Only “love never faileth” (1 Cor. 13:8, R.V.). Where love is, there will be seen companionships that end only when Death plays his fatal hand.

Happiest of all, is the man whose heart and soul are knit into the life and love of Jesus. Jesus, “Rose of Sharon, and the Lily of the Valleys,” “fairest of ten thousand to my soul,” invites us who, like David, are last of many sons, to sit upon His throne. He spared our lives; and bravely died in the battle that called us to the throne.

O Galilean, Thou wast slain! I am distressed for thee, my Elder Brother. Very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

Youth Inspired

“Wayward youth,” we sometimes say, “must sow their wild oats.” It’s a lie! Sin is not necessary to make known the glory of God. Not the pickle first, but the sugar in the mother’s milk! Nor have youth always first tried the way of sin.

“My Country, ’Tis of Thee” was written by Samuel F. Smith when he was only twenty-four years of age. Howard Arnold Walter, when twenty-three years of age, wrote “I Would Be True.” Roy Palmer, when only twenty-two, wrote “My Faith Looks Up to Thee.” Anna Coghill, still in her teens, wrote “Work, for the Night Is Coming.” John Milton, at the age of sixteen years, wrote “Let us with a gladsome mind praise the Lord, for He is kind,” and at only ten years of age, Joseph Grigg wrote “Behold a Stranger at the Door.”

Youth of the Church of God, the Lord needs your strength and talent. The world will mock you with its deceptive lure. “Give of your best to the Master.”

What Should We Emphasize?

By Otto E. Dick

THE present world struggle with its horrible acts of hate among peoples and nations is a challenge to Christianity, because it reveals a lack of spirituality among our great leaders. It leads us to examine ourselves as a church. How well have we performed the task of spreading the gospel? Have we emphasized enough the doctrines and principles of Christianity in our Sunday schools, Bible classes, and sermons? Do we know Christ, and have an earnest desire that other people know Him? If the Spirit of Christ were instilled into our leaders, we would have peace and universal brotherhood of nations. If, by some miracle, the people of warring nations could be filled with the Spirit of Christ at an appointed hour, hostilities would cease that very hour.

Not long ago, the writer was talking to a minister of another denomination, and, during the course of the conversation, he expressed himself strongly upon several points of religious belief. For example, he thought that the belief that Christ would appear again upon the earth was the result of ignorance. Upon another occasion, a young evangelist denounced bitterly many of the basic beliefs of our church. On both occasions, the temptation to argue several points of religious belief was strong, but fortunately the mistake was averted. There was no difference of opinion as to the most essential doctrines.

How many of us have bothered to examine the reasons for our particular beliefs? Why are we a Democrat or a Republican? Why are we a citizen of the United States instead of a citizen of Germany or Italy? Do we subscribe to the beliefs of our church because we have been a student of the Bible or because we have been born or married into our church? Perhaps it was the most convenient church for us to attend. Are we free to think for ourselves, or do we let others do our thinking for us?

Ralph Waldo Emerson, in his essay "Self-reliance," contended that people are slaves to organized thought. He believed that he could determine how people thought if he knew to what church, political party, or other organization they belonged. He maintained that organized thinking retards progress and discourages originality. Can we as a church maintain an open mind on controversial doctrine? Are we tolerant with other churches and with members of our own church who may not agree with us as to belief? Dare we claim exclusive rights and powers that enable us to understand perfectly some of the disputed teachings of the Bible? There may be a slight possibility that we do not have all the truth.

We could be of greater service if we would spend less time in argument about the more controversial issues of religion and spend more time telling people about Christ. We should not ignore such controversial issues, but we should not allow them to cloud the more essential truths of Christianity. Surely we should be greater students of doctrine, but let's spend more time upon soul-winning truths, spreading the good news about Christ and striving to know our Saviour better. It is possible to become so wrapped up in some religious hobby that we lose sight of the original purpose of the church. The disciples were granted power from on high that they might bear witness of Christ. They were so filled with the Holy Spirit that they could not wait to tell the good news. The gospel was uppermost in their minds.

The important doctrine of Christianity is that Christ, the Son of God, was given as a ransom for us, that He died and rose again in the flesh, and that through Him we have our hope for eternal salvation. We should give no quarter upon these essential truths of Christianity. I believe that these truths are what Jesus had in mind when He said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15). He wanted us to emphasize soul-saving truths rather than soul-sleeper truths. The work of the church is to win souls for Christ and to build them up in Christian faith. They should be trained well in a few essential truths and not confused by many abstract beliefs. The church should train its babes in Christ, whether they be young or old, until they outgrow their spiritual immaturity and become strong, stable, mature Christians. After they know their Christ, perhaps there will be time for instruction in related doctrine.

Just as soon as we as a church and as individuals in that church concentrate upon spreading the gospel, our work will bear greater fruit. This should not be left entirely to the minister. We cannot prosper unless each of us assumes a share of the responsibility for the spiritual development of our church. It is not excusable to blame general conditions for the lack of spirituality in the world. The pentecostal church was well instructed in essential doctrines and was an aggressive, soul-saving institution. It was a joyful church, where the people received the Word gladly, and where the prophets and teachers proclaimed the gospel message with conviction. As a result, many people were converted and believed the truth. It was not because the minister had a number of college degrees, nor because they had (Please turn to page 10)

Choosing Our Destiny

By Celaine Randall

"Ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ. But he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons" (Colossians 3:24, 25).

ONE of the most up-to-date questions considered today is, What will happen to Hitler? The common feeling is that they would like to see him punished as severely and treated as unmercifully as he has been treating others. When people consider and talk about this subject, I believe they do not realize that, perhaps, some day their desire might be granted. For, he will be punished if he continues in sin as he is at the present time. I think that we are not making too broad a statement when we say he is sinning today. It is only the evil desires and the lust within him that leads him to conquer smaller countries, gain more power, and command such devastating blows to be made on defenseless, peaceful, God-loving citizens. The text quoted at the beginning of this article proves beyond a doubt that anyone committing any wrong will receive just punishment for their wrongdoing.

There are definite examples in the Bible where individuals received punishment for their evil works. The very first man, Adam, and his wife, Eve, are the most outstanding examples of this fact. They disobeyed God, consequently they had to pay the penalty. By doing exactly the opposite to which God had instructed them to do, they sinned, bringing upon the human race the penalty of death. They received a punishment for the wrong which they had done.

Another definite example found in the Old Testament, to illustrate the truthfulness of Paul's statement to the Colossian brethren, is that of Cain. Jealousy was the primary cause of Cain's wrongdoing, which led to a curse being placed upon him for killing his brother Abel. He received a just recompense for his deed.

Perhaps the most outstanding and best known illustration of Paul's statement is that of Israel. As recorded in Deuteronomy 28, Israel was given two courses from which to choose. They could serve the only true and living God, and receive blessings as numerous as the sands of the sea; or they could serve other unknown gods, and receive curses almost as numerous. The course that unfaithful Israel chose is evident. The results of this wrong are also outstanding, but the fact remains that they received only, as we say, what was coming to them. Why do we make such a statement? Only because we believe they received their punishment for their wrongs.

We have considered a few illustrations from the Old Testament to exemplify the text quoted at the beginning of the article; now let us consider a few from the New Testament. The first that we wish to draw to your attention is that of Ananias and Sapphira. This man and his wife had sold some land and were going to give the money to the apostles for the furtherance of the gospel, but they kept back part of the amount which they received. Taking this reduced sum to the apostles, Ananias laid it at their feet, claiming that it was the full sum. Peter, perceiving the untruthfulness of his statement, reprimanded Ananias for such evil, and then Ananias "fell down, and gave up the ghost" (Acts 5:5). The Diaglott translation renders it thus: "Fell down and expired." The statement "gave up the ghost" merely means "breathed out." The wife of Ananias also lied when asked the price of the land, and she, too, "yielded up the ghost" (v. 10).

This was evidently the result of their false statements. This is a very definite example found in the Acts of the Apostles to prove, beyond a doubt, the truthfulness of Paul when he said that each one would receive for the wrong which he had done.

We should not fail to mention another outstanding example found in the New Testament to illustrate the thought. This example, Judas Iscariot, presents a new thought on this subject. Almost all know the part that Judas had in the betrayal of Jesus. Because of his unfaithfulness, he will receive for the wrong which he did. If you will notice, the examples given thus far have all been individuals who have, to a certain extent, already received the recompense for their sin. The example here given presents another judgment, inasmuch as Judas has not received his punishment. His punishment is yet to come.

The majority of us come under the category of receiving our reward or punishment, whichever we deserve, at the second coming of Christ, or at a later time—the White Throne Judgment (Rev. 20:12), for it will be a very severe punishment not to be among the church or saints who are considered faithful to Christ. If we are denied this privilege, then we will have to give an account at the White Throne Judgment for all our evil deeds. Then we shall receive just punishment for our sins, as Paul stated in Colossians 3:25. We read in Galatians 6:7, 8: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." By this verse, we understand that there is a reward for the deeds of righteousness which contrasts with the punishment of the evildoers.

As Israel had two ways from which to choose one to follow, so we, today, have two ways. We can sow to the Spirit or sow to the flesh. From the one, we will receive a just reward, which is eternal life; and from the other, we will receive a just recompense which will be, according to God's Word, the second death (Rev. 20:12-15). We are at liberty to choose our destiny. Which will it be?

What Is God's?

By Vivian Kirkpatrick

"What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" (1 Cor. 6:19.)

WHAT is God's? That is a question with which we continually meet. What do I owe to God? What can I call my own? How do I distinguish between what is God's and what is mine? Is there any definite way in which the two might be divided? There are so many questions we might ask if we truly search for an answer.

We give man credit for a great many creations—look at the patent office records—automobiles, airplanes, refrigerators—hundreds and thousands of things. There is one thing which stands out if we look at the creations of man; they are all of a mechanical, chemical, or physical nature; they are all inanimate objects, not capable of independent thought or action. Man has tried, and undoubtedly will continue to try to discover the secret of life; he has made attempts toward the synthetic creation of life. However, as yet, man has completely failed to discover that secret; though, by his study, he has been able to prolong life through discovery of and elimination of causes which had shortened, or cut off life. Man has been able to improve species of animal and plant life, but he has been unable to create life which has been the cause of all his research.

God still holds the secret of life, and only He can create a living being. Nothing living now, or in any past age, came into existence without His creative power. It is a power He guards from all of man's efforts. We might argue, too, that all things man has created owe their primary existence to God, since He endowed the inventor with a mind capable of conceiving and creating that which man has brought forth.

In no manner of argumentation, can we detract from the fact that God alone can create life, and it is only through His grace that man is endowed with a mind capable of mechanical creation.

"God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image. . . . And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth" (Gen. 1:26-28). With these few words, we have the great story of creation, its purpose, and its commandments. God, not man, was creator of all, but He created for a purpose. He created mankind in His own image and installed him in the midst of creation, and told him to have dominion over it.

We confuse the meaning of that word "dominion." We take God's words to mean that all the creation was given to man outright, and with no "strings" attached. However, "dominion" has not that meaning. It does mean "supreme authority over; control over; or jurisdiction over," but it does not carry the thought of an outright gift.

That thought—that man was to have authority over the earth and all that was in, on, or above it, but that it was not an outright gift—is substantiated in Deuteronomy 10:14, for we read there: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, and the earth also, with all that therein is." The Psalmist agrees, "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein" (24:1). These verses confirm the fact that God is still owner of His creation.

Unfortunately, man, with his superior knowledge, refutes this. It is his, with no "strings" attached! He owes nothing to God! Everything to be found in, on, or above the earth is His to do with as He pleases.

The great evangelist, Paul, in disagreement with man's idea that all creation was for him (Please turn to page 10)

The Book of Revelation Revealed

Article Three

By J. W. McLain

Christ and the Seven Candlesticks—the Number Seven

THE study of the numerology of the whole Bible, and especially of the Book of Revelation, shows remarkable hidden truths. The application of certain numbers symbolically, or the arrangement of certain factors in a definite numerical pattern, reveals a divine purpose in such usage.

The number seven seems to denote the completeness of the subject so marked. In some instances, it may suggest the perfected, divine completeness of a person or thing. The number seven occurs with such regularity in Revelation that the careful student is forced to give it consideration.

There are: 1) Seven pairs of visions; 2) seven spirits before the throne; 3) seven titles for Christ; 4) seven congregations; 5) seven angels of the congregations; 6) seven rebukes; 7) seven sets of promises; 8) seven horns on the Lamb; 9) seven eyes in the Lamb; 10) seven seals; 11) seven trumpets; 12) seven vials of plagues; 13) seven thunders; and 14) seven heads of the beast.

Wherever this numerical mark or pattern occurs, we must account that it suggests consideration of all the parts so marked as being one complete entity.

The Seven Titles

Each title applied to God or Christ suggests a definite relationship or ability in connection with the circumstances of the context.

The Seven Letters

These letters reveal the spiritual condition of the ones addressed at the time the visions of the Book shall be in process of fulfillment.

With only a few things found commendable, the Judge weighs them and rebukes them for their unfaithfulness, idolatry, apostasy, immorality, and backsliding.

He makes a series of promises to them as though to encourage them to hold on until the consummation of the time of trouble. The reassuring language is the nearness of His returning. He says, "Behold, I stand at the door," and "Behold, I come quickly." He is the one who will come with clouds to deliver the Kingdom to the saints of the Most High as revealed in Daniel 7 and Revelation 1.

The promises made in the letters are shown fulfilled in the final chapters of the Book in connection with Christ's coming, the resurrection, and the New Jerusalem.

The Son of Man

Compare the visions of Daniel 3:25, 7:13, 10:5, and 12:1 with the description of Revelation 1:13-16, and it will become evident that the symbolism is showing us the Messiah of Israel.

The symbolical, descriptive language applied to Him in the midst of the seven candlesticks, presents a composite of the several visions concerning the angel of God who upheld the children of Israel in olden times when their lives were in danger.

That his feet burned as in a furnace of fire, suggests the scene of Daniel 3, where the fourth like the Son of God was in the midst of the Hebrew children who were cast into the furnace. In like manner, Christ is in their midst in their tribulation.

We must view the titles Christ applies to Himself as the one in the midst of the candlesticks as suggesting his complete authority and power in his capacity as Messiah, Judge, King, and Saviour in connection with the events of the Day of the Lord.

The Seven Spirits

Since we are told that there is only one Spirit (Eph. 4:4), we must consider the seven spirits as symbolical of the fullness of the Spirit or power in attendance with the Christ for His work in the Day of the Lord.

The Seven Candlesticks

We see, not a candelabra of seven sticks, but seven separate candlesticks, to indicate the disunity of the separate parts represented, yet we must view the seven parts as representative of the whole people under consideration for the period of the day of tribulation. Since this seems to represent Israel as the people addressed in connection with their preparation for the Day of the Lord, we must consider the seven candlesticks as representative of all the congregations of Israel, whether they be seven or seventy, as they are given instructions by their Prince for the trouble ahead.

The Seven Angels

If we are right in deducing that the seven candlesticks are the whole house of Israel, we must say that the seven angels represent the whole spiritual leadership of the people at that time. They are being called to account for the spiritual condition of the churches. They are being instructed for the future. Bullinger suggests that the angel is the man of the synagogue who has charge of the rolls of Scripture, called, Sheliach Tzibbur.

Summary

Putting together the related symbolism of the previous studies, we endeavor to envision a complete picture.

At the beginning of the troublous time in the end of the age, Israel will still be lacking to a great degree in true spirituality. However, a few will be wise and will turn many to righteousness (Dan. 12).

Israel's eyes are blinded until the times of the "Gentiles be come in" (Rom. 11). They, being servants, do not know what their Lord does, so there is need of a special message to Israel to prepare and enlighten them concerning the Day of the Lord. The purpose of the Book is to "shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass."

As the Saviour, He promises special dispensation to those who are able to overcome the mark of the beast and prove true spiritually.

As Judge, He weighs His people, rebuking, commending, and promising.

As Messiah of Israel, He is in their midst to uphold and to deliver them from the beast and from the wrath of God, if they will heed His instructions. Naturally, many will not, as other scenes of the Book reveal. Those who remain rebellious, will be slain with the sword of His mouth with the rest of the wicked.

This is the time when they shall "mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son." They will say, "Where did you get those wounds?" He will answer, "In the house of my friends."

Israel's returning to Palestine, and the impending conquest of the land, indicate that we may be living in the very shadow of the fulfillment of these things.

Our Need for Church Worship

By Rena Fletcher

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord" (Psalm 122:1).

HOW few people in these days would voice this same thought! The present mode of fast and furious living leaves little or no time to the majority of people for attendance of church service for only one hour in the week. While many people will gladly drive many miles for selfish pleasure, even to go a short distance for the worship of the Lord is too much to expect of them. Others among us often make the presence of company in our homes the excuse for not attending church. If we invited these friends to accompany us, they, as well as we, would receive a blessing from the Lord, and our pastor would be much encouraged by our presence.

Through Moses, God commanded the children of Israel to keep one day out of seven for a day of rest. "Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death" (Ex. 31:13, 14).

If a breach of the Sabbath was punishable by death in Moses's time, do not we also need to observe the day? Those who love God should rest on the Sabbath, and also attend a service of praise and prayer to God.

We like to live in pleasant, comfortable surroundings. If, then, it is important to us to have nice homes, how much more important is it that we make God's house as beautiful as possible! Solomon, in building the Temple of God, used the finest material available. "So Solomon overlaid the house within with pure gold" (1 Kings 6:2).

The Temple was later destroyed and God's people were carried off as prisoners into Babylon. When these people were later freed from captivity, they were discouraged, and neglected to rebuild God's House. As they attended rather to building themselves beautiful homes in which to live, God sent His Prophet Haggai to counsel the people. "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Consider your ways. Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the Lord. Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it. Why? saith the Lord of hosts. Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house" (Hag. 1:7-9).

Thus did God punish the people for their neglect, and commanded them to obey Him. If God's people were to worship in church, how much more need have we, in these perilous days, to meet thus, and to gain peace and contentment in God's house!

If we really like someone, we like to go and visit in

The Two Adams

In Four Parts—Part Four

By S. G. Elton

GOD blessed the two Adams, and commanded them to "be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth." Because sin developed in the first Adam, his fruit was subject to death, "so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned"—the same nature being common to all so begotten. The command to "be fruitful, and multiply" was directed at both members of the first pair (1 Cor. 7:4), that the physical and the intellectual might be joined in one body on the plane of the spiritual. For that reason, God said: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh." After sin had entered the first man, as he had perverted the mind of the woman, in order that they might not become one flesh on the spiritual plane, God said: "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." Before any children were born, God made it possible to distinguish between the children of the Adversary and the children of God: "In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother" (1 John 3:10).

"Verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham. Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people" (Heb. 2:16, 17). In what respect does the seed of the first Adam differ from the seed of Abraham that are in Christ Jesus? On account of mortality, the seed of the first Adam begets fruit unto death; but, because of the righteousness that is in Christ Jesus, the seed of Abraham that is in him, begets fruit unto everlasting life. Every form of life is perpetuated from generation to generation through the medium of seeds. "That which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain: but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one . . . of men, another . . . of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds. There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another" (1 Cor. 15:37-40). Continuing, "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly." The two Adams represented, in figure, the two ages—first the natural or earthy, and later, the spiritual or heavenly. The fruit produced by the union of the two Adams was endowed with the two natures—one active and the other passive, but the natural first, being begotten by the seed of the natural. Spiritual fruit is the result of the union of the seed of Abraham with the seed of the woman, for it is the woman's seed that conceives and produces a body according to the kind of seed sown. Paul, after describing various types of seeds, said: "It (the spiritual seed) is sown in corruption; it (the seed) is raised in incorruption: it is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown (in) a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:42-44). Again, Paul said: "This I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption" (v. 50). This was said of the first man Adam.

Jesus said: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." According to the Scriptures, God predestined the Son to be the sole disseminator of the spiritual seed, and being born of an Israelitish woman, He acquired the nature of Abraham, who, on account of his implicit faith in God, was accepted as righteous. God had made a promise to Abraham: "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed," and Paul declared that Christ is the only seed that would be the blessing to all the nations of the earth. Now, listen to the Prophet Isaiah: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (9:6). As the dispenser of the Abrahamic seed, He becomes the everlasting Father of all those who are the adopted sons of God. Again, Paul said: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love: having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will" (Eph. 1:3-5). Jesus emphasized, "Ye must be born again."

In summing the evidence the Scriptures present, we find that the first man that God formed from the dust from the ground was not a perfect image or likeness of God when the first breath of life entered his nostrils, and he became a living soul. He was still without character or reputation. Even before the man was formed, "God planted a garden eastward in Eden": and "out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil" (Gen. 2:8, 9). God put man, whom He had formed, in the Garden (v. 8). "The Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

According to the inspired record, the first Adam never tasted of the tree of life, but reasoned within his own mind that the other tree was the more desirable for him to eat. Having eaten of the forbidden fruit, he quickly realized that he was without the power to prolong his life a single day. "The Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken" (Gen. 3:22, 23).

That the first Adam was not a perfect image or likeness of his Creator is evident, for we read: "Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth" (Gen. 5:3). Evidently the offspring of Seth partook of the same features, for we again read: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name" (Phil. 2:5-9). We read in Philippians 3:20, 21: "Our conversation is in heaven; from whence we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself." Although the two Adams that God blessed in the Garden of Eden have been fruitful and multiplied, Jesus the Christ is the one and only perfect image and likeness of the Almighty Creator.

The Sins of Abraham

By Terry Ferrell

---

"If Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory; but not before God" (Romans 4:2).

THERE are several instances in the Bible that make it noticeable that God chose certain men to do His work, even though they were far from His ideal of a perfect man. However, those men were the best that God had at that particular time. There has always been a remnant of God's people. Sometimes one man served as the remnant, and at other times a whole nation served as the remnant. Abraham once served as the remnant. He was a very sinful man, but he was the best God could find at that time.

There is record in the Bible that, two times, Abraham did not tell the whole truth—once in Genesis 12:10-13, and once in Genesis 20:1, 2. In chapter 12, we find the record of Abram's journey into Egypt, and his experience with the Pharaoh. As Abram came near to Egypt, he perceived that, because Sarai was so fair, they would kill him and take her from him. They would not kill him if she were his sister. So, to save his life, Abram lied and said that Sarai was his sister. The Pharaoh then took Sarai into his house, and treated Abram well for her sake. Consequently, Pharaoh was plagued because of Abram's lie. Abram lied under similar circumstances, as recorded in Genesis 20.

Abram was an adulterer and a doubter, as well as a liar. Abram was very desirous of possessing the inheritance that God promised him, but he, as yet, had no seed. He so doubted God's word, that he became an adulterer when he took unto himself Hagar, Sarai's handmaid. Ishmael was born unto Hagar by Abram, while he was yet married to Sarai. Thereby, Abram was an adulterer. (See Gen. 16:1-3.)

When God told Abram that a son would be born to Sarai and himself, he so doubted God that he fell to the ground and laughed. He doubted God's ability to perform such a miracle. He believed that Sarai, who was ninety years of age, could not bear him a son, even though

God told him that he would have a seed, by Sarai, to inherit the world. Abraham laughed at God.

By these instances, we conclude that Abram failed in several respects, yet God accounted him unto righteousness. He was the best to be had at that particular time. Abraham will be in the Kingdom, for we read in Matthew 8:11: "Many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."

Abraham was not justified by his works, but God saw fit to save him. It is only through the grace of God that any man can obtain salvation. "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Eph. 2:8). No man is good enough to be saved by his works. Many people believe they are good enough to be saved by their works. They believe, too, that they do not need God's grace. However, if that were the case, there would be very few, if any, saved.

Many people try to justify their own wicked deeds by calling attention to the sins of the early men of God, but there is no justification for their deeds, for, "To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Abraham had no law by which he could be judged, and without the law there is no sin. (See Rom. 5:13.) We must not try to hide our sins by other people's sins, for we cannot judge ourselves by other men, but by the Bible only. We should ever continue in faith and try our best to live according to His commandments. Remember the sins of Abraham.

OUR NEED FOR CHURCH WORSHIP

his home. Likewise, if one really loves and reverences God, he likes to go to God's house to commune with and to worship God. The old adage, "Birds of a feather flock together," still holds good today. To the real Christian, worldly pleasures and associates are of little importance, but fellowship with those of like precious faith is very real and desirable.

"Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is" (Heb. 10:24, 25). By meeting in God's house for worship, we become more closely interwoven into His pattern of righteous living.

As the closing days of time draw near, may we watch, therefore, and pray, lest any man among us, thinking that he stands, may "take heed, lest he fall."

That we may be counted worthy to be among those of the church who are the called-out ones, the bride of Christ, is my earnest prayer.

beautiful, expensive church buildings. The success of the early church must have been because it had a real, live, vital program, dedicated to the task of telling people about Christ with the ultimate aim of winning them for Christ.

During the last few years, a number of mergers have been made among the larger denominations. More necessary than such union, is spiritual unity among believing Christians, such as that recorded in Acts. They "were of one heart and of one soul." Christianity should unite people, not separate them. Let us be more patient with people who may differ with us about minor religious issues, but let there be unyielding conviction and enthusiasm in expounding the gospel. Let all Christian churches speak with the authority and power that get results.

WHAT IS GOD'S?

and became his to do with as he pleased, wrote: "None of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. . . . So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. 14:7, 8, 12). Can we believe the evangelist was wrong? I think not. Nevertheless, he and man in general are not in agreement. Which should we follow? Which has the most to offer? Man says he is master of his own destiny; that he can live his life as he pleases, do with his property as he pleases. That is true in a sense, but though he can do as he pleases, he must (and this is what man refuses to acknowledge) at some time give account to God of his stewardship.

No one of us refuses to acknowledge the authority of the county, the state, or the nation. To show to those institutions our obedience to their power and authority, we pay taxes and conform to laws to retain possession of that which we call our own. We acknowledge that we hold those things only by permission of the higher temporal powers. However, we do refuse to acknowledge to the highest Power of all the supreme ownership of God of life and all we possess by His permission.

Besides all creation, which we have found we hold only by permission from God, Paul said: "Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own" (1 Cor. 6:19). Yes, even our life itself is not our own, but it is held in stewardship. We can make of ourselves good or bad stewards, but at some time or another we must render an account of that stewardship of life which we hold. If we realize this and desire to fulfill a requirement of God (it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful), then our attitude toward life should be as that expressed by the Psalmist, "Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits" (103:1, 2). "Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. . . . Be thankful unto him, and bless his name" (100:2-4).

If we do acknowledge, as we should, that possessions of property and life are from God and are held in stewardship by us, then what should our attitude be? Much the same question was asked of Jesus. His reply was: "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Matt. 22:37, 39). "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth" (1 John 3:16-18).

If this desire to render unto God a good account of our stewardship of life and property, then we should listen to the pleadings of Paul: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Rom. 12:1, 2), and by so doing show forth an example to those who have no knowledge or conception of the greatness of that stewardship of life which they hold from God, and who are throwing away that life in vain pursuits of pleasures or desires, or who have false conceptions of their responsibilities and may be cast, like the unprofitable servant in Christ's parable, "into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

We should, then, live as stewards over the land, property, and possessions of God and not as selfish and absolute owners. We should acknowledge our very body and life as possessions of God and that they are made by Him to do His work, and we should use them accordingly. We should not abuse them. We should acknowledge God's ownership of all possessions, and recognize that they were created to be used for His work on earth, and that there should be no sufferings or want if we are good and just stewards. Finally, that time, also, is God's and should be used in His service. Strive toward, and pray for, perfection which His new Kingdom will give to us if we so account to Him of our present stewardship that we be found worthy of that higher honor.

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

Frankly, we disagree from beginning to end with the ideas expressed by Pierre van Paassen in his Days of Our Years (Hillman, Curl; $3.00). We believe his views are unsound, many of his "facts" deliberate misinterpretations or at best of doubtful authenticity, and his treatment of the Christian faith and church a supreme example of unthinking and illogical liberalism.

Yet in spite of all this, because Days of Our Years gives a remarkably clear picture of how many "intellectuals" regard religion today, because Days of Our Years offers an excellent study of the fanatical pacifist's nugatory idealism, and because Days of Our Years has definite marks of literary genius, we recommend the book.

Van Paassen is, as you may know, one of the crack foreign correspondents. He has superimposed on inherited Calvinism a thick veneer of that empty sound and fury which passes under the name of "religious modernism"—and he permits these two extremes to battle throughout his book. The resulting fray is interesting, psychologically, but decidedly dull for the logician, who can pick so many flaws in the van Paassen philosophy and representation of historical events that Days of Our Years becomes, for him, more fallacy than fact.

Ostensibly, the volume is an autobiography. It is the first autobiography we ever have read that was really enjoyable. It is brilliantly written, as honest personally as any autobiography is likely to be, and covers a period from pre-war Holland to modern Europe and America.

Actually, the volume is a treatise on the place of the church in the world—which, if van Paassen's evident desires were fulfilled, would turn Socialist over night. The church, in van Paassen's estimation, is the instrument solely of bloodsucking financiers, and should immediately forsake dogma and stand-pat fundamentalism for preaching the gospel of social salvation and economic equality.

Read with your tongue in your cheek and your brain in high gear, the van Paassen opus will be instructive and entertaining. But if you're humorless and lacking in cynicism, abjure it as you would the plague!

ECE Graduates

June is the month of graduations. The ECE Club also has graduates. All of our ECE Club members who become sixteen years of age during the year 1941 are the ones to be graduated. You will still keep your membership, but are no longer active members.

Seventeen members are now past the age when you look, act, and think as children. You are at the doorway of the grown-up's world. We are not asking that you discontinue reading the Children's Page or studying your Sunday school lesson. We wish you to do more for the Master. Will you enter upon the Berean work more earnestly? We hope to read some of your thoughts printed upon the opposite, our Berean page.

Our Children's Page and Everyday Christian Expression Club should strengthen the members so that you will write one or more articles for the Berean work each year. We will watch for the names of our graduating class. The birth dates and addresses are also listed of those to whom our best wishes for a useful Christian life are extended. They are:

Alvin Dennis, June 9, Vanzant, Mo.

Purified by Faith

As Paul and Barnabas continued to travel and preach, they found many who believed. They also found some who caused trouble and hardships for them. Sometimes they "fled" from their enemies. No, they didn't stop preaching. At one place they found people who believed in myths. They also found a man who had never walked. Paul healed him. The people of Lystra thought two of their gods had come to earth. They wanted to worship Paul and Barnabas. They called Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercurius. Paul and Barnabas told the people they, too, were only men. Then they told them of our one true, living God.

There were many ministers who preached in different parts of the world. Some were preaching one thing, some another, regarding the keeping of the Old Covenant laws. The people didn't know which ones to believe, so trouble was caused. To settle the problems a council met at Jerusalem to decide just what Christians had to do to be Christ's followers.

Peter explained how God had accepted the Gentiles, and they hadn't kept the Jewish laws. So, Peter said they were purified by faith. He also thought all people were to be accepted by their faith, for he said: "We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they" (Acts 15:11).

May we have faith today. Let us show our faith by our works. We will then repent, believe, and be baptized. Let us live close to Jesus all our lifetime. Then we know we shall be saved.

ECE Membership

One of our ECE Club members sends us the names of two cousins. They are Virgil Johnson, Nemaha, Iowa, and Elaine Marie Johnson, Sac City, Iowa. . . . Send in your name; year, month, and day of birth; and address. Your membership card will be sent to you.

First

Last week we requested the chairmen of various committees and the officers of the national, state, and local societies to give a brief resume of the work they had done during the past year, and to offer any suggestions they might have for the advancement of Berean work during the coming year. Although we have received no replies to date, we are confident that these reports will soon be forthcoming.

However, first it is necessary that we know what things need improvement. Over the past ten months, we have formulated certain theories which we shall pass on to you to start the ball rolling. Perhaps in your study of the problems we have encountered you will be able to find some things which we have overlooked.

The most important thing that we have noticed, from our standpoint, is the lack of material for publication. Sister Muriel Randall had a little of this trouble in connection with the Echo. Although we do not like to publish pleas for material, we had, on a few occasions, to do so more or less as an experiment. The fact that we received such good returns and that practically everything we have received has been suitable for publication with very little revision has led us to believe that a larger number of our group are capable writers, and that all that is required is stimulation of the entire work to a point where many more are actively and forcefully engaged in the work which, because of difficulty or success, inspires them to offer suggestions when the need arises and ask for suggestions when in trouble. What methods would you suggest for the stimulation of a group of young people who have publicly declared their faith in the doctrines of Christ?

The need for personal information concerning the members of the entire National Berean organization is realized more by the newer workers than those who have been in the work for a number of years. In order for the National organization to assist members spread over such a wide area to any great extent, it is necessary that it know the religious education, secular education, work, special talents, hobbies, accomplishments, and available spare time of all the members under its jurisdiction. In a closely knit business organization this can be determined by personal contact with employees, but in an organization as widespread as ours, we must find these facts by other methods.

Although we study the same Book, the Bible, there is as yet, no way by which we may be assured that the members in Ohio are gaining the same knowledge of this Bible as are the members in Arkansas or California. Although approximately (that, in itself, is another problem) twenty-five societies hold meetings once a week, we have no way of knowing what each of the societies is accomplishing week by week.

In the unceasing battle between the world and religion, it sometimes seems that the world is gaining ground too rapidly. Those forces which we group under the term "the world" are constantly at work, with some of the most brilliant minds in the country laboring day and night to discover new ways of attracting people and their supply of silver. So long as those who believe in Christ are on a par in activity with "the world," the churches and the Bereans will have nothing to fear. Those who are fortunate to be associated with a large, well-organized congregation have many opportunities to keep occupied with church work, for they will have adequate leadership within their own organization. However, in the smaller communities, it is sometimes difficult right now to find leaders who have the time and the talents to plan work for others to do.

With the establishing of the nine-months' Bible Training School and the Summer Bible Training School, our church is becoming increasingly cognizant of the necessity of trained workers. Now is the time for the local, state, and finally the National Berean Societies to come to a decision to plan more thoroughly the work ahead. It is not enough to work for just "increased interest." Some goal must be set before members, and officers will even attempt to do some constructive thinking toward improving the organization. It is believed that some method for supplementing the work of the Training Schools should be developed whereby individuals who find it impossible to study at Oregon, Illinois, would be able to learn the fundamentals of successful Christian work through supplementary reading and locally sponsored classes.

Civilization is taking a beating. Stop for a few hours to consider these problems. Keep Matthew 22:39 in mind.

LOCKWOOD, MISSOURI

We are very happy to report that a ten-days' series of meetings by Bro. T. A. Drinkard, conducted at the Cedarville church near Lockwood, were very inspiring and were filled with the precious truth from the Word of God for which so many hunger and thirst. The meetings began May 23. This was the first meeting Bro. Drinkard ever held at Cedarville, and it was enjoyed by all who heard him.

On Sunday afternoon, June 1, we gathered to watch two young people buried with Christ in baptism. We are happy to present these new members of like precious faith as they take this new step in our Master's work. Bro. Drinkard has already reported their names. May God's richest blessing rest upon these two young people as they walk in the newness of life, is our prayer.

Julia Fyfe, Reporter.

SPECIAL TRACT ANNOUNCEMENT

Neglect no longer! Drop us a line as to your intentions and we will send a sample of each of the eight varieties of our new Four-second Series and a leaflet by James M. Watkins on planning your distribution. Just send a couple of three-cent stamps to cover postage and cost of handling. ### SOUTHLAWN PARK CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

The past few weeks have been busy ones at the Southlawn Church. Many activities have kept our people busy, and much has been accomplished.

Godwin Heights High School again called upon our church to conduct the baccalaureate services, which was done the night of June 1. Earlier in the day the church had given a dinner in honor of the seniors who have been connected with our church activities. This included twenty-seven of the sixty-seven graduates. Three of the top-ranking five of the class are members of our church. Among those who gained high honors are Ruth Becker, who was Valedictorian, and Jeanette Siple, who won a scholarship to Michigan State College, the first ever won by a Godwin Heights High School student. The other among the high five is Ellen VanFleet, who has been a faithful teacher in the Sunday school.

In the physical field, new steps have been built to the annex kitchen, and screens have been put on the church windows.

By the time these lines are published, the Michigan State Conference will be in session. We look forward with joy to the privilege of entertaining the Conference and Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay.

Following the Conference, we enter the summer period of lesser activity until September. F. E. Siple, Pastor.

HILLISBURG, INDIANA

We are having very good attendance at Sunday school. Our Sunday school superintendent, Bro. Otto E. Dick, has set a goal of fifty for our attendance to reach. Yesterday we met the goal, coming out two points ahead. We would like to maintain this average through the summer months.

The Indiana Bible School is only a few days away, and several from our church are planning to attend. Lota Huffer, Reporter.

MACY - ROUTSON

The wedding of Miss June Macy, Troy, Ohio, and Mr. Ellsworth Routson, West Milton, Ohio, was quietly solemnized in the presence of many friends at 10:30 a.m., June 7, 1941, in the Brush Creek Church of God. Mrs. Laurel Macy was bridesmaid, and Emory Macy was best man. Mrs. C. E. Lapp played the wedding march and accompanied Mrs. Emory Macy who sang. Following the ceremony, friends of the newlyweds enjoyed a reception and wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Macy.

Mr. and Mrs. Routson, both members of the Brush Creek Church of God, stayed for the first several days of the Annual Meeting at Brush Creek, but may now be addressed at Blanchard, Mich., where Bro. Routson, a student of the Bible Training School, is supplying for Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick, pastor of the Blanchard Church of God.

May these young people be blessed of God to long enjoy life together, and by His blessing may they minister well in the Lord's work in which both are deeply interested. Sydney E. Magaw.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. and Sr. L. E. Conner and Bro. and Sr. George Loudenslager, all of Golden Rule Home, are vacationing in Minnesota—Bro. Conner having first assisted in preaching at the State Conference at Eden Valley.

The students of the Summer School are now making their appearance. They will make one of our biggest and best Schools to date. The first students to arrive were Betty Maey, Timothy Pearson, Edwin Smith, Virginia Smith, Iris Hall, and Alva Huffer.

In the absence of the pastor, Bros. Ben Carpenter and Francis Burnett preached at Oregon, Ill., Sunday, June 8. The brethren appreciated their sermons.

Are you preparing your part of the Sunday school exhibit which is to be featured at Oregon, Ill., from July 29 to August 10?

"We enjoy The Restitution Herald very much, and I am planning to pass our copy on to a former neighbor in Eureka who is going through a time of illness and trouble, hoping it will be of comfort and help to her."—Mrs. Richard E. Powell, Point Reyes, Calif.

Bro. John Denchfield writes that six young people at Hector, Minn., have signified their desire to be baptized. They will be baptized at Eden Lake during the Minnesota Conference. Their names will be reported later.

"Mrs. J. W. Williams and Wilma returned June 6 from a two-weeks' visit with Indiana relatives. . . . Alva Huffer, who is a cousin of Mrs. Williams, came to Iowa for a short visit before going to the Summer Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill."—J. W. Williams, Gladbrook, Iowa.

"I do enjoy The Restitution Herald immensely, and am deeply interested in the truth that sets us free. How wonderful it would be to have the privilege of attending your Bible Training School."—Mrs. J. C. Jeffcott, Visalia, Calif.

We thank Sr. Jessie M. B. Kauffman for her good wishes to the General Conference.

Sr. Eunice Zollinger accompanied Bro. Elaine Randall and Sr. Edna Brewer as far as Chicago, June 6, en route to Ohio and to Burr Oak, Ind., where Bro. Randall has a pastorate for the summer months.

CARROLL HATCH

Carroll Everett Hatch, born June 24, 1859, at Crawfordsville, Ind., died May 9, 1941, at the home of his son, William S. Hatch at Arcadia, Calif.

Mr. Hatch is survived by his wife, Mary Jane Hatch, his son, William S. Hatch of Arcadia, and six grandchildren: Ned Hatch, Mrs. Wilma Brown, Mrs. Lucile Arnett, Betty Hatch, Richard Hatch, and Marilyn Hatch.

Mr. Hatch was married to Mary Jane Plummer, November 20, 1884. There were two children, Freddie T., who died at the age of four years, and William S. The family moved to California in May, 1888, and lived in Orange County almost continuously for fifty-three years.

His father was a minister of the Restitution Church and Mr. Hatch became a member of that body as a young man.

Interment took place in Fairhaven Cemetery, Santa Ana, Calif., the entire funeral service being held at the grave side, under the California sunny skies which he loved. A large group of friends gathered to pay final respect to his memory. The writer conducted the service, assisted by Bro. G. E. Marsh of Los Angeles. J. E. Adamson.

MRS. NELLIE PENROD

It becomes my sad duty to report the death of Mrs. Nellie Penrod. Death came suddenly a few hours before she was to set out on a vacation trip with her daughters to northern Indiana.

Nellie Dell Penrod was born to Andrew and Emma Ricketts Bachelor, May 20, 1874, at Hartford City, Ind., and fell asleep in Jesus, June 7, 1941, at Bloomington, Ind. She married William Penrod in 1888. Nine children were born to this union, three, Viola, William, Jr., and Laura, having preceded her in death. Mr. Penrod died in 1935. The following children survive: Stella Devenal of Monticello; Mayme and Nancy Penrod of Rockville; Mac Magnus and Eunice Newton of Bloomington; and Hanna Waite of Detroit, Mich. Also, surviving are eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild and a half brother.

The family moved to Minnesota in 1898, settling in Glendorado, where Mrs. Penrod and four of her daughters were baptized by Bro. James A. Patrick. The family moved back to Indiana in 1918, settling in Brown County, and after Mr. Penrod's death she made her home with her daughters in Bloomington.

Mrs. Penrod believed and followed literally 2 Timothy 4:2, preaching the gospel in season and out of season. She was always found with a word of Scripture or a hymn on her lips. Her worn Bible, with its many notes, gave eloquent testimony that she searched the Scriptures daily. She was greatly beloved for her Christian kindness and charity, as was attested by the great number of floral tributes and the hundreds of sorrowing friends who came to her home to pay their respects. Words of comfort were spoken by the pastor of the Fairview Methodist Church of Bloomington, who paid a glowing tribute to the life and character of Mrs. Penrod. She was laid to rest in the Valhalla Cemetery by the side of her husband, to await the resurrection morn. Maybelle Hanson.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Lewis H. Ralston; Mrs. Ruth Kuosp; Mrs. A. W. Oliver; Mrs. William Lansbery; Mrs. John Henry (self & another); Mrs. S. E. Hodges; Richard E. Powell; Horace Pierce; Winfield McKaig; Pearl Huston; Mrs. Lorain Gainey (self and another); Jessie Donaldson (for another); Grant Hogan; B. A. Comings (for another); N. Goodreau.

GABRIEL ARMSTRONG PENCE

Bro. Gabriel Armstrong Pence, eighty-three years of age, died Friday, May 30, 1941, at his home in Ambia, Ind. He had been seriously ill for two weeks following a paralytic stroke.

Surviving besides his widow, Mrs. Kate Stephenson Pence, are: four daughters, Mrs. Beulah Slater of Ambia, Mrs. Locha Doty of Williamsport, Mrs. Florence Chaffee of Rossville, and Miss Mary Pence at home; two sons, Ernest and Newton Pence, of Williamsport.

Funeral services were conducted at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, at the Christian Church in Pence. Burial was at the Jordan Cemetery.

In the funeral services the writer spoke words of comfort to more than three hundred people who had come to pay their last respects to an honest upright man, one who had lived a true Christian life. Bro. Pence had been a member of the Pleasant View church for many years, and he was known to many of the ministers of the Church of God. He will sleep through the great trouble that is coming, and will come to life when Jesus calls the righteous into eternal life at His coming. J. H. Anderson.

LORNE OTIS THOMAS

Lorne Otis Thomas was born April 20, 1911, and fell asleep in Jesus, June 3, 1941, at the Menomonie hospital.

From childhood, he made his home in Graytown, Wis. At the age of eighteen he began work as a patrolman, and continued this work until his recent death. He was working when the tragedy occurred on the Downing crossing, where he was struck by the train.

October, 1925, Bro. Thomas embraced the faith of the Church of God and was baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ by Elder Sweeney.

August 14, 1934, he was united in marriage to Ann Van Blaricom.

Besides his most faithful wife, he leaves to mourn: his father, Harry Thomas of St. Paul; two sisters, Marion—Mrs. Raymond Breslin of St. Paul, and Gladys—Mrs. Marlittle of Graytown; one brother Wilbur of St. Paul; two nieces and two nephews; and a host of relatives and friends. His mother preceded him in death, April 27, 1931.

It will be a joyous time when the Lord Himself calls, and these sleeping ones are called forth to meet Him.

Funeral services were held in the Methodist Church at Clear Lake. Interment was also at Clear Lake.

Mrs. Maynard Van Blaricom.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"When the Church Builds Evangelism, Evangelism Will Build the Church."

Dear Brother Watkins:

The Restitution Herald just came, and we saw your announcement of the Illinois Quarterly Conference at Eldorado, June 28, 29. We have been planning to come down, especially since you were so kind as to attend the Ripley Conference. It would not surprise us if all of Ripley would be down and make you entertain them. (Vengeance is sweet.)

What do you think about trying to get the churches from the upper part of the State to come? They might, if you would offer them a special concession. Put Brother Hanson on for a solo, and I am sure he will come. The folks at Fredericktown are coming, and the more we think of it, we guess almost everyone will be there. If you are going to put nails up for extra ones, please put a label on mine.

Do you have that material for the Church Directory sent in? We saw Sister Leota Hanson, who now lives at 5439 Ohio Street, Chicago, and she said to tell everyone to send that information right away. Here is what is wanted: name and address of church, name and address of pastor, name and address of each church officer, schedule and place of all regular church services and meetings—this includes church, Sunday school, Berean, choir, and any special young people's organization.

A church membership list of all active and inactive members with addresses is wanted; also, Sunday school membership and addresses as to age groups. The Sunday school officers with addresses are also desired. New members with addresses are to be designated on the list by placing a star (*) by their names.

If possible, send a good picture of your churches—congregations, too, if that will help the picture. Do you have any isolated members near you? If so, send their names and addresses. The committee wants this information from all the churches, so tell them about it.

We finally did it today! We mean, here in Macomb. The way we have been saving here would make a Scotchman feel ashamed, but we had a pure motive behind it all. The deal was closed today; it is sewed up so tight there just aren't any leaks. All of our friends who are interested in the work here have been helping us to save. The Open Bible Church of Macomb bought, secured abstract for, and now has deed recorded for a choice corner lot here in the city. We never did think it right to buy a church miles away from the people we wanted to reach. This location is in the center of a good residential district with no other churches to even give us good competition.

Now, why should we be telling you all about this when you didn't know that we are going to build a church. Or did you? A number of our church people know about it, for they have been helping us with funds, and we surely appreciate it, too. This church is only four years old, but we hope it will be standing without help in several more years. At present, the lot is covered with tall weeds and grass. Come up during this next week and help us clean up. You would look graceful with a scythe.

What do you think of Home Missions? We believe, since we have no foreign missions, that every church should have an interest in spreading the gospel outside of its own church. The early churches seemed to manifest this Spirit. At least, when there was another church that needed help, some of them were always ready and willing to send funds. Another denomination has said that it takes ten years to establish a work from the time it is first started. We believe it could be done in half that time if the stronger churches would help support the weak ones until they were able to stand alone.

Did we tell you that Fredericktown almost has its church paid for, and now wants a full-time pastor? Doesn't it beat all how hard it is to keep people satisfied? We guess it would be a good thing if all of our churches were like that.

If you find that some of our churches are hoarding away their Sunday school money for a nest egg, or anything like that, we wish you would tell them they could invest with us in this church.

Do you ever get any unique excuses? Here is the best I have heard in a long time: One lady said the church was too far away to walk, and too near to ride. I took it that she didn't want to come. One that I have found to be a favorite is this one, "Company came, and we had to stay at home." Not long ago, a lady told me she had settled that one long ago (I mean Sunday company): either the company could go to church or await their coming home. "We didn't get up in time," is one that must mean that the Lord's work isn't as important as the daily job where the clock is punched.

Yours for better excuses,

C. E. Lapp.

Who Is on the Lord's Side?

By Lyle Rankin

"Behold in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land" (Joel 3:1-3).

HERE is a notable prophecy which, when read, should cause the people of God to look up, lift up their heads, and rejoice, for Judah is returning from her captivity; it is the budding of the fig tree. The Jews have been returning for a number of years from their captivity, some willingly, and some because of severe persecution. Since Jerusalem has been taken from the rule of Turkey (partial freedom from its captivity), the Jews have marvelously built up the Promised Land. In centuries past, the Jews, as a nation, have tried to take root various places in the earth, but all efforts have been in vain until this last one. They were to be sifted ("caused to move," margin) "among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." (See Amos 9:9.) Today the Jews are dwelling "confidently" (Ezek. 38:11, margin), saying things that indicate a fulfillment of Amos 9:10: "The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us." Then, verse 11 shows that the tabernacle of David shall soon be raised up. We are constrained to cry, "Who is on the Lord's side?"

Another prophecy in course of fulfillment, showing that we are near the time armies are to be gathered in the valley of Jehoshaphat, is Joel 2:23, saying: "He (God) hath given you the former rain moderately." It was reported that rain fell while the 1939 and 1940 citrus crop was being picked in Palestine, and the workmen wore rain-repellent apparel while picking between showers. Other heavy rains have also been reported. Who can say, as these evidences are before us, that "the day of the Lord" is not at hand? As that day approaches, who is on the Lord's side?

Lyle Rankin

Jesus not only calls our attention to the budding of the fig tree but of "all the trees." This last phrase doubtlessly refers to the Gentile nations. The buds of all the trees are indeed swelling. First, as has been mentioned, Judah is returning to Eretz Israel (the land of Israel), which movement was started in the late eighteen hundreds, very small then, but it has gained great proportions. Concerning the Gentile nations we read: "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare war, wake up the mighty men" (Joel 3:9). In 1914, the mighty men of the earth, insofar as being prepared for war was concerned, were asleep; but since then, what an awakening has and is taking place! What great preparation there is for war! Verse 10 of this chapter says, "Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong." For many months the soil-tilling implements, and the reaping implements that have been cast aside on farmers' ranches for years, have been and are being gathered and trucked away to make carnal weapons for the destruction of souls—yes, the very souls for whom Jesus gave His life. How much better it would be if men would only be His soldiers, without the entanglement of the things of this present life. (See 2 Tim. 2:3, 4.)

With the weapons of destruction in hand, and with much self-confidence, the weak have said, "I am strong." The lesser nations of Europe have verily fulfilled that prophecy, for as the German nation moved in, they resisted with much self-confidence. Nevertheless, Gomer is gathering "his bands" (Ezek. 38:6).

There is distress of nations (Please turn to page 11)

Jews, Gentiles, and Church of God

Said the Apostle Paul: "Give none offense, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God" (1 Cor. 10:32). Bible scholars quickly recognize the Scriptural distinction between Jews and Gentiles, but they invariably fail to recognize the Scriptural distinction between Gentiles and the Church of God. True, the Church of God is composed, largely, of those who were Gentiles, but he who is called out of the world and who faithfully follows the Christ is, in God's sight, neither Jew nor Gentile—he is a member of the Church of God.

"God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name" (Acts 15:14). A foreigner may become a naturalized citizen of the United States, after which the law of this land no longer considers him a Hottentot or a what-not, but an American. He is, in a sense, called out of the old into the new, and irrespective of race or nationality he is called by a new name. Thus, those who are called out of the world of both Jews and Gentiles are called by a new name, even the Church of God.

Those who will be "kings and priests," and who "shall reign on the earth" (Rev. 5:10), are now being redeemed "out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation" (v. 9). It is of little import to God whether His child is American, European, African, or Asiatic. "God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him" (Acts 10:34, 35). "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:27, 28). These members called out of the world into the family of God thereafter bear their Father's name in being called the Church of God.

Though Paul instructed Christians not to offend the Jews, many church members today despise the Jews. Though Paul instructed Christians not to offend Gentiles, that is, worldly people, many church members, forgetting they are "the salt of the earth" (Matt. 5:13), turn their lazy backs upon the very ones they should strive to educate, convert, and help to redeem. Further, though Paul instructed Christians not to offend the Church of God, many of its own members are so disrespectful as to question there being a true Church of God, and they not infrequently shame the Bible church in calling themselves by another name than that given by inspiration. It is a little matter if the world ignores the Church of God; it is a serious matter that the Church of God doubts its being what the Bible says it is.

Before Peter could have gone to Rome, Saul of Tarsus persecuted "the church of God" (1 Cor. 15:9), which most eloquently proves the mother church originated in Palestine where Saul persecuted believers, and not in Italy. Now, it so happens that the church which Saul persecuted was, according to his own testimony, the Church of God. As further evidence that the Apostolic church bore the Father's name, we quote several other texts:

- (1) "Take heed to yourselves, therefore, and to all the flock among whom the Holy Spirit made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he acquired by the blood of his own" (Acts 20:28, Emph. Diag.).
  - (2) "Ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it" (Gal. 1:13).
  - (3) "If a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?" (1 Tim. 3:5.)
  - (4) "These things write I unto thee . . . that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth" (1 Tim. 3:15).
  - (5) "Feed the flock of God" (1 Peter 5:2), which flock is in verse 3 called, "God's heritage."
  - (6) "Paul . . . unto the church of God which is at Corinth" (1 Cor. 1:1 and 2 Cor. 1:1).
  - (7) "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me" (John 17:11).
  - (8) "I bow my knees unto the Father . . . of whom the whole family . . . is named" (Eph. 3:14, 15).
- Yes, there are many other peoples, but we can pray as did Isaiah: "We are thine, thou never barest rule over them; they were not called by thy name" (Isa. 63:19).

Jesus Is Coming—"Watch"

By G. M. Siple

"WHEN he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:9-11).

Notwithstanding the foregoing scripture, and many more texts which state so plainly that Christ will return in like manner as He departed, there seems to be a general belief among religious people that Christ, contrary to His own words, will set up a kingdom in heaven—to which they will be carried in some mysterious manner at death.

Death in the Scriptures, unless otherwise stated, always means the end of this present mortal life. It is only through Christ's return, when He will raise the dead who are asleep in Him and change the living saints, that we have a hope of immortal life. This future life will be on the earth—purified and renewed. We read in 1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air." Could words be more plain to tell us when Christians will receive the immortal nature? Even Christ, although He was the Son of God, was born with the Adamic nature, and received the immortal nature only when He was raised from the dead.

Christ's first coming was to provide atonement for the world; His second coming will actually bring immortality to all who are asleep in Him and to the living faithful. John the Revelator, speaking for Christ in Revelation 2:10, said: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." As we are told in this text to be faithful until death, some might gather from this that our reward is to be given at that time, but we know this could not be true, as the following texts plainly show:

(1) "In death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalm 6:5.)

(2) "If I wait, the grave is mine house" (Job 17:13).

(3) "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9:5).

We have only a short time to serve God while in this mortal life. These years, whether few or many, provide our only chance to serve our Maker in preparation for Christ's return. When death comes, that means the end of this present mortal life. After we go into the sleep of death, it matters not to us whether it be one year or one thousand years before Christ returns. If our lives have been in harmony with the teaching of God's Word, we can rest assured we shall be remembered on the resurrection morning. The only ones who will escape this death will be the ones who are alive at the time Christ appears for His bride—the faithful followers of Him. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:26). So death is always an enemy, and never a friend. If it were true that our reward came at death, it would then be a friend to us, as it would hasten our reward. Nothing is promised us at death, except that we shall be at rest or asleep in Jesus.

Christians are promised everything really worth while when Jesus comes and the resurrection of the dead takes place. It is true that Jesus is now in heaven—sitting at the right hand of the Father and making intercession for those who come to God by Him. Heaven has received Him, however, only until the proper time for His return to this earth. "He (God) shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:20).

There will be a resurrection of the dead at two different times, perhaps a thousand years apart. The first will be the resurrection of the righteous dead as promised in Luke 20:35, 36: "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more: for they are (Please turn to page 9)

Blessed Hope

By Mary Mae Nedrow

Hope is an anchor sure and true—
Ever make it firm and sound.
Hold fast, good sailor, on life's sea,
Though stormy waves abound.

Glorious, steadfast, blessed hope,
And wondrous thought so dear,
To hear Him shout, "Arise! Awake!
Your King, now doth appear."

Ah! Happy day, when Christ returns,
The trump of God shall sound.
The coming King approaches!
Will you in faith be found?

We could not live without this thought,
This blessed hope of cheer,
To hear His voice, to see His face,
To know He'll soon appear.

Is the Soul Immortal?

By James A. Patrick

IT SEEMS strange that anyone who believes the Bible should believe that the soul or any part of man is immortal, when the Bible plainly declares, "Who (God) only hath immortality." If God "only" has immortality, how can anyone else have it? Besides, we are told in Romans 2:7, "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life." Would the incomparable Paul tell us to seek for that which we already possess? Besides, it is plainly stated in Ezekiel 18:4, 20, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Can that which is immortal die?

Job 4:17 reads, "Shall mortal man be more just than God?" The word in the Hebrew rendered "mortal man" in this verse, occurs more than five hundred times in the Old Testament, and is defined by Dr. Robert Young in his Concordance, "a man, a mortal," so that more than five hundred times man is said to be mortal, and not once anywhere in the Bible is it said that man or any part of him is immortal. Why, then, do men claim immortality for themselves in this life?

It is contended by the believers in the immortality of the soul, that the soul or spirit, for they are one and the same to them, is the conscious living entity, and the body is only the house in which the soul lives. God has an entirely different story to tell us in His Word. He repeatedly says the physical body is the conscious living man.

In Genesis 2:7 we read, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Here God says He made man out of the dust.

Again we read in Genesis 3:17-19, "Unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it . . . in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art; and unto dust shalt thou return." God here holds the dust-made man responsible for the sin. If there was a soul or spirit in Adam that was responsible, God punished the wrong thing, for "dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return" was the punishment.

God said to Abraham (Gen. 15:15): "Thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age." In fulfillment of this prediction, it is said in Genesis 25: 8, 9, "Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died . . . And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah." The same form of words is used in telling of the death of Isaac and Jacob. Of Joseph, it is said in Genesis 50:26, "So Joseph died . . . and they embalmed him and put him in a coffin in Egypt." Was it Joseph of soul or spirit that they embalmed and put in a coffin?

Elder James A. Patrick, Ashland, Ohio, wrote this article in response to a request by the editor of the Prophetic Age, who also volunteered to publish the article in tract form. Those who may wish tracts of this article should write the author, enclosing postage.

In the New Testament we have similar language. Ananias and Sapphira were carried out and buried. Stephen, too, was carried "to his burial." Christ went to the tomb of Lazarus and said, "Lazarus, come forth." Where was Lazarus? In the tomb!

In my many years of Bible study, I have tabulated hundreds of texts of like import with the foregoing. I challenge the world to produce one text that plainly and unequivocally says that an immaterial soul or spirit is the conscious, intelligent entity in man.

In 1 Corinthians 15:12-18 we read, "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ risen: . . . And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." If the conscious, living entity of the righteous goes to heaven at death and is in the presence of God enjoying the blessings of heaven, would it be perished, if there never was a resurrection of the dead? Paul says that if the dead rise not, those asleep in Jesus are perished. So, then, no one goes to heaven at death.

I have been asked what difference it makes whether one goes to heaven at death or lays in the grave till the resurrection. It makes a great deal of difference. It makes the difference between what God has said and what He has not said. John tells us that not to believe God makes Him a liar. Let us read 1 John 5:10-12: "He that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

John is here speaking of eternal life, and says that this life is in Jesus and not in us, but the person who believes he has an immortal soul believes he has life in himself. I once said to a minister of one of the largest denominations in the United States, "You believe you have an immortal soul?" "Yes," he replied. "Then you have life in yourself and cannot die?" I asked. "Yes," he said, "I have life in myself and cannot die." Was that making God a liar? He said, "I have life in myself." God said, "This life is in his Son," and Paul said in Colossians 3:3, "Ye are dead (to sin) and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is your life, shall appear, then (not at death) shall ye also appear with him in glory."

It is a serious matter to fail to believe God, and it is a serious matter to preach a differ- (Please turn to page 10)

You Can't Take It With You

---

By Barbara Fish

---

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out" (1 Timothy 6:7).

YEARS ago, when as babes we arrived in this world, what did we bring with us? Nothing! We didn't even bring thoughts. True, we had the ability to learn, but we knew absolutely nothing. Our mothers cared for us tenderly for at least the first two years. Gradually, we began to be independent, wanting to help ourselves more each day, without Mother's loving hand to guide us. Now, whether a man or a woman, we know that, unless the dear Saviour comes before that appointed time, we must die. What will become of our treasures? In the first place, we must ask ourselves, Where are our treasures? Jesus said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal" (Matt. 6:19, 20).

There is no treasure on earth which, when it is once given a person, cannot be taken away. Of course, one may say, My knowledge can never be taken from me. But some day one of us may be in an accident, and even his knowledge be suddenly withdrawn. If one is saving money, a thief may steal it. It is very improbable that he will steal it while you are watching, but when you think it is safely invested. Today you may have your money, tomorrow you know not where it may be, for during the night a clever schemer may take every penny. How sad to lose one's money, when those few dollars could have helped the sick man next door who had been out of work for almost a year! You helped him the first month, perhaps, then completely forgot him in your selfish desire to save a dollar. Now your money is gone, you are no longer given the chance to help Mr. Jones—for God knew you did not know how to use the money He gave you.

Let us lay up for ourselves "treasures in heaven." Our deeds are recorded in the Lamb's Book of Life, and we must account for each deed. There only, are our precious treasures valuable. There are they safe. If we are found faithful when Christ returns, our treasures will become a real pleasure to us.

If we have saved money for years, and no one has taken our possessions from us, what good will they do us? Soon we shall die. We are not like the Indian who was buried with all his possessions—even his horse and his dog—for we know we shall have no use for any possessions after death. Said David: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish" (Psalm 146:4). The few treasures which we have in our possession when we die will be given to our family and friends. It really does no good to save thousands of dollars during our lives, for when we die someone will quarrel about who is to receive the abundant wealth.

How many of us tithe? Every cent we have, God is lending to us while we need it. It is only right that we should set aside one tenth of all our earnings to keep God's business established. We know that all is God's business, but it is the church that we must help. Tithes are used to keep the church in order, to help organize other churches, to care for the aged of our flock, to help the poor, and for many other important things. Besides our tithes, we are to give willingly of all we have left. Anyone who tithes will tell you that when he tithes his blessings are richer.

Solomon said of man: "As he came forth of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came, and shall take nothing of his labour, which he may carry away in his hand" (Eccl. 5:15). "We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out" (1 Tim. 6:7). Help whoever needs your help whenever you can. You cannot take "it" with you, so why not enjoy the possessions with which God has blessed you by seeing others happy?

The Book of Revelation Revealed

Article Four The Throne Scene

By J. W. McLain

THE throne of judgment is set for the occasion. "I beheld till the thrones were cast down (placed)" (Dan. 7:9). "Behold, a throne was set in heaven" (Rev. 4:2).

The throne scene sets the motif for the whole Book. This view shows God's part in the fast-moving activity at the end of the age. Each scene in heaven is shown first to give a behind-the-scenes view as to the divine purpose in the things taking place in the earth.

The description of God is symbolism for the purpose of revealing hidden truths from the casual reader.

How we wish we might have had the invitation that was given to John to "Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter" (Rev. 4:1). If anyone ever had a grandstand seat, it was John. He saw a preview of all the events of the time of the end. He has given us a record in symbolism of all that he saw as he was caught forward in vision to the Lord's Day.

Symbolism

Practically all the markings indicate that we are viewing the Israelites' God, who keeps a covenant with them. God's likeness to a jasper and a sardine stone is borrowed from the stones in the breastplate of righteousness which the high priest of Israel wore. The stones stood for the tribes of Israel. These same stones are incorporated into the description of the New Jerusalem.

The rainbow appears in this judgment scene to remind the people that God will not again destroy every living thing from off the face of the earth. (Gen. 9.)

The throne scene is both a political and spiritual consideration. The twenty-four elders stand for the elect of Israel, their prayers and supplications before God. The twenty-four elders being borrowed from the Temple service, represent the spiritual element of the scene. The elect remnant of Israel which is sealed unto salvation is represented before the throne both by the elders and by the beasts. The beasts represent the political rule of God over His people Israel. The heads of the four beasts are the same as the standards of the four encampments of Israel. On the north, Dan's standard was the eagle. On the east, Judah's standard was the lion. On the south, Reuben's standard was the man. On the west, Ephraim's standard was the ox.

While this is a scene of salvation to the elect remnants, it also is a scene of judgment for those rebellious of Israel who would not hear the call of the Lord to them. Study the Manchild, and the Tribulation Saints from the previous lesson as the elect groups herein represented. Study the harlot of Ezekiel 16 as representing those appointed to judgment. (Read Isa. 65:8-16.)

The seven spirits before the throne suggest the completeness of God's power by His Spirit in the fulfillment of these things.

The fire, thunder, lightnings, and so forth are marks of judgment.

The Gentile beast rises from the sea of humanity. God's elect stand upon the crystal sea before His throne.

There are four Gentile beasts. There are four beasts of God's government around the throne.

The book in His right hand contains the revelation of the events in the time of the end as Christ has revealed them for us in the vision to John—the Book of Revelation. The breaking of the seals is both for enlightenment and to begin the action of that time.

The Beast of Daniel

God revealed to Daniel, in vision, the kingdoms of men as beasts. (Dan. 7.) These four beasts represent the "times of the Gentiles," which began with the overthrow of God's Kingdom, Israel, into the hands of Gentiles. The times of the Gentiles will continue until the Kingdom is given again to the saints of the most high.

Daniel shows the panorama of beasts as each is succeeded by the next until the fourth and final beast is overthrown at the judgment throne scene, when God restores Israel to its former place as the Kingdom of God.

The fourth beast intrigues us even as it did Daniel. We, too, would know the truth of the fourth beast, for it represents the political system in power at the close of the age prior to the return of "one like unto the son of man." The tremendous developments of the last few months cause every Bible student to search out and to try to determine whether or not we are viewing the rise of the beast in Europe. We must study to recognize it when it appears on the scene.

A study of Daniel 7 gives us many characteristics of the beast:

- (1) It is a destroyer and a devourer (v. 7).
 (2) It is a confederacy of ten kings (vv. 7, 20, 24).
 (3) It is dreadful, terrible, strong (v. 7).
 (4) It makes war with saints of Israel (v. 21).
 (5) It stamps the residue (remnant) (v. 19).

Danger Ahead

By Francis Burnett

---

IT IS not unusual to hear someone speak concerning the end of time or the last days. Men who do not profess Christianity can sense a certain uneasiness. They can see that conditions in the world are getting no better. That is not all, for men are beginning to realize that it is beyond their power to make the world "safe for democracy."

In the Scriptures one can read many verses about the "last days." Some of them are pleasant to read, and some not so pleasant are undoubtedly being fulfilled at the present time. We read in 2 Timothy 3:1: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." We know that peril means danger, but a study of the Word shows something more. It can mean danger or unhappy consequences caused by doing something which is prohibited. Therefore, when we do not heed the Word of God, or do something which He prohibits, we are in danger (peril), and will suffer for it. We read in 2 Timothy 3:2-7, the reasons for unhappiness and peril in the last days:

"Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away. For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts, ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth."

The preceding scripture is somewhat long to be quoted at one time, but it expresses a complete thought, and all is needed. The subject of the sentence is "men." Perhaps this is one place that the women can say they are left out. "Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud." Do we have such men today? What about Adolf Hitler! It is our understanding that anyone who does not salute Hitler is put to death. The only reason for this is that he loves himself. Surely, he is covetous. Why does he use men, forfeiting their lives, if it is not to gain something that he wants? We do not mean to pin the blame only on men such as Hitler, for we read that men will be "disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy," which description applies to many. It seems that many ladies and gentlemen, supposedly, have lost respect for their parents. We hear such expressions as "the old lady" and "the old man," or calling them (our parents) by their first names. Of course, some may say that this is the modern trend, but that is no justification, for trends are often away from God. Solomon said: "Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set" (Prov. 22:28).

Men shall be "trucebreakers, false accusers . . . despisers of those that are good." They shall have a "form of godliness," but deny the "power thereof." It has come to the place today that people will not believe one another. Everything must be written out on paper and witnessed. Many honest Christians are ridiculed.

Men shall be "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." We can see that this is true. Most any kind of entertainment draws a larger crowd than the preaching service. Sunday, which is the day set aside for men to come together to worship God, seems to be the busiest day for something else. People do not have time to go to church; they must wash the car, catch up on sleep, or visit with some friends. Many are the excuses of people who want to deny the power of God.

Men shall be "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth." It seems that all through the ages people who are well educated are the ones who will not accept the truth. Men who are "ever learning" are being taught how to take better care of themselves.

We read in 1 Timothy 4:1: "In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils." We see many people joining with bands or groups which have something besides the Kingdom of God and its fulfillment as their doctrine. In 2 Thessalonians 2:3, we read: "That day shall not come, except there come a falling away first." The day to which reference is made in the foregoing text is "the day" of the second coming of our Lord. It seems that these prophesied conditions will come to pass before our Lord returns. "Look up, and lift up your heads: for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28). "Now is our salvation nearer than when we believed" (Rom. 13:11).

"The Way of Peace Have They Not Known"

By E. O. Stewart

"Their feet are swift to shed blood: destruction and misery are in their ways: and the way of peace have they not known" (Romans 3:15-17).

PAUL quoted the above text from Isaiah 59, and referred directly to the nation of Israel, to whom the oracles of God had been committed. A little observation of world conditions today, however, should convince any thinking person that a knowledge of the way toward permanent peace is as foreign to the Gentile nations as it was to Israel.

No doubt, it was a pathetic scene as Jesus wept over the city of Jerusalem because of the blindness of the Jewish hearts to the peace that should have been theirs, had they only listened to the voice of the prophets. "When he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes" (Luke 19:41, 42). Because of their blindness, and the crucifying of their King; in which they cried, "His blood be upon us and upon our children," Jesus declared: "They shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken" (Luke 21:24-26).

Today, the nations are arming themselves to the teeth, the object of which is to establish peace. The Axis Powers want peace, but what kind of peace do they desire? They desire a peace that would reduce their subjects to nothing but slavery. They are described in Habakkuk 1:6-10, thus: "Lo, I raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shall march through the breadth of the land, to possess the dwellingplaces that are not their's. They are terrible and dreadful: their judgment and their dignity shall proceed of themselves. Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, and are more fierce than the evening wolves: and their horsemen shall spread themselves, and their horsemen shall come from far; they shall fly as the eagle that hasteth to eat. They shall come all for violence: their faces shall sup up as the east wind, and they shall gather the captivity as the sand. And they shall scoff at the kings, and the princes shall be a scorn unto them: they shall deride every strong hold; for they shall heap dust, and take it."

The ancient Chaldeans could not wholly have fulfilled this prediction, except in their attitude toward other people. Their way of transportation was not swifter than the leopard, neither did they fly as the eagle. There is no prediction that more fittingly describes the action of Hitler's army, and his attitude toward kings and princes, than does this prophecy from Habakkuk. He scoffs at the kings, and his armies march through the land to possess the dwelling places that are not theirs. They take captives as the sand. They sup up as the east wind. Their judgment and dignity proceed of themselves.

Democracy must win in the present struggle, for in no other way can the way be opened up for the Antichrist to appear. To establish a democratic form of government among the nations is the only way for the Jews ever to re-establish their ancient form of worship in the land of Palestine. They could not do so, should Hitler become the ruler over the Holy Land, for he would not grant them the right to worship God as they please, as would be given them under a democratic form of government.

As the Antichrist is to arise out of the Jewish nation, according to the Scriptures, and as a democratic form of government is the only kind of government that guarantees religious freedom of worship, it is therefore an inevitable conclusion that Democracy must win in the present struggle in order to grant the Jews the right to establish their ancient form of worship in Jerusalem, in order to pave the way for the coming of Antichrist. Thus, the present travail of Democracy shall give birth to a nation, out of which shall come the Antichrist, the "man of sin."

About three and one half years before the "man of sin" seats himself in the Temple (which shall be built by the Jews on Mount Zion), the church, the ones who constitute the body of Christ, will be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. (1 Thess. 4:16.) This will be the beginning of the day of the Lord, which will come upon the world as a thief in the night. (2 Thess. 5:2.) This will come at a time when the nations are saying, "Peace and safety." (2 Thess. 5:3.) This cry of peace and safety will come when Democracy shall have won the present struggle over the dictators. Democracy, with its rights of religious freedom, is the white horse rider, which will establish peace under the opening of the first seal. (Rev. 6:1, 2.) As white stands for purity, and whereas Democracy has so many good qualities, we may safely say that Democracy with its religious tolerance is the white horse rider. But the peace established will be of short duration: for under the opening of the second seal, the red horse rider takes peace from the earth, which he could not do if peace is not established under the opening of the first seal.

The church, which are the true Christians, shall be caught up about the time of the "Peace Declaration," leaving Democracy with its organized religions to later become subjects of the Antichrist, to whom they have given power through their religious freedom movement to usurp the authority over all kindreds, tongues, nations, and people. After the Antichrist has seated himself in the Temple, he will pass a decree that none can buy or sell without the mark of the beast, or the number of his name. After this he shall exalt himself above every god, and demand that all the world worship him. Many of the Jews who have been worshiping in the Temple will refuse to worship him, and are to be beheaded. This will come under the fifth seal, as described in Revelation 6:9 and 13:15. This will introduce the time of trouble described by Daniel, such as never was since there was a nation, when Michael shall stand up to deliver Daniel's people, when many of them (Daniel's people) that sleep in the dust shall awake, some to aionian life. (Dan. 12:1-4.) These will be raised from the dead at the close of the time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, but the church, the body of Christ, shall be caught up prior to this, at a time when the nations shall say, "Peace and safety," which should prove to anyone that there are two parts to the first resurrection: one at the Rapture, and the other at the Revelation.

JESUS IS COMING—"WATCH"

equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." This seems to be a resurrection of a select class only—the righteous dead. Therefore, Jesus called it the "resurrection of the just" in Luke 14:14. Paul called it a "better resurrection" (Heb. 11:35). It is the resurrection of those who are Christ's at His coming. John, being inspired of God, made this statement in Revelation 20:6: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.

In John 5:28, 29, we read: "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." We can see that there is a difference in time, as well as character, in the order of resurrection: the first being that of the just and the second that of the unjust. This is in perfect harmony with Revelation 20:5, saying: "The rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished."

We who believe in Christ are commanded to watch for His coming. Jesus placed special emphasis upon the word "watch," saying: "Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come" (Matt. 24:42). "Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh" (25:13). "Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning: lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch" (Mark 13:35-37).

With all these warnings from God's Word, what reasonable excuse can we give if we fail to receive our reward?

THE BOOK OF REVELATION REVEALED

(6) It devours, treads down the whole earth (v. 23).

(7) It finally is controlled by a king who arises after the ten as a blasphemous, terroristic leader (vv. 8, 20, 21, 24, 25).

(8) Days are numbered from rise of final king (vv. 25, 26, 9-11, 13, 14, 18, 22, 26, 27).

The seventh chapter of Daniel gives the sequence of time and action to the Book of Revelation. In summary, it is:

(1) Rise of a confederate, Gentile, blasphemous anti-Semitic empire.

(2) The great tribulation of Israel and Palestine under the beast and the mark of the beast.

(3) God's throne of judgment set, bringing the return of Christ, and the destruction of the beast.

(4) Restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God—the New Jerusalem, the new heavens and earth.

The Beast of Revelation

In Revelation, the beast has an added mark that was not revealed to Daniel. In addition to the ten horns, the beast is shown as having seven heads rising one after the other, to show the dispensations of the beast. One of the heads is wounded to death and revived to become the wonder of the age and the eighth head. These heads could not represent the hills on which Rome is built, since they are not simultaneous, and there are eight in the final sum.

(Over)

The Gentiles are divided in their families by the seven sons of Japheth. (Gen. 10:2-5.) These heads may suggest the whole house of the Gentiles as making up the beast. These seven dispensational heads may be the sum of the former three beasts in a concentrated, amalgamated, composite of all the parts and characteristics of the Gentile nations.

The Dragon of Revelation 12

In Revelation, the beast is shown both as a political and a spiritual power.

This beast is the false spiritual phase of the beast of Revelation 13. It has the same markings and the same dispensation of time. It is plainly called the Devil, Satan, the Deceiver of the whole world.

The conflict, "war in heaven," of this chapter is the struggle of the true witnesses in Israel to overcome the opposition of their own families and the beast. The two elect remnants of Israel, the manchild, and the tribulation saints are shown overcoming the spiritual oppression of the beast. The manchild overcomes him first, being caught up to the throne of God. Then, the Devil turns his attention to the remnant who were affrighted and gave glory to God, that he might destroy the remaining remnant of elect Israel. These become the tribulation saints and receive positions of rulership with the manchild because they were faithful unto death in opposing the mark of the beast. (Study—the manchild in Rev. 12:5; 2:27; Isa. 65:8, 9; 66:7-9—the remnant in Rev. 11:13; 12:17; 20:4-6—family strife, Luke 21:16; Matt. 10:35, 36; Rev. 11:10.)

The Beast From the Sea of Revelation 13:1

Here we view the rise of the political beast with its confederate ten kings. The beast is wounded to death to be revived under the little horn of Daniel's prophecy for the final, diabolical dispensation. (Rev. 13:3.) From this point onward, the beast's days are numbered by forty-two months which is the same as "time, times, and an half," three and one half years, or one thousand two hundred sixty days, Jewish calendar reckoning. It is in this period of time that Israel will suffer so terribly at the hands of the ten-horned beast. (Rev. 13:7.)

The Beast From the Earth of Revelation 13:11

The text plainly tells us that this is a man, an individual (v. 18). The power to do miracles is the mark of a prophet. This man is the false prophet who rises from the land (Palestine). He is instrumental in leading his people to worship and to serve the beastly Gentile power. The beast is dragon empowered and this man speaks as a dragon. He is contemporary with the beast and is destroyed at the same time. (Rev. 19:20; 16:13-16.)

The Scarlet Colored Beast of Revelation 17:3

This is a composite of the spiritual and political beasts with which the harlot city Jerusalem makes a covenant for protection. This trusting in the beast results in the destruction of Jerusalem and Palestine, first in the great tribulation, then followed by the battle of Armageddon and the great day of the wrath of God. Study the texts concerning Jerusalem, the harlot city, her covenant, and her destruction. (See Isa. 1:1, 21; Ezek. 16:1-43; 23:1-49; Jer. 4:1-31; Isa. 28:14-22; 65:11, 12; Rev. 17; 18.)

The Rising Beast of the Hour

No one can deny that a beast is arising in Europe today, having many of the characteristics of the prophetic beast. It is anti-Semitic, a destroyer, blasphemous, and terrible.

The reapportioning of the map of Europe and the appointing of kings teaches us how this beast may evolve into just ten regencies with ten kings.

We watch for the making of a treaty with the Jews to send them out of Europe into Palestine.—Concluded.

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS

It was a Jew who brought the gospel to Rome; a Roman who took it to France; a Frenchman who took it to Scandinavia; a Scandinavian who took it to Scotland; a Scotsman who evangelized Ireland, and an Irishman in turn made the missionary conquest of Scotland. No people ever received the gospel except at the hands of an alien.—Selected by Lottie E. Young.

IS THE SOUL IMMORTAL?

ent gospel than He has laid down in His Word for us to preach. Paul says in Galatians 1:8, "Though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached, let him be accursed." Do you want to be accursed of God? No. Then believe what He has said.

What if we assist and uphold those that make God a liar by teaching the immortality of the soul and by preaching a different gospel than Paul preached? Let John answer. "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds" (2 John 9, 10).

"And Samson said, Let me (my soul, margin) die with the Philistines" (Judges 16:30).

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

upon the earth with perplexity. Men's hearts are indeed "failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Surely, we cannot doubt that the trees are budding.

Joel 3:12-14 reads: "Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision (threshing, margin)." Yes, when we look about us, the time is as Jesus said it would be—"as it was in the days of Noe." How was it then? "All flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth" (Gen. 6:12). If the people are not morally corrupt today, they are spiritually corrupt, and in many cases both. There are comparatively few who today believe and obey the gospel. Wickedness is great in the earth, and the coming of the Lord draws nearer. Are we ready? Have we put on the armor of God and grasped the sword of the Spirit? Are we fighting the good fight of faith as strangers and pilgrims on the earth and ambassadors for Christ?

God has said He "will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat" (Joel 3:2), and, "I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle" (Zech. 14:2). The heathen (Gentiles) shall rage and tumultuously assemble, thinking to overcome Christ. Yet, "he that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision" (Psalm 2:4). God's King shall be set on Mount Zion, and He shall destroy those armies.

"Come near, ye nations, to hear; and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is therein; the world, and all things that come forth of it. For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies: he hath utterly destroyed them, he hath delivered them to the slaughter. Their slain also shall be cast out, and their stink shall come up out of their carcasses, and the mountains shall be melted with their blood. . . . For it is the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompences for the controversy of Zion. (Isa. 34:1-3, 8). What a destruction that will be! How carefully we should prepare, that we may be accounted worthy to escape these punishments. Jesus is coming. Suffer with Him now, that a part may be had with Him when He reigns. Who today is on the Lord's side?

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

An American Translation of both the Bible and the Apocrypha has been mentioned at least twice in this column since its experimental birth in September, 1940.

Now, the University of Chicago Press offers a new edition of the translation—an edition which, for the first time, presents both the Bible and the Apocrypha in a single binding and in modern English. The price is $3.00—fifty cents less than the trade price available on the standard "book format" edition of An American Translation of the Bible alone.

My own enthusiasm for the Goodspeed-Smith version of the Bible and the Apocrypha already is well known to the readers of "Building Your Library"; so it seems unnecessary to say a great deal here about the authenticity, readability, and comprehensibility of the present combined edition.

About all that will be said, therefore, will be a mention of the comment of one who, a few years ago, saw for the first time the original edition of the Bible as translated by Goodspeed and Smith. "It reads just like a story," gasped the individual after reading the first chapter of Genesis, and bought a copy of the book forthwith.

An American Translation does read "just like a story." Biblical tales of heroism, creation, wild adventure, personal feuds, war, miracles, are made to live as no Elizabethan language—in this age—ever could make them live. If you like to read the Bible for sheer enjoyment as well as for technical study, by all means add An American Translation of the Bible and Apocrypha to your library at once!

Undoubtedly, The Husband of Mary (J. B. Lippincott; $1.00) is one of the most delightful stories about the birth of Jesus ever to appear in English. It hits at the Christmas story from the viewpoint of Joseph and his experiences rather than from the standardized viewpoint of the shepherds, the three wise men, or Mary. The situations are beautifully handled; the plot is gripping; and a reverential attitude seldom duplicated permeates the entire story. Good for readers from 13 to 113.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 3:11).

Paul's Letter to Corinth

Paul had started the church work at Corinth. He preached in many cities and countries. When he heard their church was having trouble, he could not visit them just then, so he did the next best thing: he wrote a letter to them.

Paul told these grown men and women that he could not speak to them as spiritual, for they were worldly or carnal. Yes, he said they were only babes in Christ. The reason Paul said they were not spiritual, as a church should be, was because there were envying, strife, and divisions among them. Did Paul think that was right? No! He thought it very bad indeed. They must have had quite a bit of such things in their group, for in his second letter to them he said: "I fear, . . . lest there be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, tumults" (2 Cor. 12:20). Paul continued with the thought that he feared he would come and find them not sorry, or repentant, for the sins they had done. Thus, we see while it is indeed sad to sin, it is worse if that sin is not repented of and forgiven by our God.

It is true that our churches today are full of babes in Christ. We find many churches in which envying, strife, and divisions occur.

To envy another is to feel ill will toward that person or to wish we had what another has. Positions and possessions often cause envying. The Bible teaches us to follow after certain worth-while possessions, such as "godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness" (1 Tim. 6:11).

Divisions are often caused by backbitings. The truth, if told of any of us, can sometimes harm us, especially if it is about a mistake we have made.

If your teacher makes a mistake and you can help her, the Christian thing to do is to go to her and tell her about it. If you cannot help her, the other Christian thing you can do is to keep still about it and not tell everybody about it. Such mistakes, small sometimes though they may be, can by "whisperings" and "swellings" and "tumults"—that is, more and more people talking more and more about them—can indeed cause divisions among us. So, you will be careful not to help your church or Sunday school become divided, won't you? After all, teachers and preachers are just people. We are all "labourers together with God" (1 Cor. 3:8).

The Only Foundation

Christ is our only foundation. We, "as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood" (1 Peter 2:5). Christ is called the "chief corner stone" (1 Peter 2:6). Gold, silver, and precious stones will not burn as will hay, straw, or stubble. We, as lively stones, have the privilege of showing forth "the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light" (1 Peter 2:9). When we repent, believe, and are baptized we have put the darkness of sin from us and are beginning to walk in His "marvellous light."

May we build good works upon the sure foundation—Christ.

Be Not Many Masters

Were you ever playing a game where a leader was needed? Did two or three try to lead all at once? Such games aren't much fun and aren't played for very long.

In our church work, much harm can be caused by not following the advice of James 3:1: "My brethren, be not many masters, knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation." (Read the rest of the chapter.) The tongue is the cause of some divisions. Remember our ECE motto:

"I'll always speak the truth,
I'll watch each word I say,
I'll try to do the things I should
To please God every day."

Your Chance

"What 'works' should Christians do?" This question is asked many times in countless Berean meetings and in other classes. Invariably the reply is, "Teach the gospel to those about us." We are in complete accord with the answer. In fact, we believe that everyone of you reading this page should follow the suggestion contained in the reply, and this is what we would ask you to do. Write a theme, or treatise, henceforth called "tract," stating in plain United States English why you believe in the Bible doctrines, and why others should believe in a religion such as that in which you place your faith.

Why are we making this request? We are attempting to find out if each of you believes he should spread the gospel. We want to know if you will respond to an earnest plea for clarification of the policy of the Christian today. Should he be a person who hears the Word, accepts it, and then goes about his own business, or does he have an obligation to his fellow men to do everything in his power to explain to them in terms they can understand just what God's plan of salvation is for men? Your response to this request will clear up this issue.

Is there a definite need for this amount of work? We believe there is. It would not be possible to print on the Berean page all the replies we should receive, but it may be possible to print much of the material in tract form. Here is where the definite need arises. We have many fine tracts, but most of these, as is perfectly proper, are written by individuals who have spent many long years in Bible study, their tracts delving into the deeper aspects of Christianity. We need more of these tracts, but we also need material of a different nature. What we would like to have is a tract explaining the entire broad plan of Christianity in such a way that one who has never read the Bible can at least understand what we are trying to achieve and our reasons for our efforts.

Assume that you are talking to an individual who has asked you, with due respect for your belief, "Why do you attend church services so regularly?" then, "Why do you believe in Christianity?" It will be necessary for you to anticipate many of his questions, and you must be careful not to offend him. Can you give convincing arguments for your personal stand? If you can, we know people who will listen to them. If you cannot, you have pronounced a sentence upon yourself. You have no alternative than to study—starting now.

Coming

The coming month will herald the opening of another Conference at Oregon, Illinois. Conferences should be attended by everyone who is associated with or a member of any of our churches. You should plan now to attend this year. National defense may have an effect on reducing the number of younger people of our group in attendance, but we urge all of you who can possibly do so to definitely plan to attend.

Many state organizations hold regular Quarterly Conferences, and great benefit is derived from these meetings by all who attend. The General Conference is a combination of all these smaller conferences rolled into one.

To you Bereans especially, we would suggest that if your time must of necessity be limited, you plan to attend Conference on Monday of the second week of the meetings, for on this day the Bereans have the main auditorium of the church all to themselves. It is here this year that many important decisions are going to have to be made, some of which should have been made long ago. There are a number of ideas circulating in the daydreams of the Berean officers which will first see the light of day on Berean Day. It is necessary that as many representatives as possible be present at this all-important meeting, that the coming Berean Board may determine what a majority of the Bereans over the country want and need. If you are unable to attend, inform a member of your society who will attend as to what you would like to have suggested at the business meeting. If your national organization is mismanaged during the coming year, it will be your own responsibility. Berean members elect their own officers, amend their own constitution, and pass their own resolutions. Avail yourself of this opportunity while it is still with you.

Plan now. The Bereans are glad to learn that many students have enrolled in the Summer Bible Training School, but we should not quit working. Plan now to attend the regular School this fall.

DELTA, OHIO

June 8 concluded an enjoyable week of spiritual feasting and fellowship with Elder S. J. Lindsay. We were sorry to have it come to an end. Bro. Lindsay left, leaving behind in our hearts and minds some very wonderful truths.

Baptismal services were held Saturday and Sunday afternoons, June 7, 8, when Bro. Lindsay assisted Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dinius, Mrs. Olive Deck, and Mrs. Ira Krauss in taking the step of putting on Christ. We shall all pray for these new members of our body, and hope that they shall find the peace and contentment that comes to those who watch and pray for Christ's second coming when this war-torn world shall be made a Paradise.

We were very happy to have with us Saturday night and Sunday, Bro. and Sr. James A. Patriek of Ashland, Ohio; Bro. H. S. Stadden of Chagrin Falls, Ohio; Sr. S. A. Sanford of Shaker Heights, Ohio; and Bro. W. S. Tomlinson and daughter Ruth also from Chagrin Falls. We enjoyed having these folks with us, and hope that they will meet with us again.

Mrs. Glen Dunbar.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

David Paisley, eight-year-old son of Bro. James Paisley and wife, and grandson of Bro. and Sr. Fred Paisley of the Ripley church, underwent an operation in the Phelps' Hospital at Macomb, Ill., June 16, for a bone cyst near the hip joint. He is recovering as well as can be expected. Many will no doubt remember that he had a similar operation about eighteen months ago. A card or word of cheer would help this brave little fellow to pass the long days ahead of him. He will probably be at the hospital another week, and will be unable to walk for some time except with the aid of crutches. His home address will be Mt. Sterling, Ill., Rt. 5.

Bro. and Sr. John Long's home was saddened recently by the death of their son Earl at thirty-nine years of age. His death was caused by lockjaw developing from an injured foot. He leaves a wife and two children—Evelyn, age thirteen, and Donald, six, besides his parents, one brother, and five sisters. Our sympathy is extended to this family.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Secy.

MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS

Those planning to attend the Illinois and General Conferences who wish rooms, please write to Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, Oregon, Ill., and make your reservations. Tell Sr. Ordnung when you will want your rooms, and how many will occupy each room. The earlier you make your reservations, the easier it will be for Sr. Ordnung to make suitable arrangements for you. The prices of rooms will probably be comparable to last year, perhaps a little higher. Please make your reservations early, as rooms are rather scarce.

L. T. Hanson, Illinois Conference President.

THE SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL

The Summer Bible Training School opened Tuesday morning, June 17. We have an enrollment of twenty-four students, and four more are coming. Twenty-eight students will comprise our largest Summer School to date.

We are planning to attend the Passion Play at Zion, Ill., next Thursday, June 26.

The students staying at the dormitory have organized a council to enforce rules. So far, we haven't had to use any penalties.

The love bug has begun to crawl around, but it wasn't the (Mr.) Roach that bit the (Mr.) Wolfe. Zelda Cooper, Reporter.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

We were pleased to have Mrs. Carroll Kaunamacher and children from Gary, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Claypool from Findlay, Ohio, present at Sunday school June 8.

For the past nine months the Sunday school has been trying out a new plan to increase the Sunday school enrollment. At the end of each quarter, pins are given to anyone who has had perfect attendance. The first of July the awards will be given again, and there are several who will receive six- and nine-month pins. We believe that if one will try and make an effort to go three months he will not want to miss, unless for sickness, and will not go for the award, but for the knowledge he receives.

The choir, under the direction of Bro. Sylvan Richey, is progressing nicely. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Anna Cline.

Ruth Goekler, Secy.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

We are thankful for the many students this year enrolled in the Summer Bible Training School. We plan soon to present a picture of the group.

The Sunday School Exhibit Committee requests that exhibit material be sent to Mrs. Ruby M. Raitton, 1110 Rockton Ave., Rockford, Ill., by July 10. This will allow time for the material to be arranged by the time General Conference begins July 29.

Bros. Walter Wiggins and W. F. Hoskins, Eden Valley, Minn., were in Oregon, Ill., a few days while Summer School was starting, Bro. Wiggins being the driver who brought our matron, Sr. Wiggins, and two students: Russell Roach and Walter Coulter.

"May the Lord bless you and all who are connected with the Bible Training School. We hope the Summer School will be a wonderful success."—Mr. and Mrs. H. Scott Smith, London, Ark.

"Earl Clark returned to Gladbrook, Iowa, from Leavenworth, Kan., June 7, and is at work for the Gethmann Construction Company."—J. W. Williams, Gladbrook, Iowa.

"We get a great deal of help and encouragement from The Restitution Herald, and pass our copies to friends."—Mrs. Charles E. Page, Fonthill, Ont.

Bro. Robert Hardesty, a Bible Training School student, recently preached at Fredericktown, Mo., and later, June 22, addressed the Pennellwood church, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Have you ordered your new Truth Seekers' Quarterlies for the third quarter? Shipments have been made to Sunday schools having standing orders.

Elder S. J. Lindsay will preach for the Oregon, Ill., brethren Sunday morning, June 29, and Bro. Harry Sheets will preach the following Sunday morning, July 6.

Bro. Merle E. Bell of Tucson, Ariz., is in Colonial Hospital, Rochester, Minn., where he is convalescing from an operation.

Mother E. H. Magaw, who was recently a patient in Miller Hospital, is regaining her strength at the home of Dorothy Magaw, 315 Dayton, Saint Paul, Minn.

"Now is a good time to get tract minded, as no doubt many of us will soon be traveling to Conference, or taking vacation trips. On our trip to California last winter we usually left a tract and other literature with the gas station attendants, as well as the places where we stayed for the night. One never knows what good might result from this type of sowing seeds of gospel truth."—Howard H. Hawkins, East Cleveland, Ohio.

"Perhaps I will be able to see all of you for a few days during General Conference."—Walter Croxton, Macomb, Ill.

Bro. George Renner, Wheatland, Calif., visited friends in Oregon, Ill., June 21, 22. He was renewing acquaintances after forty years. We hope he does not wait that long to come again.

BRUSH CREEK CHURCH OF GOD

The Annual June Meeting of the Brush Creek Church in Ohio began two days early this year with a sermon Saturday night, June 7, and three sermons on Sunday. Bro. S. E. Magaw was the speaker until Wednesday night and Bro. Grover Gordon continued from Thursday through the following Sunday. All of the messages were very interesting and timely.

The average attendance of the afternoon classes was fifty-six, an increase of three over last year.

We are glad to report the names and addresses of the following young people who were baptized Sunday, June 15: Richard Smith, Tipp City; Annabel Moore, Tipp City; Peggie Pearson, Joy Ann Pearson, Troy, Rt. 3; Floyd Kessler, Jr., West Milton; Virgie Smith, Dayton, Rt. 1—all in Ohio.

All of the above have been attending Sunday school since early childhood. Most of the members of the church received the major part of their Christian instruction in Sunday school. Be sure to be at General Conference to see the Sunday school exhibit and take part in furthering our Sunday school work.

Harvey Krogh, Jr., Pastor.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The Eighty-fourth Annual Michigan State Conference convened at the Southlawn Church, Grand Rapids, June 9-15, 1941.

We were very happy and greatly blessed in having Elder S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Ariz., as our guest speaker.

The opening address was given by Elder F. E. Siple, pastor of the host church, and the closing address was given by Elder J. W. McLain, pastor of the Pennellwood Church.

Sunday was a full day, with exceptionally good attendance. Brethren were present from Coats Grove, Battle Creek, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo, and Hudsonville. We were sorry that it was impossible for any of the Blanchard folks to attend.

Ellsworth Routson and bride attended the Wednesday evening service. They were enroute to Blanchard, where Ellsworth will act as supply pastor for the summer.

Six Bible classes held two sessions each afternoon except Saturday, with an average attendance of seventy-four. Thirty-one of this number were present at every session.

Officers elected for the following year are: president, Arlie Townsend; first vice president, Leslie Niles; second vice president, James W. McLain; secretary, Bee Slocum; and treasurer, Jeanne Lyon.

The next activity planned by the Conference will be an afternoon and evening meeting with a basket supper at Dutton, Sunday, July 20. Mark this date in future on your calendar, then make it history in your book of remembrances. Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secy.

AUSTIN, TEXAS

By request, the writer is submitting the following report regarding the work in Austin:

The leaders of the congregation have for several years worked faithfully in the Master's service to hold the members in unity. The group can be commended for keeping on regularly with its meetings and Bible classes, though there was no regular minister. By placing responsibility on various members, they are developing a working group that can accomplish many good things for the Lord.

In these trying days it is good for us to comfort one another with the words of Christ until He comes again, for if we suffer with Him, so shall we also reign together. Only by brotherly kindness can we fulfill these duties. So, may the prayers of those in the Faith be for the success of this congregation.

Veruis D. Wolfe.

EAST SIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Oregon, Illinois

For the benefit of the brethren who have so graciously written to me inquiring about the Sunday school the writer conducted during the period of 1937 and 1938, east of the river in Oregon, we have this report to make. Sunday, June 15, 1941, the writer met with her little friends and reorganized our Sunday school.

No other place available, we met in the open, the blue sky forming a canopy over our heads; the beautiful green grass on the side of the road providing the soft carpet upon which we sat. There were eight present, but we expect the number to far exceed that next Sunday.

I am quite sure that God and His Son Jesus Christ smiled down upon these dear little bare-footed children, as they bowed their heads and said a prayer, and then looked up toward the heavens as they sang the song, "Jesus Loves the Little Children." We read in turn from our Bibles, and then united in prayer.

As we started the car and drove away, we thought of the words of Jesus, "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me." Mae Nedrow.

DONALD RAY LUCKOW

Donald Ray Luckow's stay at Rockford, Ill., ended in sad tragedy. While on Rock River in a motorboat alone on the evening of June 12, his boat upset and he was drowned. The body was found next forenoon and taken to Gladbrook, Iowa, where the funeral was held Sunday afternoon.

Donald was the younger of two sons born at Gladbrook to Warren and Edna Allard-Luckow, May 16, 1922. In his earliest years, the family lived at Marshalltown for four years, then returned to Gladbrook, where his home had been from that time forward. He was educated in the Gladbrook schools and graduated with honor in 1939. Last September, he went to Rockford, Ill., and worked in the Roper factory, where he was employed at the time of his death.

Don was a Christian boy, having been baptized at the yearly conference of the Church of God at Waterloo, Iowa, in August, 1939. He was an upright and honorable boy, loved by all his acquaintances. He always met everybody with a smile and cheerful words.

He is survived by his parents, by one brother, Paul, and by one sister, Betty Jane Wiese, also by his paternal grandparents and many other near relatives at Gladbrook, who, with his many friends will mourn his loss and cherish his memory. J. W. Williams.

On Friday, June 13, at 4:00 p.m., a short service was held for Donald Luckow at the Burpee-Wood Funeral Home, Rockford, Ill. Though our acquaintance with Don was short, it will always be remembered. His association with us in the Rockford church was one of happiness and co-operation.

Francis E. Burnett, Student Pastor.

"THIS I KNOW"

"I know not by what methods rare,
But this I know, God answers prayer.
I know that He has given His Word,
Which tells me prayer is always heard.
And will be answered soon or late;
And so I pray and calmly wait.
I know not if the blessing sought,
Will come in just the way I thought,
But leave my prayers with Him alone,
Whose will is wiser than my own.
Assured that He will grant my quest,
Or send some answer far more blest."

—Selected by Mrs. Edward H. Barck.

EAKLE - CARPENTER

The wedding of Miss Illene Eakle, Oregon, Ill., and Mr. Wayne Carpenter, Rochelle, Ill., was quietly solemnized in the Church of God, Oregon, Ill., at 7:00 a.m., June 21. Only immediate relatives and friends were present. Illene is a faithful member of the Oregon Sunday school. Mr. Carpenter is employed in Rochelle as a photo engraver.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a trip to Lake Ripley, Wis., where they will be for about one week, after which they will return to make their home in Oregon, Ill.

We pray for them a long and happy life together. Sydney E. Magaw.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him. (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. Order a good supply of tracts; then send them to your friends. It costs nothing to slip a tract into a letter, and it may "save a soul from death."

The following tracts and books, most of them written by men prominent at some time in the Church of God, are for sale by the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Send a self-addressed envelope or postage for tracts not priced. How many can you use?

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 30

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 1, 1941

NUMBER 39

THE SOUTHLAWN PARK CHURCH OF GOD
Grand Rapids, Michigan

The Southlawn Park Church of God, corner of Abbie and Jefferson Streets, Grand Rapids, Michigan, was built in the summer of 1926. Sunday, June 27, pledges of $1,050 were received; Monday, June 28, the ground was staked for the building; Wednesday, excavation was started; Friday, the concrete was poured; and on Monday, July 5, over half the blocks were laid. The work was done during the pastorate of Elder James A. Patrick and under the general supervision of Brother Arlie Townsend. Dedication services were conducted October 24, 1926, by Elders James A. Patrick and F. L. Austin. There was that day a Sunday school attendance of one hundred five, and within a year the attendance reached one hundred sixty-nine.

The zeal of the first year of this church has not died. Improvements upon the building have been made from time to time, and a residence near by (included in the picture above) has been purchased to accommodate the large Sunday school. Following Brother Patrick's pastorate, Elders C. E. Randall, F. E. Siple, and G. E. Marsh served as pastors, and Brother Siple, called a second time as pastor, is now leading the congregation. Many new members were baptized into the fold during the past year. May the Lord continue His blessing, and may the members of this church be found faithfully "occupying" when Jesus comes. (Luke 19:13.)

The Orpha Sanford Relief Memorial

It was our good fortune, twenty years ago, to become acquainted with Sister Orpha Sanford, then of Aurora, Illinois. For several years preceding our acquaintance, she had been engaged in relief work in the city of Aurora. Following the National Berean Conference at Oregon, Illinois, August 12, 1921, she was appointed chairman of the National Berean Relief Committee. When visiting at various times in Sister Sanford's home, we frequently heard her tell about the good work she was doing. One year at Christmas time we became especially interested, as she showed us little stacks of clothing almost covering the floor of one room—these stacks of clothing soon to be mailed to worthy poor people of the Church of God.

We well recall, too, listening to an unusually interesting report Sister Sanford gave at the General Conference, Oregon, Illinois, in 1923. Following her report, Brother Merle Patrick, who was seated beside us, quietly said: "If I had a million dollars, I'd put it in the relief work."

Choosing to do her work in strict secrecy, Sister Sanford resigned her office with the National Berean Society, August 11, 1933. From that date forward, she faithfully continued to help the poor and unfortunate of the Church of God, doing this work independent of any church organization. No public reports were made; few, if any, public appeals for financial assistance were made. It was natural, therefore, that many of our brethren more or less forgot this noble woman and her work of love.

Not often, but from time to time Sister Sanford wrote us for information about various ones in the Faith who might, or might not, need and merit help. We were always sympathetic to her work that she continued until the time of her death, February 26, 1941. It is now with a full heart that we announce to brethren of the Church of God that shortly before her death she appointed us to "carry on"—telling her daughter: "After my death, send all the relief money to Sydney; he will know what to do with it." . . . There was a balance of several hundred dollars—eight hundred dollars, to be exact.

Accordingly, and having counseled with Sister Sanford's son and daughter, Brother Charles Anderson and Sister Edna Beck, we have thought it well to continue the relief work under the name of The Orpha Sanford Relief Memorial. Sisters Edna Beck, 4714 Highland Avenue, Downers Grove, Illinois, and Elizabeth Ordnung, Oregon, Illinois, will serve with us, forming a permanent board to continue the work of Sister Orpha Sanford. Sister Elizabeth Ordnung has been appointed secretary of The Orpha Sanford Relief Memorial, and she will personally continue the work after the manner in which Sister Sanford so faithfully served. Though brief reports will be made from time to time, probably at General Conferences, all communications, all donations, all requests for financial help, should be addressed to:

The Orpha Sanford Relief Memorial
 Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, Secretary,
 Oregon, Illinois.

Further, it should be here stated that the foregoing plans are in agreement with the Executive Board of the National Bible Institution which thought it well for this work to be given to an individual, rather than to be conducted as a part of our office work. So, with God's blessing and with the co-operation of God's people, we recommend to you The Orpha Sanford Relief Memorial for a work of love and charity among our brethren, and we most heartily recommend Sister Ordnung who now has charge of this relief work.

Proof of the Pudding

All the students of the Bible Training School who have completed two years of training are during these vacation months actively engaged in the ministry. Brother Ellsworth Routson is preaching at Blanchard, Michigan; Brother Alan McLain is at Dixon, Illinois; Brother Celine Randall is at Burr Oak, Indiana; and Brother Richard Smith is serving both the Blair and Omaha, Nebraska, churches. Further, though Brother Francis Burnett has completed only one term of study in the School, he, too, has steady employment, preaching for our brethren at Rockford, Illinois. Other students, though not steadily employed, are preaching as opportunities arise.

We appreciate the co-operation of the churches which have thus called our Bible Training School students into temporary service. May God bless and direct all the work.

Things to Come

By Ellsworth Routson

"Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places" (Matthew 24:7).

THE BIBLE tells in many places of things to come in the latter days. One can easily understand conditions today, if he will study and compare them with the Bible prophecies. When Christ answered the apostles' question concerning things to come and signs of His second coming, He left no doubt in their minds as to what to expect. If we study Matthew 24, we shall have the answer to the apostles' question.

If we consider Matthew 24:7, we shall find that many things are revealed which are to happen. Nations will rise against nations, kingdoms against kingdoms; there will be famines, pestilences, and earthquakes. All these are things to come. Let us see if any of these conditions can be seen in current events, for it seems we are in the latter days.

Let us first consider if the nations of the world are in strife. Do the people of one country deal peaceably with other people? No. The wants of greed have led to the striving of nations. Men take up arms against one another with whom they have no real quarrel. At one time men enjoyed the trade and friendship of one another, but today doubt and fear of each other have caused much of the warring spirit. It is caused by a ruthless leader who has gained supreme power of a nation.

Kingdom will rise against kingdom. Great Britain is battling with the man Hitler and his followers. Yes, today kingdom is against kingdom. Men are trying to dominate the world with the force of arms, but who will be the victor in the end? What can be gained? Sorrow and sighing are fruits of war. Consider, too, the blind, the lame, and the dead. Lands are marred where once there were peaceful farms and cities. Oh, what price we pay for war! Christians, however, know that a glorious Kingdom will be set up at the appearing and ruling of Jesus Christ our Lord.

"There shall be famines." In both the Old and the New Testaments we read of famines which are to come in the last days. It is said that countries across the waters are now suffering from lack of food. The land cannot produce when men are sowing seed of death instead of seed for life. There is a shortage, and famine may be expected. We of the United States know that our own land is not producing as it once did. Crops are failing.

Of what do pestilences consist? Let us mention a few:

sandstorms, grasshoppers, bugs, blight, floods, drought, and many others. In chapters 7 through 12 of Exodus we read of the Egyptians being brought to their knees by plagues, for God was supreme. God will again plague sinful men, and again men will be brought to their knees. What has happened in western states of our nation? What was once a wheat section has now become a desert. Germany's and England's farmlands are now battlefields. Grasshoppers have stripped trees and fields of corn and other crops of their fruitage. All these are pestilences which are mentioned in Matthew.

"Earthquakes in divers places" are evident today. Places that have never had earthquakes are now, at times, having tremors. We have personally witnessed them. We read in newspapers and magazines of many such signs, but we scarcely pay any heed to them.

What do these things mean to a Christian? Prophecy is being fulfilled before us, and many times we do not recognize it. It should cause us to study more earnestly and prepare ourselves for the soon return of Christ, as we know not the time or hour of His return. 1 Thessalonians 5:6-11 is a challenge to all to be ready for His return. Said Paul: "Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober. For they that sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night. But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation. For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him. Wherefore comfort yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do."

Thus, the present evils are not the only "things to come." In fact, wars, famines, earthquakes, and pestilences are signs that assure us, according to His own promise, that Christ will soon come. They are cries in the night that herald the coming day, even the Kingdom of God. Then there will be joy and gladness. Then "shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings" (Mal. 4:2). Then "the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose" (Isa. 35:1). "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf unstopped" (v. 5). Jesus says, "Surely I come quickly." . . . "Come, Lord Jesus."

DARK GLASS

By Arlen Marsh

"Now we see through a glass darkly."

TO HAVE a secular commentator on world affairs go religiously Pollyannish is, in this era of hard-bitten journalism, so extraordinary as to be well-nigh miraculous. Yet on May 13, Boake Carter, in his nationally syndicated column (copyrighted 1941 by The Ledger Syndicate, and quoted here by permission), gave forth as follows:

"The general atmosphere which permeates Washington currently has, to my mind, taken on a tone of worryment and despondency. That goes for people in and out of the Government. Furthermore, you find it reflected lately in the writings of Washington correspondents. They are still steeped in gloom. Of the future they are wholly uncertain . . ."

At this point, Columnist Carter breaks up the flow of his own language with a quotation from The Saturday Evening Post, which recently commented editorially that the only sure thing about the present war is that it will end sometime, but that how it will end, or what will be its results, no man can know.

"Gloomiest of all," re-commences Mr. Carter, "is one of the recent dispatches of Columnists Alsop and Kintner. Alsop and Kintner are generally recognized as being the best informed journalists in Washington on the inside workings of the Government. They report the worried talk of Washington from high policy-making officials, economists, trade experts, and members of the Army and Navy intelligence.

"These boys report that charts are being made up, generally viewing Hitler as controller of all Africa, all of South America, all Europe, with a Britain making a peace dicker, and with the United States circled economically, politically, and strategically, Japan gobbling up the entire Far East, including Australia and New Zealand.

"This column has tried to be realistic all along in this war—and suffered for it. And while I have suspected that many such things may indeed come to pass, I have never been depressed or despairing about them—as Washington now seems to be. For the simple reason I'm not bewildered or confused . . .

"I have kept to a line of thought in these columns for the very fundamental reason that I have steeped myself for months in reading of (a) the Bible, particularly Ezekiel, Daniel, and St. Paul's revelations, and (b) applied the simple rules of the science of nature to each day's news of our domestic and world events and behavior. These have given me not a correctness of understanding, but at least a faith that I'm on the right track.

"Spiritual values are lasting. Material values are like the winds. Those who measure the future by material vision are always confused. And they despair when they see their material structure cracking and falling to pieces—as they now see it.

"But those who have tried to learn and interpret our material trends through the spiritual glass are those who become fortified against despair. They do not despair, nor grow despondent, because they understand that what is collapsing are false values, false gods, and, as such, must collapse and die if God's Word is to be fulfilled."

America and Britain, in Mr. Carter's opinion, ultimately will win this war—but not without the total disruption of their economic and social systems, and not without defeats that will very nearly cost "our national souls." Mr. Carter would not be surprised to see the German pincer movement against Suez succeed within the next few weeks. He would not be surprised to see Russia join Germany in active penetration of the Near East. (The present German invasion of Russia may nullify that possibility—editor.) He would not even, he adds rather vaguely, be astonished to see, by the end of July, a crisis abroad suggesting an armistice of some kind.

"But I do not believe"—to quote once more from the Carter column—"that crisis would end the conflict which, to me, is not so much a conflict between two groups of peoples in this earthly world, but a conflict between God Himself and the blindness of England and America in refusing to realize that we have failed in our leadership.

"What I fear is that we will struggle to the desperate last to hold our false gods and distorted values and destruction of truth until agony of loss will drive us nationally to the Spirit. Then will our eyes open and conflict end between ourselves and our Maker.

"It is difficult to write of this sort of thing in a newspaper column. Parsons are the only ones supposed to talk this way. But to me, the church at large has been as blind as the rest of us and wholly missed the boat. . . .

"Man has been granted by a Divinity an abundance of everything to make his life beautiful, kindly, generous, and good. Man has been granted power over this abundance of nature. But man has brought himself to ruin because he has refused to obey the laws of nature or of God—which are to my mind one and the same.”

Helping, perhaps, to sharpen the point of Mr. Carter's argument is a dispatch from Jerusalem by United Press Correspondent Jacob Simon, revealing that the Holy City is now a mecca for all races and all creeds, that for the first time since the Crusades all Christian sects have united in a common cause, that—this time—Hindus and Moslems have added themselves to this union. Biblical predictions of “the end of the world,” declares Mr. Simon, are being discussed constantly, by everyone, throughout the overcrowded city; the temper of the population is best shown, he concludes, by the fact that there is a shortage of Bibles in the European languages.

It is unfortunate that war has been required to swing public opinion—even in the birthplace of Christianity—toward religious thinking. It is almost more unfortunate that that thinking is, in large measure, at once inadequate and inaccurate. The inaccuracy, of course, cannot always be avoided; the inadequacy, however, is based upon ignorance of the very Book on which the thinking is founded—an ignorance for which the church chiefly is responsible, as Mr. Carter suggests.

For the church as a whole has (Please turn to page 11)

Do We Love Christ?

By Francis Burnett

IT SEEMS in this fast-moving world that members of the churches—not necessarily the Churches of God—have more strife among themselves than the people of the world. Perhaps you may say, “Well, they should not.” That is right. Those of us who are professing Christ, and not only that, but proclaiming Him and His teachings, should have more love for one another than do people of the world. A person may say that the subtitle verse refers to going to law in the courts of justice. It does, but many of the church brethren, who have aught against their brothers, neither go to the law, nor their brothers, or anyone else, to have the matter settled.

Of course, some will say that one has to go to the courts of justice in order to settle a matter. Perhaps if one is in trouble with a worldly man, one may, but if he is a Christian brother, the Apostle Paul said, No. In verse 2 of 1 Corinthians 6, we read that we are to “judge the world.” The reasoning is that if we are to judge the world, surely we can judge smaller matters. Paul further stated that Christians are to judge even the angels. Therefore, if we are to judge the world and the angels, why cannot we brethren of Christ, settle matters among ourselves?

Many of the brethren in our church have a grudge against another brother. They will not try to settle it; instead, they will make light of this brother if he tries to say or do something in the church or elsewhere. Is this Christian love? Many of our churches today do not go forward because there is this petty strife among them. Brethren of the Church of God, we should do everything we can for the cause of Christ, even to the sacrificing of our pride. The world is growing more wicked every day. It is partly due to the fact that we are fighting among ourselves—forgetting Christ—because we do not wish to give up our ideas or to forgive. In our church meetings, if we love the Lord, many times we will sacrifice an idea or our time or money that the gospel may be preached. The Apostle Paul said: “Therefore there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?” (1 Cor. 6:7.)

As far as this article is concerned, you may forget about the part concerning law in the court of justice. It is our effort to show you that Christian people should not have trouble among themselves. If Christian people are able to judge legal matters among themselves, as Paul has stated, they should have no grudge one against another. If we wish to see our church grow in grace and in number, we must be willing to forgive and forget. Why? “Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's” (1 Cor. 6:19, 20).

Jesus said, “This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.” Jesus loved us so much that He shed His blood for us. No matter how much we do in our lifetime, our love will not be that great. Brethren, let us be forgiving and ever willing to suffer, that Christ may shine forth in our lives.

Redemption Through Christ

By Bonnie D. Martin

WHY are the words "Redeemer," "redeem," and "redemption" used so many times in God's Holy Word? Why did the men of old who wrote as they were moved by the Spirit of God (2 Peter 1:21) use those words in many texts? There is some reference made to redemption in practically every book of the Bible. A subject so frequently mentioned by the writers of the Bible must be important:

Consulting Webster, we read that to redeem means "to ransom from bondage; rescue; to buy back; make atonement for; ransom from sin and its consequences." A redeemer is "one who redeems." Redemption means "a repurchase, a release, a ransom; salvation of mankind by Jesus Christ." The Bible plainly teaches that there is a Redeemer. Then certainly there must needs be something for Him to redeem. The questions then confronting us are: Who is the Redeemer? What will He redeem? Before anything can be redeemed it must first be possessed, then lost, sold, or forfeited.

Now, from a Bible standpoint, let's see if we can find what was one time possessed, then lost by the human family. In Genesis 2:7-9, 15-17, we read: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. . . . The Lord God took the man (Adam), and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

From these texts we find that Adam possessed life, and it was to belong to him until he lost it or forfeited it by disobedience to God's commandment. God plainly told him that there was a possibility of his losing it. We know that when one dies, he ceases to live—death is the exact opposite of life. So God told Adam that if he ate of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil he would die—he would cease to live. We know the story of how Eve, Adam's helpmeet, ate of the forbidden fruit, and gave to Adam and he ate. Then God called for Adam and said unto him: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Through this disobedience to God's will, Adam lost life for himself and his offspring. We read: "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

The next question is: Who is the Redeemer, the One who will redeem life? Adam lost life. Who will redeem it? In Matthew 18:11 we find these words: "The Son of man is come to save that which was lost." Christ said: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10). Man could not redeem himself or his own life. Life is a gift from God. "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23). In Romans 5:15-21 we read: "Not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many. And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences unto justification. For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ. Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life. For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound: that as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord." Adam lost life, but God, willing to redeem it, sent His only begotten Son into the world that whosoever believed on Him should not perish, but receive everlasting life.

How does this redemption take place? When are men's lives redeemed? Christ came into the world as a sinless being. In 2 Corinthians 5:21 we read: "He hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." In 1 John 3:5 it says: "Ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin."

All men are not to be re-

Do You Know God?

By Florence E. Tuttle

"Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth" (Psalm 46:10).

IN THE sight of God, human beings are in one of three classifications. A few people know God and His will, and are striving to obey Him with fear and trembling. There are others who have learned God's will, but who will not endure chastisement, and the pleasures of this present evil age intoxicate them. These have no time for God and His work. (See Matt. 13.) In Titus 1:16 we read: "They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate." Those who are in this state should take serious thought and be warned by Hebrews 10:26, 27, saying: "If we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries."

Still other human beings are ignorant of God's ways and will, because they never read the Bible which is the only means of acquainting themselves with God. Proverbs 21:16 says, "The man that wandereth out of the way of understanding shall remain in the congregation of the dead." Ecclesiastes 9:5 says, "The dead know not any thing." They are perished. They are, in God's judgment, heathens.

A lady once said to me: "You know, the beautiful flowers, trees, and birds tell one there is a God, and if you love them you have God in your heart." Yes, they do speak of God's wonderful creation, but infidels, too, love the beautiful things of nature.

Dear reader, if you know God's way, if you really fear your destiny at the end of this mortal life, if you have been baptized into the name of God's only begotten Son Jesus Christ (Acts 8:12), you are faithfully watching for Jesus' return (Acts 1:11)—literal bone and flesh (Luke 24:39)—to sit on the re-established throne of David in Jerusalem (Isa. 9:6, 7). Separated from the world, you are keeping in close communion with God and His Son. You are observing the Lord's Supper for spiritual strength (John 6:54), and in remembrance of Jesus until His return (Acts 2:42). We know that heaven above will never be our eternal home, but the meek "shall inherit the earth" (Matt. 5:5).

Conditions on earth today compare with conditions before the Flood, as Jesus said they would be at the time of His return. "As in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

Today, men and women are drinking to great excess. People are becoming used to seeing drunken women. Roadhouses for drinking and feasting are "strung along" highways everywhere. Marriages have increased greatly in the past year, and it is obvious that not many marriages are today considered sacred. Many people are "heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God" (2 Tim. 3:2-4). They are inhuman, one to the other, making countless thousands mourn. These are perilous times—perilous because the masses have forsaken God, and are going the broad way to their destruction. (Matt. 7:13.) "The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are altogether become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one" (Psalm 14:2, 3).

Much evil is hid under the cloak of false religion. All manner of evil is the god of this world, and "the love of money is the root of all evil" (1 Tim. 6:10). Whether it be for power, pride, or pleasure, the world bows to the god of gold.

Reader, do you not want what the one living and true God can give you? Do you not want eternal life—to live on the purified earth forever, where now the wicked are enjoying the pleasures of sin for a season? Then, say to your heart, "Be still," for "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" Do not trust your heart to guide you, but search the Scriptures if you desire to gain eternal life, for one's heart may take him away from God. There is no Devil, beside or back of us, or near us, anywhere to tempt us, but "every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed" (James 1:14).

Do you know God in truth? If you do, you have no love for the affairs and things of the world. (1 John 2:15.) You do not turn to the world to get pleasures and thrills out of life, but your "delight" is in serving God. (Psalm 1). Jesus overcame all temptation, though He was tempted in all points as we are (Please turn to page 9)

Reminiscences of Brush Creek History

By Rufus A. Curtis

IN MY prolonged service in my Master's vineyard, I have met with many rebuffs and adverse circumstances from those who should have been my helpers, as they were professed religionists and made boastful claims that they spoke where God's Word spoke and were silent when it was silent.

The Brush Creek meeting house was built in 1859, chiefly by the writer's grandfather, James Curtis, who also donated adjacent land for a burial lot. It was in this building, during my teens, that I was permitted to hear "the glad tidings of the kingdom of God" (Luke 8:1). A few years after the building was erected, my cousin, James Waggoner, there delivered thirty or more consecutive lectures on "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" (Acts 8:12; 28:23). At the conclusion of these Bible discourses, an "ecclesia," or "Church of God," was organized, consisting of eight charter members. Since that memorable event, "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," have been believed in, and earnestly proclaimed, by consecrated servants of the Lord—gentle, patient, and "apt to teach." (Acts 8:12; Jude 3; 2 Timothy 2:21, 24.)

When Brother Waggoner first proclaimed that "immortality" was to be sought after "by patient continuance in well doing" (Rom. 2:7-11), and to be "put on" at "the first resurrection," "when Christ who is our life shall appear," he met with bitter opposition and hatred. (See 1 Cor. 15:51-57; Rev. 20:6; Col. 3:4; Matt. 10:16, 22.) Those holding the popular view of inherent immortality of Adam's descendants claim that when the good people are freed from their "mortal coil" at death, they bid an eternal adieu to earth and soar away to live with the holy angels in heaven—"God's throne" (Matt. 5:34).

Sometimes, while a so-called Orthodox preacher was holding protracted meetings near Brush Creek, there would be an apparent show of fairness for investigation at the close of the evening discourse, the preacher calling for questions from any of the audience who had perplexities they wanted solved, by writing them out on paper, and laying the paper on the pulpit where he would see it. He gave the assurance, "I will answer them Scripturally, or confess my inability to do so." During one of these protracted meetings, one of the charter members of the Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, requested me to write my "doubts" about Christ's followers spending that life "which is to come" in some "beautiful isle of somewhere"; away from the earth we now inhabit. At his request, I went into a store which we were passing and procured the necessary materials—pen, ink, and paper—and following is the problem I requested the preacher to solve, or admit his "inability to do so":

God called Abram to leave his Chaldean country, kinsmen, and his father's house, and go "into a land" that He would show him. He gave Abram this assurance: "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:1-3). Later, this covenant was renewed with these explicit words from Abraham's God: "I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God" (Gen. 17:8). "The Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him. Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. . . . Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee" (Gen. 13:14-17). This oath-confirmed covenant (Gen. 15:8; Heb. 6:13-20) was repeated to Isaac and Jacob. (Gen. 26:1-5; 28:3, 4, 10-15.) God affixed His seal to this statement, "In thee shall all nations be blessed": even "all the families of the earth"; for He termed it "the gospel" (Gal. 3:6-9, 16, 26-29). No person who walks "in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham," "who is the father of us all," need ever be "ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. 4:12, 16; 1:16). Many centuries after Abraham was "dead" and "buried" (John 8:52; Gen. 15:15), another inspired witness testified concerning God's "holy covenant; the oath which he sware to our father Abraham" (Luke 1:72, 73). Stephen said, "He gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child" (Acts 7:5). This noble martyr, in his dying agonies, by stoning, clung to God's "exceeding great and precious promises" concerning an incorruptible, undefiled, and fadeless inheritance, to be shared "with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven." (Acts 7:54-58; 2 Peter 1:4; 1 Peter 1:3-5; Matt. 8:11, 12; Psalm 72:17-19.)

R. A. Curtis

This was my perplexity: With the popular teaching, that at death the saints bid an everlasting farewell to earth, and soar away to make heaven their final home through all futurity, how can God ever fulfill His promise to His "friend" Abraham? (Isa. 41:8.) When the question was ready, it was nearly time for the minister to begin his evening sermon, and the building's seating capacity was being completely taken up; so I walked across the building, and laid my slip of paper upon the pulpit. The minister was seated in a pew near the pulpit, presumably consulting with some of his membership about the pieces of music to be used during the evening. He quickly arose to his feet and entered the rostrum, picked up my slip of paper, unfolded it, and in a brief time folded it again. This was repeated several times. Then, as if to remove some of his perplexity, not waiting until the evening discourse was over as was the custom in such matters, he arose and read a small part of my question, then to summarily dismiss the whole question, pointed his finger skyward, and said with considerable emphasis, "Abraham looked for a city whose builder and maker is God." This lack of candor caused me to think of such professed leaders in theology:

"O! the littleness of human greatness."

After the evening's discourse was concluded, the preacher said, "The winter nights are long, and if any person present has any question to ask, or statement to make, there is perfect liberty."

Alacrity characterized my arising to my feet to thank the minister for granting the opportunity to make a few remarks, as we wished the audience to know what that question placed on the rostrum involved—without being garbled or suppressed. I then orally stated the question, and said that if God gives Abraham a city, or ten thousand cities scattered through the blue ether, and does not give him "the land" he walked on, and saw during his transient existence here, He has made one promise He has not fulfilled in the past; and, if the teaching of going to heaven at death for an everlasting reward can be substantiated, He never can fulfill that promise in the future.

A tangible personality, and not an intangible, ghostly apparition, should be caused "to inherit substance." (Prov. 8:21; 2:20-22; 10:30; 11:31; Rev. 5:9, 10.) "By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went. By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 11:8-10). Our future home will not be a transient dwelling place! "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever" (Eccl. 1:4). Jesus said, "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth" (Matt. 5:5). No amount of sophism can ever change this immutable statement of Jesus to make it harmonize with the popular view (Luke 1:33; 1 John 5:8-12).

We should not be "grieved," even though "the resurrection from the dead" may be needful, for God to fulfill His "exceeding great and precious promises" to "faithful Abraham," and to all them that serve Him. (See Acts 4:2; 1 Peter 1:4; Gal. 3:9; Mal. 3:16-18; Rom. 4:16-25; Heb. 11:39, 40.)

"The brightest landscape eye hath seen,
The greenest dells and hills,
The mossiest rocks, the clearest brooks and rills:
Are only emblems dim and faint,
Of what this earth will be,
When robed in beauty in the morn
Of glad eternity."

DO YOU KNOW GOD?

(Heb. 4:15), and even in the face of death He said: "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt" (Matt. 26:39).

Jesus was filled with the Spirit of God even from a child (Luke 2:49). He saw through a spiritual eye, while we today are carried away from God by our own physical sight. "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them" (2 Cor. 4:4).

If we were literally blind, we could see better spiritually. "Jesus said to the Jews: "If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth" (John 9:41). It is said, "There is no darkness, but ignorance," but God says, "The wisdom of this world is foolishness" (1 Cor. 3:19), and, "In much wisdom is much grief" (Eccl. 1:18). Solomon said, "Labour not to be rich: cease from thine own wisdom" (Prov. 23:4). James said, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him" (1:5). Spiritual wisdom is "pure" and "peaceable" (James 3:17), while worldly knowledge leads to calamities.

O, that more might be guided by the wisdom from above, that they might gain an abundant entrance into God's Kingdom so soon to be established on earth—when the few who are followers of God's way will bring heaven to earth.

A glorious truth is revealed in Isaiah 11:9: "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

How the Gentile nations are hurting and killing one another! What good have all the denominations done among the Gentiles? They do honor to almost anything, except God. Full of pomp and pride, they honor the names of mortal men, and commemorate days that have nothing to do with God's truth. Men are today being more politically inclined than desirous of doing God's will. Jesus said: "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:9). O Church of God in truth, let us be wise as serpents and harmless as doves (Matt. 10:16), and let us be careful how we interpret the Word of God.

RECIPROCATATION

Quoting: "Dear brothers and sisters of the Church of God, Brother William _____, in the February 12, 1919, issue of The Restitution Herald, called attention to the mistake I made in my article about the two witnesses. I will also call your attention to one or more mistakes Brother _____ has made."—J. W. _____'s introduction to an article entitled, "The Two Witnesses," published April 23, 1919, back in "the good old days."

Two witnesses? Yes, two witnesses; each telling the mistakes of the other. Brotherly reciprocation! Both probably told the truth, as each, being human, could have erred, but Jesus also told the truth, and a more important truth, when He said: "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again" (Matt. 7:1, 2).

Faultfinding is a boomerang—as may be proved by a come-back criticism of this criticism. . . . Q.E.D.

REDEMPTION THROUGH CHRIST

deemed from eternal death, only those who comply with the Father's will. God sent His only begotten Son into the world to save from sin all who believe on His name. All are sinners, and sin, when it is finished, brings forth death. However, one may escape everlasting death by believing that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and by obedience in baptism. "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7). "In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace" (Eph. 1:7). Christ obtained eternal redemption for us when He entered the Holy Place by His own blood. (See Heb. 9:11, 12.) "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things . . . but with the precious blood of Christ, as a lamb without blemish and without spot" (1 Peter 1:18, 19).

In Acts 16:30, 31, the keeper of the prison asked Paul and Silas what he must do to be saved. They said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." John said: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14, 15).

When Jesus sent His disciples out He said unto them: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:15, 16). The gospel is good news concerning a Redeemer, who was to come. Then redemption comes only by believing the gospel and being baptized.

When does redemption take place? It will take place at the first resurrection when Jesus Christ returns to this earth. Since "all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Eccl. 3:20), it is evident that if we are to have life after death, then "the earth shall cast out the dead" (Isa. 26:19). In other words, a resurrection must take place, as was the case with Jesus. He said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore" (Rev. 1:18). Jesus' death and resurrection proved that those who die may live again. "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). Then, redemption depends upon the resurrection and the second coming of Christ, for when He comes again "all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:28, 29).

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory" (1 Cor. 15:51-54). At this same time, those who believe that Jesus died and rose again and who have obeyed in baptism, who are still living, shall be caught up together with the righteous dead "in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air" (1 Thess. 4:14-18).

DARK GLASS

never turned to considerations more practical than disputes over creed—whether the creed take the form of written dogma or of general belief in the inspired truth of the Bible—and rantings over the inequitable social and economic adjustments in the world. Mr. Carter has proposed the practical solution to the world's ills—a solution which was proposed in 1933 by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and promptly forgotten when business began to improve. Mr. Carter, like the San Francisco Chamber, has proposed a return to solid faith in the inevitability of the fulfillment of God's Word.

"Parsons," in the language of Columnist Carter, "are the only ones supposed to talk this way." But parsons have failed to talk "this way"—have, indeed, failed to do much more for their followers than Plato and Socrates—or the chief of any Rotary or Kiwanis Club—have done or can do for theirs. Because parsons have so failed, the notable appeals to a new birth of spirituality must come from those whose primary efforts, supposedly, are scheduled to be directed toward the essentially material side of life.

Now it is, as Mr. Carter himself feels, impossible to arrive at any wholly satisfactory conclusions regarding the future of the world during and immediately after the war. Not even the books of Ezekiel, Daniel, and the revelations of the Apostle Paul will give us that. But it is possible to attain a certain amount of phlegmatic philosophy toward the events in Asia, Africa, Europe, and America; it is possible because the Bible provides us with definite assurance that a final—and most satisfactory—solution of our problems ultimately will be reached.

General thinking on the subject of Biblical prophecy has been inadequate chiefly because it has failed to draw Mr. Carter's confidence from its study. Had it been adequate, it would not have paused with trying to determine which nations would be aligned with which nations, nor even with trying to determine the conclusion of the war; it would have continued to the fact, as Mr. Carter has continued, that, whatever the end of this current conflict, God is in His heaven and ultimately will make things right with the world.

So, although we must look through a glass, darkly, with our vision of coming events obscured, we still have sufficient sight of the future to know that, after all, the national realignments that will result from the war are unimportant, that the disturbances in our society and economy are unimportant, that what is important is not the evanescent politics of men, but the inescapable fact that God's will—as it is represented by the Bible—is going to be accomplished, and that its accomplishment will mean the eternal healing of earth's ills.

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

Until the present war turned from the destruction of French cathedrals to the task of subjugating Russia, Turkey, in spite of treaties and much mention in the press, was commonly taken, in public estimation, to be the decadent remnants of an empire which, although once strong, never had had any profound influence upon the living of the Western World.

James T. Shotwell and Francis Deak, however, have undertaken, in Turkey at the Straits, to point out how apparently unimportant historical events of as long ago as the 1800's led directly to the present hot spot upon which Turkey finds herself today—and upon which Turkey has placed the rest of the world today.

Turkey at the Straits (Macmillan; $3.00) is not what could be called a "popular" book, but neither is it dull. Published recently enough to carry history up to the signing of the mutual assistance pact which bound Turkey, Britain, and France before French capitulation to Germany, it offers an authentic background for serious study of the place of political systems, races, and national economies in the international hodgepodge.

Necessarily, Dr. Shotwell and his collaborator have been somewhat sketchy. The history of five hundred years cannot be condensed exhaustively into 196 pages. But the authors have been careful to skip hurriedly over comparatively unimportant events, and to devote considerable space to those happenings and philosophies which have had a direct bearing on the present situation. The book carries two appendices, one of which carries the complete text of the Treaty of Peace between the Allies and Turkey in 1920, and the other of which carries the complete text of the Treaty of 1923 which gave Turkey exclusive control of the vitally important Dardenelles.

The invasion of Russia and the concomitant conclusion of a treaty of non-aggression between Germany and Turkey have yet to be seen in their full import; but it is obvious that the Bible student will do neither himself nor those he teaches any harm if he knows adequately the history which has given Turkey, Russia, France, Germany, and England so nervous a concern with the fate of the famous Straits—the Dardenelles.

The Early Church

We have learned something of the power of the early church, which power was the Holy Spirit. We shall learn more about it as we find how Paul, Peter, James, John, and others wrote letters to different groups of Christians with the help of the Holy Spirit. We will apply their experiences to ourselves, so we may receive a blessing.

We recall in review the story of the Jerusalem brethren who gave up their possessions and "had all things common" (Acts 4:32). Later, we learned that perhaps this wasn't the best way for Christians to show brotherly love, because the church people at Antioch had to send them relief. (Acts 11:29.)

The disciples were sad when Jesus died. They scattered—mourning. We, too, sometimes think how wonderful it would be if Jesus were here in person to direct us as we try to serve Him, for we make so many mistakes. We forget that we are to "occupy" until He comes. We have talents to increase. Some will have good works that will withstand fire. Also, there is a reward to be given to "every man . . . according to his own labour" (1 Cor. 3:8).

We found how Saul became Paul, how Peter was sent to the Gentiles, and learned how they received the Holy Spirit. (Acts 9:1-3; 10:11.) We studied how the early church solved some problems.

We must remember one very important fact. Our Lord is able to heal today, but His Spirit is not poured out as it was on the ones at Pentecost. This power, which caused the dead to rise and the sick to become well, also brought all things into the minds of those who wrote our New Testament. That this power was not passed on to others is clearly shown when Philip was in Samaria. Philip had received the Holy Spirit. He could heal (Acts 8:6, 7), but he could not pass on this power by the laying on of hands. John and Peter were sent to Samaria to pray and lay their hands upon the converts. Then they "received the Holy Spirit" (Acts 8:14-17). To be "filled" with the Holy Spirit as we can be today makes better boys and girls. His Spirit has all good fruit—"love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance" (Gal. 5:22, 23). May we have this good fruit shown in our lives, putting our bodies under our control, doing right at all times even as Paul in 1 Corinthians 9:27.

The Gospel in Europe

After Paul and Barnabas returned from taking relief to the brethren at Jerusalem, another joined them in Antioch. His name was Mark. He left them soon, so the next time Barnabas wanted to take Mark along, Paul took Silas and left Barnabas to go with Mark.

Paul met Timothy on this trip. Paul had a vision of one from Europe saying: "Come over into Macedonia and help us," so they went to Philippi in Macedonia. Lydia was converted; a jailer also was converted.

From Thessalonica they went to Berea. There the people "searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so" (Acts 17:11). Paul was forced to go to Athens.

Solve Those Problems

Innumerable words have been printed as instruction for people to follow in correcting family difficulties. Why is all this time and effort spent on just this one subject? It seems to have been generally agreed that the spirit and character of a nation is built in its homes. Young people who set out to support themselves are much better prepared for tasks ahead if they have had proper instruction and good environment at home.

Life, at its best, is complicated. Even people who make every effort to exercise the love taught in the Bible sometimes have their difficulties—not serious, perhaps, but all is not well. In building and maintaining a home, problems arise which have taxed the knowledge and ingenuity of our most noted psychologists. They have attempted to work out answers to the problems that arise most frequently, and in many instances they have done a great deal of good.

In order to keep peace and harmony in a home, it is necessary that all the members of the household have the desire to keep peace. Clubs have their disadvantages. The family is not alone concerned with keeping peace, but in seeing that its various members increase in knowledge and proficiency in a profession or trade that the family income may be maintained at its present level, or increased. In the case of the Christian home, it is desirable that all increase in knowledge of Bible doctrines. As the children grow older, they break off from the main unit and may eventually start a home of their own, built, generally, upon the principles learned at their first home.

There are times when disputes arise in a family—disputes which become involved and so serious that a family is forced to break up—its members each going their separate ways. This does not mean that all or any of these people will become criminals or useless to society. It does mean that another family unit has failed to accomplish its purpose which many believe it should have accomplished. All the members may, as is said, “turn out all right,” but the odds would seem to be against them.

Any church organization, be it local, state, or nationwide in scope, is composed of people who have reached similar conclusions on the methods of salvation for men. They have banded together in a unit in order that they may profit by the experiences of others in their group, and that they may help each other in times of necessity. A family cannot be very influential as a unit if its members are away from home most of the time. Our newspapers tell of the troubles of those who try such a method. A church organization cannot prosper if a large number of its members take only an occasional interest in its affairs. In a well-organized home, difficulties are not an excuse for defeat—they are a challenge for renewed effort. If something is needed or one member is in trouble, everyone helps to find ways and means to correct the difficulty. Considerable study and a number of conferences may be required, but the problem is conquered.

Do we take active part in the affairs of our church organizations? Church services and business meetings, choir activities, Sunday schools, and Berean societies, all have their definite purposes. When all members of the church take active part in all phases of the work, rapid progress is inevitable. When we withdraw from an organized activity because a situation arises which is disagreeable to us, we harm ourselves and the organization—ourselves in that we have admitted defeat, and the organization in that perhaps the situation which irritated us was a real organization fault which needed to be corrected. If not corrected, perhaps the organization will cease to grow. If we recognize the fault and do not make a sincere effort to correct it, we are responsible for any resulting failure. Perhaps the others did not see the reason for the trouble.

What do we do when problems arise which we cannot readily solve? We see the wrong, but frankly we do not know how to correct it. It may be a good idea to turn first to our Bibles, and get a good spiritual foundation upon which to work, and then embark on a serious program of study of the problem, both by reading books applicable to the subject and, also, through work.

When an organization does not grow or attain the goal toward which it aimed, there are reasons for the failure. People who have a firm belief in the organization and who are not afraid to work hard on a problem are going to find the reasons. Are we beaten or still digging?

“Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity” (Psalm 133:1).

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE REPORT

The Sixty-seventh Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Minnesota convened at Eden Valley, June 11-15, 1941, with Bro. L. E. Conner of Oregon, Ill., as guest speaker, and Bro. John Mercer of St. Cloud, Minn., as song leader.

Other speakers and teachers were Bros. John Denchfield of St. Cloud, Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley, and Orris Mills, a local young man and a student of the Bible Training School.

Interest, attention, and attendance were very good. People from many parts of Minnesota were present, also a few from South Dakota, Illinois, and Indiana.

The meeting opened on Wednesday evening, June 11, with song service and preaching. Bible classes were conducted both forenoon and afternoon during Thursday and Friday. Saturday forenoon was spent in Bible study, and the afternoon in business session. Officers of the Conference Board elected for the coming year are: John Denchfield, president; Walter Wiggins, vice president; Stanley Ross of Litchfield, secretary; and Ruth Hoskins of Eden Valley, treasurer.

Every evening Bro. Conner delivered a very good sermon to a large audience.

Sunday was a full and interesting day, there being more than two hundred people present. Services opened at 10:00 a.m. with Sunday school; preaching by Bro. Conner followed at 11:00 a.m.; and the Communion service came at 12:30. Dinner was served in the church basement. At 2:00 p.m., a "Love Feast" was led by Bro. George Randall, at 3:00 o'clock a dedication service was in charge of Sr. Orpha Ruhn in memory of those who had fallen asleep since our last meeting. An ordination service followed at 3:15, with Bro. John Denchfield in charge, being assisted by Bros. Tom Savage of St. Cloud and George Randall of Mora. Vivian Kirkpatrick of Blackduck and John Mercer of St. Cloud were ordained. At 4:30, baptismal services were conducted at Eden Lake, when six young people stepped out into a new life for Christ. They are: Ruth and John Anderson of Grove City, Richard and Virgil Hammer of Bird Island, Phyllis Johnson of Hector, and Irvin Hertzberg of Paynesville. At 7:45 p.m., there was a song service, as usual, and at 8:00 Bro. Conner delivered the closing sermon. Following a few concluding remarks by Bro. Denchfield, and prayer, our Sixty-seventh Annual Conference was brought to a close. Gertrude Bennett, Secy.

LAST NOTICE FOR DIRECTORY

All census blanks have been sent out to the churches, on which to report their 1941 statistics. We urge church secretaries to fill them out and return them promptly.

For the last time we appeal to the isolated members to send in their names and addresses. Only twenty-six thus far have taken enough interest to report. Don't forget this. If you have not reported, do so today.

All state and district conference secretaries are asked to report the names and addresses of their conference officers at once, if you have not done so. Also a list by name and address of all isolated members of your state conference.

All reports must be in my hands not later than July 15. Send reports to: M. W. Lyon, 11405 Lake Shore Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO WORKING RULES

Pursuant to instructions of the last General Conference, a change in the system of representation has been prepared and will be proposed for adoption at the forthcoming General Conference. This is an important matter of business and calls for the careful consideration of all.

Committee: M. W. Lyon, Charles L. Nettis, James M. Watkins.

MACOMB, ILLINOIS

Baptismal services were conducted by Bro. C. E. Lapp on Sunday, June 8, at Glenwood Park. At this time Charles, Larry, and Juanita Croxton, all of 336 W. Chandler St., were immersed. Bro. Charles Croxton is one of our church's most earnest workers, and Larry and Juanita are his two youngest children—ten and eight years of age respectively. May the Lord bless them richly.

We were happy to have Bro. Robert Hardisty preach for us during Bro. Lapp's recent absence. Gladys Mercer, Secy.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. Terry Ferrell, en route from Oregon, Ill., to his home in Pomona, Calif., visited friends at Colo, Iowa, and preached the Sundays of June 8 and 15 at the Hickory Grove church. The brethren appreciated his brief work with them.

Bro. Gail Grimsley, Quartermasters' Division, R.O.T.C. Camp, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., would be glad to learn of any of our brethren who may live near by.

"It seems that the Bear of the North is about to awake, but on the wrong side of the fence. Come on, you watchmen, and tell us, What of the night?"—Mrs. W. L. Robbins, Riviera, Texas.

Quoting: "Arlen Marsh is not in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or any appurtenance thereto. He is in the California State Guard, Second Regiment, Company G, which is being trained by Marine officers to Marine standards. He is at home, works all day at a job (a very pleasant job, dictating letters to some 600 women), and will not be mobilized into the Army unless war is declared. Unless Army examiners change their minds, he will be in Class 4 under the Selective Service Act, and neither draftable nor volunteerable for the regular military services."

"My versions of the Bible make no difference in the parents of Cain and Seth. (Gen. 4:25.) Cain was the seed of Eve as much as were Abel and Seth. Therefore, Eve was not a so-called second Adam. Adam was as much the progenitor of all of Eve's descendants as was Eve."—Alfred Anthon, 435 Kings Rd., Corvallis, Oregon.

"The Restitution Herald is a wonderful paper; I always look forward to the day it comes."—Mrs. Margaret Rankin, Bartley, Nebr.

Bro. Delbert Jones, formerly of the Bible Training School, preaches the first and third Sundays of each month at Albert City, Iowa; was at Koszta on June 29, and plans to be at Hickory Grove for services July 13. Work hard, Delbert, and showers of blessing on you!

"Thank you for your ministry via the editorial page. I am sure God has many blessings to pour out on you and your staff for your efforts in broadcasting the truth."—Mrs. Lyle J. Doan, 3561 Hillcrest Ave., S.W., Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Bro. G. E. Marsh is doing good work with us in Los Angeles. The work here has surely progressed the last few years."—Clyde M. Long, Buena Park, Calif.

"Mrs. Oscar Jenkins of Stanhope, Iowa, is in the hospital at Webster City. She is recovering from a major operation."—J. W. Williams.

"The Restitution Church of God at Eldorado met at the home of Sr. Della Cheek, Sunday afternoon in celebration of her sixtieth birthday. After surprises of gifts and singing, refreshments of ice cream and cake were plentifully served. May God grant her a return of this day. . . . We are proud of the new interior of our church. All eyes are looking for the church basement, which we need for successful work in our Sunday school. May all work together for the glory of God in this work."—Received unsigned.

THE HICKORY GROVE CHURCH OF GOD
Maxwell, Iowa

Our doors are open once again. We are happy to say that Bro. Terry Ferrell has helped us to realize how much we should be doing. Bro. Ferrell recently preached four sermons at our church. We see that we should be active, and we are beginning with Sunday school each Sunday and church services as often as possible. We are hoping Bro. Ferrell will find it possible to return to Maxwell this fall.

Sunday, June 22, we elected officers for our little Sunday school. They are as follows: superintendent, the writer; assistant superintendent, Jim Dickenson; secretary and treasurer, Margaret Fish; and assistant secretary and treasurer, Richard Torry.

The Sunday school is divided into two classes, but we are hoping to have more classes as we advance. At the present time we have sixteen people attending.

The young people's class consists of eight students. We mean students—for we are not only studying our regular Sunday school lesson, but we are also studying other important matters.

We would like to thank Bro. and Sr. George Siple of Oregon, Ill., for giving us our first supplies. We now feel that we have others, besides our own group, working with us. Thank you, Bro. and Sr. Siple; if you are ever in Iowa, please call on us.

All are enthusiastic. With God's help, we shall grow more each week.

Barbara Fish, Reporter.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Since last week's report we have an addition of five students to our enrollment, making a total of twenty-nine, with a representation from twelve states.

Sunday afternoon the Bible Training School was the guest of the Oregon Bereans to a picnic at the White Pines State Park.

Thursday, the School took a trip to Zion, Ill., to see the Zion Passion Play, and some of us visited the shores of Lake Michigan for the first time.

We experienced an early initiation into the work last week end with two five hundred word themes for Bro. Lindsay's Monday classes.

'Tis strange, we've had two penalties for broken dormitory rules already. Those dishes are such a nuisance.

MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS

Those planning to attend the Illinois and General Conferences who wish rooms, please write to Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, Oregon, Ill., and make your reservations. Tell Sr. Ordnung when you will want your rooms, and how many will occupy each room. The earlier you make your reservations, the easier it will be for Sr. Ordnung to make suitable arrangements for you. The prices of rooms will probably be comparable to last year, perhaps a little higher. Please make your reservations early, as rooms are rather scarce.

L. T. Hanson, Illinois Conference President.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BLAIR AND OMAHA, NEBRASKA

The Eastern Nebraska Conference will convene at Omaha, August 24-31, 1941. Bros. S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Ariz., and Grover Gordon of Springfield, Ohio, have been employed as speakers. We look forward anxiously to the time when they will be with us.

It is encouraging to see the interest of the brethren in the work here at Blair and Omaha. May the Lord send forth more laborers into His harvest. The ladies of both these churches are canning fruits and vegetables for the winter Bible Training School.

Richard Smith, Student Pastor.

CO-OPERATE WITH STATISTICIAN

One of the most interesting features of General Conference, each year, is the report of our statistician, Bro. M. W. Lyon. Please read his final appeal on the opposite page, calling for isolated brethren to report their names and addresses for the church directory soon to be published; then please co-operate.

GOING UP

Though we have a large Summer Bible Training School, we need a little financial support from our brethren. Food prices are going up. Excepting the Lord's blessing, the Church of God's greatest asset is her young people. Let us stay with them, and they will stay with us.

"This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10).

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. Order a good supply of tracts; then send them to your friends. It costs nothing to slip a tract into a letter, and it may "save a soul from death."

The following tracts and books, most of them written by men prominent at some time in the Church of God, are for sale by the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Send a self-addressed envelope or postage for tracts not priced. How many can you use?

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 30

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 8, 1941

NUMBER 40

COME TO GENERAL CONFERENCE July 29 — August 10, 1941, Oregon, Illinois

The Twenty-first Annual General Conference and the Forty-fourth Annual Illinois Conference of the Church of God in the United States and Canada invite you to attend and participate in their sessions to be conducted July 29—August 10, 1941, at Oregon, Illinois. Talented and experienced ministers and Bible teachers will help you to better understand the Word of God. There will be daily classes for groups of various ages, preaching each evening, and three preaching services each Sunday. Further, we shall be engaged in business for the Lord. Come to hear and help.

General Conference affords the best way for brethren throughout the land to become personally acquainted. Like bees taking honey to their hive, let brethren come from near and far to share the sweets of Christian work and meditation. The time draws near.

General Conference Draws Near

The time for General Conference is almost here. Now is the time to plan your trip to Oregon, Illinois, or you may not be here for the first classes on July 29. We hope soon to publish a complete program, but for the present everyone may be sure this year's General Conference will be one of the biggest and best. There is no better time and place to meet your many friends from various parts of the country. Somebody will be disappointed if you do not come, and of more importance: the Lord needs your presence and co-operation in His work.

Scenery, Too

As the accompanying picture indicates, the General Conference is held in one of the most scenic sections of the Central States. Beautiful Rock River flows through Oregon, Illinois, and it is near Oregon, on a bluff of the Rock River, that the famous Black Hawk Statue overlooks the Indians' cherished but lost land.

Though it would be a wrong motive to attend General Conference only for the pleasure and vacation involved, it is by no means unfortunate that one can enjoy the beauty with which God has adorned the earth at the same time he attends General Conference to study how better to adorn his own life in the sight of God. Let your vacation trip this year be to Oregon, Illinois, which, like Jerusalem of old, is "beautiful for situation." (See Psalm 48:1, 2.)

Representation

Delegate forms to provide representation at General Conference have now been mailed out to the various church and conference secretaries. We should like for every Church of God in the United States and Canada to be represented this year at General Conference. If we have overlooked any church secretary, or any conference secretary, we should like to have our attention called to such oversight, that delegate forms may yet be mailed to them, assuring these organizations representation at the Conference.

These delegate forms should be filled out, signed, and returned to the secretary of the General Conference as soon as convenient. Sorry to say, there were many of our churches which last year failed to provide for their own representation. What is a Conference without delegates? Let us not be slothful in business, especially in the Lord's business!

May every congregation in the Church of God send delegates to Oregon, Illinois, for the coming General Conference, July 29—August 10. Secretaries, did you get your delegate forms? Are you preparing them to be returned to us a few days before Conference starts?

Next Week's Herald

According to present plans, next week's Restitution Herald will feature the Summer Training School. Brother Harry Sheets, Dean of the School, will prepare the editorial page, and the students will write most of the articles. We are glad to have one of the best Summer Schools, and especially are we glad because it seemed that we might be unable to enlist enough students.

Twenty-five Thousand Dollars!

By C. E. Lapp

AT EVERY session of the General Conference a number of important issues are presented before the business meeting for consideration and action. Whenever something of importance is presented, the question is asked, "Why not carry this suggestion to completion?" It is very easy to be in favor of something, but a vote without financial backing means only wishful thinking.

Last year there was considerable talk about a building suitable for the needs of our Bible Training School. A dormitory with classrooms built under one roof, with one heating plant, will greatly reduce the cost of operation per person attending school. Such a building will be not only timely, but of the greatest importance to the future existence of the Church of God.

Without exception, the church is one hundred per cent behind the training of our young people for Christian work. We realize the value of such training, and especially in these days when faith in God is rare. To study the need of our field of labor is also to admit with one accord that the need for God-fearing young men and women is very great.

Both Bible Training Schools, the Summer and the nine-months' Schools, have witnessed to the fact that our young people are responding whole-heartedly to the call for workers. There is every reason to believe, if Christ tarries, that the number of students will be many times multiplied in both the Summer and the nine-months' Schools. Some who are now in high school are planning to attend the Bible Training School after graduation.

The time to act is now!

The great tragedy of this war that has been driven home to all nations that have fought Germany is that they have been unprepared. Lack of foresight has brought destruction, hunger, great misery, and want. It is no time to lock the barn door after the horse has been stolen. Neither will it be time for the Church of God to bemoan the fact that it has no trained workers when all hope of making it possible has been lost. The church in general is suffering now because the few workers cannot meet all the needs.

We all recognize at present that money is flowing freely, and this cannot go on forever! If there ever was a great opportunity for the Church of God to make a gigantic move forward, now is the time while the golden opportunity exists. Even another year may be too late. A few months may bring such changes that our present money will be worth a very small part of its present value.

For instance, it has been talked over the radio that before another year passes, one dollar in every four will go for taxation. When billions are being spent, someone must pay the bill. In England about fifty per cent of the income goes for taxes. Someone must pay, and if our money is not used immediately for God's work, the chances are it will be taken from us to feed a mighty war machine.

In such an event, any number of people will speak up and say, "If we had only known, we would have been glad to invest in the Bible Training School." It will be too late then. "The saddest word of tongue or pen, this one's the worst: It might have been."

There is no reason to believe that God has not entrusted the brethren of our church with wealth. Everywhere we go there is evidence in beautiful homes, cars, and every conceivable material possession that God has withheld no good thing from our people. If our government should suddenly decide to take one half our income, then someone would say, "If I had only known, I would have given that to the church."

A building fund for the Bible Training School has already been started with two gifts totaling one thousand one hundred dollars. Without a doubt, there must be twenty-four more families or individuals who could give one thousand dollars, each. You may buy bonds, but no bond could ever lay up treasures for you such as an investment in our new Bible Training School.

If fifty people would invest five hundred dollars, each, in the School, work could be started immediately. One hundred brethren could supply this need with only a small investment of two hundred fifty dollars, each. We never feel that two hundred fifty dollars is very much when we are paying that much difference on a car. At least one hundred of our brethren will buy new cars paying this trade-in difference. If each of our five thousand members would invest four dollars each, the School could be built.

These suggestions are being made to show the great possibility of having the School within the immediate future. Why do we have public schools that cost up to one hundred thousand dollars, each? People demand them and pay for them to educate their children with the best in secular education.

Why should we have a twenty-five thousand dollar Bible Training School with dormitory? Because we want our young people to have the (Please turn to page 10)

The New World Order

In Two Articles—Article One

By Arthur G. Young

WE ARE hearing much these days about the "New World Order." Serious challenges are now being made to the economic, political, and religious systems that have slowly evolved through many centuries until they have come to dominate the modern world. These challenges are causing men to seriously consider that great and far-reaching changes of some kind in these systems are now possible, and in fact quite likely, as regardless of which side wins the present war, it is generally recognized by thinking men that conditions will not revert to pre-1914 or pre-1939. In other words, whatever is to be will be different from the past in many fundamental respects, and it is the fear of the uncertain that weighs so heavily upon men's minds today, as they see the present order of things crumbling before their very eyes.

Upon closely examining these challenges to present systems, and which challenges might be roughly grouped under the term "Stateism," and of which Naziism, Bolshevism, and Fascism are simply different branches, it is readily apparent that their proposed "New World Order," and their methods to achieve same, are not "new," whatever else they may be. These systems rest upon the use of material force, and are inherently evil and selfish. History is filled with examples which prove the utter failure of men to perpetuate systems of rule in all phases of life based on the use of material force as the controlling factor. The only new things now being tried are the immensely superior materialistic instruments comparatively recently discovered. This difference is not one of basic principle, but only in the comparative efficiency of these applied instruments. Therefore, if the basic principle is faulty, it can be confidently asserted that nothing but ultimate failure will come from present attempts by Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini to establish and perpetuate their proposed "New World Order," regardless of the efficiency used. A true solution, through a better "New World Order," cannot be established and perpetuated by following such previously tried and discredited methods.

Therefore, the question is now being insistently asked: If there are to be great changes in systems of world control, what are they likely to be, and will they be for the better or for the worse of humanity?

While it is not our purpose to take much time in analyzing man's systems—past and present—we believe it is pertinent to call attention to some existent problems which any and all adequate remedial systems will have to solve. That certainly is getting down to the roots of the question.

(1) Some other basis than material force will have to be discovered and universally applied to the entire world.

(2) Some adequate power will have to be applied which will remove the present curse on the physical earth, so that there will no longer be weeds, aberrations of nature, such as earthquakes, tornadoes, and man's struggle to win a livelihood from a reluctant earth. There will have to be some power used which is able to change the present law in the physical earth where weeds grow of themselves, but where plants useful to man need to be sown and cultivated through much labor, in order to come to fruition.

(3) Sickness, sorrow, pain, and death will have to be conquered, and what is more important, in their places will have to be instituted constructive systems of world-wide, as well as individual, application.

(4) Perfect and adequate power and wisdom in administrative function will have to be existent, and in control of the world, to carry on any such systems when once instituted.

To briefly state even the foregoing immediately lifts the subject out of the realm of man's abilities and capacities, or for that matter, also, out of the realm of his responsibilities. We can therefore see how fundamentally true it is to state that Hitler's (or that of any other man) so-called "New World Order" is doomed to failure, because its basis of material force does not even attempt to deal with, much less solve, any of these inescapable and existent problems.

We come back, therefore, to the real and quite pressing problem, namely, "Is there a remedy?" We have attempted to show that the remedy does not and cannot reside within man's abilities and capacities, and as man is supreme among all forms of life on this earth, there are only two alternatives left, namely:

(1) The remedy does not, and cannot exist, or

(2) It can come only from a Higher Power and Wisdom than that of man.

The above does not mean to infer that man has no part in the remedy in the past, the present, or the future. In fact, just the reverse is the message of the Bible, as God reveals His plan to man. It is therein that we find clearly stated that man has a very definite part at all times, which is to work and co-operate within the framework of the plan and remedy, and in accord therewith. The point, however, is definitely made that it is not man's part to provide the remedy itself.

As the first alternative above stated would simply lead to hopelessness, may we not then reverently examine God's revelation to man, namely, the Bible, to see if therein is not declared God's revelation of His "New World Order"?

May it here be suggested for careful consideration, that the Bible is much more than God's revelation to man as to man's spiritual relationship to God. The Bible is a book that also deals authoritatively, but selectively, with systems of high political statesmanship, economics, and religion, and which are presented from God's standpoint of the ideal. This may come as a surprise to some, but the statement will bear close examination both from the Old and the New Testament.

Furthermore, the Bible has much to say in regard to political, economic, and religious systems of the present and the future, as well as to the past. Thus, the Bible is in this respect, as in many others, the most "up-to-the-minute" book now in circulation. In fact, it is the most authentic source of information on current and future political and economic world events in existence. Anyone who investigates the Bible from those standpoints will find it a most fascinating and profitable study, and at the same time, the greatest steadying influence and builder of faith for such trying times as these, that can be found.

No one can understand God's plan without grasping the fact that, during the history and prophecy (i.e., future history) recorded in the Bible, events and developments of God's plan have revealed dividing periods of time, called ages and dispensations, during each of which periods, God's methods, instruments and conditions have changed. Nevertheless, God's objective, namely, the redemption of humanity and the physical world from sin, and from the consequences of sin, has never changed.

The ages and dispensations have been of varying time lengths, but they can be simply stated as follows:

First Period: From Genesis 1:1 to the close of the condition of chaos depicted in Genesis 1:2. It is during this period that the prehistoric convulsions of nature occurred, and the prehistoric animals lived—of which there is present ample record. So there is no contradiction between the Bible account and the record of scientific physical discovery, as is so many times loosely charged.

Second Period: From that portion of Genesis 1:2 which reads, "And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters," to the time of the Flood. This period records the reordering and the reconstruction of the surface of the earth and that which is above the earth, which earth previously existed, as it is not an account of the creation of the earth proper. Nothing is mentioned in these chapters of Genesis, subsequent to Genesis 1:2, regarding anything under the surface of the earth.

It is quite helpful to grasp this, as it instantly removes doubts regarding claims that the Bible and scientific discoveries are conflicting.

Third Period: From the Flood to the call of Abraham.

Fourth Period: From the call of Abraham to the first coming of Jesus Christ to this earth as the "Saviour," with all that is included in that title.

Fifth Period: From the first coming of Jesus Christ to His second coming, when He will come back to this earth in person to rule it as "KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS."

Sixth Period: From the establishment of Jesus Christ's Millennial Kingdom on this earth upon His return for a period stated in Revelation 20 of one thousand years. This period will come to a close at the end of the thousand years. This is God's declared coming "New World Order," and which is soon to be in control of the world.

Seventh Period: From the close of Christ's Millennial Kingdom on earth, when He delivers the Kingdom to the Father, unto a period described as the "ages of the ages." We have had practically nothing as yet revealed regarding conditions to exist then, so will just have to wait further revelation.

According to chronology, we are now in the closing scenes of the fifth period, and soon to see the opening of the sixth. As in the past, let it be clearly stated as to the future, that the Bible pictures eternal progress in the fulfillment of God's purpose and plan through the joint instrumentality of Christ and man working in partnership. We have a glimpse of this in Christ's statement in John 5:17: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." This universe, or any part of it, does not simply run itself, so the coming "New World Order" will continually require constant, progressive, and intelligent management by both Deity and those who are His administrators—a task worthy of the highest abilities of God, Christ, and perfected humanity. In this connection, it is important to realize the truth that while the instruments are perfected, this is not contradictory to the concept of continuous, orderly progress being made toward the achievement of objectives in which the perfected instruments are employed.

A subject well worth considering, but not feasible to here enlarge upon, is the relation between the future operation of the coming "New World Order" and the comparatively recently discovered marvelous scientific inventions which are now under man's control. It is true that these are now being prostituted to war and evil purposes. Nevertheless, this is not to continue permanently, according to God's Word. In the actual present existence of these wonderful discoveries (Please turn to page 11)

The Life and Prophecies of Micah

By C. Alan McLain

MICAH was a prophet to the poor and the sixth of the twelve minor prophets. Micah's name in itself is a condensed creed, meaning, "Who is like unto Jehovah?" He is called "the Morasthite" (Jer. 26:18), having been born in Moresheth-gath, a dependent of Gath about twenty miles distant southwest of Jerusalem.

Micah was a man of admirable personality. He had strong convictions and a large amount of courage. He said: "I am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord, and of judgment, and of might, to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin." Micah preached against sin, and pointed to Christ. He was a prophet especially to the poor. He upheld the downtrodden and abased the rich and proud. He was a mixture of Hosea and Amos: possessing Hosea's heart of love and Amos' passion for justice. The false prophets flattered the people to increase their own income, but this was not so with Micah. He preached the truth.

Micah prophesied in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. Isaiah, Hosea, Joel, Amos, and Nahum were on the scene about the time of Micah. His preaching was before and after the fall of Samaria (722 B.C.)—more than likely from about 735 B.C. until 715 B.C. The reign of Jotham was a reign in luxury and splendor. At the cost of many a peasant's life, fortresses and palaces were built in Jerusalem.

Under the reign of Ahaz, king of Judah, following Jotham's reign, Judah was forced to pay tribute to Assyria. The Syro-Ephraimitic War in 734 B.C. was a heavy burden on the rich and poor alike. Widows' houses were taken from them, the poor were oppressed, and their houses and property confiscated.

When Hezekiah became king of Judah, he tried a reform, but conditions became even more discouraging. Wickedness spread as a disease. Lack of confidence prevailed, making conditions serious and pathetic, for where there is no trusting of one another there is strife and confusion. The rich oppressed the poor, judges accepted bribes, the prophets flattered to make fat their purses, and the poor were "fleeced" by the nobles. Commercialism and materialism overpowered that which was ethical and spiritual. Micah attempted to bring the people back to God and duty. It was more than likely through the influence of Micah that Hezekiah started his reform.

Micah was a type of Jesus, for when Micah saw the poor oppressed and downtrodden, he had compassion on them and pleaded their cause, condemning the oppressors and breaking the bands of the rich. So Jesus loved the poor, and preached unto them the things concerning the Kingdom of God, pleading their cause, condemning the Pharisees and scribes, healing the sick, blind, crippled, and lepers. He was a helper to the needy, and Saviour to the lost. When Jesus returns, He will correct earth's sad conditions. The present state of affairs in the world is as terrible as in Micah's day, if not worse. Today we are in need of many Micahs, yet more—even the Christ. There is now a lack of confidence among all people throughout the whole world. Today the rich are not investing their money into new businesses as in former days, but are hoarding it at the expense of the poor.

Micah's message supplemented Isaiah's. They were contemporaries. Isaiah was a courtier, while Micah was a rustic from a small village. Micah was an evangelist and sociologist, but Isaiah was a statesman.

Micah prophesied of the destruction of Jerusalem. The people of Jerusalem would not believe his prophecy, however, because they said, "None evil can come upon us" (Micah 3:11). Micah's prophecies of the Kingdom of God are very good, his influence raised the standard of religion and ethics, and his whole message was against those who lived in luxury and selfishness. Although they gave costly gifts, they were hypocrites and vampires in the sight of God—sucking the lifeblood of the poor.

Micah's message can be divided into three parts, with the words "Hear ye" introducing every part. The three main parts of his message are as follows:

(1) In chapters 1-3, he rebuked the officers of the church and state. He was the first to predict the destruction of Jerusalem. Sinners were denounced for their wickedness, and told of the judgment. Ministers of today speak too little about the judgment of God, and they seldom warn people that God will destroy the wicked and hypocrites. As the hypocrites in Micah's day flattered to increase their income, so are the circumstances today. People are turned to sinning against God, and glory in the fact. As Micah prophesied the destruction, he also prophesied the restoration. He gave the Israelites the bitter, but with it the "honey of the word," that there would be no bad taste in their mouths.

(2) In chapters 4, 5, Micah looked to the coming glory with the promises of salvation, including Christ's reign in the Kingdom. Micah and many prophets figured the future by the present. Prophecies sometimes have a double and triple application, and sometimes more.

In the coming deliverance of Judah, perhaps from Sennacherib (705 B.C.), he saw the future triumph of righteousness. The importance of two pictures are illuminated before us—the exaltation of Zion, and the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem.

In chapter 4:1-5, he saw the future glory of Jerusalem, how it will be in the Kingdom of God which is to come. Pilgrimages will be made there to learn the law of God. Jerusalem, as the center of the world, with Christ as King of Kings and Lord of Lords, will be the praise of the earth. This long-looked-for Golden Age will come when Christ returns. Then as the Jews look upon Him whom they crucified, many will accept Him as their Saviour and King.

Beginning with chapter 5:2, we have prophecies of the Messiah's birth. Micah was the first to point out the birthplace of the Christ. Christ was to be born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the City of David, according to Micah. Seven hundred years later, the Magi or Wise Men, in the days of Herod the Great, with the help of the Jewish rabbis, obtained from this scripture the direction to continue their journey in search of the new-born babe, Jesus (Matt. 2:1-6).

(3) In chapters 6, 7, the people of Micah's day are said to have considered God as a hard, exacting Master, requiring unjust dues. By cruel means they tried to atone for their sins by offering the fruit of their bodies. They were making their own (Please turn to page 10)

Christian Preparedness

By Robert Hardesty

---

"Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come" (Matthew 24:44).

WITH so much turmoil and unrest in Europe and the Middle East, the attention of citizens of the United States has been drawn to the building of a great mechanized army, powerful enough to "stop Hitler." It will take many years for the United States to "catch up" to Germany in production of military equipment, for Germany started preparing long before the United States. Years ago, Germany saw the necessity of preparation, long in advance of the beginning of any attempted conquests she might make. Germany started building airplanes, tanks, and guns. She began training her youth for the army, while other nations were conducting peace conferences and disarmament programs. Finally, when Mr. Hitler was rebuked by Great Britain for marching into Austria and Czechoslovakia, he was not afraid of the threats, for he was better prepared than anyone else, and he knew it.

For an army to be successful in its encounters, it must have modern military equipment, well-trained men to operate that equipment, and a strong morale. If it has the necessary equipment and trained men, but lacks the spirit of enthusiasm and confidence, it cannot hope to succeed. If it has good equipment and high spirits, but lacks well-trained and organized men, it will certainly suffer defeat. Likewise, if it has great manpower and strong morale, yet has not the equipment necessary for modern warfare, its efforts in battle will be hopeless.

Preparation is necessary in other phases of life, as well as in the army. Children are sent to schools to prepare them for later life; to prepare them that they might live more comfortably and more prosperously, and that they might be good citizens. Persons who wish to prepare themselves for certain vocations often attend special schools to obtain a more thorough background in their particular fields of work.

If preparation is so important for things of a worldly nature, should we not stress preparedness on the part of the Christian? The church cannot afford to be slow in its preparedness program, for the hour of the Lord's coming is drawing near. Developments in the reclaiming and rebuilding of Palestine, and international developments seem to indicate that the time is not far off when the faithful will see their Lord.

The church's preparation is similar to that of military preparation. The church, like an army, must have good equipment, well-trained men, and a high spirit of enthusiasm. In Ephesians 6:13-18, we read of the equipment of the soldiers for Christ. This equipment is called "the . . . armour of God," and consists of truth, righteousness, preparation of the gospel, faith, salvation, and the Word of God.

Like the army, if the church lacks any one of the three important attributes, it cannot operate efficiently and successfully. Herein lies the weakness of the church. It may have good equipment, and it may have the necessary enthusiasm, but it does not have a large enough standing army of trained men—pastors, teachers, and Christian workers. The church needs trained men in the service of the Lord.

The Master Is Coming

Written by Chesta Fulmer

Selected by Earl Wheelock

They said, "The Master is coming to honor the town today,
And none can tell to what house or home the Master will choose to stay."
And I thought, while my heart beat wildly, What if He should come to mine?
How should I strive to honor and entertain the guest Divine?
And straightway I went to toiling, to make my home more neat;
I swept and polished and garnished and decked it with blossoms sweet.
I was troubled for fear the Master might come ere my task was done;
So I hastened and worked the faster, and watched the hurrying sun.
But right in the midst of my duties a woman came to my door,
She had come to tell me her sorrow, and my comfort and aid implore.
And I said: "I cannot listen or help you any today,
I am looking for a greater and nobler Guest," and the woman went away.
But soon there came another, a cripple, old and gray,
And said, "Oh, let me rest a while at your home, I pray;
I have traveled far since morning: I'm hungry, faint, and weak."
And I said, "I cannot listen or help you any today,
I am looking for a greater and nobler Guest." And the pleader went away.
And the day wore onward swiftly, and my task was nearly done,
And a prayer was ever in my heart, that the Master yet might come,
And I thought I should spring to meet Him, and treat Him with utmost care,
When a little child stood by me with a face so sweet and fair—
Sweet, but with marks of teardrops, and his clothes were tattered and old,

A finger was bruised and bleeding, and his little bare feet were cold.
And I said: "I am sorry for you; you are sorely in need of care,
But I cannot stop to give it, you must hasten elsewhere."
And at the words a shadow swept o'er the blue-veined brow.
I said, "Someone will clothe and feed you, dear, but I'm too busy now."
At last the day was ended; my toil was over and done.
My house was swept and garnished, and I watched in the dusk alone.
Watched, but no footfall sounded, no one paused at my gate;
No one entered my cottage door—I could only pray and wait.
I watched till night had deepened, and the Master had not come;
"He has entered some other door," I cried, "and gladdened some other home."
My labor had been for nothing, and I bowed my head and wept;
My heart was sore with longing, yet in spite of it all I slept.
Then the Master stood before me, and His face was grave and fair.
"Three times today I have come to your door, and craved your pity and care;
Three times today you have sent me onward, uncared for, unhelped.
And the blessing you might have received is lost, and your chance to serve is fled:
The poor you have always with you; they are ever in need of a friend.
And as often as ye give them food to eat, those gifts to your Master you lend.
Whenever you give them cold water, or whatever their needs may be,
You're aiding not only my little ones, but you're also helping me."

"Oh Lord! Dear Lord, forgive me, how could I know it was Thee?"
My very soul shamed and bowed in the depth of humility

And He said: "The sin is pardoned, but the blessing is lost to thee;
For failing to comfort the least of mine, you have failed to comfort me."

"Quid Pro Quo"

---

Selected by R. A. Curtis

---

SOMETHING for something is an unfailing law of nature. The farmer sows seed in the fruitful earth, expecting to reap a glorious harvest. So, for every act, we look for a return of good or evil, as the deed merits.

The veriest schoolboy knows this law and knows that persistent, vociferous demands at home will often obtain his wishes, and knows full as well the painful quid which at that same home will follow the quo of truancy from school. The inexperienced man embarks on the treacherous sea of business, and, shipwrecked in his contact with shrewder men of the world, learns, by experience, that wisdom and prudence which he greatly needs.

The anxious politician, always working for the good of his country, needs, like the old god Janus, two faces looking in opposite directions, that he may better appreciate the wants of men and the way to please them: for he must allure this one by flattery, and conciliate that one by generous promises, until his ways of pleasing are almost exhausted. And although his scheming, planning, and striving seldom secure for him that which he most desires, yet he gets his quid pro quo in a clearer insight into the hearts of men, and—should he profit by their mistakes—in becoming a wiser and better man.

The skillful lawyer, ingeniously uses each little thread of argument in so many ways, that, when he concludes, "the two reasons he started with are as two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of chaff: you may search all day ere you find them, and when you have them they are not worth the search." And as few have the patience to seek thus diligently, the lawyer distinguishes himself as a sophister.

The pale student—too often feeding his midnight lamp with the oil of life—lives scantily, and like Chaucer's Clerk of Oxford, prefers books to costly attire. His returns are the well disciplined mind and thorough knowledge which qualify him to fill any position honorably and well. The scientist pores over each page of nature's vast volume, not out of mere curiosity, but to disclose to the world the grand truths hidden there. Is his mission not a noble one? Is not even a Newton or a Franklin in some degree repaid by the honor reflected on his cause, as he blesses and enlightens the world by useful discoveries? Such men have done much to dispel the cloud of superstition that has hitherto darkened the intellect of mankind. Where a people once trembled at sight of a comet, looking upon it as an omen of evil, we see a work of beauty and grandeur worthy the Creator's hand.

The careful, toiling mother bears upon her patient shoulders a burden of care and responsibility greater than that of fabled Atlas. In return, she is loved with that deep, fervent love that only a mother can inspire; for where is the true man or woman who does not hold the name of "mother" sacred? Nearly all of our great men attribute their greatness largely to the influence of a loving mother. That influence will live long after her patient heart has ceased to beat, and in after days "her children will rise up and called her blessed."

"Oh! in our sterner manhood when no ray
Of earlier sunshine glimmers on our way,
When girt with sin and sorrow, and the toil
Of cares, which tear the bosom that they soil!
Oh! if there be in retrospection's chain,
One link that binds us with young dreams again,
One thought so sweet we hardly dare to muse,
On all the hoarded raptures it reviews,
Which seems each instant in its backward range
The heart to soften and its ties to change,
And ev'ry spring untouched for years to move,
It is the memory of a mother's love."

The poet—"artist of the mind"—pours out his soul in streams of beautiful fancy, not only for self-gratification, but that those who are less sensitive to the beauties of nature may, through his eyes, behold them blended in beautiful pictures. What the far-off rivers and mountains are to the city, the poet is to society: sending down streams of noble inspiration and fresh, purifying winds of feeling to those who dream least from what source they come. And in return, he is inscribed upon the hearts of men as himself an immortal poem wrought by hands divine.

Milton must have felt the force and comfort of the following lines, as he rolled his eyes in vain for one piercing ray, but found no dawn. To him, day came not, nor the sweet approach of even or morn.

"Over our hearts and into our lives,
Shadows must sometimes fall:
But the sunshine is never wholly dead,
For heaven is shadowless overhead,
And God is over all."

But that the clearness and brightness of his spiritual vision reconciled him to his physical blindness we know. "So much the rather, Thou celestial light, shine inward, and the mind through all its powers irradiate, that I may see and tell of things invisible to mortal sight."

So all through life, each person receives a quid pro quo. Therefore, let us take heed what seed we sow, mindful ever of the harvest time, for He who noteth when even a sparrow falls to the ground will not let one of our deeds pass unrewarded. And let us put our talents to the best possible use and we shall find that our bread cast upon the water shall not come to nought, but shall return with loaves added. And at last, when we are crowned with the fruits of a well spent life, we shall be gathered as ripened sheaves for one Eternal Harvest Home.

THE LIFE AND PROPHECIES OF MICAH

burdens heavier. The Lord required of them to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with God. Micah denounced them for their sinfulness. He told them of their moral degeneration of official and domestic life. There was not a good man left. "The best of them is as a brier" (7:4).

Jerusalem was predicted to become desolate; also the prophecies were given of the rebuilding, and of Judah's becoming re-established, when there will be gracious conditions under the pardon, love, and providence of God.

Following are the three great texts of Micah:

(1) "Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of a forest" (3:12). This text is important because it was remembered for over a century, and was the means of saving Jeremiah's life (Jer. 26:18).

(2) "Thou, Bethlchem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (5:2).

(3) "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" This verse reminds one of Jesus' two commandments: to love God, and to love one's neighbor as himself.

Pennies—Students—Progress

While recently working in Ohio, we visited a brother of the faith who started last fall to save every penny which came into his possession, that he might have a "boost" for the Summer Training School. While in his home, he brought us two glass tumblers of pennies; they were poured out and counted, making a total of about seven dollars.

"Now," said this brother, "if many of our people would do this, there could be any number of our worthy young members attend the Summer Bible Training School by the help of the saved pennies." In his modesty, this brother asked us not to mention his name, but thought it well to tell others that he saved several dollars in pennies in a few months—all to the credit of the Summer Bible Training School. . . . Save your pennies, contribute your savings to worthy students, and watch the School progress.

A REAL DADDY

"I would rather be the daddy
Of a romping, roguish crew,
Of a bright-eyed chubby laddie
And a little girl or two,
Than the monarch of a nation
In his high and lofty seat,
Taking empty adoration
From the subjects at his feet.

"I would rather own their kisses
As at night to me they run,
Than to be the king who misses
All the simpler forms of fun.
When his dreary day is ending,
He is dismally alone,
But when my sun is descending
There are joys for me to own.

"He may ride to horns and drumming,
I must walk a quiet street,
But when once they see me coming
Then on joyous, flying feet
They come racing to me madly,
And I catch them with a swing,
And I say it proudly, gladly,
That I'm happier than a king."

best in religious education. We want them to know the only true and living God. We want them to know Jesus Christ as a living Saviour. The eternal issues of life are more important than the present, therefore, we will invest of the present to help prepare for the future.

Our young people are as capable, efficient, and energetic as can be found. They will become only as spiritual as they are taught. What will your boys or girls be worth, if they gain the whole world and lose their own souls?

This rare opportunity is placed before us. Will we accept the challenge? For a short time God is opening the windows of heaven with material blessings. The responsibility rests with those whom God has so blessed. Will you respond now?

This appeal is being made while we yet have time to act and make provision for the spiritual training of our young people. Pray earnestly to God concerning the amount He would have you give, and then send it in for His glory.

THE NEW WORLD ORDER

and inventions is found the best evidence that, used in righteousness by the King of Kings in the coming "New World Order," they are adequately fitted to be the "tools" of the coming Kingdom. Such use appeals to our practical minds, as it is now possible to see how perfectly feasible, and by what means, plus others not yet revealed, Christ will accomplish the foretold promised rule of this world in righteousness from a central geographical point, namely, Jerusalem in Palestine.

According to Bible history, all previous periods have ended in violence and rebellion against God and His plan. In point of time, we are now coming very near to the climax of this present period, and it can be readily seen from present conditions that its close will follow the foregoing given rule, namely, that it will end in violence and rebellion against God and His plan. It might be added that, in fact, the coming climax will be cumulative of all previous periods, as the close of each period is of ever-widening and greater scope than hitherto.

The cause of these recurring climaxes is the basic and agelong conflict between God and Satan, good and evil. Evil always brings about the breakdown at the end of each period, and then God again constructively infuses His Spirit into the world through instruments of His own choosing. We, then, see the commencement of a new period.

A very important thing to note is that when the time of climax gets near, and the pace of events quicken, there is always a distinct overlapping period of time when one period is passing rapidly away and the new period is emerging. The times in which we are now living are such an overlapping period.

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

For years, we have wished that a really worthwhile book on the problem of conducting church services would be produced. The desire of our heart has been answered—by the publication of Albert W. Palmer's The Art of Conducting Public Worship, a 211-page volume to delight the soul of anyone who feels that the average congregation has much to learn in the matter of real devotion and in-church conduct.

The Art of Conducting Public Worship (Macmillan; $2.50) has no brief for the completely formalized church—but it has still less brief for the completely informal service. Chapters are practical; they consider every need of the congregation, from silence before, during, and following services to the place of the sacraments and of prayer. Whether one is an active minister, engaged constantly in a struggle to impress his congregation with the need for a more devotional attitude toward the church and its services, or a layman who merely attends church regularly, Dr. Palmer's volume has important value.

The book is not one to advise extreme modernism in the name of attracting large crowds. "Worship and theology . . . are inextricably related. . . . Suppose a theology grips our lives by which we think of God as a present, sustaining and creating Power, a contemporary Force and integrating Intelligence . . . with whose thrilling presence we may come into harmony? . . . At once worship takes on a depth of emotional feeling, an immediacy and an urgency, which fill it with new significance and earnestness." Who but a Fosdick—modernist supreme—could argue with this conclusion of Dr. Palmer? For positive, dogmatic teaching is as important to devotion as vague generalizations on the state of society and the need for greater faith.

Sample services are included in the book, together with concrete suggestions for conducting special services of all types. Would that every member of the Church of God could read and then would practice the tenets expressed in the chapter entitled, "Where Worship Fails Today"! And the check list of twenty-six items to be considered in conducting public worship services is as practical a thing as we have seen for any minister.

"So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed" (Acts 19:20).

Paul in Asia

Last week we left Paul in Europe. There is a period of about three years between our last lesson and this one.

The "Asia" of our New Testament is not the continent of Asia as it is today, but a country just north of the Mediterranean Sea and south of the Black Sea. It is the western part of what is now called Asia Minor. Find it on one of your Bible maps.

As usual, Paul went to the Jewish synagogue to begin his ministry. Also, as usual, some Jews were stirred up against him, so he stopped preaching in the synagogue after three months. He continued his preaching in a school nearby. "This continued by the space of two years; so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks" (19:10).

Four Groups Stirred

The Word of God is "quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword" (Heb. 4:12). Some of the Jews of whom we have just read were stirred up against Paul's teaching of the gospel. They wouldn't accept it.

Demetrius, a silversmith, who made images of their idol, Diana, was stirred because he was losing trade. What person would want to buy idols after learning of Jesus?

Demetrius told the others who were of his craft and they, too, became stirred. They gathered in their usual meeting place, a theater at the foot of a mountain just east of the city of Ephesus. They surely were "stirred," for they shouted praises to their goddess Diana, and caused others to join them just because of their noise.

So many joined the craftsmen that a mob was formed. We know there isn't much thinking done in that kind of a group. Paul said that this group was confused "and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together" (Acts 19:32). We would say today that the most of the mob didn't know why they were gathered there.

It is too bad these groups were not stirred to Paul and to accepting the gospel, isn't it? However, many did believe and accepted Christ.

Business or God First?

You boys and girls find odd jobs to help your parents and to earn some spending money during summer vacation. Perhaps you mow lawns, take care of children, or work in gardens.

As you grow older the kind of work may change. Remember to accept work where you can put God first. You will have to decide about that yourself. Some work leads away from God. In Proverbs 28:7 we read in part: "He that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father." It is well also to learn the words of Paul: "Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners" (1 Cor. 15:33).

So, in order to enjoy your work, choose work where you can glorify God. Jesus bought us with His own blood. "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Cor. 6:19, 20).

Speak Gently

"Speak gently: It is better far
To rule by love than fear;
Speak gently: Let no harsh words mar
The good we might do here.

"Speak gently, kindly to the poor;
Let no harsh word be heard.
They have enough they must endure,
Without an unkind word.

"Speak gently to the erring; know
They must have toiled in vain;
Perchance unkindness made them so,
Oh, win them back again."

Patterns

By Lorraine Gaspar

Our characters are patterns that we are building or weaving every day of our lives, and little do we realize the actual value of that on which we are working, or how important it is to produce a flawless piece of work.

As a weaver in a woolen mill, I have often compared weaving to living and man's daily activities. First, it takes time for the worker to adjust himself to the work and the correct method for turning out quality work in the shortest possible time—very similar to the lives we live. Our childhood is spent in learning the right from the wrong and adjusting ourselves to a way of living. Just as a weaver needs a patient teacher—one who will take time and effort to stress the right way of doing a thing, one who will carefully point out the errors and tirelessly explain again and again—so a child needs every effort that an elder can put forth to be taught the right from the wrong. The right way being found, there is the necessity to adjust the Christian way to harmonize with man's life, that the Christian might be the pattern that the world can see every day and can examine to see if it is flawless. What happens when there is a flaw? Then we receive criticism and condemnation; there must always be an account given for the cause of that, and then the judgment.

Like a weaver, the Christian must produce quality as well as quantity—if he can't work he is out of a job, and if he continually produces bad material, there is no place for him. A perfect pattern denotes quality. Every care must be taken that the pattern runs true, with no breaks or flaws. Any error can easily be found by an inspector, for nothing escapes his eye. When errors are found, they must be explained. A few are forgiven when they are committed unknowingly, but it is always apparent when the imperfect material is the work of a shirker—one who is solely after the reward—and when the accounts are added up, this one is "docked" or relieved of his job.

God is our great Inspector, and when the material that is our lives is completed, may that great Judge find that our pattern has run true; that it is colorful with rich love and service toward our fellow men, deep tones of sympathy, shades of sorrows, bright spots of mirth and happiness, and mellow tones of love throughout. May we merit forgiveness for the errors that we have committed and commendation for the quantity of work that we have produced—we are doing it for our Master, but our own reward is rich. After our work is satisfactorily done at the end of our day, we find rest—sweet rest.

Major in the Things That Matter

By Mary Richardson

As a general rule, a person taking a course at college majors in one subject and minors in still another. The subject in which a person majors is generally the one he likes best and is the one he desires to make the basis for his future career. Therefore, he is trained more specifically in that field of study.

The Christian in his daily walk of life should also major in things that matter—those that will help him to gain entrance into the Kingdom of God when it is established on the earth. What are the things that matter? Jesus Christ, while here on earth, was the perfect pattern of the things that matter. He taught that the development of the human personality according to His pattern would promote the welfare and happiness of humanity and create within men the desire to do the will of God. If God rules in the lives and affairs of men, the things that matter are made manifest there. Truth, goodness, honesty, faith, purity, service, and above all, love—these are the attributes that should belong to the Christian; these are the things that matter. The growing and ever-expanding Christian will not be lured from them by the glamour of the world, a "good time," or fickle promises of men and riches. He realizes the truth of the great statement, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God . . . and all these things shall be added unto you." The Christian's life is dedicated in service to the Lord, and to this end are his efforts concentrated. Life is short, and one has but one life to live. That one life permits no minoring in the things that matter; the things that matter are the growing Christian's majors. In what are you going to major?

"Silver that is not used soon loses its bright luster. Then it has to be polished. Ideals that are not lived tarnish before long and grow less shining. Better get out both your silver and your ideals and look them over. It does n't pay to let them become too dull."

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

As a climax of a week's series of meetings and as a part of the Illinois Quarterly Conference, it was the privilege of the undersigned to assist Loretta Wiggins in putting on Christ in the waters of baptism.

Loretta is young as devotees of Christ go, but her interest in the things of the Bible has led her to an understanding of the principles of faith far in excess of her years. We are, therefore, very happy that it has prompted the determination of this young lady to associate herself with Christ, and our prayers are with her in her forward walk in life.

CONFERENCE ELECTION DAY

We are instructed by President L. E. Conner to announce that the annual election of officers of the General Conference of the Church of God will be held at 3:00 p.m., Friday, August 1, 1941. This will be the first Friday of General Conference.

We, therefore, also urge all churches to quickly report their membership and name their delegates on the delegate forms recently

"Western Nebraska is being blessed with a wonderful small grain crop. Harvest has already begun."—Mrs. Allen Johnson, Freedom, Nebr.

"I would like to have attended the Summer Bible Training School; perhaps in a year or two I shall be able to spend a summer with you. Bro. T. A. Drinkard told me about the School and urged me to attend. . . . There are sixteen members of the Church of God back here now."—Keith Rector, Jericho Springs, Mo.

"I sincerely hope that the Summer Training School and General Conference, too, will have a great attendance, and that many may be taught the truth, accept, obey, and live it. These are perilous times in which we live. Who knows but what this war might develop into that last war, and that the Kingdom of God is about ready to be established? Will there not be an abundance of plowshares and pruning hooks beaten out of these implements of war? We are studying, watching the trends, and waiting for the coming of the Lord."—R. O. Turner, Boynton, Okla.

Bro. C. E. Lapp, Macomb, Ill., was a recent visitor with friends in Oregon, Ill., and used the opportunity to visit the Summer Bible Training School.

"We cannot accuse Abram (not Abraham) of adultery. God at no time during Old Testament times forbade men having more than one wife. Abram married Hagar. . . . It seems that God approved men each having more than one wife to quicken the populating of the earth."—Alfred Anthon, Corvallis, Ore.

Sr. John Railton, 1110 Rockton Ave., Rockford, Ill., who is gathering material for the Sunday school exhibit at the General Conference, reports that the first material has been received from Sr. William Lansbery of Casey, Ill.

Thank you: "Enclosed is an offering from the Los Angeles Sunday school for the Golden-Rule-Home Bank Fund. . . . We trust it may do its bit toward providing a home for one of God's servants. . . . I am taking this opportunity to thank the staff of the National Bible Institution for consecrated services rendered during the past year."—Mrs. G. E. Marsh, 230 W. 103 St., Los Angeles, Calif.

"Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Handley, Texas, closed an eight-days' series of meetings June 29. The good Word of God was sowed in many hearts. At the close of the meeting, every hand was raised in token of wanting Bro. Drinkard to return for a longer series of meetings."—Elder J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla.

Sr. Rhoda Hanson, Caledonia, Mich., wishes to know the names and addresses of any and all "honest to goodness" brethren in the faith who live in Philadelphia. If the reader knows of any brethren residing there, please advise Sr. Hanson.

INDIANA CONFERENCE AND BIBLE SCHOOL

One of Indiana's most interesting and successful conferences and Bible Schools of recent years was held June 18-29. Classes were held for all ages, with an enrollment of one hundred ten. The adult class was led by Bros. J. H. Anderson and F. L. Austin; the intermediate class (high school age) by Bros. F. L. Austin, J. R. LeCrone, and F. A. Stilson; the junior class by Bros. J. R. LeCrone, Celaine Randall, and Otto Dick; the primary class by Srs. Lulu Stilson and Doris Rouch; the kindergarten class by Srs. Dick and Rouch.

The youngsters held a weiner roast at the close of the Bible School, and the last Sunday a basket dinner was held on the church lawn.

Near the close of the School five young people came forward and accepted Christ as their Saviour. Those baptized are: Sally Uline of Nappanee; Syble Stilson, 1020 Irvington Ave., South Bend; Norma Fritz, R.F.D., Plymouth; Phyllis and Maurice Minor of South Port; and Donald Schaal, Rt. 1, Plymouth. We pray that they may continue steadfast in the way they have chosen, and that we may be inspired by their example to rededicate our lives in Christ's service.

Officers elected for the Conference year of 1941-42 are: president, Ernest Logan, Lakeville; first vice president, Rolland Stilson, 1020 Irvington Ave., South Bend; second vice president, Don Huffer, Michigantown; treasurer, Willard Naylor, Nappanee; secretary, Edgar Harvey, Kokomo; and Berean president, Pearl Zechiel, Culver.

WHITE PINE, MINNESOTA

Last year we had the pleasure of hearing Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick speak to us a few times as a visitor. In that short time, he awakened such interest that plans were made to have him with us this year for a longer time, to bring us a series of sermons.

He has been with us the past week, and is even more interesting than we had expected. Each talk, a complete lesson in itself, follows up the preceding talk, giving us a clear understanding of Bible truths, yet leaving a desire to think over what he has said in order to get every good thought intended. We are looking forward to another profitable week of these meetings.

We sincerely hope it may be the privilege of many in other places to someday hear Bro. Kirkpatrick and receive the blessing of God's Word, brought to them in the way we have had it brought to us in the past week.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

We have no additions to the School list since last week, although we do have a few new ones to the "late" list. Some have committed their second offense.

We are studying scriptures now that will prove to be very valuable to us in later life.

We are very proud of our teachers, and like all the subjects except English, although it is essential to public speaking.

Paul said, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). We and our teachers are trying our best to live up to this verse. We hope to do better when the course is completed.

ILLINOIS QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The State Quarterly Conference, held at Eldorado, July 28 and 29, was enjoyed by all who were there, and the attendance surpassed last year's record. The Oregon, Marshall, Macomb, Ripley, and Fredericktown (Mo.) churches were represented.

The redecoration of the Eldorado church and the hospitality of these brethren proved they had really been working to make this conference a success. There are many evidences that this church is steadily growing, and we pray God's blessing to continue upon it.

Mrs. Frank Laning, Secy.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO WORKING RULES

Pursuant to instructions of the last General Conference, a change in the system of representation has been prepared and will be proposed for adoption at the forthcoming General Conference. This is an important matter of business and calls for the careful consideration of all.

ANNA M. WERTZ

Anna Matilda Mitchell Wertz, daughter of Martin and Thirza Herrington Mitchell, was born October 18, 1858, in Jo Daviess County, Ill., and died July 2, 1941, at her home on North Broad Street, Lanark, Ill.

At the age of sixteen years, she accepted Jesus Christ as her Saviour and was baptized in His name by Elder John S. Arnold. She was married to Marshal N. Wertz, December 24, 1885. To this union there were born two children, Charles M. and Almeda Wertz, both of Lanark. She also leaves one brother, Stephen Mitchell of Lanark. Her husband preceded her in death eleven years ago. Three sisters also preceded her in death. With the exception of seven years spent in Kansas, her entire life was spent near her birthplace.

Funeral services were held in the Speer's undertaking parlors by the writer, assisted by Elder L. E. Conner of Oregon, Ill., after which she was laid to rest in the beautiful Lanark cemetery to await the object of her lifelong hope, the coming of her Lord and King.

S. J. Lindsay.

MATTISON - BUDROW

Sr. Margaret Mattison and Elroy Budrow were married on the afternoon of June 22, 1941, in a very pretty lawn service at the bride's home, Oregon, Ill., with only the immediate families present. Both these young people are musically inclined and this played its part in bringing them together. Margaret has often been called upon to use her violin in the services of the church, not only in Oregon, but in other localities as well, and has given very acceptable service in other directions. Both she and her husband have been attendants at the Northern Illinois Normal at DeKalb. They will make their home in Oregon and will be engaged in the activities of the church here and in the vocations of their choice.

Margaret is our granddaughter and this service made the third grandchild at whose marriage we have officiated. May God bless them all and may they find it a pleasant service to render unto God the things due Him for His goodness to them.

S. J. Lindsay.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53,54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him. (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

John's Baptism (Editorial by Harry A. Sheets)

Apollos, "an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures . . . spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord . . . shewing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ" (Acts 18:24-28). His preaching was effective and converts were made. But of him it was said that he knew "only the baptism of John." This baptism was in keeping with his preaching, for he was preaching the message of John. We have Paul's testimony (Acts 19:4) that John taught the people to believe on Jesus, repent, and be baptized.

We have heard candidates for baptism make their confession of faith by answering the following questions: "Do you believe Jesus is the Son of the Living God?" "Do you accept Him as your personal Saviour?" "Do you repent of your sins and desire baptism?" We have seen this confession followed by baptism, but since their confession was the same as that exacted by Apollos, we conclude that the baptism administered was John's and not Christ's.

We do not know the full extent of Philip's preaching to the eunuch, but the confession as recorded in Acts 8:37, is: "I believe that Jesus is the Son of God." This confession belongs to John's preaching and should precede John's baptism. However, verse 37 is not found in the early manuscripts. It appears to have been added some time after the Book of Acts was written. All the recent translations omit this verse. We assume that the eunuch received Christian baptism, since Philip, led by the Spirit, would hardly make a mistake.

Wherein, then, is John's baptism different from the baptism of Christ?

Christian Baptism

Prior to his conversion of the eunuch, Philip had been preaching to the people of Samaria. The record is that "when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8:12).

When the church at Jerusalem heard that members had been added at Samaria, they sent Peter and John to them. When these two apostles arrived, they imparted the Holy Ghost to these converts, thus recognizing the validity of their baptism. Contrast this with the actions of Paul when he came to the converts of Apollos. He did not grant the gift of the Holy Ghost until after he had rebaptized these people.

As far as we have ever been able to determine from the Scriptures, there was but one essential difference between John's baptism and Christ's. That difference is the preaching of the gospel. Christian baptism always was preceded by the preaching, and accepting of the Kingdom of God.

This difference is vital. Let us never lose sight of this fact. Jesus said: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Wherever the apostles went, they preached the gospel of the Kingdom. When the people heard this gospel, repented, and requested baptism, they were baptized and granted the gift of the Holy Ghost. This gift was a stamp of approval upon the baptism administered. The baptism of John never received such approval after the instituting of Christian baptism.

John's preaching and baptism were required of God and were sufficient in their appointed time. It was all God demanded then. Like the law, the preaching and baptism of John brought the people to Christ, but it did not make them Christ's. There was no salvation in the law, neither was there salvation in John's baptism. Both were temporary measures and ended with the coming of Christ.

Paul claimed that the gospel was the "power of God unto salvation" (Rom. 1:16). Since baptism is the seal of our faith in, and acceptance of, the gospel, it then follows that the gospel is a prerequisite to baptism. There is no other logical conclusion.

Since Paul rebaptized those who merely believed on Jesus and repented, does it not follow that all others should be rebaptized if they believed only that one fact at their baptism? We find no one being rebaptized who had been baptized following his acceptance of the gospel of the Kingdom of God.

We trust, and pray, that the Church of God will never lose sight of the importance of the Kingdom. It is an absolute prerequisite to Christian baptism.

The Words of Life

By Vernis Wolfe

"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" (Hebrews 1:1, 2).

THE law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster" (Gal. 3:24, 25). An understanding of this particular purpose of the "law" aids the Bible student in a better understanding of the divine revelation. The law served as a preparatory discipline for Christ, for the law was given to man because of his transgressions to make his iniquity take on the character of "transgression."

Paul, by his experience, found that the old law had become void by the works of Christ, for he said, "The commandment, which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death" (Rom. 7:10). Paul also said: "The Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death . . . Ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption" (Rom. 8:2, 15).

"Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law. But the scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe" (Gal. 3:21, 22). "Thus, a believer is justified by Christ and placed, not a bondman under the law, but in the family of God by adoption. "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:26). "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another" (Rom. 12:5).

Manifestation of the Word

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (John 1:1). God has in times past created the heavens and the earth by His Word. (See Isa. 44:24, 27.) "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God" (Heb. 11:3). The word "Word," as found in John 1, means the utterance of a thought, so we can understand that "the same was in the beginning with God" (v. 2). Many honest people believe that the word "Word" is a synonym for Christ. By taking this view it becomes necessary to believe that Christ was present with God "in the beginning." May we suppose, for sake of study, that this view is true. By doing this we have made an open objection: that this would give us twins in the Godhead—for

"the Word was God." However, this we know is not true, for: "The Lord our God is one Lord" (Deut. 6:4), and "I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself" (Isa. 44:24). If they were "twins," or if they were not, such reasoning would lead us to conclude that the supposed "two" were coequal. We know by Scripture that they cannot be coequal, because: "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man" (Luke 2:52). If Christ were coequal with God, how could He increase in "favour with God"? By saying that Christ is a synonym for the word "Word" we have, at the death of Christ, the creature (man) killing the Creator. The Word was not manifest in the flesh until "God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law." Then, "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." The thought and utterance of that thought (concerning Christ) is revealed in prophecy, but before that prophecy is manifested it is not fulfilled. So, whatever is foretold by prophecy (such as Christ was) is not in existence until the prophecy itself is literally fulfilled. A sincere examination of the foregoing text will reveal the inconsistency of the teaching of the pre-existence of Christ.

To remove a "stumblingblock" from the path of some student, we shall notice the words in the last revelation of the Word of God: "He was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God" (Rev. 19:13). This is held by many to prove that the word "Word" always refers to Christ. However, we see that inasmuch as Christ was the medium between God and man, to speak the words of life, Christ became the Word of God. "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5). "He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him" (John 3:34). Christ "who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, . . . was manifest in these last times for you" (1 Peter 1:20).

The Words of Eternal Life

"The words that I (Christ) speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life. . . . Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? (Please turn to page 9)

The Purposes of Prayer

By Virginia Smith

SOON after Christ had chosen His Twelve Apostles, one of them came to Him, saying, "Lord, teach us to pray." We should desire the same thing, because we often ask and receive not, because we "ask amiss" (James 4:3). Prayer is the most precious experience and opportunity of life, yet many people do not understand its meaning and purpose.

Prayer is not a means to get something we may desire for our convenience, nor the act of a suppliant beggar. It is an active, beautiful, mutual friendship between God and His children. God is our Father. He is great and supremely interesting. He does not confine Himself to cathedrals or churchly realms. His is the atmosphere of gardens, mountains, flowers, music, life, and beauty. This is the setting for the sublime friendship between God and man. Prayer is availing oneself of this opportunity. Therefore, we should talk to God as a friend, not as the heathen do, for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking; nor should we pray to be seen of men as did the Pharisees who loved to pray standing in the synagogues and in the streets, for Christ said, "They have their reward." "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret, and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly" (Matt. 6:6).

There are four purposes of prayer. They are as follows: 1) prayer unfolds our lives into His likeness, 2) prayer empowers our lives for service, 3) prayer keeps us in touch with God so that we may have His constant guidance in service, and 4) prayer is our means of bringing blessings to others. Let us more fully study these four propositions.

Prayer unfolds our lives into His likeness. In 2 Corinthians 3:18 we read, "We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord." The presence of God beautifies our lives by changing them into the likeness of His.

Some think of prayer only as a means to get something desired, but we should not forget to thank God for the many blessings He has given us. David was a man after God's own heart, and we find him offering prayers of thanksgiving to God, often. On one occasion he said, "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me" (Psalm 66:18). If others have wronged us, we should forgive them, if we would have the Father forgive us our trespasses.

Prayer empowers our lives for service. Jesus often went alone into the desert to pray. During all His trials and temptations, He prayed to His Father. If He realized such need of prayer, how much more we should feel that prayer is needful, if we would live in Christian service! Prayer removes the apartness and preserves the nearness of God. His presence then becomes our strength, His life is the source of all we are, all we do, and all we say. Life apart from Christ is uninteresting and powerless. "Pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17). This does not mean to be constantly bowed in prayer, but to be ready at all times to send up petitions for help or thanksgiving to God.

Prayer builds unbroken fellowship. Unbroken fellowship means the steady empowering for every task, every emergency, and every opportunity. Learn to refuse cruelty and tyranny and anger and bitterness as you would the poison of a serpent. We find no need of anger, if we are more interested in the Father's will than in having our own way. Peace and quietness empower one for ministries of helpfulness. If we say only kind things, radiate only love, and remain quiet when falsely accused or misjudged, God will take care of us, for it is written, "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" (Rom. 12:19).

Prayer assures the divine guidance. Daily going to the Father in prayer for His guidance places our lives in His hands, so that each moment He may express Himself through us. The atmosphere of our lives, the words we speak, the light of sympathy and love on our faces, the heart interest we feel in all we meet, the spirit back of all our tasks, be they pleasant or unpleasant, the earnestness in our spirit of faithfulness, all have their ministry when our lives are under the guidance of the Master. A fully surrendered life is God's opportunity for getting into the world's life and cheering, comforting, helping, and gladdening human hearts. If our lives are fully surrendered to God, we shall not neglect prayer. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Prov. 3:5, 6). Unbroken fellowship and perfect obedience will make one's life great—not necessarily famous, but in lowly spheres or in great leadership, it matters not. Not many sway the multitudes, not many secure the world's applause, but all may deal kindly, wield rightly the powers they possess, conquer self, and secure the crown which awaits the faithful.

The supreme purpose of prayer is the ministry of intercession. If we would see people helped and blessed, cheered, encouraged, uplifted, and inspired, we must learn to pray. Power in prayer is the greatest power in the world. It is greater than the power of wealth, power of oratory, power of song, or any other power. Jesus said, "If ye ask any thing in my name, I will do it." So when we come in unbroken fellowship and unswerving loyalty to Jesus, that precious Name opens the Father's measureless storehouse of blessings. It is not because we have faith in our faith, but because of our faith in Jesus' standing with the Father. "Whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight" (1 John 3:22). If we would help others live better lives, we must not forget to pray. Truly, prayer changes things.

Baptism, Like Circumcision, a Seal of Faith

By Linford Moore, Jr.

---

IN ROMANS 4 we read of the faith of Abraham. Abraham was required to believe in the promise that God gave to him—that he and his seed were to be heirs of the world. After Abraham had believed, he received the sign of circumcision, which was a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had. We find, also, in the twelfth verse that we as Christians are to "walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham."

We conclude, then, that we also must first believe and exercise faith, and then affix a seal. We turn to Colossians 2:10-12, where we read, "Ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power: in whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ: buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." To me, this proves that Christian circumcision, which is of Christ made without hands, is baptism.

Baptism Is Essential

In Mark 16:15, 16, we read Christ's Great Commission given to the apostles. It is: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Thus, again, we find that baptism follows belief.

In business, a seal is necessary to make a transaction legal. This seal of baptism is also necessary for men to put on Christ and inherit eternal life.

In Acts 8:26-40, we find the story of Philip and the eunuch. The Spirit of the Lord caused Philip to go and preach unto the eunuch. When he arrived, he found the eunuch reading the Scriptures, but not understanding them. Philip then preached unto him Jesus Christ. Included in his teachings must have been something about the necessity of baptism, for a short time later the eunuch said, "See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" Philip then baptized him, for the eunuch believed with all his heart that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. Sinners cannot enter into the body of Christ without faith and baptism.

Morality Alone Cannot Save

We now go to Acts 10, where we consider the story of Cornelius. Looking at verse 2, we see that Cornelius was a devout man, one who feared God with all his house, one who gave alms to the people, and prayed to God always. These were indeed good moral qualities, yet Acts 11:13, 14 tell us that he was in an unsaved condition. He had yet to have Peter come unto him and baptize him. Before the baptism he was a moral man, but his moral goodness could not save him. After he had been baptized and received the Holy Ghost, he was in a safe condition.

Likewise, the certain young ruler who came, running and kneeling before Jesus, saying: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" was only a moral man. Jesus called his attention to certain commandments, to which the young ruler said, "All these have I kept from my youth up." Morality is incomplete without obedience.

Baptism's True Form Is Immersion

Romans 6 teaches that baptism is a symbol of Christ's death and resurrection. One must go into the watery grave and rise again to walk in newness of life. Verse 4 of this chapter and Colossians 2:12 tell us that baptism is a burial. Referring to John 3:23, we see that "much water" was needed for baptism. Do sprinkling and pouring require "much water"? Are they after the likeness of Christ's death and resurrection? A little reasoning will tell us that immersion is the only real type of baptism.

In conclusion: a person wishing to enter Christ and receive the gift of eternal life must first hear and believe the gospel. He then must exercise faith and repent of his sins. His faith must be sealed by baptism, following which he must faithfully live a righteous life.

The Greatest Show on Earth

By Timothy Pearson

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares" (Hebrews 13:2).

WOULD you invite an infidel into your home to spend the evening? If you are against doing so, take heed to Hebrews 13:2. What are we to learn from the Good Samaritan? He took good care of and entertained a Jew, a man not of his own people.

Why should we not entertain worldly people (in a Christian way, of course) in our homes? Many times in this manner people are brought to the church. "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" is God's command in Leviticus 19:18. It is good to entertain one's brother, but, as we read in the Word, "Take heed lest by any means this liberty of your's become a stumblingblock to them that are weak" (1 Cor. 8:9). We must refuse going to dances, avoid all cheap movies, be careful about going roller skating or entering buildings of low reputation. Though our presence or participation in these carnal amusements might not hurt us at all, someone else may be led astray by our actions, and we would have sinned by setting a wrong example.

Another question is whether or not we should enter saloons. In Psalm 26:5, David said: "I have hated the congregation of evil doers; and will not sit with the wicked."

Logic demands, though, that if we are to reach the hearts of unbelievers, we must in some manner associate with the unbelievers. To prove that being kind to our fellow men brings rich reward from God, the following story is quoted:

"Abou Ben Adam—may his tribe increase—awoke one night from a deep dream of peace, and saw, in the moonlight of his room, exceedingly bright and like a lily in bloom, an angel writing in a book of gold. Exceeding peace had made Ben Adam bold. "What writest thou?" asked Abou. The Vision raised its head and with a look made of all sweet accord answered, "The names of those who love the Lord." "And is mine one?" asked Abou. "Nay, not so," replied the angel. Abou spoke more low, but cheerily still, and said, "I pray thee, then, write me as one who loves his fellow men." The angel wrote and vanished. The next night it came again with a great wakening light, and showed the names of those whom love of God had blessed. Lo! Ben Adam's name led all the rest."

That merely goes to show that the greatest show on earth is living with one's brother in real brotherly fashion.

The next thought is that if we are kind to our brothers, we are halfway or more on our way of doing what Christ has commanded us, saying: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." We read in Proverbs 18:24, "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." That friend is Christ, our Lord and Master. We must be careful, however, with whom we make intimate friendship, for "who-soever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God" (James 4:4).

Christ was continually teaching that we should be kind to our brothers. He says in His second great commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." "If any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass: for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was." Therefore, if we hear the teachings of Christ about brotherly kindness and do them not, we are as one who has never heard them. In like manner, if we teach a thing and obey it not ourselves, we should never have taught it—as people very often say, "Practice what you preach."

According to John 10, we must enter the fold through Christ, the Door, and to do that we must love our fellow men, and associate with them after the example He established.

Now, putting ourselves and our brothers with Christ and ourselves, we find that by cancellation we get Christ and our brothers. If we have succeeded in converting a brother, will he not be in the Kingdom the

"GO, AND DO THOU LIKEWISE"

"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance there came down a certain priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

"But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

"Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among thieves?"

"And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise."

same as we? In the Judgment, it will be to no man's discredit if he has converted a man, but to his credit. The quickest way to win a friend is to do him a kindness. In the story of the Good Samaritan, we find verified the statement that "a friend in need is a friend indeed."

We must be careful how we present the gospel to our neighbors, for in Hebrews 8:11 we read, "They shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, (Please turn to page 11)

School Days

By Shirley Logsdon

---

WOULD you like to know something about our School? Well, just come sit down by me and I shall tell you of a day's work here.

As we are in school again, you know what that means—an article for The Restitution Herald. When we begin to think of what we are going to write, we say, "Why, there isn't a thing that I'm smart enough to write about." As we have only four days in which to write it, we hurry around and start thinking—the first time in ages!

I could never tell you all of the good times which we are having here. There are so many it would take all fourteen pages instead of one.

The first sound we usually hear in the morning is at seven o'clock when "Mom" rings the big bell. Some of us turn over and go back to sleep (one girl especially). Table waiters always have to get up, though, and hurry downstairs. Some of them stagger around half asleep.

At seven-thirty the bell rings again, and there is a mad scramble to get into our places at the table. One of the students reads a Scripture lesson and leads in prayer. There is then "grabbing" for the food. Someone is always calling for the strawberry preserves (one fellow especially). Sometimes, when certain people are table waiters, they hardly get a chance to eat.

After breakfast, the dishwashers and dryers get started on the dishes. The rest of us go to our rooms and clean them and we make up our beds. We then study our lessons. When it comes to English we are always trying to get adjectives, adverbs, and objects. It surely is a job.

At nine o'clock, we have a devotional service. Two different students lead this each morning. One leads the singing, and the other gives a talk.

At nine-thirty we have our first class. It is about Christ in the Old Testament. Brother S. J. Lindsay is our talented teacher in this course.

At ten-thirty we have our English class which is led by Brother Harry Sheets. Sometimes we get mixed up, but he always straightens us out.

At eleven-thirty we are out of classes for the morning. At this time we have dinner. We are always ready for the good meal that "Mom" has prepared for us.

At one o'clock we go back to our classes. Brother Lindsay takes over the class again. This time it is about Christ in the New Testament. There are so many things to learn, and we cannot accomplish everything in so short a time.

At two o'clock, Brother Sheets has the last class of the day. Salesmanship and Public Speaking are the lessons we study then.

When we get out of class at three o'clock, we run to our mail carrier to see if we have received any mail. Sometimes we are disappointed, but we get over that when a volley ball game is started. Then there is hard work to see which side will win the game. We have a very good player who pushes the ball right over the net down to the ground. Some of the others are learning that trick.

At five o'clock, we have supper, which is eaten with appreciation to "Mom" who is such a good cook. After supper we try to get our lessons (unless there is too much talking and laughing).

We are organizing a choir in which most of the students will take part. The leader of this organization is Brother Robert Hardesty, a student of the School.

Except on Tuesday and Saturday evenings, we are supposed to be in at nine-thirty, but on those two nights we get to be out until ten-thirty. If we are not in the dormitory by the time requested, there is always a tub full of dishes waiting for us the next day.

On Sunday mornings and evenings we have preaching at our church. Every Monday evening the local youths have a Bible study in which the students take part. Wednesday evening is prayer meeting night. Students also participate in this. Friday evening, the local choir has its practice. On the other three evenings we can do as we please. Although we have our fun, we study hard, too, that our coming here this summer will not be unsuccessful.

We are happy to say that six students are here that were here last year, and one that was here two years ago.

Thank you for listening!

The New World Order

In Two Parts—Part Two

By Arthur G. Young

BIBLE prophecy is not given to us to make prophets out of us, but that when the events long foretold occur, we may find our faith reaffirmed in the accuracy and truth of the Word of God, and to those who are willing to inquire into it with believing minds, that they will be able to understand what God's purpose is in and through events. It is much more important to discover what God's purpose is than to try merely to foretell coming events through interpretation of prophecy. The purpose of prophecy is not so much to enable us to see the future as to demonstrate after the event, that God could see it.

It must never be forgotten that if God is, then it is what He purposes that will be accomplished. Therefore, the efforts of man should be directed to discover God's purpose, and to see to it that their wills are in line. For men to pursue their own plans contrary to those of God's is just to invite defeat and disillusionment.

As previously said, this present period will end in violence of world-wide scope in which God and Satan, through their respective representatives, will come to final grips. There will be a final decision—make no mistake of that.

Always there is some locality where issues are decided. This is true not only in Bible history and prophecy, but in secular history and throughout life. However, following are two illustrations in proof of this fact: (1) It was in the locality of the Garden of Eden that the first test came. (2) It was in the locality of Palestine that our Lord's test occurred. Yet in both cases the results were of far wider application, both as to time and territory.

This will be so in the coming climax. Now again we see the stage set for its fulfillment in the land of Palestine. It is toward there that all the present events are tending to the inevitable showdown between God and Satan, and it is worth noting that from the Bible prophecies pertaining to current events, the tide of success of the evil forces has not yet reached the crest.

In the light of the Bible prophecies, we are seeing now either the most striking and remarkable coincidental duplication of foretold events, prophesied long years ago to exist at the close of this age, or we are now seeing in this present war and its developments the actual conditions prophesied to exist just prior to the close of this age and the second coming of Christ.

It is not stated dogmatically, but, nevertheless, it is stated earnestly that it is a most interesting and arresting thing to note the steady trend of this present war to the land of Palestine as the focal point where the respective forces will come to grips. Are not the continued victories in battle which are permitting evil forces to come closer to Palestine in spite of all opposition the very evidence which compels one to admit the strong possibility—yes, probability—that the outcome of this present conflict will see the fulfillment of the prophecy of Ezekiel 38 and 39, Zechariah 14, and Joel 3?

It is a further remarkable thing to note, that about twenty-five hundred years ago the prophets Ezekiel, Daniel, Zechariah, and other prophets actually named the exact line-up of certain nations on the two respective sides that would participate in the struggle at the close of this age, and which line-up now actually exists for the first time in history. Furthermore, these same prophets also foretold the conditions which we now see, and which were to be existing at the time of this prophesied line-up of nations. These prophets positively stated the locality as Palestine, and specified where in Palestine this clash and final settlement of the agelong struggle between good and evil would occur, namely, the plain east and south of Haifa, called in the Bible by various names such as the plain of Esdraelon, valley of Jezreel, valley of Jehoshaphat, valley of Decision, Megiddo, Armageddon. It is the mountainous territory (Ezek. 38:8) surrounding Jerusalem (Zech. 14:2). It is clearly stated in Zechariah 14:3, 4 that it is on the Mount of Olives near Jerusalem, and from whence He ascended into heaven, that Christ is to return to this earth. The conditions to be then existing are also clearly stated. The whole account clearly teaches that it is through the personal intervention of God that victory is to be wrested from what would otherwise be conclusive defeat by the attacking evil forces.

These prophets also definitely stated the instruments to be used of God to defeat the enemy and what is to be the outcome of the conflict (Ezek. 38:19-22).

These are rather startling statements, but in support it is suggested that the following Bible references be carefully read and studied. The events there portrayed have never yet occurred in history, therefore, their fulfillment must still be future: Ezekiel 38 and 39; Joel 3; Zechariah 14; Daniel 11, which from verse 21 to the end gives a graphic personal description of Hitler and his end; Revelation 16:14, 16; Matthew 24; Luke 21.

The two chapters from Matthew and Luke give Christ's own prophetic description of the conditions to exist at the close of this age, and the declaration, clear and unequivocal, from His own lips of His second coming.

While this is a terrible picture of coming world events, it should always be remembered by the believer that it is declared with all the emphasis of deity that we who believe in Him should not view these coming events with despair, but with hope and bright expectancy. This cannot be declared more authoritatively or clearly than in the words of Christ Himself in Luke 21:28: "When these things (those just previously described in preceding verses) begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." Yes, we are soon to see the fulfillment of God's promised redemption of humanity and this sin-cursed earth, which redemption will come through His Son Jesus Christ. His return in power to this earth is the most essential part of this program.

The Kingdom of God with Christ as supreme Ruler will not be any idle dream, but a blessed reality. Those who will believe and obey God now can and will have a wonderful share in this coming "New World Order."

Therefore, let us turn with faith and true satisfaction to God's Word. There only can we find expressed, in the most sublime and truly hopeful words ever written, His outline description of the coming "New World Order." In very truth it will be "new"; it will be on an all-inclusive world basis, and it will be a righteous "order."

Voluminous relevant quotations could be culled from the Bible, but if their language means anything at all, the following certainly depicts conditions in the future on this earth, not only very different from those now existing but infinitely better, regardless of how we may interpret them: Isaiah 11, particularly verse 9; Habakkuk 2:14; Amos 9:13, 14; Revelation 21:1-5; 22:1-6.

This coming "New World Order" will be of worldwide scope, resulting in benefits to all from the operation in righteousness of all-inclusive political, social, economic, and religious world systems by deity in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

It is to be realized that the above is only a very sketchy attempt to depict coming events, but even this inadequate glimpse should enable us to perceive a little more clearly just why our Lord, in giving forth His type prayer, should have said, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." He would not, otherwise, have prayed so, nor taught us to pray for an impossible ideal. Therefore, the realization of the prayer definitely calls for, and we have a right to believe in, conditions of complete harmony, peace, and righteousness to actually exist in this earth at some time in the future, as is now existent in heaven. It is a certainty, which history will support, that it must still be future, as such conditions as prayed for by Christ have never existed on this earth since He was here to the present moment. He foresaw, through the power of God, that such conditions would exist, and He clearly perceived that it was through His obedience to an unjust death on the cross—His subsequent personal resurrection and personal return to this earth, the methods whereby these conditions will be translated from the realm of the theoretical to that of the actual. It was in anticipation of the joy of this realization that He endured the cross and despised its shame.

It is fully appreciated that many men have many minds. So, perhaps, there will be those who will not agree with what is here said. It may be too much to expect complete agreement on any single interpretation of the Bible prophecies pertaining to the coming "New World Order." Nevertheless, the various points put forth herein are earnestly commended for serious follow-up attention through the study of and meditation upon God's Word, the Bible. It will repay all the time and effort given. In it we find the issues of life or death, so it is a vital matter for each one of us.

The mere contemplation of such a possibility of a partnership participation with God and Christ in such a truly glorious "New World Order" should make us long to have a part in it, especially when with all the authority of Almighty God, He has given His promise to men that upon the simplest possible conditions of test, namely, belief and obedience to Him and to His Son, we can have the full rights and privileges of such a partnership. Thank God for such a gracious and blessed assurance!

Does it not enchant our hearts, quicken our faith, strengthen our hope in such trying days as the world is now going through, as well as deepen our love for such a God and Father, and for His Son who died for us, that we might have eternal life in partnership with Him, to even faintly visualize God's coming "New World Order"? May God grant that this long-looked-for event will now soon be realized.

THE WORDS OF LIFE

Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life" (John 6:63, 67, 68). How is eternal life to be obtained? In Christ Jesus, who has the words of life, and in God "who only hath immortality"—"who is the fountain of life" (1 Tim. 6:16; Psalm 36:9).

That which is perfect has come, and that which is imperfect has been abolished. The same that is perfect has "the words of eternal life." Is it in Him that we have our refuge? Is it His appearing that we love?

Acceptable Sacrifice

By Walter F. Coulter

BY THE mercies of God we present our bodies as living sacrifices, which is our "reasonable service." We should not offer sacrifice to idols, because idols are nothing in the world—we know there is only one God. God is Father of all things. Idols may be anything, and that which is offered to idols in sacrifice may be anything. The Gentiles in Paul's day sacrificed to devils, not to God. We should not have fellowship with the Devil, but with God. We cannot be partakers of God's Table and the Devil's table.

Christians should walk in the path of love. Christ loves us, and in that love He gave Himself for an offering and a sacrifice. Christ has put away sin by sacrificing Himself. Offering the same sacrifice more than one time cannot take away sins. If we sin willfully after we have knowledge of the truth, there will be no more sacrifice for sins. By faith, Abel offered God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain. Abel had obtained witness that he was righteous; God testified of his gifts. We should offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the "fruit of our lips," and give thanks to His name.

Communicate to those who teach and preach, and do good to all men, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased. We as lively stones are building up a spiritual house, to offer up spiritual sacrifices to God through Jesus Christ.

The people of Israel once made a calf, offered sacrifices to idols, and rejoiced in the work of their own hands. Then God gave them up to worship the host of heaven. When in the wilderness forty years, the people of Israel did not faithfully offer God slain beasts as sacrifices, and thus denied their faith in the coming of the Lamb of God.

Christians should shine as lights in the world. We hold forth the Word of life, so we may rejoice in the Day of Christ and not have run and labored in vain. We should rejoice in the faith and in all our church services. We should trust in the Lord Jesus, because He blesses sacrifices.

The Voice of Conscience

By Alverta Leighty

"How awful is that hour when conscience stings,
The hoary wretch who on his death bed hears,
Deep in his soul the thundering voice that rings
In one dark, damning moment, crimes of years,
And, screaming like a vulture in his ears,
Tells, one by one, his thoughts and deeds of shame."

CONSCIENCE is a sense that God gave us, a sixth sense, and something that cannot be measured, felt, or lost. No grave can be dug for it; it always comes back to lash us. Luther described it as "a barking hell-hound, a monster vomiting fire, a raging fury, a tormenting devil."

We have all heard how men in prison suffer in their last days, how they cannot eat or sleep because of their consciences. Nero killed his mother, and it is said that in his last days he would start in his sleep, see shadowy things, and hear trumpet's blasting from his mother's grave.

Christ was talking to the Pharisees when a poor woman was brought before Him and He was asked to pass judgment upon her. Christ said, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her" (John 8:7). The Pharisees' consciences began to bring up to their minds their own sins, and they all left without casting one stone at her.

Another time this commanding sense was quieted long enough for Jacob to steal his brother's birthright, but he was punished for it.

Herod, who beheaded John, thought he saw John come back to torment him and destroy his kingdom.

Conscience is a warning red light just before we go down into sin. 1 Timothy 4:2 tells us about having our consciences seared with a hot iron. A hot iron is laid against the tender cheek of conscience until it is so seared that it can no longer feel. We must pray daily to God for guidance, and for Him to direct our consciences that we may do right.

A clean glass reflects a bright light, but when it is smear, it does not. The glass has not been destroyed, but the power to reflect has. So is man's conscience, if it has been seared by a hot iron. It cannot then reflect the glory of God that is in it.

When one is tempted to do a wrong, he hears a voice asking, "Is it right?" If one went ahead and did it anyway, he would feel guilty and afraid afterwards.

Conscience is that particular faculty of the soul that enables man to look into himself and see the struggle within him. He must choose between good and bad, and because he is free to choose, he is responsible for himself—no matter who tries to make him do the wrong.

A little boy, while walking along the road, saw a turtle lying on its back in the mud. The little boy had a sudden desire to kill it. He had never felt that way before, although other boys killed. He picked up a stone, and just as he was about to throw it, a voice asked, "Is it wrong?" He rushed home to his mother and told her about it. She said, with tears in her eyes, "Men call it conscience, but I prefer to call it the voice of God in the soul of man. If you listen and obey it, it will become clearer and clearer. If you disobey it, it will fade out little by little and leave you in the dark without a guide. Your whole life depends on heeding that little voice."

All of us have heard that little voice, and we as Christians must follow it. It is our companion inspired by the voice of God.

THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH

from the least to the greatest." Thus, the real truth should always be taught. Also, before we try to correct a brother, we must first cleanse ourselves. "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" If we live righteously and set good examples for other people to follow, we shall daily bring more sheep into the Lord's fold. Any such actions please the Father, for He sees even the fall of a sparrow.

We must have patience with our brother. Paul wrote to the Colossians, saying: "Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye" (3:13).

In reviewing the foregoing thoughts, we have come to this conclusion: We must first love God, then man. To love God we must love man, and if we love God we will love man. To obtain eternal life we must do good to those who spitefully use us, and pray for them who do us harm as Christ prayed for the very ones that crucified Him. We must be truthful, obedient, loving, thoughtful, kind, courteous, and faithful. We must not covetously desire anything that our neighbour has, and must do our best to love our enemies. If we do our best and that is not enough, we should pray to God for more strength and it will be given to us. It is probably harder for us to be kind to our neighbors at the present when war and strife are so general, but we should not forget that we shall not be tempted above that which we can bear.

Having considered all the preceding statements, we should be ready to answer the question at the beginning of this article. In truth, if there came such an occasion, I think that I should be required to entertain an infidel in my house. I would do it gladly—with the spirit of love in my heart.

THE HOLY BIBLE

By Vernis Wolfe

Tattered and torn, wrecked within and without,
Through the ages of time it has labored without doubt—
Like a ship at sea, tossed about,
But never failing on His mission route.

Giving God's law in all the dark ages;
Proclaiming God's Kingdom in all its written pages.
Professing God's teaching to all that are saved;
Making God's covenant the one to obey.

Casting light unto the saints' weary feet,
Enabling them to reach those golden streets.
Preserving foundations that no man can lay,
That will steady the saints' feet on that far-off day.

A Judge and a King—a possessor of laws,
Sounding the trumpet on sin and its woes.
Merciful and kind heart giving divine,
Presenting love as the law of all time.

Preaching and teaching, but now—to no avail,
For the beast has come in all its detail.
But now we see the victory—it has won,
For there stand the chosen—the "called-out ones."

BUILDING WITH GOD

The Apostle Paul said, "We are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building" (1 Cor. 3:9). It is with this thought of working with God that we look forward to the next term of the regular Bible Training School, which will begin the morning of September 16, 1941. There is no work that will outlive work done for the Lord, nor is there any work that pays bigger dividends in both present and prospective blessings. Further, there is no work that will more certainly merit and receive the blessing of the Lord than work done definitely and distinctly with the one and only purpose of advancing the cause of truth. We pray, therefore, that many young people will soon enroll in the nine-months' BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Choose With Care

Did you ever attend a sale in a store where there had been a fire? Many articles were probably left that were not burned, but they were damaged by smoke or by the water used to extinguish the fire.

Perhaps your father does not smoke. Was he ever in a group of men for a while, who did smoke? If he was, his clothes certainly smelled of smoke, didn't they?

Now, you think of other examples to illustrate the point. What point? Just that the company we keep, our associates and friends, all have a greater influence upon us than we sometimes like to believe. They leave their "marks" upon us just as surely as the man who smelled of smoke, yet didn't smoke. If we associate with a "gang" where things happen that are not honorable, or are pointing toward wrong, such a group or person will lead us away from "right" and "good."

Our lesson for today is part of a letter written by Paul to the people of Corinth. He said to have as little to do with evil as one can. Paul said that God will judge those who are in the world, but Christians are not to approve of, or keep company with one who has taken God's name, then lives in sin. "Them that are without God judgeth. Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person."

So, be sure to choose your friends with care, using Christian standards.

Some Christian Standards

In Titus 2:1-8, we find some Christian standards. The young must be in training by keeping away from these evils, for habits once formed are much harder to correct than not to form such habits.

The young are to look to the older people for their patterns of Christian living. The young women are to be "good" and "chaste" or pure. They are not to be gossipers or drinkers of wine. (In today's language—they shouldn't drink anything which has alcohol in it.)

The young men, as well as women, are to be sober-minded or discreet. Now, to be "discreet" is to be "wise in avoiding errors" or "careful." Honestly, now, can a young person be a good judge if the mind is clouded with drink, such as beer?

Lately, I read of an examination that had been made upon a drinker's brain and compared with the brain of a person who did not drink. The drinker's brain reacted like that of a person who was asleep—yet more than that, like one who was suffocating! What boy or girl would enjoy being locked in a trunk or small closet where there was too little air to breathe? No wonder a drinker's brain cannot work if it is nearly smothered from lack of air! Did you ever help build a bonfire? Perhaps something large was thrown on it? The fire nearly went out, didn't it? To think that people who have been given more intelligence than animals will almost smother their brains! They wouldn't be much different from the animals without their brains, would they? The higher brain centers, where religion and refinement are found, are the first to suffer from drink. Decide to remain a man, not become an animal! (Read Titus 2:7, 8.)

In Light or in Darkness

By Virginia Smith, London, Arkansas

God's Word, greatest element in the New Testament, was manifested in the life of Christ. Christ's life was one of perfect obedience. In Hebrews 5:8, we read, "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered." When praying to the Father just before His betrayal, Jesus said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

If we would live the Christlike life, we must be obedient to the Word of God. Psalm 119:105 says, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Therefore, if we would walk in the light, we must know God's Word and keep His commandments. "This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not grievous" (1 John 5:3). "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him. But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes" (1 John 2:10, 11). From this text we learn that we must love our fellow men if we walk in the light. Love should rule every thought, motive, and decision of our lives. When our surroundings are full of bitterness and hatred, love will conquer all. In 1 Corinthians 13:8 we read, "Charity (love) never faileth." Love increases the more you use it. Love is a good leaven. It is intended to be an active force in our lives, leavening other lives and, thus, leading others to Christ.

We shall find as we look back upon our lives, that the moments that stand out, are the moments when we have done things in the spirit of love.

Some people fear God, and think in giving their lives to Him they must give up all pleasures. This is a mistake. "God is love." This is the great truth of the Bible—the most glorious fact of the universe. God's essential nature is love, and all that is in Him is love. As gold is gold all the way through, so God is love in all His Being, and there is in Him not the slightest element or purpose that is not love. God has a disposition and desire for good will toward His creatures, and all His feelings, thoughts, and energies go out toward them in favor. Even in retribution, or wrath, God consistently displays His love toward men.

In Luke 12 we read of a rich man who was walking in darkness. His ground brought forth plentifully, and he thought within himself to pull down his barns and build greater ones that he might have room to bestow all his goods. That night, God spoke to him, saying, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?" This did not mean that material wealth was the cause of his walking in darkness, but that he had given his time and talents to gaining earthly possessions, and in so doing had forgotten God.

To be rich toward God, we must be true to the highest and noblest things. God's great are those who from everywhere and from every condition live the beautiful, sweet life. It is not what we possess, but what we are that makes us rich toward God. By our lives only can we prove our principles to the world and show to the world that there is a life worth living.

Slightly Different Preparation

During the past few years you have heard and read much concerning preparation for the work of the Lord. Our Summer Bible Training Schools and regular nine-months' School have been advertised far and wide. From these Schools have come many who have become teachers and leaders in our churches.

There are many of our young people who have not been in position to take this training or assume the responsibilities of leadership. At the same time it is recognized that the more workers participating in an effort, the greater the likelihood of success. Assuming that everyone who becomes a member of the church has an earnest desire to assist his fellow members, there remains the problem of fitting the proper individual to the proper task.

Although many of our young people have not had formal religious training, nearly all of them have had training in high school and in college, or in special courses which would fit them for certain phases of Berean work. To you who have the responsibility of leadership over the various Berean groups falls the task of finding these talents and utilizing them to the benefit of your group.

If you are not a leader, you should so plan your education and your work that you may offer whatever training you may acquire to serve those of your local congregation.

We are instructed by President L. E. Conner to announce that the annual election of officers of the General Conference of the Church of God will be held at 3:00 p.m., Friday, August 1, 1941. This will be the first Friday of General Conference.

We, therefore, also urge all churches to quickly report their membership and name their delegates on the delegate forms recently mailed to our church and conference secretaries. Delegates chosen should consider their office as a sacred trust in the Lord's work, and plan definitely to be at General Conference from beginning to end, but particularly in time for the annual election. Any church or conference secretaries who failed to receive a delegate form should write us, and said form will be mailed immediately.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secretary.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

In keeping with the Summer-Training-School spirit of this Herald, the editorial was prepared by Bro. Harry A. Sheets, Dean of the Summer School, and most of the other articles were written by students.

Elders S. J. Lindsay and Harry A. Sheets preached for the Oregon, Ill., brethren, Sunday, July 13, while the pastor spent the day with one of his pets—a beautiful but throbbing jaw.

Sr. Clayton Magee, Gary, Ind., came to Oregon, Ill., Friday, July 11, to get two of the Summer School students, namely, Walter Coulter and Russell Roach, who were thus privileged to enjoy a week-end visit in Gary. Sr. Ella Randall, also of Gary, brought the boys back, Sunday, the 13th.

Bro. and Sr. Frederick Claussen and family and Sr. Eunice Zollinger, Oregon, Ill., returned home, Monday, July 7, from Culver, Ind., where they were visiting friends.

Recent visitors to Oregon, Ill., include: Maybelle Hanson, Chicago; Dale Dunbar and Amy Dunbar Frye and daughter Beverly, Delta, Ohio; Mrs. Mary Lawson, Anderson, Ind., and Mrs. Mary Zahn, Ladd, Ill.

"I am thankful so many young people are taking advantage of the Summer Bible Training School, and want to aid in a small way."—Mrs. Ida Orem, Redlands, Calif.

Bro. L. E. Conner left Oregon, Ill., Friday, July 11, for a week's work in the conference at Fredericktown, Mo. Bro. C. E. Lapp will be his partner in that work.

"Please take good care of that Texas Wolfe, for we surely think well of him."—P. D. Chont, Gatesville, Texas.

Bro. Edgar C. Harvey, Kokomo, Ind., reports that in addition to those previously reported, Sr. Ida Mae Kanarr was also baptized at the recent Indiana State Conference. Her address is Plymouth, Ind., Rt. 1.

Sr. Barbara Fish, Colo, Iowa, reports that she had twelve students in her last Sunday's class in the new Sunday school work at Maxwell. She further writes: "I'm having them learn extra things, and that makes them more eager. They ask many questions."

"We are having a better Sunday school attendance now than for some time, and hope it will continue to increase. We are glad to see a good number enrolled in the Summer Bible Training School."—William C. Poland, Shady Springs, W. Va.

We hope so: "With a large number of boys enrolled in the Summer Bible Training School, you may find some good prospects for the regular School this fall."—Otto E. Dick, Frankfort, Ind.

"Permit me to extend thanks to the many friends who sent me greetings from the Indiana State Conference at North Salem. It reminded me of many happy services held at that place when I was young."—N. H. Geiselman, 212 W. Hillsborough Ave., Tampa, Fla.

"The Lord bless thee and keep thee, and may the glorious work of His Kingdom go on to a victorious beginning."—Mrs. Evelyn Phillips, Waterloo, Iowa.

At the close of the fiscal year of the National Bible Institution, June 30, 1941, there was a sum of $504.82 in the Ministers' Fund which is being raised by the Golden-Rule-Home banks. Does your Sunday school have one of these banks? If so, we trust it is being used; if not so, please write to Bro. Charles Nettis, 1013 Pine St., Springfield, Ohio, who will gladly send you a bank.

"You surely have a good attendance at the Summer Bible Training School—it is better than I dared hope. . . . The Happy Woods church lost one of its faithful members last Saturday night in the death of Sr. Peter Hutchinson."—Mary Richardson, Hammond, La.

OMAHA, NEBRASKA

A very enjoyable time was had Sunday, July 6, at the Omaha Church of God. The Blair brethren met with us for an all-day meeting. Services opened at 10:00 a.m., with Sunday school. Preaching by Bro. Richard Smith followed at 11:00 a.m. His subject was, "Faith."

Lunch was served in the church basement. At 2:30 p.m., Sr. Lucille Appleby gave a very inspiring sermon on, "Hope." We met again at 7:00 p.m. for Berean Society, and Bro. Richard Smith gave the evening sermon—his subject being, "Charity."

We are enthusiastic about the work that is being done here. Our secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Frank Carpenter, has been sick the past three weeks. It seems she may be down in bed for some time. She is very patient, but I am sure her burdens would be made a little lighter if she should receive letters or cards from her many friends. Her address is 3705 Ames Ave., Omaha.

Received unsigned.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE REPORT

Bro. H. J. Prosser of Newport, Ore., was again with us at this, our thirty-fourth, Annual Conference out here in the great Northwest. His sermon, "The Mother of Jesus and His Boyhood," was listened to attentively. Everyone is "held" by Bro. Prosser's sincerity of presentation of his subject. This first sermon of this Conference was preached Thursday night, June 12.

Friday morning, the same speaker entitled his sermon, "The Second Coming of Christ."

Then came banqueting in the basement. How enjoyable the "get-together" was! The building had been remodeled by Bro. Jim Woolf's "just right" steps to the basement: these are to the left as one enters the front door.

In the afternoon, Bro. Alfred Anthon charted, on the blackboard, Jehoshaphat's battle that God fought for him; then explained "Valley of Jehoshaphat," "Valley of Decision," showing that this will not take place until after Christ comes to the Mount of Olives and Zion.

Friday night, Bro. Prosser told of the changes that had taken place in his lifetime of more than seventy years. It was wonderful to consider how much change one man has seen. Surely knowledge is increasing.

Saturday morning, Bro. Alfred Anthon charted, "The Mourning of Hadadrimmon in the Valley of Megiddo," explaining how a similar mourning would be in Jerusalem: that this future mourning is not to be in the Valley of Megiddo, but in Jerusalem, and after Christ has come to the Mount of Olives and Zion.

In the afternoon Bro. F. O. Sapp gave a very interesting talk on, "Mountain of the Lord," according to Isaiah 2 and Micah 4. At night, Bro. Prosser's subject was "The Millennium."

Sunday: there was a much larger congregation. In the forenoon, we had a business meeting. All officers were re-elected, as follows: Carl Barber, president, Corvallis, Ore.; Minnie Rogers, vice president, Eugene, Ore.; Ed. McErvin, treasurer, Ridgefield, Wash.; Flora Anthon, secretary, Corvallis, Ore. Also, thirty dollars was set aside to give to someone (or more) attending the Bible Training Schools at Oregon, Ill.

After the business meeting, Bro. Prosser's topic was, "Repent."

Afternoon: Bro. F. O. Sapp's subject, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" was very timely and surely must have provoked earnestness in every hearer.

Supper—the last one of the Lord Jesus and Communion.

At night, Bro. Alfred Anthon explained, "Examining Oneself Preparatory to Partaking of Communion." Here, time came when we must part. We yearn for the time when we shall be gathered by our Lord. This Conference encouraged us to run with patience the race God sets before us.

Flora E. Anthon, Secy.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

This week we have been studying the Kingdom of God. It is interesting to put together all of the ideas from different parts of the United States.

The students enjoyed a picnic at Lowell Park with the local Berean class. We also enjoyed a picnic on the Fourth of July.

We experienced a sad occasion, Friday, when "Roseo," the sleeping rabbit, was hanged. Funeral services were led by Bro. Vernis Wolfe of Gatesville, Texas.

We have organized a student choir under the direction of Robert Hardesty.

Betty Luper, Reporter.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO WORKING RULES

Pursuant to instructions of the last General Conference, a change in the system of representation has been prepared and will be proposed for adoption at the forthcoming General Conference. This is an important matter of business and calls for the careful consideration of all.

 Orpha LeMasurier . . . Treasurer
 Subscription Rate.—51 issues per annum, $2.00.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Eldorado Conference Report

Interest in the Illinois Quarterly Conferences seems to continue its upward swing. Attendance at Eldorado, rated by Sunday morning Sunday school, was in excess of a year ago. This, coupled with the fact that several carloads that had definitely planned to attend were forced to abandon their plans at the last minute, shows a very gratifying interest in our State work. The honors seem to be in favor of Fredericktown, Missouri, which solved the wholesale attendance problem with a combination blitz buggy, one-horse open shay idea.

The business of the Conference concerned itself chiefly with final preparation for the Annual Conference. The building committee reported that the dormitory has been remodeled to provide greater bed room with increased toilet and washroom facilities. A special committee has been selected to plan the menu for all meals while a special host committee is being planned to provide a closer relationship between you and those who are trying to make your stay at Conference pleasant and satisfactory as well as to create a more friendly, get-acquainted atmosphere throughout the entire Conference. Gas stoves have been provided to eliminate heat and many other improvements are planned to provide better kitchen arrangements. Bigger and better meals are to be the order of the day. This combined with steadily rising prices makes it in order to remind you that if your group is planning any canned goods or other surplus items that you may have for Conference use, now is the time to plan for getting them there so that use may be made of everything available. Certain members of the ministerial association who catch fish (?) might begin to plan for a fish supper for one night. We are sure that all will show their appreciation of the efforts being made to provide the best for your use this year by helping with the greatly added cost that is necessary to bring it about.

Your Conference Hosts

To this writer has been delegated the job of seeing that you are properly made to feel at home during the course of the Conference. As plans are conceived at the present time, a special committee of ten members will be established which will include Bible school superintendent, matron, menu planners, the arranger of private rooms, and so forth. In short, all who in any way are concerned with your stay being more pleasant and profitable. These individuals will be identified throughout Conference by a red badge with the word "Reception" on it. Our yardstick will be the duplication, as closely as possible, of the same relationship as would exist if you were guests in our homes. We want you to constantly visit and counsel with us about the things that might make your stay more enjoyable. Then, too, if you were a guest in our home, we wouldn't think of letting a couple of you go out and sit by yourselves in the kitchen while the rest visited and became acquainted. We would like to see you go home after making many new friends. You can help us a great deal if you remember that among those who abide in Jesus there are no strangers. We are simply asking you over to Oregon for a visit with friends. As your hosts, we have pledged ourselves to see that you have that which is necessary to make your visit enjoyable whether it is a chance to talk to Mr. So-and-so on the price of fish in California, the settlement of an unsolved Bible question, or merely an aspirin tablet.

Carry On!

There is one outstanding thing that impresses itself upon our minds as we try to maintain a constant survey of prophetic thought in these days. Regardless of race, doctrine, or private interpretation, whether ideas are based on races, nations, or mathematics, the answer is invariably the same. We are reaching the climax of prophetic experiences. To all, this means that the period of Christian labor may be appallingly short. Surveyed by financial accomplishment and otherwise, the Illinois State Conference has much with which to be pleased in the cooperation it has received in the year now drawing to a close. However, it is no time to rest upon our laurels; we must go on. Present accomplishments must be climaxed by greater things next year. These things must be planned as a part of our next Conference. A returning Lord must find us reading, waiting, and working.

May the Spirit of Jesus Prevail

Brethren who will represent many states are planning to come to the General Conference of the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois, July 29—August 10, 1941. From Virginia to California, and from Louisiana to Canada, brethren will assemble to worship the Lord, to search the Scriptures, to meet and visit with many friends and make new acquaintances, and to plan another year's work for the Lord. This Conference will probably be the largest General Conference to date, and, if we so will and pray, it should be the best to date. May the Spirit of Jesus prevail.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" (Psalm 133:1). "Let brotherly love continue" (Heb. 13:1). "If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. . . . Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 2:1-5).

When the Church of God meets in General Conference, may there be the spirit of tolerance and good will, an open and unfeigned manifestation of brotherly kindness, true religious devotion, a hungering and thirsting, too, for the good meats of God's Word, always a prayerful and reverent attitude, and a deeply burning desire to continue, to develop, and to complete our gospel activities and responsibilities.

"Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous" (1 Peter 3:8). May the Spirit of Jesus Prevail!

The Power of a Godly Life

Rare is the certainty of success. If one could be sure of success in any certain business venture, it would spare him much needless anxiety. It is a beautiful and inspiring promise, then, that God pledges His servant success in work done in and for the Lord's Name. God, speaking to us through His servant David, promises that he whose "delight is in the law of the Lord" shall be "like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" (Psalm 1:2, 3).

The power of a godly life is further seen in the following words of divine promise: "Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed. Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass. And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noonday" (Psalm 37:3-6). Secret prayer is rewarded openly!

"Deceiving and Being Deceived"

The Apostle Paul, prophesying of "perilous times" to come in the "last days" (2 Tim. 3:1), said: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." This prophecy comes to mind as one witnesses the present dog-eat-dog German-Russian war. Stalin and Hitler have been trying to deceive one another into thinking they were at least friends, if not covenanted partners; now they see each other as thugs of the same gang turned traitor upon one another. Each, trying to deceive, has been deceived.

Pathetic is the story that the spirit of false friendships is not confined to warring nations. We are not so sullen as to doubt there being true friendship, and we know that a true friend "loveth at all times" (Prov. 17:17), but Paul's prophecy is also fulfilled in much of the so-called friendship of today, which is little more than clever camouflage behind which the sword is sharpened and the arrow poisoned. The philosopher who counts many of his friends as potential enemies, who loves them, nevertheless, as himself, might also be a Christian.

The more important conclusion is, however, that the deceiving-and-being-deceived problem indicates to the faithful that the "last days" have come, and that the coming of Jesus Christ is imminent. Further, playing the game of life in honesty and love, being fair and square with one's fellow men, is as important as repentance or baptism in preparing for the coming of the Lord.

The Man Who Sought Jesus

By Alan McLain

"There was a man named Zacchaeus . . . he sought to see Jesus . . . and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him."

WHEN JESUS was upon the earth, He went throughout Palestine, preaching the things concerning the Kingdom of heaven, and healing all manner of diseases. As His fame grew, multitudes gathered to hear His words of wisdom. Almost every city in those days had scouts placed outside the city to warn the inhabitants of invaders, or to announce the appearing of any important characters. Thus, the message came to the city of Jericho that Jesus was coming, and multitudes gathered where the Christ was to pass. Doubtless, some people came because of curiosity, others came for the loaves and fishes, but still others came to be healed of their physical ailments. It is, therefore, interesting to notice that there is no mention made of any other person seeking for spiritual aid—as did this man whose name was Zacchaeus.

The multitude sought not for spiritual aid, but for material aid. People today are still seeking for material blessings, rather than spiritual. They seek thrills and pleasures that soon vanish. That which is material lasts only a short time, but that which is spiritual is enduring. People today need to seek Jesus for spiritual aid. The world is suffering more from a spiritual depression than it has ever suffered from a financial depression. "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread?" (Isa. 55:2.)

Zacchaeus was a rich man and little of stature, who was also chief among the publicans. He was possibly a notable sinner. Nevertheless, he was a descendant of Abraham and was interested in the prophesied Messiah. Zacchaeus sought to see Jesus—to learn who He was—and could not because of the large multitude. Being a short man, Zacchaeus climbed a sycamore tree where Jesus was to pass, that he might get a good view of Jesus. Can you imagine a rich man climbing a tree? Yet Zacchaeus humbled himself, that he might see Jesus. Everyone who comes to Jesus must come in humility, and separate himself from the crowd. Jesus Himself was the best example of humility.

Zacchaeus was surprised when Jesus said unto him, "Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house." We read, however, that "he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully" (Luke 19:6). I am sure that in similar circumstances we today would feel as did this man. Who would not want Jesus to be his guest?

The multitudes did many times receive material blessings, but on this occasion there is no mention of blessings received except the spiritual blessings which Zacchaeus and his family received. He sought to know Jesus and His teachings, and he did not seek in vain.

At another time Jesus said, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: for every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened" (Matt. 7:7, 8). There is a reward to everyone who seeks in faith. Jesus said unto some of the multitude on one occasion, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled. Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you" (John 6:26, 27).

Alan McLain

Of the many people Jesus healed, very few turned from their evil ways unto God. This may be illustrated by the ten lepers that Jesus healed—only one of the ten came to thank and praise God. We know, however, that Zacchaeus was truly converted, for he said, "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold" (v. 8). Then Jesus said unto him, "This day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham" (v. 9). There are very few people who, after their conversion, will right the wrongs they have made in the past. According to the law, a person was to restore four sheep for one. (Ex. 22:1.)

There are those who are always ready to criticize. Some of the multitude criticized Jesus because He was gone to be a guest of a man who was a sinner. Jesus said, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (v. 10). Let us not be critical of others.

This story of Jesus and the publican well presents Jesus as the Saviour. "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

Let us seek and follow Jesus for spiritual blessings. Moreover, we must humble ourselves before we climb.

God's New World Order or Worldwide Receivership

By Charles W. Howe

THE twofold subject for this article was chosen because the two thoughts are so closely related that they are really one. In other words, the new world order will follow the receivership. It surely looks like the world would soon become bankrupt. The old order was in serious condition during the recent depression, and the present war boom can hardly be expected to bring continuous prosperity. Instead, all nations are rapidly plunging into debt more rapidly than ever, even though the safety ceiling must be exceeded. While great leaders talk of freedom from want and fear as after-war aims, it looks as though world bankruptcy would certainly be the after-war result. After bankruptcy comes receivership; then comes reorganization. So, we read in Revelation 11:15 of a time when the "kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."

The New World Order and Property

There has been a growing tendency in recent years to remodel the system of property ownership. Of course, Plato had something to say on the subject a long time ago. Then, more recently, Karl Marx elaborated the idea, but ever since the World War an ever-increasing number has imbibed the idea that something is wrong with the world and that something must be done about it. The great depression well proved that something was really wrong, and the recession proved that in modern peace times, budgets cannot be balanced. Apparently, capitalism is gradually committing suicide. Like in the great saber-toothed tiger, that which was once a source of greatness becomes its undoing. So what was strength in an expanding industrialism, becomes a source of destruction when modern conditions result in labor surplus and consequent business stagnation. When men receive less in wages for what they produce than what is needed to buy these same products back, there must of necessity be an accumulation of commodities, so depressions are sure to come. They cannot be avoided as long as men produce with the labor of the many for the profit of the few.

Men have devised various ways to meet the stagnation difficulty. Russia has its plan of atheistic Communism. In Germany, business is partly owned by the government, and controlled by the government, while Italy has its system of government planning. All of these systems seem to be antireligious, and the good which might otherwise accrue is surely spoiled by the dictatorships under which they are run. The only dictator who could be trusted to deal in fairness to all is Jesus Christ the Lord. Of Him we read in Isaiah 11:4, "With righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth." When this old world becomes bankrupt, and Christ takes over the receivership, we know that everything will turn out all right. The new world order, which we have in mind in this article, is His rather than that of Josef, Adolf, or Benito.

God's Kingdom is not exactly like any of the new ideas of men (although there are some similarities, after all), nor is it like any of the old ideas. However, in God's Kingdom the sources of profit are surely to be in the hands of the government, that is, in the hands of God. This thought is acknowledged even in the Old Testament. "Every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills" (Psalm 50:10). The thought of the Kingdom ownership of wealth went even further in the New Testament, where the disciples, trying to exemplify the Kingdom teachings, "had all things common" (Acts 4:32). Today, men who have tried this system have had trouble with shirkers, but Paul made a very good suggestion for his day in the words of 2 Thessalonians 3:10: "If any would not work, neither should he eat."

This shows that the order of life, instituted at that early date, was continued in the newly formed congregations, as believers preached the Word afar in the dispersion resulting from Saul's persecution of the church. It was definitely a New Testament order of life, signifying the conditions pertaining to the Kingdom of God.

There is a statement relative to the above mentioned persecution which shows that the early church did not live collectively, in spite of the collective ownership of wealth. Surely the communal living as seen in Russia could never be a part of a new order which the people of this country would willingly accept. So, we are glad for a statement of Scripture showing that communal living quarters will constitute no part in the program of God's new order for the world. We read in Acts 8:3 that Saul entered "into every house . . . hailing men and women (and) committed them to prison." This would indicate private homes in spite of the evident collective ownership of wealth. Again, we read concerning the future system, this time in Micah 4:4: "They shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid." The vine-and-fig-tree statement signifies home surroundings. Such words as "vineyard" or "orchard" might well be taken as referring to sources of wealth, but hardly so with one vine or one fig tree. The point to be made is simply this: each man will have his own private home—which is much more to our liking anyway. Of course, while we are discussing likenesses and differences between the plans of men and the purpose of God, we should not lose sight of the fact that God's way works for the salvation of men while the order of things envisioned by the dictators is against the worship of God. Consequently, dictators and their schemes should be avoided.

The New Order and Love of Money

"The love of money is the root of all evil" (1 Tim. 6:10). So, God's new order will remove the evil by eliminating the system which encourages it, that is, the individual profits system. This system builds up money love by causing everyone to chase after the "almighty dollar," and, "ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matt. 6:24). That is why God's Receiver must take charge of private industry, and run it for the good of all.

Let us take a hypothetical case to illustrate our point. Let us suppose that while we, in our country, are interested in retaining capitalism, that we had just one capitalist, and we all worked for him. Let us suppose that our one capitalist was Uncle Sam, and that he had jobs for each one of us, so that we were always sure of a good living. Can't you see how that would curtail the love of money urge, and so reduce the root of all evil to the minimum? How much better we could prepare for the present emergency, if all were working for the good of the cause rather than for individual profit! With love of money gone, we could meet every eventuality, even though that eventuality might be war with a dictator nation. This is only an illustration, yet God purposes a similar condition for the whole world some day.

Money is also an evil as it now exists with intrinsic value of its own. It is called "filthy lucre" in the Bible, and, accordingly, it will have to go. In Ezekiel 7:19 we read concerning a coming punishment of Israel, "They shall cast their silver in the streets, and their gold shall be removed." The Israelites control world finances, or at least did until recently. When the world bankers become bankrupt, what about the rest of the world? You can see where the world receivership and the new world order will come in.

The foregoing quotation continues with the thought that the gold and silver money is destroyed "because it is a stumblingblock of their iniquity." Money can just as easily become a stumbling block to all who pursue it. With money destroyed at the close of the present order, what about it in the new? In Isaiah 55:1 we read, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." Probably the waters of salvation are implied here in figurative language, but undoubtedly the literal is intended, also, as to a time when the exchange medium will not have money value. So, without money and without price, men will come and buy the commodities of life.

A hypothetical illustration will help us again to see how God's system might work out. Suppose, for instance, that since the government has come to own all the sources of profit, that it did away with all metal standards and paid its citizens in nonnegotiable script, the value thereof being so fixed by the government that the needs and desires of all could be adequately satisfied. Nonnegotiable script, like travelers' checks, could be used only by the one to whom issued, and could be spent only at government stores. There could be neither inflation nor deflation with such a system, for the government could print sufficient script for any emergency. Yet its monetary value would be unchanged, for it would have no market value of its own. Besides, individuals could not take their money out of circulation and so change financial conditions one whit. Therefore, there could be no depressions and no bankruptcies, either individual or national. Work could be divided equally among the able according to requirements, and the script issued in payment be adequate to meet the needs of all. So there could be work for all able-bodied citizens, and adequate pensions for the aged and infirm, as well. All this could be accomplished without taxes, for the government would issue the script as needed, and being the owner of all commodities, no tax revenue would be needed to acquire them. An emulation of God's plan would, then, result in the best Social Security or Old Age Assistance plan in existence.

With this hypothetical illustration in mind, we can easily see how God's new order could bring righteousness automatically. Under such a system as we have supposed, bootlegging would be eliminated, prohibition, if desired, could be enforced, and prostitution, theft, and murder would practically disappear. Who would engage in any illegitimate practice in which there were no profit? Who would steal script which was of no value to him? Who would steal anything when he had so abundant provision? Who would even kill, except in rare cases, with all possibility of illegitimate gain gone? No gain, no murder—this is the general idea. So, murder would mostly disappear. Only one mentally sick would violate his neighbor's rights with the love of money gone, and such a one could be so treated with an idea of cure rather than of punishment. If men sought to emulate God's plan, evil could be reduced to a minimum. It is doubtful, however, if men left to themselves will ever try it, so the

Will All of Adam's Race Be Saved?

By J. M. Morgan

WILL all of Adam's race be saved? No, a thousand times, no! Though the Lord died for all, there are men who refuse to accept the truth. These "will nots" and other classes of sinners, too, will not be saved. "Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people" (Acts 3:22, 23). How anyone can read this text and still believe all of Adam's race will be saved is difficult to understand.

The Inspired Word plainly indicates that some men "will not hear that prophet (Jesus)." Webster defines the word "hear" to mean: "To perceive by the ear; to attend or listen; give heed to; obey." There is no proof in the Bible that all of Adam's race will ever obey the gospel of Christ. Therefore, one is forced to conclude from the Bible that not all of Adam's race will be saved.

Christ's Mission

Someone might say, "Was it not Christ's mission to save the world?" Yes, that is true, for "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17). This verse, however, merely states that God made provision for salvation; it does not state that the world will qualify for the provided salvation. John, who said, "He that hath the Son hath life," also said, "He that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (1 John 5:12). Similarly, John said, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). The word "abide" means to continue. Obviously, if God's wrath abides on the unbelievers, those unbelievers will not be saved, for God would not be wrathful toward saved ones.

Jesus said, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10). This verse might indicate to some students that the Lord would continue to seek until everybody would be saved, but the context indicates that Jesus was speaking about seeking and saving the lost tribes of Israel, as we read: "This day is salvation come to this house, for so much as he also is a son of Abraham" (v. 9). Thus, Jesus' statement to Zacchaeus was not to the world, but to the lost sons of Abraham. Jesus likewise said to the Twelve, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles . . . but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 10:6).

"Transgressors Shall Be Destroyed"

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). This verse, the Golden Text of the Bible, teaches that everlasting life is conditional upon believing in God's Son, and that those who do not believe will "perish." David said, "The wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away" (Psalm 37:20). "Transgressors shall be destroyed together: the end of the wicked shall be cut off" (v. 38). The ungodly are "like the chaff which the wind driveth away." They "shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous."

"Specially of Those That Believe"

The word "special" means pertaining to or constituting a species, or a group of individuals agreeing in common name. God has a special plan, order, by which He saves men. A part of that special plan is that God offers salvation to all men, but will save only those who qualify by obedience. God's power to save is without limit; thus God is to be "Saviour of all men," but He is Saviour "specially of those that believe" (1 Tim. 4:10), for they are the ones who qualify and who will actually be spared.

God is longsuffering, "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). God's power to save is in the gospel of Jesus Christ, as we read in Paul's words: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith" (Rom. 1:16, 17).

"Be Ye Doers of the Word"

The Bible teaches that only those who believe and obey God will be saved. James says, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" (1:22). Jesus, likewise, instructs: "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:13, 14).

It is plainly seen from Jesus' words that not all would believe and accept the truth, for He said, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves" (v. 15). Outward show means nothing to God who rightfully requires implicit faith in the truth and loyal obedience to the truth. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 16:25).

Jesus said: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? "And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity" (Matt. 7:21-23). Therefore, many so-called church people will not be saved. Why? Answer: "Every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it" (vv. 26, 27).

Jesus also said: "Many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. But the children of the kingdom (disobedient children) shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (8:11, 12).

"Are There Few . . . Saved?"

Someone once asked Jesus the very question about which we are now concerned, namely: "Lord, are there few that be saved?" (Luke 13:23.) Jesus' answer follows: "Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are: then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets. But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves cast out" (Luke 13:24-28).

Making the Heart of the Righteous Sad

Christ "learned . . . obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb.

5:8, 9), but not to all of Adam's race. Yes, some believe that all of Adam's race will obey Christ in the ages to come, while Christ is King over all the earth. No, the Bible does not teach a second chance for the wilfully wicked—there will be those who refuse to let the Lord reign over them. (Cp. Psalm 2.) The sad thing about teaching that everybody will be saved is that it shames the truth and makes the heart of the righteous sad by promising everlasting life to the wicked.

Here is what the Bible says: "With lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad; and strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his wicked way, by promising him life" (Ezek. 13:22). What avail can there be in promising life to the wicked? It is a doctrine that saddens the heart of the true Church of God.

The teaching of salvation in some future age leads people away from God and encourages them not to turn from their wicked ways, which wicked ways will lead them to "everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power; when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe" (2 Thess. 1:9, 10). Some students say this "everlasting destruction" will be only age-lasting, and that then the second death will end. If this teaching were true, then the everlasting life of the righteous would also be only age lasting, and it would end. The righteous may thank God that there is no proof in the Bible that either age-lasting life or age-lasting destruction will end. One will endure forever, as does the other. There was a world before the Flood; the present world, or age, will end at the second coming of Christ (2 Peter 3:7, 13); and the next age will be without end, as indicated in Paul's words: "Unto him (God) be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen" (Eph. 3:21).

At the beginning of the coming age, when Jesus returns, the everlasting Kingdom of God will be established. Daniel 2:44 says: "In the days of these kings (i.e., in the days of the divided condition of the Roman Empire, as now) shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: . . . it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." Further, "The saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever" (Dan. 7:18). May God's people press faithfully forward for this prize.

God's Choir

By Mary Mae Nedrow

A mother sat by a window and Thought of the days gone by,
She heard the church choir singing,
Then silently breathed a sigh.
Softly their sweet notes filled the air—
She heard her daughter's voice,
And, like the village blacksmith,
It made her "heart rejoice."
Soon she found it was only an echo,
A sweet dream of the past;
Just a memory that lingered,
One that could never last.
Gone are those days forever—
The past can ne'er return,
She has only fond recollections,
Memories that make her heart yearn.
Some day, in God's great tomorrow
Gathered round the throne we shall See Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—
Mary Magdalene on bended knee.
Jesus will join in the anthem,
She'll hear her daughter's voice
In God's great celestial choir,
And her heart again will rejoice.

True Christian Faith

By Grace Johnson

DO CHRISTIANS today have true faith in God? Do we have faith that He is able to do many things above all that we ask or think? Faith deals with things that are hoped for, but not seen (Heb. 11:1). We believe that God created all things, and everything He made was a foundation upon which we are to work. Our faith is the implicit trust we have in God that He will perform that which He promised.

Our fellow men and women can, and do sometimes, fail to keep their words, but God never fails. If we expect to receive blessings from God, we must believe He will care for us. How disappointing it is to realize that some will go astray by departing from the faith! Some will deny their Lord and Master who did so much for them in their hour of need. Before there can be true faith there must be something in which to have faith. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Our future lives depend very much on that little word, "faith."

According to the Apostle Paul, there is "one faith" (Eph. 4:5). We believe this; therefore, we believe there is only one gospel. Christ commanded His disciples to "preach the gospel to every creature," promising, too, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16).

The disciples onetime came to Jesus and asked why they could not heal and perform a certain miraculous work that Jesus did. Jesus told them it was because of their lack of faith. In solemn truth He said: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Christians are warned against false teachers and possible destruction of our faith. We are to be on guard to defend our church doctrines which so many try to destroy. Therefore, we should watch day and night for the perverse things which draw us away from our faith.

Faith is not the only essential needed. Works are equally essential, for we read in James 2:20: "Faith without works is dead." Each person will be judged according to his faith and works. Faith is knowledge. No knowledge is of any value unless it is accompanied with righteous living. A man may do good works, however, and still not have true faith. One cannot receive eternal life in this way.

God had confidence in Abraham and selected him for a work of redemption for man from the death into which he had plunged himself. God knew Abraham would keep the way of the Lord, so He made a covenant with him and his children after him. In Genesis 17:7, 8 we read of the covenant God made with Abraham, telling him of the everlasting inheritance. By faith Isaac and Jacob came into the same promise of everlasting inheritance. Christ is the chief Heir to this promise, and we as Christians are joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), according to the promise. That promise was not through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. "Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham" (Gal. 3:7). Peter and the other apostles based their hope on these promises, and looked forward to their complete fulfillment. They passed their hope to the following generations, even to our own day.

God warned Noah of the Flood, telling him to prepare an ark. In the one hundred twenty years required to build the ark, people ridiculed him for putting so much faith in God, but Noah knew God meant what He said and kept his faith in Him. When the Flood came, Noah and his family, eight in all, were saved. So he became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.

When Joseph approached the time of death, he mentioned the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt. Joseph went through many trials and sufferings, but he had such a trust in God that he knew he should not give up the good work, and kept the faith promised to his fathers.

Moses led the children of Israel through the Red Sea as if it were dry land. The Egyptians, when they saw that the children of Israel could go through, attempted to follow, but as soon as they were in the Sea the waters closed

The Power of Faith

"Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God. . . . By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain. . . . By faith Enoch was translated. . . . By faith Noah prepared an ark. . . . By faith Abraham looked for a city whose builder and maker is God. . . . By faith Moses endured, as seeing him who is invisible. . . . Women received their dead raised to life again: and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance: that they might obtain a better resurrection.

"These all having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect" (Hebrews 11).—
What is your faith doing for you?

about them. This typified our faith of today. As Moses and the children of Israel left the Egyptians behind, so we are baptized and leave our sins behind.

The trial of our faith is very important. Peter said that the trial of our faith is "much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire." It is precious because our eternal life depends on it. We are often tempted to disbelieve God and believe in the world. What wonderful faith and trust a child has in his parents! Why cannot we have the same faith in our Creator?

Abraham received the sign of circumcision which was the seal of righteousness of faith, so baptism is our seal of faith. (Rom. 4:11-13; Col. 2:10-13.) "Without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Jesus is the "author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross." This prospective joy was the seat on the right hand of the throne of God. "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come." "So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham" (Gal. 3:9). Let us have faith, for our lives will be much richer, and eventually we shall be glorified one with another and with Christ. To reign with Christ is the joy set before us, that we might endure.

"Thou Shalt Die and Not Live"

By Florence Dart

---

"I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep" (1 Thessalonians 4:13).

BY "THEM which are asleep," Paul had reference to the dead. Many places in the Bible refer to the dead as being asleep. Jesus, when referring to Lazarus' death, told His disciples, "Our friend sleepeth." Speaking of David's death, 1 Kings 2:10 relates that "David slept with his fathers." On Acts 7:60 we read that Stephen "fell asleep" after being stoned. David, in his prayer in Psalm 13, said, "Lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death."

If death, then, is a sleep, there is no consciousness in death, for we know that in profound sleep there is no consciousness. This thought agrees perfectly with Ecclesiastes 9:5, 6, where we read, "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished." Also, "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (v. 10). Again, in Isaiah 38:18, we read, "The grave cannot praise thee (God), death cannot celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth." This surely describes a state of unconsciousness.

Let us, however, consider the matter further. Concerning the creation of man, in Genesis 2:7, we read: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." He did not receive a living soul, but he became a living soul." This word "soul" is translated from the Hebrew word nephesh, which means a creature that lives by breathing. Concerning this breath of life that God breathed into his nostrils, Job, in 27:3, said, "My breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils." In Leviticus 17:10, 11, we read that the children of Israel were forbidden to eat of the blood of any flesh, "for the life of the flesh is in the blood." (Gen. 9:4; Acts 21:25.)

We know that the air a man breathes into his lungs is the greater per cent oxygen, and that this oxygen is transferred from the lungs into the blood. Therefore, is it not logical to conclude that oxygen was the life-giving power that God breathed into the nostrils of man in Genesis 2:7? Often when a patient is very ill, he is placed in an oxygen tent in an effort to restore his life, or rather, retain it.

Quoting from Psalm 146:4: "His (man's) breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it" (Eccl. 12:7). This spirit is the same spirit spoken of in Job 27:3, "All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils."

If we were to stop here, we would leave man in a very hopeless condition, but we shall return now to our initial text, 1 Thessalonians 4:13: "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." We look forward to a future resurrection. Isaiah said in 26:19: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust." "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

GOD'S NEW WORLD ORDER OR WORLDWIDE RECEIVERSHIP

elimination of evil must needs wait God's move. His new world order will completely eliminate evil from the earth. While men might acquire a partial success, His success will be complete.

The New Order and Laws

We often wonder from where sin and crime come. As we read the Bible, we are impressed with the thought that they are as closely related to law as they are to money love. Probably law and money love can be seen in the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. At least, law is seen in the beginning, and the profits system is as old as our knowledge of the human race. From the beginning, law was necessary in controlling money-love evil. Of course, there was no Mosaic law from Adam to Moses (Rom. 5:13, 14), but Hammurabi had a great code of laws much earlier than that. We read in 1 John 3:4 that "sin is the transgression of the law," and in Romans 4:15: "Where no law is, there is no transgression." This is axiomatic, not only of divine laws, but of man-made laws as well. There has surely been plenty of transgression of both since Adam's time, hasn't there? When Adam partook, in the Garden, he started something which continues to the present date with its inevitable transgression. Law and transgression always go hand in hand. Yet, men are continually multiplying laws instead of eliminating them.

What will Christ do about laws when He takes over the world-wide receivership? Surely, in God's new order, laws must go or sin could not be eliminated. Will they be dispensed with? We read in Galatians 3:13, "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law." When Paul wrote these words, he must not have seen the complete fulfillment as immediately at hand, but rather in God's Kingdom, for the thou "shalt not" is still brought to the front in the words, "They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God" (Gal. 5:21). Now, what is said of the law as unprofitable for salvation is applicable to all law. We read in Galatians 3:21, "If there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law." If the law which God gave could not give life, how about man's laws? The law, being our schoolmaster to lead us to Christ, its purpose was fulfilled when He came. Then, why should any law need be in effect when the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ?

We could probably benefit even today, from a legal viewpoint, if we tried to emulate God's way. We could practice a subtraction of laws rather than a multiplication thereof. Of course, this could not be accomplished to a large extent under present conditions, but under God's plan, according to the hypothetical illustrations, it could probably be accomplished on a large scale. In a system eliminating practically all bootlegging, prostitution, theft, and homicide, laws concerning these evils could be greatly reduced. It would then become the lawmakers work to see how many laws could be scrapped as well as to see what few new ones were needed, and they would probably become a planning body in the main. This would be a wonderful system under any government, but under the receivership of Jesus Christ it will work out to perfection. In God's new order, righteousness will be brought in naturally and automatically, and without undue force being applied. Then the teaching will be given, and men will understand and accept, and know it is for the best. How different from the way the dictators go at propagating their systems! How different from the attitude of mankind in general! Do you wonder, then, that man's bankruptcy is certain, and God's new order sure?

Now, it is difficult to see why men insist on waiting for the Kingdom, to gain the benefits pertaining thereto. Surely, God's plan could be made to fit the governmental framework of any country. For instance, it could be made to work in our own country, and we still could retain our democratic form of election and administration. As far as the transfer of property from the individual to the state is concerned, we have a precedent on which to work, now. As long as profit-making property can be legally taken over by the government in an extreme defense emergency, it could be taken over just as legally in an extreme peace-time emergency, with the assurance that all men be guaranteed full and adequate support. However, knowing men as men are, and prophecies, as they seemingly predict, men can hardly be expected to emulate God's way in their own volition. They will probably wait until conditions force them to accept God's plan before they will give up the worship of mammon, and their chasing of the "almighty dollar."

Men talk about aims for the future of "freedom from want and fear." It is coming sometime. The ones who have mentioned a desire for it will probably be unable to accomplish it. One might say, "Eventually, why not now?" or, "The sooner the better," but whether sooner or later, let us know that want and fear cannot be eliminated as long as the love of money is here. Mankind, as a whole, does not want to try for freedom from want and fear when it comes to paying the price, in spite of the evident honesty of the leaders who have mentioned it as their aim. In spite of this, men will probably continue as they are, taking advantage of their fellow men until the world becomes bankrupt, and Christ receives the receivership thereof. This makes a dark picture, it is true, but we have a wonderful picture before us in the teaching as to the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. So, in these dark days of hurt and destruction, it is a comfort to know of a time coming on this old world when "they shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Isa. 11:9).

FAVORING ORDINATION BY GENERAL CONFERENCE

AT THE last General Conference motion was made by Elders Harvey Krogh, Jr., and M. W. Lyon that "the Secretary be instructed to consult with the state organizations and other interested parties during the ensuing year to discover whether there is still any objection to the General Conference now exercising the authority to ordain and license as ministers such individuals as shall have obtained the recommendation of the local church or a state conference and who are Scripturally qualified for the ministry, this with a view to taking appropriate action in conformity with this motion at the next conference if so approved." The motion carried.

Accordingly, the Secretary has written the various conference secretaries and others, and is pleased to report that to date there have been received several letters of endorsement to the motion and no letters of criticism or objection.

The churches and conferences that have replied in the affirmative are:

- The Ohio State Conference
- The Virginia State Conference
- The Arkansas City, Kansas, Church
- The Fonthill, Ontario, Church
- The Niagara Falls, New York, Church
- The Michigan State Conference

We should be pleased to hear from other churches and conferences before this matter is presented at the General Conference soon to convene. Should the General Conference be granted the right to license and ordain ministers, it would in no sense infringe upon similar rights on the part of local churches or state conferences.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secretary.

Said Paul to Titus: "For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee: if any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithful children not accused of riot or unruly. For a bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God; not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre; but a lover of hospitality, a lover of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate; holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers. For there are many unruly and vain talkers."

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

The name of Dr. Will Durant has become synonymous, in the world of theoretical science and abstract letters, with the voice of Authority. And in the world of plain, ordinary readers like you and me, Durant has come to occupy a place peculiar among serious non-fictionists; for he has so popularized such an unpopular subject as philosophy as to make two books about the subject sell over a million copies in at least twelve different languages.

The Story of Philosophy, of course, leaps to mind as the better known of the two Durantian books; but its companion volume, equally long and in a sense equally abstruse and difficult, has won only slightly lesser reputation as The Mansions of Philosophy. Each book is now available in a Garden City Publishing Company reprint at only $1.69. The Garden City reprints are exceptionally good, as a rule; and the manufacturers of these two Durantian reprints have done themselves proud in way of format, paper, and binding.

The Story of Philosophy is precisely what its name implies—the story of how philosophy, as a science, came into being, and the study of the characteristics and idiosyncracies of those who gave it life. The publication of The Story of Philosophy so stirred the reading public that it was immediately followed by a 200 per cent increase in the sale of serious works by such writers as Spinoza, Plato, Nietzsche. An unfortunate oversight, from our point of view, is the omission of any mention of the philosophy of Jesus Christ. Christianity is, after all, a form of philosophy, as is any religion. Dr. Durant leave us in the dark, however, as to why he ignored the religious leaders.

The Mansions of Philosophy carries on with brief outlines of what the philosophers actually taught. Thus, the two volumes form a fairly comprehensive coverage of the more outstanding systems of thought which have served largely to influence men to live, politically and economically, as they are living now. Any intelligent Bible student will find them interesting, if only because they paint so vivid a picture of the mental incapacity of the human race.

The Dollar and the Cent

"A big silver dollar and a little brown cent,
Rolling along together they went,
Rolling along the smooth sidewalk;
When the dollar remarked—for the dollar can talk:
'You poor little cent, you cheap little mite,
I'm bigger and more than twice as bright;
I'm worth more than you a hundredfold
And written on me in letters bold
Is the motto drawn from the pious creed,
'In God we trust,' which all can read.'
'Yes, I know,' said the cent,
'I'm a cheap little mite, and I know
I'm not big, nor good, nor bright.
And yet,' said the cent, with a meek little sigh—
'You don't go to church as often as I.'"

The Word Inspired

We read in 2 Peter 1:21 that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Also, in our golden text above, according to Paul, the Scriptures were inspired or directed of God's Spirit.

Why should this interest us today? The Bible is true. We cannot put our trust in an untrue thing. We can trust God's Word. It never fails; it is true. Events long foretold have come true. Name some. Yes, Jesus' birth was told of long before it happened. He often spoke of His resurrection when talking with His apostles. Some prophecies are still future, as the second return of Jesus to the earth.

Now, as we know the Bible to be God's true helper for the salvation of mankind why not read it more often? When you know you are to have an examination in school in a certain subject, those who get the best grades are the ones who study most profitably. In John 21:25 we read that Jesus said much more than is written in the Bible. In John 12:47, 48 we learn that if we reject Christ we have "one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." Surely, then, the important things that Jesus spoke are in the Bible. In fact, the Bible is our textbook. We are told to study to show ourselves approved of God, searching the Scriptures daily.

The Holy Spirit was showered upon the apostles and writers of our Bible, so they could remember what they were to write. "The Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you" (John 14:26).

The Holy Spirit is not a person. It is the power of God. Jesus said to His apostles: "Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high" (Luke 24:49). Sometimes the word "he" used in the second verse above (from John 14:26) is used to convince people that the Holy Spirit is a person. However, turn to Acts 12:10. There we find a gate—an iron gate—which opened of "his" own accord. Then, the gate is a person? No! I have been told that there was no word in the original language in which the New Testament was written to take the place of "it" in English, so they use "he" and "his" instead. Also, in the Old Testament we find wisdom, a good thing to have, written of as though it were a person. (Read Prov. 8.)

The Bible not only fits together in the many teachings, but it contains God's thoughts written for us. Study it!

The Echo Fadeth

If one was managing a nationwide sales organization and did not know of the progress of each of his several territories until after six months or a year had elapsed, it is very likely that his company would soon become insolvent. For some time the National Berean Society has been in much this same situation with regard to information from local societies. In many instances the officers of the organization—to say nothing of the individual members—hear nothing from some societies for as long a period as six months or a year. The Berean Echo was launched a couple of years ago to publicize the work of the various societies. Because there was no one person who had the time to do all the work, it was decided to divide the work among several people. Unluckily no two members of the Echo staff lived in the same town. Trouble ensued. It was a hard enough job to get material, both news and special articles, but it seemed to be harder to get this material together and into the hands of Berean members for whose benefit the project was started.

If one has ever tried to mimeograph anything at regular intervals, he knows something of the work required. When we add to this the time element involved in sending the work to different staff members throughout the country, it is amazing to consider the amount of success we have really had.

It is desirable to have a regular report from each society at least in one-month intervals describing in detail the work that is being done. With this information the officers of the organization would have something from which to plan their work, and when published would tend to unite the societies into a unified and more aggressive organization.

It is highly desirable that each Berean society appoint a member to act as reporter. In most instances the secretary could take detailed minutes of each meeting and send a copy of these minutes, together with other news, to the editor of the Berean paper. After sorting out the items of interest to the majority of societies, the editor could then turn the entire report over to the president of the National Berean Society, who, in turn, would instruct the other officers of work to be done in giving assistance where it was needed.

What to Do

It has been suggested that the publication of the Echo be continued, but that each society be given the responsibility of publishing one or more issues, thus keeping the majority of the actual work of publishing in one locality and saving considerable time. If properly conducted, this plan should benefit not only the entire organization in the prompt receiving of news, but especially those organizations which had the practical experience of publishing the paper.

An alternative plan would be to use a slight modification of a plan that was submitted to the National Berean organization a couple of years ago, that of printing the news in The Restitution Herald. The editor of The Herald has agreed to allot two columns on the church page of The Herald each month for use by the Bereans. By appointing to the Berean Board only one more person responsible for collecting Berean news, considerable time and expense could be saved, more news would be printed sooner, and the Bereans would become more united with the rest of the Church of God organization.

One objection to the latter plan has been the increased cost of The Herald over a mimeographed Berean publication. Those who should know state that if the money that was spent for the publication of the Echo were turned over to the National Bible Institution, the family of every Berean member who does not now subscribe to The Herald could be supplied with our church paper. Thus, not only would Berean news be dispensed with greater speed and regularity, but news of our entire church organization and articles by our best writers would be placed in the hands of many more people, some of whom are not members of our church now, but who, through increased knowledge of what is being taught, might soon express a desire to join the effort.

Although the cost of this plan would perhaps be high the first year, it is believed that once The Restitution Herald is placed in the homes of non-subscribers, they will voluntarily renew their subscription when their Berean subscription expires. What shall we do? Which plan shall we follow? Or is the present arrangement satisfactory? Come to the National Berean business meeting prepared to discuss this matter.

NAME YOUR DELEGATES

Several church secretaries, in reporting their church membership for representation at General Conference, July 29—August 10, 1941, failed to name their delegates to the Conference. These secretaries should report the names of their church delegates, immediately, that their respective churches might be represented in the voting.

Any church having no member in attendance at the General Conference may appoint some acquaintance planning to be in attendance to serve as its delegate, but any such appointments should likewise be immediately reported. To illustrate: if the Church of God at Graytown, Wis., does not expect to have any members present who might serve as delegates, this church would still be entitled to representation through some acquaintance, such as Sr. Muriel Randall who served the church as a temporary pastor. (We are hoping, though, that several members from this church will be present at the Conference, and have used these names only in illustration.)

Churches, please name your delegates.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL PROSPECTUS

The Board of Religious Education takes pleasure in presenting a neat, informative, and well illustrated prospectus of the Bible Training School. Copies will be sent to everyone far or near who will send ten cents for postage and handling. Copies will be sent free to all high school graduates who might become interested in attending the Bible Training School which will begin its third term September 16, 1941. We solicit names and addresses of prospective students, urging our Sunday school superintendents and all ministers to co-operate in this search for new students.

The prospectus not only tells the various details about the Bible Training School, such as organization, personnel, curriculum, and student activities, but presents brief articles by members of the Board of Religious Education and others affiliated with the School, presenting the outlook of the School and its possibilities of growth and service to the Church of God and to the world.

Send today for your copy of the prospectus; and send today your list of prospective students, that we might mail copies to them.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

Sunday evening, July 13, a children's program was given at the church. The program consisted of recitations and musical numbers. We are hoping to have more programs similar to this soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Claypool and son Gene, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Claypool were privileged to attend the Quarterly Conference held at Eldorado, Ill., June 29.

Those who received certificates from the teachers' training class are: Miss Edna Wood, Mrs. Allen Claypool, Ray Galeener, Mrs. Anna Cline, Sylvan Riehey, and Mrs. Mildred Watkins. Bro. James Watkins was the instructor. All who received the certificates are finding untold blessings from their training.

The attendance pins for Sunday school were presented the first Sunday in July to the following persons: nine-months' pins—Ray Galeener, Mona, Carl, and June Galeener, Miss Edna Wood; six-months' pins—Mrs. Ray Galeener; three months' pins—Dean Hendrix and George Murphy. We think this is a fine record for a rural church.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Murphy are the proud parents of a baby girl who will go by the name of Donna Lee. Ruth Goekler, Secy.

TO IDLE MINISTERS

If there are any of you who are not at present doing full-time work for your Lord because of ill health, I can appreciate your feelings—for that is the only reason that I am not out preaching God's Word in these needful times. I know, though, that there are some who are in other secular work, who for some reason or another are not preaching regularly as were their intentions at one time. Oh! brethren, if you are able to do so at all, go out and preach the gospel! Would God that I were able to join you!

Ten cents well spent: When you receive your copy of the new prospectus and catalog of the Bible Training School, you will say it is the most you ever received for ten cents, the price for mailing and handling. Copies are free to those who call at the National Bible Institution office for them, and they will be sent free to prospective students. Order your copy today.

A goodly number of the Oregon, Ill., brethren motored to Rockford, Ill., Sunday morning, July 20, to help the Rockford Church of God celebrate its eleventh anniversary. Most of the Rockford brethren were formerly members of the Oregon church.

Students planning to attend the Bible Training School to begin September 16, 1941, will help us by so reporting as soon as possible. We are hoping several from the Summer School will enroll in the regular nine-months' School.

See page 11 for word regarding possible licensing and ordination of ministers by the General Conference—this being one of the questions to be considered at the coming General Conference.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The experiences that one has at Summer Bible Training School are never to be forgotten. The worth of the knowledge gained can never be told or equaled. During the past week, we have studied in Bro. Lindsay's classes, Resurrection and the Sabbath, subjects full of interest and value. In Bro. Sheets' classes, besides English, discussions have been led by various students on varied topics.

Social life at the School has been full of fun and hilarity. On July 10, Malcolm McLeod, as bride, and Alveta Leighty, as groom, were joined in mock marriage by officiating minister, Virginia Smith. All male attendants were gaily bedecked in feminine finery, while the girls wore masculine garb. The effect, as you can imagine, was anything but solemn.

A scavenger hunt brought in any and everything from bird seed to black "snipes." Speaking of "snipes," they seem to be the most evasive creatures ever! No one ever finds one. Wonder why?

In connection with the "wedding," a surprise birthday party was given for the four students whose birthdays occur during the school term. They are: Betty Luper, Bob Rouch, Edwin Smith, and George Walters.
 Iris Hall, Reporter.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Ella Randall; Mrs. George J. Rahn; W. E. Boyer; Pennellwood Bereans (for others); William Berry; Max Dolmage; Florence Tuttle; Mrs. Ada M. Eldridge; Miss Lota Huffer; Mrs. Howard Hamilton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Everyone interested in Sunday school work should be present at General Conference; Saturday, August 9, at which time the interests of our Sunday schools will be considered and discussed.
 L. T. Hanson, Committee Chairman.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS

Rejoice with us! Bro. Frank William Rose, 512 W. May St., Yoakum, Texas, drove down last Wednesday morning, July 9, and was baptized into Christ about eight o'clock in the morning. He was accompanied by his wife and mother. After a very pleasant visit, they started on their return trip home at about 3:00 p.m.

We thank God for one who was interested enough in obeying the Master that he made the drive of nearly three hundred miles, that he might be "born of water." Surely he will remain faithful unto the end and receive a crown of life. Remember him and us in your prayers.
 George A. Waters, Pastor.

FAIRY IRENE BLACK

Fairy Irene Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otha Littlejohn, was born November 21, 1904, and passed from life at the Troy Hospital July 3, 1941.

She was united in marriage to Roy E. Black on February 6, 1924. To this union were born four children: Lois Maxine; Dorothy Mae; Betty Jane, who died in infancy; and Patsy Louise. Others left to mourn are: her mother and three brothers, Granville and Lawrence Littlejohn of Troy, and Forrest residing at home—also many friends and relatives.

Sr. Black was reared in a Christian home and was a faithful wife and loving mother. She requested to be baptized early this summer and was immersed at Brush Creek on May 23 of this year, uniting with the Brush Creek Church of God. She patiently bore the suffering of two years of illness. With an earnest desire to live and prove the faith she recently confessed, she fell asleep to await the glad resurrection day.

The funeral sermon was given by the writer, and burial was made in the cemetery beside the Brush Creek Church.
 Harvey Krogh, Jr.

MRS. PETER HUTCHINSON

Mrs. Peter Hutchinson was born in Franklin County, Miss., in 1887, and died at her home near Hammond, La., Saturday night, June 29, 1941. In early life her folks moved to Louisiana, where she has since lived. She was married in 1906, and for thirty-five years was a faithful companion of her husband.

She leaves to mourn her death her husband; two brothers, Lige and Pierce Jones; two sisters, Mrs. Alpha Harris and Mrs. Tilda Seafield; five sons, Millard, Peter, Eddie, Henry, and Herbert; four daughters, Corinne, Irma, Frances, and Viney; also four stepchildren, five grandchildren, and other relatives and friends.

Her sudden death was a great shock to all, as she had apparently been in good health until the last. She was a hard worker, a devoted wife and mother, and was always anxious to help others.

She became a member of the Happy Woods Church of God in 1924, being baptized by Bro. Frank Siple, and was a faithful member throughout the passing years. The Happy Woods Church will feel her loss keenly, as she loved to attend church and was always present when physically able to do so.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer in the Happy Woods Church, after which she was laid to rest in Beulah Cemetery. Now she sleeps quietly in death, awaiting the glorious morn of the resurrection.
 Harry Goekler, Pastor.

HILLISBURG, INDIANA

Sunday, July 6, was date of our annual Sunday school picnic. We went to the park in Frankfort. A basket dinner was served to the following thirty-nine members and guests: Mr. and Mrs. Burdel Wayet and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mohler and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Dick and family, Mrs. Elizabeth Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Snyder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Huffer and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Foreman, Mrs. Bessie Huffer and daughters, Maxine Dinnman, Delilah Huffer, Lota Huffer, Albert Huffer, and Lou Stewart. The afternoon was spent socially.

On Sunday, July 20, there will be a basket dinner at the park for Bro. J. H. Anderson as a birthday dinner, by the churches of his pastorate. They are hoping for a good attendance.
 Lota Huffer.

WHITE PINE, MINNESOTA

When we made plans for Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick's series of meetings, we thought from ten days to two weeks would be as long as we could expect to have the services, because of the busy season for the farmers. But as that time drew near the end, it was voted to continue another full week. So, after one of the best two-weeks' series of meetings White Pine has known, we are looking forward to still another week rich in knowledge and blessings, from one who has thoroughly devoted his life to the teaching of Christ and who can do the work in a way which really brings the Spirit of Christ among his listeners in a most impressive manner. It has been a great privilege to have such a good teacher with us, and we are more than thankful for the past two weeks. Mrs. Ronald Matheny.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Israel, a Mighty Nation

By Mrs. Howard H. Hawkins

NO MATTER how much one might do or say, there are always many people who will not believe that the Jews as a nation occupy an important position in regard to the coming Kingdom of God. Some will grant that there will be such a Kingdom, and some will even agree that it will be established here on earth, but for the Jews, they have no use whatsoever.

Those who speak so strongly against the Jews, and even persecute them, are fulfilling prophecy without knowing it. The Jews are a very important nation in world prophecy. Because we understand their history and the part they will play in last-day prophecy, we cannot despise them. Some day the nations that are persecuting the Jews will be punished for it.

Despite their persecution, Jews have steadily risen. They form a considerable portion of the educated classes of the foremost nations of the world. Jewish names are distinguished as linguists, critics, economists, scientists, and historians. They, too, are in great part the magnates of American industrial and commercial life.

These facts, which are only examples of many of like character, show unmistakably the wondrous change which has taken place in the fortunes of the sons of Zion. These events are preparing the way for Zionism, a Jewish State in Palestine, and present-day happenings trend toward the same consummation. Nearly all civilized nations profess to believe Jesus is the Saviour of mankind, the One of whom all the holy men of old spoke and wrote; but the Jews, the Israelitish nation, having the light of the gospel ever before them, are still blind to these truths. Some day when the fullness of the Gentiles has come in and God has opened their blinded eyes and hearts, the prophecy of Zechariah 12:10 will come to pass.

We quote: "I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn."

People have been incensed because the Jews were going back to the Holy Land and taking the wealth of the world with them. We read in Isaiah 41:11: "Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish." Zechariah 12:2, 3 reads: "Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people round about, when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem. And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it."

Today, the Feast of Firstfruits (Shuwnos) has been re-established by Jewish farmers who are bringing the products of the soil as an offering to the Jewish National Fund. These products are sold and the money used to redeem more land for Jewish settlers. People from many colonies flock into Tel Aviv with fruit, vegetables, dairy products, and grain. Wagons loaded with produce and automobiles gaily decorated move in procession. There is singing by children dressed in white with wreaths on their heads. It is a joyful time. How much more joyful it will be, though, when Israel recognizes Christ, "the firstfruits" from the dead, and shares in the joy of resurrection glory!

The prophecies of the last days center about these people and their city Jerusalem, because it is the place where Christ will descend to set up His Kingdom. Present conditions indicate the fulfillment of Zechariah 14:14 and make us more certain that the (Please turn to page 11)

“It Is Near, Even at the Doors”

As these lines are being written, various preparations are being made for the General Conference of the Church of God in the United States and Canada which will convene at Oregon, Illinois, July 29—August 10, 1941, and to which spiritual feast everyone reading these lines is cordially invited. The time is short—the Conference “is near, even at the doors.” Unless you quickly make plans to attend, you will not be among the number of faithful ones who will share in this spiritual feast. It is now the eleventh hour.

Soon, too, Jesus will return from heaven, as it is written: God “shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began” (Acts 3:20, 21). “It is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we first believed. The night is far spent, the day is at hand” (Rom. 13:11, 12). “Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry” (Heb. 10:37). Speaking of signs which would foreshadow His coming again, Jesus said: “When ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors” (Matt. 24:33).

Like the caboos on a train, some people always drag behind, and still others scarcely drag. There are not too many engines among us.

True, not all our members are able to attend the General Conference, but many more than usually attend might attend, if it were fully sensed that as certainly as Conference time is very near, so also the coming of the Lord is near, “even at the doors.” Are you faithfully pulling your share of the gospel load? Will you arrive in Oregon, Illinois, on time? God forbid that you should be even a minute late when Jesus comes. It is now the eleventh hour—PREPARE!

How You May Help

Not too often, but frequently, someone asks: “How can we help you in the gospel work?” If you should be one wishing to help, we suggest that you co-operate in finding and enlisting freshmen for our Bible Training School which will soon begin its third year. According to present plans, school will begin September 16, 1941. We hope this year to have at least fifteen students, which will necessitate enrolling seven freshmen.

You will greatly oblige us by reporting the names and addresses of the young people in your church or Sunday school who have graduated from high school. We shall then mail to each of them a copy of our new prospectus and catalog of the Bible Training School, giving them all the information that they might wish before enrolling. Also, especially at various conferences and series of special meetings, we would much appreciate some little mention of the Bible Training School on the part of ministers, Sunday school superintendents, or Berean officials. Use the prospectus to advertise the Bible Training School—copies are ten cents each, regularly, but are free to prospective students. Help us today.

We Like It, Too

Brother Arlen Marsh writes this week in his “Building Your Library” column that the American Standard Version of the Bible (also called the American Revised Version) has been “the accepted version of almost all Protestant denominations for many years, chiefly owing to its greater accuracy and its elimination of many archaic and incomprehensible phrases from the English Bible.” Though the King James Version is almost wholly used by ministers and brethren of the Church of God, and though this practice may be long continued, the American Revised Version merits a place in every student’s library.

Neat copies of the American Revised Version—only one inch thick, self-pronouncing, center references, concordance, maps, India paper, and bound in leather—may be purchased for $6.00, postpaid, from National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Or, if you prefer, the same style Bible can be purchased at the same price in the King James Version.

A Cooler Church for Conference

Since last General Conference, the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois, when installing a new furnace, provided, too, for partial air conditioning. Enjoy it with us! Come!

The Doctrine of Baptism

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THE BIBLE is full of types and ceremonies. Many of the types point to Christ who is the centerpiece of the plan of salvation. Isaac and Moses were both typical of the Saviour. The ceremony of the Passover pictured Jesus and His work by the slain lamb. The meaning of some of these is not clear unless we study them.

There is, however, one ceremony of greatest importance that has its meaning and significance in plain statements in the Bible. This is baptism. Originally, it was the immersing of an individual in water—and it still is, for no court of man's can change it. There was a time when certain professed followers of Christ attempted to change the word "baptism" to mean "sprinkling." It is evident that they did not know the purpose of the act, nor did they care enough for the Lord to follow His emphatic command. They had no more right to change, or we should say attempt to change, the word than we have right to change the meaning of the word "love" to "hatred."

It will suffice to give two instances in the Scriptures which clearly show the manner of baptism to be immersion. When Philip baptized the eunuch, the Record says, "They went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him" (Acts 8:38). The immersion of our Saviour is stated as follows: "Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water" (Matt. 3:16).

It is not unfair to say that many professed Christians think of this as a meaningless washing, and hence ignore it, but the vital importance of the act, if followed, is told in 1 Peter 3:21: "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us . . . by the resurrection of Christ."

In Romans 6:3, 4 we have the announcement of the Christian's death. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death." Are you dead in the sense that Peter described it in 1 Peter 2:24? "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed." Those who are literally dead cannot sin; therefore Paul said, "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Paul did not mean that it would be impossible for us to sin, but that we should refrain from sinning, since we are accounted as dead.

The Christian is also considered as dead to the old Mosaic law, according to Romans 7:4: "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God." Paul also confessed the same for himself in Galatians 2:19: "I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God."

Concerning the position of the one baptized we read, "He that is dead is freed from sin" (Rom. 6:7). The margin says, "Justified from sin." Someone told us the old colored man's interpretation was "just-if-I'd-not-sinned." The going down into the water is a burial which shows that we are counted as "dead indeed unto sin." However, there is no advantage in being freed from sin, if we remain dead, or if we come up as that same "old man" that was "crucified with him" (Christ). Therefore, there must be a resurrection out of the baptismal waters to a new life now, or baptism does not save, for Paul said: "That like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). For confirmation, we read 2 Corinthians 5:17: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." He also said: "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God" (Rom. 6:12, 13). Paul further testified: "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who . . . gave himself for me." (Please turn to page 11)

ISRAEL'S TYPICAL BAPTISM

"Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink, for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ. . .

"Now all these things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted. . . Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed of serpents. .

"Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples ('types,' marg.): and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come" (1 Cor. 10:1-11).

Are you, being baptized into Christ, eating and drinking of the Spiritual Rock? or are you eating and drinking as did the people in the days of Noah? What does Baptism mean to you?

No Man in Heaven

By Edwin Smith

"No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven."

DID CHRIST come from heaven? That is, did He come as God's gift to man? Let us see what the Scripture has to say about it. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). Also, in Matthew 3:17 we read, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." In Ephesians 1:5 we read, "Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will." Then, we are the children of God only through adoption. If that is the case, then we did not come from God as did Christ, nor do we have any promise of going to heaven as did Christ.

"David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand" (Acts 2:34). Do any of the so-called Christians claim to be more righteous than was David? If so, I am afraid that they are mistaken. If David is not ascended into the heavens, how have we any hope of going to heaven after death? The answer is that we do not have any such hope. Some just "kid" themselves into believing so.

"Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall die in your sins: whither I go, ye cannot come" (John 8:21). That is, people could not go with Jesus into heaven. Toward the close of Jesus life, He likewise said unto the Twelve, "Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you" (John 13:33). Then, in reply to a question of Peter's, Jesus plainly said: "Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now (in this age); but thou shalt follow me afterwards" (i.e., in the coming age after Christ's return).

The word "immortal" appears in the Bible only once: "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever (1 Tim. 1:17). The word "immortality" appears in the Bible only five times. They are:

(1) "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53).

(2) "The blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach" (1 Tim. 6:15, 16).

(3) God "will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life" (Rom. 2:6, 7).

(4) Christ "hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (2 Tim. 1:10).

(5) "When this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory" (1 Cor. 15:54).

Nowhere does the Bible speak of any immortality of the soul. If a person should try to describe the form of a soul as it is commonly believed, that in itself would automatically dispose of any such idea. Historians tell us that the Egyptians were the first to declare that the soul is immortal, but we differ with them on that question. We believe that the Devil was the first to teach this doctrine—even in the Garden of Eden. "The serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4). Why should the immortality of the soul be accepted when it originated with the Devil and was developed in heathen nations? The originator knew the truth, but evidently wanted to be superior to God—therefore started the doctrine that Eve, being deceived, accepted. This is today the most deceiving theory on earth.

The Devil has more followers than the Christian faith ever had. People today teach the gospel of the Devil. They use the Bible, or rather parts of the Bible, to prove their point, but the texts that they use often mean exactly the opposite. This would usually be seen if one would read a little farther. People that have the Bible and teach the gospel of the Devil are no better than the ones who know the Bible but do not practice it. We want the gospel of the Lord, not the gospel of the Devil!

JESUS TOLD THE JEWS

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. . . . I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you. . . . If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham. But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

"Ye do the deeds of your father. . . . If God were your father, ye would love me. . . . Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning (his deceiving lie was the poison that brought death to all), and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of IT" (John 8:32-44).

Surely, many children believe their father's lie! "Ye shall know the truth."

First, one must know the gospel of the Devil, so he will not be deceived by it. It is the statement that the Serpent gave Eve in the Garden. It is, "Ye shall not surely die." That is the gospel that most of the churches teach today. This is the gospel from which we must get away, if we want eternal life.

The next question is, How do we get away from this gospel? The best way to escape from it is to ignore it, and read our Bibles until we can quote texts for every point that true religion teaches. After this is accomplished, we should go to those who teach the gospel of the Devil, to show them that there is no hope in the doctrine they teach. If we can convert only one of these deceived teachers, we shall have spent our time in a most worthy cause.

A question with which we shall be confronted while teaching others, follows: Is the Kingdom of God worth the work that I am putting into it? No man can earn eternal life, the gift of God. This is the greatest work with which the world is gifted. We ought to be glad that we have opportunity to work for Christ. Jesus said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

The Law of the Nazarite

By Harold Hurdesty

---

WHEN God organized the Israelitish nation under the law through Moses, He provided for a priesthood that would be separated unto Him to serve Him and make offerings unto Him. The priests were to be "holy unto their God." Some of the requirements of a priest were that he should abstain from strong drink of any kind, that he could cut neither his beard nor his hair, and that he could not come near the dead body of any person except it be one of his immediate family. This exception did not hold good in the case of the high priest, however, for we read concerning the high priest: "Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother" (Lev. 21:11).

God knew, however, that there would be others, also, outside the tribe of Levi, who would desire to separate themselves unto Him. Therefore, God gave to Israel the "law of the Nazarite." Any man or woman who cared to take advantage of this law was required to vow a vow unto the Lord that he would separate himself unto the Lord for any given period of time.

The requirements for the Nazarite during his separation were similar to the requirements of the high priest. He must abstain from wine and strong drink. No razor must come upon his head. He must not defile himself by coming in contact with any dead body. Even though his own parents or brothers or sisters should die during the time of his vow, he could not come near them.

At the expiration of his vow, the Nazarite was required to offer a series of offerings unto the Lord through the medium of a priest. He then shaved his head, after which time he was free to drink wine again.

It is apparent from several statements made in the Bible that many in Israel did take advantage of the law of the Nazarite, thus making themselves "holy unto the Lord"

(Num. 8:6). It appears that the Apostle Paul took the vow of the Nazarite at least once during his lifetime. (See Acts 18:18.)

It was possible for a man to "be a Nazarite to God from the womb to the day of his death" (Judges 13:7), that is, he could be a Nazarite for life. The divine Record tells us of three such men. These were Samson, Samuel, and John the Baptist.

The births of Samson and John were heralded by angels who gave instructions to their parents that they were to be separated unto God. Both were separated for a purpose.

According to the angel, Samson was to "begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines" (Judges 13:5). This was accomplished when he slew three thousand officers and chief rulers of the Philistines by pulling down a building upon himself and them.

God's special purpose in John was that he should "make ready a people prepared for the Lord" (Luke 1:17). The Gospels show that John accomplished this purpose.

As for Samuel, his separation was pledged to God by his mother before his conception, when she was yet barren. She promised God that if He would only give her a "man child," she would "give him unto the Lord all the days of his life, and there (should) no razor come upon his head" (1 Sam. 1:11). God granted her request, and she kept her word. Samuel was schooled in the Temple under the influence of Eli the priest. He became a prophet and a judge, greatly loved in Israel.

In some ways there is a close similarity between the man who took the vow of the Nazarite and the man who takes on the name of Christ. In Christian baptism we have more than the mere confession that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and Heir of the world. In baptism there is more than a confession of (Please turn to page 10)

Will All of Adam's Race Be Saved?

In Two Articles—Article Two

By J. M. Morgan

THE Kingdom of God which will continue "for ever, even for ever and ever" (Dan. 7:18) will be inhabited by a people having so-called "age-lasting" life, yet their lives will never end. Jesus said, "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead ('out of dead ones,' Emph. Diag.), neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection" (Luke 20:35, 36). Now, as those who have age-lasting life are to live forever, it reasonably follows that the wicked who enter into the age-lasting destruction are to be dead forever.

"Some Shall Depart From the Faith"

It is evident that some have departed "from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron" (1 Tim. 4:1, 2). James says: "Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him; let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins" (5:19, 20). May God help us who know and believe the truth to help others who have erred from the truth, lest in the error of their way they should be eternally lost in the second death.

"It Is Impossible"

That there will be some of Adam's race eternally lost is evident from the following words of the Apostle Paul: "It is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame. For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God: but that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned" (Heb. 6:4-8). Someone might ask, Why is it that these persons cannot be saved? The answer is: "It is impossible . . . to renew them again unto repentance."

Timely Warning

Knowing that some "shall fall away," it is well for all Christians to consider the following timely warning first given to the Church of God of the Hebrews: "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries" (Heb. 10:23-27). Because there is no more sacrifice for such men's sins, there can be no forgiveness for their sins; and instead of looking for salvation, the willful sinner can look only for "judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour (not save) the adversaries."

"Sorer Punishment"

After the Apostle Paul called attention to the fact that "he that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses," he pointedly asked the question: "Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?" (Heb. 10:29.) Let us consider the words: "Of how much sorer punishment." The punishment of those who despise the shed blood of Christ is to be a "sorer punishment" than the punishment of those who despised Moses' law. Now, if all the wicked who are to die the second death are also to be resurrected from that second death and saved in the ages to come, their punishment would in no sense be "sorer" than those who died the first or Adamic death. All who died under the law of Moses will be raised out of the first death, for: "As by Adam all die, so by the Anointed also, will all be restored to life" (1 Cor. 15:22, Emph. Diag.). We have already proved, however, that the Bible and sound reasoning show that all who die the second death die an everlasting death, they will never be raised out of death, and, therefore, they receive "sorer punishment" than those who despised Moses' law.

"As Though They Had Not Been"

God sometimes speaks of things in the present tense when the future tense is really intended—He “callesth those things which be not as though they were” (Rom. 4:17). By way of illustration, God said unto Abraham, “I have made thee a father of many nations”—at which time Abraham had no child. So certain is God of keeping His promises that He sometimes speaks them as though they had already been accomplished. This principle is involved in speaking of the destruction of the wicked, which, though future, is so definitely sure that various texts speak of their destruction as being already accomplished. Who can change the mind of God who says: “They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish” (Isa. 26:14)?

There are many different sins for which people will die the second and eternal death. We read in Revelation 21:8: “The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.” The Apostle Paul said: “The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life” (Rom. 6:23), and further clearly explained specific sins which will bar people from the Kingdom of God, saying: “The works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God” (Gal. 5:19-21).

Speaking of the doom of the wicked, Obadiah said, “They shall be as though they had not been” (v. 16).

The Bible Does Not Contradict Itself

Because 1 Corinthians 15:25, 26 reads: “He (Christ) must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet,” and, “The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death,” some students assume that Christ will reign until the second death is destroyed—as they say, by another resurrection. Now, the Apostle Paul was not speaking of any second death when addressing the Corinthian church, and it is mere assumption to weave into the foregoing text any thought of raising the wicked from the second death.

Nevertheless, if we were to assume that Paul referred to destruction of the second death, we can readily see that we would thereby lay down a false premise and make the Bible contradict itself. If those who transgress the law of Christ, having experienced the more vile sins and having suffered the second death, are resurrected, it would follow that they would have a better (more lenient) punishment than those who transgressed the law of Moses. The Scripture, however, plainly states that such wicked ones are to suffer a “sover punishment.”

Destruction of the Adamic Death

Though God will surely punish the incorrigibles with “everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power” (2 Thess. 1:9), it is encouraging and inspiring to know that God will redeem all the race of Adam from the first death. God “will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the veil that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth: for the Lord hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation” (Isa. 25:7-9).

Hosea 13:14 likewise prophesies: “I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction.” In harmony with this prophecy, we read that God’s grace “is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel” (2 Tim. 1:10). Also, we read in Hebrews 2:9 that Jesus tasted death “for every man.” There is, however, no promise in the Scripture that the Redeemer would render the second death (the lake-of-fire death) powerless, nor is there any suggestion in the Scriptures that Jesus tasted the second death for anybody.

How Escape If We Neglect?

In conclusion, we would ask with the Apostle Paul: “If the word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him?” (Heb. 2:2, 3.) There is no escape from the second death for those who “neglect.” (Please turn to page 11)

THE BIBLE

By Mary Mae Nedrow

The Bible is a lamp unto our feet,
A torch to light our way,
To lead us in the path of love,
To guide us lest we stray.

It speaks of God the Creator,
How His Word is greater than all;
How He walked in the beautiful Garden,
And of Adam's tragic fall.

There's the promise of a Redeemer,
And (His Word was fulfilled in His Son)
That for our sins Christ should suffer,
'Twas for you and me this was done.

A plan and purpose God unfolds,
He makes it all so plain—
As we turn the pages of this Book,
We praise His precious Name.

God speaks to us through the Bible,
Our chart may it ever be;
As we enter our bark, and sail each day
Upon life's ever-stormy sea.

May it guide us at morn and noontide,
And through the long, long night,
As a compass, to point the way of life;
As God's Kingdom looms in sight.

Christianity Versus Christ

In Two Articles—Article One

By Jeanette Reeves

THIS article is written with the twofold purpose of showing, chiefly by comparing specific examples of preaching and generally accepted sayings with Scripture, that Christianity is one thing and Christ quite another: and of reminding "those who have ears to hear" that nothing less than the truth that Jesus and His disciples preached is able to make men free from sin and death.

That Jesus has had a tremendous influence upon Christianity (and therefore upon the world) in a moral and philosophical way, there can be no question. In their aims, and in much of their doctrine, however, they (Christianity and Christ) are completely at odds, as we shall attempt to demonstrate.

A few weeks ago we heard a prominent preacher discussing over the radio the creation of man as recorded in the first two chapters of Genesis. As we were interested to know what he would say about Genesis 2:7, which may be called the dividing line between truth and error, between those who believe the statement of God in Genesis 2:17 and those who pin their hope to Genesis 3:4, we listened. After reading several verses leading up to Genesis 2:7, he then read this verse: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul," after which he made the following statements:

- (1) "Here is immortality—here is a never-dying soul."
- (2) "The beasts are not living souls."
- (3) "Man is not an animal, and has no affinity with the animal world."

Bible testimony is definitely and overwhelmingly opposed to every one of these statements, as can easily be seen by comparing with them many representative passages of Scripture, considering each statement separately, though they are all closely related. Statement (1) "Here is immortality—here is a never-dying soul." God's Word, however, says: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:20). "Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death" (James 5:20). "None can keep alive his own soul" (Psalm 22:29). "O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave" (30:3). "Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy; to deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine" (33:18, 19). "It shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet (Christ), shall be destroyed from among the people" (Acts 3:23). "What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?" (Psalm 89:48.) "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave" (49:15)—the margin here for grave is "hell," as in many other places, showing that the translators used the same original word for both. "I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction" (Hosea 13:14). "He (David) seeing this (the promise in verse 30) before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul (being) was not left in hell (the grave), neither his flesh did see corruption" (Acts 2:31). "Therefore will I (God) divide him (Christ) a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death" (Isa. 53:12). "He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death" (Phil. 2:8). However, He said triumphantly in Revelation 1:18, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell (the grave) and of death." He will use those keys to open the graves of His brethren when the appointed time comes, as shown in 1 Corinthians 15:20-23: "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man (Adam) came death, by man (Christ) came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming."

This releasing of believers from the grave is further explained as, bringing "out the prisoners from the prison" (Isa. 42:7), as saying to the prisoners, "Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves" (49:9), and as proclaiming "liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound" (61:1).

As for immortality, God only possesses it inherently (1 Tim. 6:16), and the Lord Jesus Christ earned it for Himself and for all who come to God by Him (Heb. 2:14, 15; 5:8, 9; 7:24-27; 9:11, 12, 14, 24-28). We are commanded to seek for it (Rom 2:7), which would be entirely unnecessary if we already possessed it. If we become heirs to this greatest of all bequests, we shall attain it at the time and in the manner described in 1 Corinthians 15:51-55.

Statement (2): "The beasts are not living souls." Here again God's Word stands out in striking contrast with the preacher's statement. A little searching will show us just what the Bible means when it uses the term, "living soul." In Genesis 1:20 we find that God said, "Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth." In the margin we find the word "life" is translated from the Hebrew word that means "soul." "To every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life" (v. 30). Margin for "life" in the Hebrew is "living soul." Coming on down to Genesis 2:7, we find that God "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." The margin here refers us to Genesis 7:22, which says, "All in whose nostrils was the breath of life" (margin, Hebrew, "breath of the spirit of life"), which included fowls, cattle, beasts, creeping things, and man (v. 21). Moffatt's translation, as well as the marginal readings in the King James Version, indicates that the beasts had the same "breath of the spirit of life" that Adam had and were, therefore, living souls just as he was.

Isaiah exclaimed, "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils" (2:22). Breath in his nostrils is what constitutes one a living soul, whether he be man or beast. Moffatt uses the terms "living creature" and "living beings" to express the same idea.

The following references, some from the King James Version, some from Moffatt, further develop the idea:

"In whose (God's) hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind" (Job 12:10, King James), and "In whose control lies every living soul, and the whole life of man" (Job 12:10, Moffatt).

"The world is full of thy creatures, all looking to thee for their food in season due; what thou givest that they gather, feasting from thine open hand. But when thy face is hidden, they are scared, when thou recallest their breath, they die. Yet a breath from thee brings them into being" (Psalm 104:24-30, Moffatt). (Cp. v. 30 of King James.)

"If he set his heart upon man, if he gather unto himself his spirit and his breath; all flesh (both man and beast) shall perish together, and man shall turn again unto dust" (Job 34:14, 15, King James), and "Were he to withdraw his spirit, were he to gather in his breath, the human race would perish in a moment, man would return to the dust" (Job 34:14, 15, Moffatt).

In Ecclesiastes 12:7 (King James), we read, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God, who gave it."

Job 27:3 (King James) says, "All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils."

"His (man's) breath goeth forth (to God, who gave it), he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish" (Psalm 146:4, King James).

Do the foregoing texts teach natural immortality? Do they teach that beasts are not living souls?

Statement (3): "Man is not an animal, and has no affinity with the animal world." Ecclesiastes 3:18-20 reads: "I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts. For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath (or spirit of life); so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." "These (the ones mentioned in verse 10), as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption" (2 Peter 2:12).

"These speak evil of those things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beasts, in those things they corrupt themselves" (Jude 10). If the reader doubts man's capacity for brutality, let him read Jan Valtin's book, "Out of the Night," a condensation of which appears in Readers' Digest for March. Paul, in Romans 7:18-25, shows man's natural estate under the law of sin and death, and points out the one and only means of escaping from it. Apart from Christ, we can have no righteousness that is acceptable to God. "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" (Isa. 64:6). The only way we can appear righteous in God's sight is by "putting on" the covering He has provided for our sins. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ" (Gal. 3:27), and in Jeremiah 23:6 we read, "He shall be called THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS." God has given His Son as a cloak for our sins, and has prescribed the method by which we may be covered. "He that believeth (the gospel of the Kingdom) and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16)—provided, of course, that he walks in "newness of life" (Rom. 6:4).

Of the thousands who may have heard this radio broadcast there probably were not a half dozen persons who would think of questioning the absolute truth of the statements made unless, perchance, some rationalists or atheists heard it. Small wonder there are so many of these, when statements like the ones discussed in this article are accepted as the actual teachings of Christ—statements which are opposed to nature, to experience, and to the Scriptures, making of them a confused and contradictory mass of teaching!

Not so many years ago pellagra, a most dreaded disease, was thought to be a germ disease, and transmissible from person to person. Persistent investigation and laboratory experimentation have proved conclusively that it is strictly a deficiency disease, caused by lack of one of the members of the "B" group of vitamins. With this newer knowledge, doctors can now cure severe cases of pellagra almost overnight by supplying the needed vitamin in large quantities. Now, what if doctors, scientists, and chemists had been content with the traditional ideas about pellagra? They would have continued to treat patients with the same old methods, and the patients would have continued to die. However, they were not content—they were constantly groping and searching, until finally they found the truth. They are searching equally as diligently for the truth about many other diseases, and in many other fields of endeavor—everywhere, except in the field of religion. O, that there might be more of the laboratory method of investigation in the field of religious truth! The vast majority of the civilized people of the world are perfectly content to believe the things handed down by tradition from generation to generation, simply because that is the easy way. Investigation along any line involves much time and trouble.

It seems to me that the doctrine of the immortality of the soul is the pellagra of religion. Here, too, it is strictly a deficiency disease, caused by too much philosophy and theology, and too little Scripture. If scientific minds would busy themselves with this problem, they would soon find that most pagan religions taught the immortality of the soul in some form or other, and that the form believed by most of the Christian world today was taught by the philosophers of Greece and Rome—notably Socrates, Plato, and Epictetus, and complicated by the addition of a little Scripture. If they should turn the spotlight of impartial truth upon the Bible, they would find that this doctrine is not taught at all in God's Word. The only way man can have immortality is to seek for it by complying with God's requirements; then he has it only by promise until the resurrection.

The belief in the immortality and the preciousness of the soul is far more flattering to the vanity of man than God's statements that "all the nations are nothing in His sight, and are counted as the small dust of the balance," and "man (in death) has no preeminence above a beast."

Longfellow's poem, "A Psalm of Life," embodies the substance of the doctrine of soul immortality:

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal."

This appeals strongly to human sentiment. Nevertheless, the grave is its goal, unless it comes into covenant relationship with Him who has the keys of the grave.

Error in religion does not come from the wicked, the base, the irreligious; it comes from the noble and the good—from those of high principle; otherwise it would be scorned by the millions who have deeply religious natures and soaring ideals. All philosophers and poets who have greatly influenced religious thought have been men of noble minds and lofty religious sentiments. Read the life of Socrates, of Plato, Epictetus, Milton, Longfellow, and many others. Without exception, they were noble characters; and, again without exception, they helped mold present-day religious belief. As proof that this is not merely our unsupported opinion, which would be of no value whatever, we quote from two standard reference works as follows:

"Many of our ideas of Satan are from Milton, not from the Bible."—Standard Encyclopedia; article, "Milton."

"Epictetus, a Greek whose teaching blended with Christianity."—Book of Knowledge, Vol. 2, p. 709.

Were their thoughts inspired through God? No! They are not in harmony with the Word of God. Theirs are the noblest thoughts of which the human mind is capable, and represent one phase of the wisdom of the world, which is "foolishness with God": but the prophets and the apostles present God's thoughts, which definitely are not human thoughts. (See Isa. 55:8, 9.)

Soul immortality is the very foundation of all so-called orthodox preaching. Whatever truth there may be in the various buildings erected upon it, there certainly is none in this, the foundation. Would we risk our lives in a skyscraper which had a rotten foundation, even though there might not be a flaw in the building itself? No! We would flee from its vicinity, lest the slightest tremor of the earth cause it to collapse—yet millions of people risk eternal life upon this foundation of straw.

THE LAW OF THE NAZARITE

faith in His atoning work. We have there an unspoken pledge—the pledge of a life to be given in service to God.

If we are Christ's, one requirement is that we present our bodies "a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God." As the Nazarite was "holy unto the Lord," we are "holy . . . unto God." The Nazarite was commanded to abstain from strong drink. We are commanded to "abstain from all appearance of evil" (1 Thess. 5:22).

In the case of Samson, at least, long hair seems to have been a symbol of God-given strength, for when Samson broke his covenant by allowing his hair to be cut, his strength was taken from him. In like manner the Christian has no strength of his own, but that which is given him of God.

Finally, there was the command to the Nazarite that he remain aloof from any dead body. Perhaps a parallel to Christian experience can be found in 2 Thessalonians 3:6: "Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly." Such a person was once alive in Christ, but is now dead in trespasses and sins.

The Christian has separated himself unto God for life and for eternity. If he has been sincere in his decision, there is nothing in heaven or in earth that can separate him "from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom. 8:39).

ISRAEL, A MIGHTY NATION

Jews are a people to watch as world events lead us to the collapse of the world kingdoms. Then we shall enter into the Millennial reign of Christ upon earth.

Christ and His co-rulers will soon begin their reign on this earth, and that will result in the removal of every form of opposition, of every enemy, for "he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:25, 26). Then the prophecy of Micah 4:4 will be fulfilled, saying: "They shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it."

"When the Lord shall dwell in Zion,
Then all nations He'll subdue,
Then all sin He will destroy,
Even death destroy, too.
"God Himself will then be with us,
And will wipe all tears away.
In that Kingdom under heaven;
We shall dwell through endless day."

WILL ALL OF ADAM'S RACE BE SAVED?

Therefore, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Gal. 6:7, 8). This is the sowing time; the reaping time will follow the resurrection. What are you sowing? What will you reap? (Concluded)

THE DOCTRINE OF BAPTISM

Baptism is the great figure or symbol by which one acknowledges, first, that he has died to the old ways of the flesh, and, second, that he has been raised by the power of God to walk as our Saviour taught us. The Christian is yielding to the leadership of Christ before Christ comes to personally rule the whole world. Therefore, for voluntarily following Christ now, the Christian is promised rulership with Him when He comes.

As to the importance of baptism, these words of Jesus should be sufficient, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:16). This is a command not to be ignored. It has already been so lightly considered by many that few know what it teaches and what it does for the sinner.

Baptism is that action that speaks louder than words, proclaiming one's position before God. Have you announced your stand?

Book Reviews

Used in conjunction with Young's New Analytical Concordance or Strong's Exhaustive Concordance, M. C. Hazard's Complete Concordance to the American Standard Version of the Holy Bible (Thomas Nelson & Sons; $4.00) provides a really thorough coverage of the three principal English-language versions: King James, English Revised, and American Standard.

Standing alone, Hazard's concordance touches about 300,000 references arranged under 16,000 headings and sub-headings (publisher's figures; we didn't count the items personally), and includes American Standard Version marginal variations as well as regular readings. It is the only complete concordance to the American Standard, which has been the accepted version of almost all Protestant denominations for many years, chiefly owing to its greater accuracy and its elimination of many archaic and incomprehensible phrases from the English Bible.

Hazard's includes pronunciation and meaning of all Scriptural proper names, with a certain amount of biographical and geographical information.

J. W. McGarvey's New Commentary on Acts (Standard Publishing Co.; $2.00) has the usual orthodox errors, but fortunately they are not numerous. Its publishers are, like Fleming H. Revell, given to strictly fundamentalist literature; and McGarvey's comments consequently do not resort to the entertaining, but unauthentic, hypotheses of the "higher critics." Standard modestly advertises the book as "one of the greatest commentaries on the Acts in the English language"; perhaps it is—certainly it's good, and we are not familiar enough with the vast host of Pauline and Lukian criticisms to dispute successfully.

We do know this much: that the New Commentary on Acts is well worth its price, and that it presents as fair a criticism of Acts as the Church of God, from its own peculiar viewpoints, could expect to find. The first edition was released comparatively recently, which makes us favor it still more; somehow, we've never been able to work up high enthusiasm over commentaries prepared years before Biblical archaeology and research were put on a really scientific plane.

God Pays His Workers

"Who does God's work will get God's pay,
 However long may seem the day,
 However weary be the way.
 He does not pay as others pay,
 In gold or land or raiment gay,
 In goods that perish and decay.
 But God's high wisdom knows the way:
 And that is sure, let come what may,
 Who does God's work will get God's pay."

—Dennis McCarthy.

In connection with the poem above, let us remember two verses of Holy Scripture: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33), and "Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one; and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour" (1 Cor. 3:8).

The Jailer's Faith

Paul had healed a young slave girl who had been a "soothsayer," or what we now call a "fortuneteller." The owners of this girl were very angry with Paul and Silas, for the girl had made them much money. They took Paul and Silas to the market place and told the rulers about them. Do you think they told the rulers the truth about them? (See Acts 16:20-22.) The people believed the owners of the slave girl, and tore off the clothes of Paul and Silas, whipped them, and finally threw them into prison.

At midnight in their jail room, Paul and Silas sang praises to God and prayed. An earthquake shook the building. The prisoners' bands were loosened. Paul and Silas saw that none escaped. The jailer came to them and cried, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

Paul and Silas answered, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." The jailer was then told about Jesus, and they were baptized as soon as they heard and believed. The jailer then took Paul and Silas into his home and gave them food and "rejoiced, believing in God."

Faith and Works

We are saved through God's loving favor or grace. Salvation is a gift. Do you work for a gift? No, for then it is "pay." Can you buy a gift for yourself? No, for then it is yours by an act of purchase. A gift is free. Sometimes we must act in a certain way, to show that we deserve the gift we may win. So it is with the gift God has for His faithful. We must have faith in Him. Now, to say we have faith, yet not to do anything about it, would be foolish. If a farmer said he had faith that his corn would grow, yet wouldn't plant the seed, would he get a crop of corn? No!

"By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast" (Eph. 2:8, 9).

"What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can faith save him? . . . Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone. . . . Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only" (James 2:14, 17, 24). "Without faith it is impossible to please him" (Heb. 11:6).

Lamb of God

"Lamb of God, I look to Thee:
 Thou shalt my example be;
 Thou art gentle, meek, and mild,
 Thou wast once a little child.

"I would be, Lord, as Thou art:
 Give me Thine obedient heart;
 Thou art pitiful and kind,
 Let me have Thy loving mind.

"Loving Jesus, gentle Lamb,
 In Thy gracious hand I am;
 Make me, Saviour, what Thou art,
 Live Thyself within my heart."

Mottoes

* * *

By Gerald L. Cooper, Ripley, Ill.

A recent comment on a Sunday school lesson by one of our writers, Brother Otto E. Dick, reads as follows: "Young people of our church should be especially interested in the church at Berea, because it was there that the people 'received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so' (Acts 17:11). All young Bereans of our church should be equally as diligent in searching the Scriptures." This timely comment makes us wonder how many of our Bereans realize the importance of this verse to them, individually, and to our society as a whole, for it is from this verse that we receive our name. Why? Because the people of Berea were "more noble" than those of Thessalonica for doing the things mentioned in the above comment. Further, our Berean motto is taken from this verse. How many of you know what it is without looking further?

In the dictionary we find that a motto is, "A word or sentence expressing a rule of conduct." A few years ago a graduating class gained much notoriety by having as its motto the following words, "WPA, Here We Come!" With no more goal set for their achievement than that, probably that is all many of them achieved. The Berean motto is one, which, if it were followed, would change our societies and our individual lives overnight. Without the application of our motto, all our various activities become only superficial things. Let us review some of them to see how important our motto becomes.

From Experience

As an ex-editor, the Berean Page in The Restitution Herald seems to be one of the most important of the Berean activities. Yet oftentimes this page is the result of the work of the editor alone, who (speaking from experience) must not only search the Scriptures daily, but often "nightly," in order to have the page ready at the deadline. If each Berean lived up to the motto, he would in time find something that would interest him and would want to tell others about it. The result would be a more diversified Berean page, with ideas from many readers and would, incidentally, save the Editor from becoming prematurely gray.

Another of our activities, perhaps of more interest and importance to all members of the Bereans than any other, is the work of the Junior Social Correspondence Committee. There is no need to explain this work, for no doubt all of you have come in contact with it in one way or another. However, can't you see how important it is to have our motto in mind when serving on this committee? When we write letters to new members of our church, we do so to encourage them and to welcome them as members of the church and potential members of the Berean Society. If we fill the letters with nonentities about the weather, crops, what we are doing, and so forth, our correspondent will become interested in those things. If we are searching the Scriptures daily, we will, naturally, write of those Scriptures, thus encouraging each new member, not with our own word but with the Words of God.

Some Do—Why Not You?

It goes without saying, that those who serve on the various publishing committees must live up to the "Search-the-Scriptures-Daily" motto, or they would be unable to publish the good tracts and lesson books which are published. However, if each member would live up to his motto, there would not be so many of these tracts and books laying idle at headquarters. Searching the Scriptures daily would be an incentive to them to purchase these idle helps, and would encourage the Publishing Committee. The motto would also be a big help in our study of our lesson outlines in our Berean books, for then we would have our lesson studied before class and would truly read in the Bible once a day—not only once a week.

There are other activities that we have not covered in this article, but suffice it to say that there is not one of them that could not be developed to greater success if we only lived up to our motto.

Finally, let us search the Scriptures. There are those who daily read a portion of the Bible, and whether they understand what they are reading or not, they feel that they have done their duty. To search for anything is to "explore thoroughly" or to "seek diligently." This we cannot do by merely reading the Word of God. Bereans, let us adhere to our motto given us by those Bereans of long ago who were "more noble than those in Thessalonica." Doing so will strengthen our efforts for our new Conference year which begins very soon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Everyone interested in Sunday school work should be present at General Conference, Saturday, August 9, at which time the interests of our Sunday schools will be considered and discussed.

L. T. Hanson, Committee Chairman.

BAPTISMS

It was certainly a pleasure to us when our youngest granddaughter, Cecile Mattison, made known to us that she wished to be baptized. Still more pleasure was added when our grandson-in-law made known his desire to do likewise. Because of busy times for us all, it was decided to hold the baptism across the river from the church in Oregon, Ill., on Saturday evening, July 12, at which time Sr. Beulah Dunbar, not being satisfied with her former baptism because of lack of knowledge, joined our company, and the three were baptized in the presence of a fairly large company of believers, all of whom rejoice with us at this service. Bros. Sydney E. Magaw and Harry A. Sheets were present and took part in the service.
 S. J. Lindsay.

EAST SIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL Oregon, Illinois

Regarding the progress of the Sunday school east of the river, we have this report to make: the average attendance for the past month has been about eighteen. Last Sunday there were twenty-five present, including three adults who promised to come again next Sunday. A little eight-year-old girl brought her little brother, saying she wanted to be like Peter's brother Andrew. Other children inspired by the song, "Fishers of Men," asked their mothers and friends to come.

God has richly blessed us in this work, and we lift up our hearts in gratitude to Him. If any of our good brethren who might be interested in this work would send their old unused Bibles to us, we are sure they will be greatly blessed in their effort. Let us bring the light of the gospel to every home: "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; then shall the end come."
 Mac Nedrow.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Arthur Poe; Harold Starbuck; W. H. Klindt; Leota Hanson (for another); Mrs. Seraphine Cleek (self & another); Mrs. Frank Coser; Jessie Wilson; Mrs. Alfred Hutchinson; Emma Railsback (for another); O. P. Nowlin (self and another); Sam Hoke; Irvin Barnhart; Lawrenceville Sunshine Class (for others).

LAWRENCEVILLE, OHIO

The Vacation Bible School at the Church of God was held from July 6-12, and the results were very encouraging. The co-operation and words of commendation from the people in the village were very much appreciated. There was a period of devotion in the morning at 10:30, followed by the classes. Most of the children brought their lunches and stayed for the noon period. Those who did not were soon back from their dinners to join in the play.

At 1:30 p.m., we showed some motion pictures and some still pictures, the latter were Bible pictures along the line of the lessons of the week. Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., of Tipp City, Ohio, were here to help with the classes and did a very good work.

We had an average daily attendance of eighty. Saturday night we closed with a program at which the children gave a review of what they had learned during the week, followed by a motion picture of "Noah's Ark" and "The Flood." Nearly all the children brought their parents for the program on Saturday evening. We asked for an expression from the school as to whether they wanted to have another Bible school next year. We believe every hand went up, so we are looking forward to having a bigger and better Bible school in 1942.

Grover Gordon.

AN ENJOYABLE JOURNEY

I left my home in Washington, May 24, and spent some time with my brother Platt at Glendale, Calif. He has been seriously afflicted with asthma for fifty years. I also visited with Bro. and Sr. G. E. Marsh and Arlen at their home in Los Angeles. They surely know how to make one feel at home, and I greatly enjoyed my visit with them. I also went to San Diego, where I visited with my son Earl and wife—also had a short visit with Bro. F. N. Patterson who lives in the El Cajon Valley.

From there I came by train to the home of Bro. and Sr. Dart, here in Wichita, Kans. On July 8 a company of us went to the Arkansas River, where I baptized Helen Dart, wife of Bro. Leonard Dart. After the baptism, we returned to the home of Bro. and Sr. F. J. Dart, where we celebrated the ordinance of the Lord's Supper.

Bro. and Sr. Dart have been married only a few months, and now they are not only one in the marriage relation, but they are also one in the hope of the gospel—"having hope of the life that now is, and also of the life to come." They are truly happy in the Lord, and she is a valuable addition to the little company of believers here. May they "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of the truth."

A. L. Corbaley.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"When I open The Restitution Herald and read the cordial invitation to attend General Conference and the Illinois Bible School, it makes me long to be there again. Because of home duties, however, I shall not get to vacation in Illinois this Conference time. . . . Our pastor, Bro. Vaughn Long, and wife spent their vacation in Indiana, visiting with friends and relatives and attending the Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem."
 Quiney L. Carpenter, Perryville, Ky.

"A picnic dinner was held in honor of Bro. J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind., at the Frankfort park, Sunday, July 20. There was good attendance both at this meeting and at morning and evening services, when Bro. Anderson preached his farewell sermons, as he is leaving this church. We are sorry to see him leave, as he has been our faithful minister for nineteen years. Visitors from South Bend and Hedrick churches were present for the day."
 Lota Huffer, Michigantown, Ind.

"May the Lord bless you in His service, and may there be a wonderful General Conference this year."
 H. Scott Smith, London, Ark.

Bro. F. E. Siple, 147 Nottingham, S.W., Grand Rapids, Mich., is building a new home.

Early comers to the Conference are Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., Bro. Dale Dunbar, and Sr. Krause (Ohio); Sr. Ray Palmer, the cook. Mrs. T. J. Ellis, and Barbara Fish (Iowa); Terry Ferrell (Calif.); Mrs. Mary Hatch, Jeannette Romine, and Bro. and Sr. William Lindsay (Ill.).

Because of Bro. F. E. Siple's inability to be present throughout the Conference, he and Bro. Harry A. Sheets have exchanged dates on the preaching program. Bro. Siple will preach August 1, and Bro. Sheets August 7.

"It seems that the doctrine of the immortality of the soul is the pollagra of religion."
 —Jeannette Reeves, Newman, Texas.

"Kent Herman arrived Sunday, July 20, weighing seven and one half pounds, at the home of Bro. and Sr. Stanley Ross, Litchfield, Minn. . . . Another prospect for the Bible Training School!"

"May the Lord bless the General Conference."
 Bernice C. Tulin, 2931 McKoon Ave., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Bro. and Sr. L. E. Conner went to Casey, Ill., for services, Sunday, July 27.

In remitting toward the Building Fund of the Bible Training School, Sr. Eska E. Evans, Freedom, Nebr., writes: "I pray that you may soon have the necessary funds to begin building, and I pray God's richest blessings on the work you are doing—it seems as if nothing is overlooked or neglected."

Who's Who: "I flew into town the other day; here's my name and what I weigh: James Alan Overholser, eight pounds and seven ounces. I arrived July 3, 7:18 p.m., for a brief stay at the hospital. My parents are J. Homer and Marian Overholser, 2607 W. 84th Place, Inglewood, Calif. Grandma Whelan and all friends are well pleased with me."

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Two weeks of Vacation Bible School, conducted by our pastor, John Mercer, were brought to a successful close with a program Friday evening, July 18. Attendance was very good and the total enrollment was one hundred seventy-seven, with one hundred two being the largest number present in one session.

Various rewards were given for outstanding work in the classes in which the small folk also participated. Anyone who thinks small children cannot memorize Scripture texts should have heard our six-year olds!

On Sunday, July 20, an all-day meeting was held on the shore of a nearby lake. Each family brought a basket dinner which was placed on a common table for all to share. At two o'clock, p.m., all gathered on the shore to witness the entrance of sixteen members into the body of Christ in the ordinance of baptism. How it warms the heart and increases the faith to see others take this courageous step. Praise the Lord!

At 5:00 p.m., a Galilean service, in which Bro. A. E. Hoskins of Lambert, Minn., assisted Bro. Mercer, made a fitting close to a "perfect day." Grace Skinner, Reporter.

ARKANSAS-OKLAHOMA CONFERENCE

Our Conference closed Saturday afternoon, July 19, after three days of a very good Conference. There were more than thirty-five delegates from Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas which the church at this place was most happy to have.

Sunday afternoon, July 20, Bro. T. A. Drinkard baptized three worthy young ladies into a new life. They are: Delia Faye Grubb, Boynton, Okla.; Mary Evelyn Roberson and Cumi Walls, both of Cleveland, Ark.

For further word of the Conference, read the Gospel Trumpet.

We wish the General Conference the best of everything.

Mrs. Ed. R. Ring, Asst. Secy.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

We have just completed our six-weeks' Summer Bible Training School under the instruction of Bros. Harry A. Sheets and S. J. Lindsay. From our work, we have had a very nice time. The Berean class of Oregon, Ill., has taken us to Lowell Park, the Pines State Park, and Rochelle. We took a trip to Zion to see a passion play concerning the life of Christ.

We have made many friends. We love our matron, "Mom" Wiggins, the best friend we have made.

We have had certain difficulties, such as being late. Some of the students have done dishes, which is the penalty—five days for being late three times.

We want to thank Bro. Sheets and Bro. Lindsay for teaching interesting and inspiring lessons that contained the true Word of God. We want to thank the Bereans for transporting us from one place to another. We thank Sr. Wiggins for being a mother to us. If you ever travel, you will be at home in the different parts of the United States by saying you belong to the Church of God.

Bob Rouch, Reporter.

WHITE PINE, MINNESOTA

Sunday evening, July 13, brought to a close the very interesting series of meetings held here by Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick. It is hard to say in a few words how much good he has done here. However, as time goes on, and we think over the things he has said and study our Bibles with renewed energy to prove for ourselves some of the thoughts he has left with us, only then can we fully appreciate the blessing these past three weeks have been to us. As individuals, we owe it to ourselves to study and be better able to understand the words of our Bible, and be able to follow a speaker and gain all we can through what he says.

We shall all look forward to a time when Bro. Kirkpatrick can come to us again.

Mrs. Ronald Matheny, Reporter.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., Tipp City, Ohio, arrived in Oregon, Monday, July 21, to visit at the William Reynolds' home (Sr. Krogh's former home). Thus, they are the first, too, of the brethren to arrive for General Conference. Bro. Krogh, natural-born watchmaker, is a preacher on time.

We are sorry to hear that Bro. Glen Birkey's mother is seriously sick, but hope soon to hear that she is regaining strength. Bro. J. H. Williams, who was also seriously sick, is much improved and again in regular attendance at the Sunday school and church services.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Armstrong, Ventura, Calif., recently visited with the Conners, parents of Mrs. Armstrong.

We are glad to welcome into our midst Mrs. Martha Schechter who, after a number of years, has returned to Oregon, and is now making her home at Golden Rule Home.

Satisfied, plus: we have no longing for a better dinner than served Thursday evening, July 24, by the Doreas Society to their members and their respective families. Bro. and Sr. Paul Johnson's lawn was the dining room.

A party and "shower" of gifts for the new-lyweds, Bro. and Sr. Elroy Budrow, provided a merry time for all and a second supper for some, July 24.

Sr. Anna Eychauer, Sr. J. M. Prime, and Sr. Ann Patrice Prime—grandmother, mother, and daughter, respectively—en route from Florida to Iowa, were visitors to our morning services, Sunday, July 27. We hope to see them again during General Conference.

As a church, we invite brethren from near and far to use and enjoy our Lord's house during the General Conference.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

MRS. REBECCA WOODS

It is my sad duty to report the sleep of death of my only sister in the flesh, Mrs. Woods of Tampa, Fla. She was an intense sufferer for ten months, yet very patient and hopeful during all her illness. Someone remarked during her stay in the hospital, "You must have a great many friends, Mrs. Woods," to which she replied, "I have lived a long life, and I have retained all my friends."

She was the seventh daughter of Elijah and Martha Beck of northern Indiana, starting life in the days of the preaching of well-known brethren of years ago, such as A. J. Chaplin, J. M. Stephenson, H. V. Reed, and others. She came forward and accepted Christ as her Saviour, and was baptized under the preaching of Bro. H. V. Reed, living a consistent Christian life.

While at the hospital, her eighty-seventh birthday was observed. Many congratulations and cards were received and much appreciated.

Appropriate services were held at the Wilson Sammon Funeral Home in Tampa, which city has been her home for many years—John H. Branseomb conducting the service. She was laid to rest in Woodlawn Cemetery, to await the call of her Saviour.

Mrs. Anna Eychauer.

THE CHRISTIAN'S GOOD NIGHT

"Sleep on beloved, sleep and take thy rest,
Lay down thy head upon the Saviour's breast,
We love thee well, but Jesus loves thee best—
Good night!

"Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep,
But thou shalt wake no more to toil and weep,
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep—
Good night!

"Until the shadows from this earth are cast,
Until He gathers in His sheaves at last,
Until the twilight gloom be overpast—
Good night!

"Until the Easter glory lights the skies,
Until the dead in Christ shall rise,
And He shall come, but not in lowly guise—
Good night!

"Until made beautiful by love divine,
Thou in the likeness of thy Lord shall shine,
And He shall bring that golden crown of thine—
Good night!

"Until we meet again before His throne,
Clothed in the spotless robe He gives His own,
Until we know even as we are known—
Good night!"

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

VOLUME 30

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 5, 1941

NUMBER 44

THE CHURCH OF GOD, TEMPE, ARIZONA

We are pleased to present this picture of the church at Tempe, Arizona, and the following historic sketch by the pastor, Brother S. J. Lindsay: "People of our denomination, isolated by moving a long distance from any association of our people, often say, 'Well, there was no church of our own, so we joined the —— church.' Churches are never built by this class of people—they drift with the tide, whether the tide is right or not. This could not be said of Brother Christian Saylor and his good wife who moved from Kansas to a ranch near Tempe, nearly fifty years ago. They took their faith with them, and were not slow to tell others about it. One day, in sending a package to the Corbell home not far away, they wrapped it in an old number of The Restitution. The title interested Brother Corbell who remarked to his wife, 'Here is a paper that teaches what I believe.' They examined it carefully, then saw Brother Saylor, and soon wrote for a minister—we believe it was Brother John Foore. He held a series of meetings, and many were baptized. Various ministers thereafter visited Tempe. . . . Three years ago the church was built. Our meetings for some years had been held in a hall. Imagine the comfort and satisfaction of having this beautiful structure in which to meet after so many years. It stands as a monument to the Saylor family who introduced the teachings of the Church of God into that country so many years ago." Faithful service pays!

The Conference Started

As these lines are being written, Friday night of the first week of the General Conference, the meeting is well organized into its various classes and business sessions, and is being well attended. Everyone is enjoying the Bible lessons and sermons, and a goodly number of ministers are regularly in attendance at the Ministerial Association meetings. By next week we shall be able to present a more complete picture of the Conference activities.

In the meantime, we pray God's blessing upon you who are keeping the home fires burning while many of your members are with us at General Conference, and we ask an interest in your prayers on behalf of the General Conference. The Lord's work—lofty and soul-saving—is entrusted to human flesh that will sadly fail unless we humbly and faithfully pray for blessing from Him who "gives the increase," and unless we loyally co-operate as members of one family, even sons and daughters of God's family.

The Bible Training Schools

One of the encouraging features of our work is that both the regular and the summer Bible Training Schools were operated this past Conference year without incurring any indebtedness. The spiritual success, too, was at least equal to that for which we dared to pray. With God's blessing upon the work, we trust that there will be a constant showing of spiritual fruitage through the years that may yet be ahead. "Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it" (Psalm 127:1), but the Lord is building the "house," for which we should be joyously thankful.

A Pleasant Surprise

Journeying toward Rome, the Apostle Paul was shipwrecked upon the island of Malta. Though the aborigines

MY FRIEND

*"My friend is one who knows me well,
 Yet loves me just the same,
 Who's honest, earnest, loyal, too,
 And always plays the game;
 Who dares to tell me when I'm wrong—
 Helps me keep strong and true,
 Whose cheery smile is so worth while,
 A friend, dear friend, like you!"*

were barbarous, they were kind to Paul, as he said: "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness" (Acts 28:2). Some of the people, seeing a serpent fasten itself on Paul's hand, first superstitiously supposed he was a murderer, but when Paul "shook off the beast into the fire, and felt no harm . . . they changed their minds, and said that he was a god" (vv. 4-6). The chief man of the island was Publius, "Who," said Paul, "received us, and lodged us three days courteously" (v. 7). Finally, after Paul had miraculously healed the father of Publius of his "fever and . . . bloody flux," and after many others of the island had been healed, they honored Paul "with many honours." Said Paul: "They laded us with such things as were necessary" (v. 10). Moffatt's Translation says: "They made us rich presents and furnished us . . . with all we needed."

Now, nobody has been shipwrecked in the Mediterranean Sea, there is no serpent in this story, no barbarous people, no superstitions, nor, if there were, could the preacher work any miracles to win the people's trust and love. There is, however, one likeness in an event that has recently occurred: by the goodness of many friends, with special appreciation to Sister Amy Dunbar Frye who in far-off Delta, Ohio, started the project, we are now the owner of a 1940 De Luxe Chevrolet—this to replace a '29. We are thankful, but that does not tell all our feelings.

Considering how many sins we have committed, how surely we are yet to sometimes disappoint our friends, how "earthy" we must be in the sight of God, we feel most ashamed to receive "rich presents" from our friends. Nor have we suffered any hardships for Christ as did the Apostle Paul! There comes, then, another feeling—a new determination to face Rome: to withstand any Caesar's trial, to be loyal, or as loyal as flesh can be loyal to God, though it might mean chains, imprisonment, death.

The Bride of Christ

By S. J. Lindsay

A SISTER writes: "I wish you would write an article for The Restitution Herald on these questions: Is Israel the bride of Christ? Is the church the bride of Christ? Who are the "peculiar people" of Titus 2:14? Who are the called-out ones, Israel or the church?"

In the length of our experience this question (or these questions) have come to the surface occasionally. I think I am safe in saying that the church has ever held it a matter of doctrine that the church is spoken of as the bride of Christ.

God has placed His truths before us in many ways, and among them He has used types and shadows. A most wonderful type on this question is to be found in the type of creation of first the man and then the woman, Adam and Eve. When Adam stood before God alone, he was the first man. God saw that it was not good for him to be alone, so He caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam. While in that sleep, God opened Adam's side and took therefrom a rib, out of which He made the woman. The same is true in the creation of the last Adam. When Jesus prayed in the garden that night, He said to the Father, "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." He stood before God the first one of the kind, and God saw that it was not good for Him to be alone. Therefore, He caused a deep sleep to come upon Jesus on the cross and, while He was in that sleep, His side was pierced and therefrom came forth blood and water. First John 1:7 tells us that "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Surely this applies to the church. Revelation 19:7, 8 has this to say about the matter: "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints."

Our attention has been called to the fact that the church is also called the body of Christ. True enough. We are told that a man shall "leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they twain shall be one flesh" (Matt. 19:5). The same must be true of Christ and His bride. They will be one flesh. Surely Israel regathered is not one flesh with Christ. John the Revelator saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down from heaven adorned as a bride for her husband. This surely could not apply to Israel, but it very likely applies to the church, for in 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 we see how the church will be caught out to meet Christ as He descends to the earth. Later, He will be seen by the world as He descends with His church.

The Forty-fifth Psalm is a beautiful portrayal of the King's household. First, the King is described in brilliant array, then it is said of His Queen that she is "all glorious within: her clothing is of wrought gold," and that she is arrayed "in raiment of needle work"—all of which speaks of the trials and victories of the saints in bringing themselves to this high honor through Christ. The saints are putting on that "wrought gold" and "fine needlework" in this present age.

In Ephesians 5:23 we read: "The husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the saviour of the body." This text seems to us to make use of the "body" in the sense in which we have already spoken of it.

To the other questions we can answer only that Titus 2:14 surely means the church. Israel once had opportunity to possess herself of this glory. God had said to her, "Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine. And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation" (Ex. 19:5, 6). Israel, however, hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it" (Rom. 11:7). They now obtain this glory who through Christ overcome the world.

There is another type showing the church as the bride of Christ. Abraham, sending his servant to search a bride for Isaac, decreed certain characteristics should be possessed by the one chosen for that high honor. The servant (the Holy Spirit) is now in search for a wife for Christ. As soon as Rebecca accepted, the servant bedecked her with jewels. Members of the church will be bedecked with jewels as soon as they answer the call. Rebecca not only received jewels, but began the journey on the camel provided for her. The church rides the camel of faith. When Rebecca saw her "intended" in the distance, she asked the servant who it was. He told her. Then she dismounted and walked. When the church sees Christ, she will no longer cling to faith, but will walk with Him by sight. May the Church of God soon see her Husband.

Jerusalem, Mystery Babylon

By Tom Savage

AS KINGS of all nations have their capital cities, so the Antichrist who will rule in the final days will have a city for his capital. "Upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH" (Rev. 17:5). Revelation 17:18 tells us this "Mystery Babylon" is a city also known as "that great city."

We see from the last portion of Ezekiel 23:4, that God called Jerusalem a woman, Aholibah, and in the same chapter, verse 17, told of her love for Babylon. God is going to chastise her (Jerusalem) for her abominations (Ezek. 5). Jerusalem was Israel's capital city. The Israelites are now returning to Jerusalem and Palestine, and God is surely going to deal with them there.

The "great city" is to be filled with the abomination of the earth (Rev. 17:5). Abomination is all sin, as: adultery, lying, drunkenness, and idolatry. Now, this city is to head this world-wide condition of sin. We see the woman as a symbol of the city, riding upon a scarlet-colored beast (Rev. 17:3, 18). The word "beast" is symbolic of a ruler, or nation which is always headed by some living person, and a beast is a particularly good symbol if the nation is ungodly. We know that someone will head this coming condition, someone "who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God; or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God" (2 Thess. 2:4).

Some students believe that Mystery Babylon is prophetic of Rome, because of the statement in Revelation 17:9 that this woman "sitteth" on "seven mountains." Now, a mountain is a mountain and a hill is a hill. Rome may be built on seven hills, but not on seven mountains. The word "mountains" is another symbol of government, as shown in Daniel 2:35, which refers to Christ's Kingdom that will break all nations, at which time Christ will be King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Isaiah 2:2 speaks of Christ's Kingdom as the "mountain of the Lord's house."

This "great city" mentioned in Revelation 17:9 is to sit, or rule, over seven nations. These nations are also revealed to us in Daniel 7:23, 24: "Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings."

We know that Rome was the fourth great kingdom. It surely would not be hard to find ten kingdoms or nations up to this time that were a part of the old Roman Empire. Notice that Daniel 7:24 says that "another shall rise after them, and he shall be diverse (or different) from the first (or old Rome), and he shall subdue three kings." Now, this person, nation, or mountain is the eleventh one in the combination of governments, and he is to subdue three of the ten. Daniel revealed that the fourth kingdom (Rome) was diverse from all kingdoms, and that another (or the eleventh) will be different "from the first" (i.e., the preceding, or Rome). The eleventh kingdom will be separate from all the other kingdoms. Also, "It was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations (Rev. 13:7). "He shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time (Dan. 7:25). These verses surely represent the Antichrist in the final years of the Gentile time, when righteousness will be taken out of this world and sin will have complete sway.

"The ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore (apostate Jerusalem), and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire" (Rev. 17:16). To further explain this, the Man of Sin, or ruler of the eleventh power, will subdue three of the ten kings—leaving seven. Still, the three kingdoms which are to be subdued will not be destroyed, but will still exist. Now, Jerusalem is known as the Holy City, and when this Man of Sin takes away the daily sacrifice, as used by Israel in worship of God, it will result in the Desolation spoken of by our Lord in Matthew 24:15. Referring to this Desolation, we read in Daniel 11:31: "They . . . shall take away the daily sacrifice, and they shall place the abomination that maketh desolate."

That it will be God's people, Israel, who have forsaken "the holy covenant" is the thought expressed in Daniel 11:30. We know that no other people than Israel offered sacrifices and burnt offerings to God, and that Jerusalem was the only city where the Temple was built. Thus, Israel will be the main ones to forsake God to follow after this Man of Sin, thereby causing this Desolation Period.

We know that Israel has rejected Christ, or the One who has entered into the sheepfold for all who are willing to serve God. "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber" (John 10:1). This Man of Sin will take the place of Christ to these people, as it is written of him: "Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God" (2 Thess. 2:4). This verse gives us knowledge that this Man of Sin will sit in God's Temple. Now, at no place has God's Temple been built but in Jerusalem, so you see a good reason why the city cannot be Rome. Also: "He shall plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas (between the Mediterranean and Dead Seas, obviously at Jerusalem) in the glorious holy mountain" (Dan. 11:45)—this being another reason for believing it is not Rome. You never heard of the "glorious holy mountain" in or near Rome!

"Here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth" (Rev. 17:9). When this Man of Sin sits in the Temple of God, showing himself to be God, Jerusalem will be the capital city. Then, you may ask, "What is the reason for the ten kingdoms in Revelation 17:16 hating this city which is the ruling city of these nations?" This man of sin will come to the front because of his hatred to God's people. The hatred of these nations against Jerusalem, or the "holy city." People are what make a city, and we know that Jerusalem was and still is the home of God's people. The hatred of these nations against Jerusalem will make her desolate (Rev. 17:16). Jerusalem, as far as holiness is concerned, will be destroyed. This Man of Sin will not let the true God's Name be made known. He, himself, is looking for this glory and power.

According to Jesus' words, Jerusalem is to be trodden down of the Gentiles until the fulfillment of time: "They shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled" (Matt. 21:24). Joel likewise prophesied: "I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land" (Joel 3:2).

In Isaiah 1:1, God is speaking to Judah and Jerusalem. In verse 9, God likens them to Sodom and Gomorrah. Isaiah 1:10 calls the rulers

"Sodom" and the people "Gomorrah." Yes, Jerusalem was and will be as wicked as Sodom and Gomorrah. Revelation 11:8 tells us of the two witnesses lying dead "in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified." This is further proof of what this "great city" is, because we know Christ was crucified at Jerusalem, and not at Rome.

"The great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath" (Rev. 16:19). To symbolize the "siege" of Jerusalem, God told Ezekiel to take a barber's razor, cut his hair and beard, and divide it into three parts. A third was to be burned, but a few were to be bound in his skirts (Ezek. 5:1-3). Thus saith the Lord God; This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her" (v. 5).

"Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her" (Rev. 18:20). Yes, Christ said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee" (Matt. 23:37)—no, not Rome, but Jerusalem! "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins" (Rev. 18:4). After Christ has called out the church, God will deal directly with Israel. Yes, God will call His people from this city of sin. "Then let them which be in Judaea flee into the mountains" (Matt. 24:16); and, "To the woman (Israel) were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent" (Rev. 12:14).

Finally, after the Antichrist has had his day, Jerusalem will be delivered and exalted by the true Christ, who will "turn away ungodliness from Jacob" (Rom. 11:26). "Be ye glad and rejoice for ever . . . for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem and joy in my people: and the voice of weeping (in contrast to the centuries of weeping at the Wailing Wall) shall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying" (Isa. 65:18,19). Surely, though sin must first bring its every desecration upon Jerusalem, the city that is "beautiful for situation" (Psalm 48:2) will yet become the "joy of the whole earth."

"JERUSALEM, A PRAISE"

Apostate Jerusalem, deceived by the Antichrist, ravaged by nations, will yet through the true Christ become a "praise in the earth." Well did Isaiah prophesy:

"For Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth. And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory. . . . Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate; but thou shalt be called Hephzibah ('My delight is in her,' margin), and thy land Beulah ('Married,' margin): for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married. . . ."

"I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence, and give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth. . . ."

"Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. And they shall call them (the Israelites), 'The holy people, 'The Redeemed of the Lord: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken" (Isa. 62:1-12).

"Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem. . . . Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee" (Psalm 122:2, 6).

Defending the Gospel Faith

By J. M. Morgan

"Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, because I have you in my heart; inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the gospel, ye all are partakers of my grace. . . . The other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel" (Philippians 1:7, 17).

THE Church of God is sure that it has the one faith. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Eph. 4:4-6). If this is true—and it is the truth—then we should all be of one mind. This inspired writer further says, "Fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind" (Phil. 2:2). How can we come to the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, as long as some preach salvation by faith alone, or by grace alone, or by any other plan except God's order and plan of salvation? In his letter to Timothy, Paul said, "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine" (2 Tim. 4:2). Why "preach the word"? He answered this by saying, "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears" (v. 3). Is it true that some among us cannot "endure sound doctrine"? Webster defines the word "endure" as, "To support without breaking or yielding; put up with; remain in." Here is the Scriptural meaning: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58).

Again I ask, Why "preach the word"? Here is the answer: "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee" (1 Tim. 4:16). However, there are so many of us who are like disobedient school boys and girls who love to "play hooky" at school, that we forget the primary lessons. Paul wrote concerning Christ: "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb. 5:8, 9). In Romans 2:7 we read, "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life." This eternal life is in God's Son (1 John 5:12) who is "called of God an high priest after the order of Melchisedec. Of whom we have many things to say, and hard to be uttered, seeing ye are dull of hearing" (Heb. 5:10-14). "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit. For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame" (Heb. 6:1-6).

Paul again intreats the Christian to be faithful, saying, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; for he is faithful that promised" (Heb. 10:23). He tells why by saying, "If we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins" (Heb. 10:26). However, how can men and women with no sacrifice for their sins be saved? The Spirit reveals their fate in the following terms: "A certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?" (Heb. 10:27-29.)

The death under the law of Moses will end, but the second death will never end. Therefore, their punishment is just as "much sorer" as the difference in time each will be in death. If all are to be raised out of the second death, then there would be no difference—the one would be no more "sorer" than the other. However, as neither Christ nor any other has or ever will taste the second death for the wicked, there will be no end to the second death. Paul's "spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city" of Athens "wholly given to idolatry. Therefore disputed he in the synagogue of the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him" (Acts 17:16, 17). Some think it almost a crime and disgrace for the writer to go into the streets and market places and preach the gospel of the Kingdom, but Jesus Christ said, "Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind" (Luke 14:21). "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come"

(Matt. 24:14). The streets and lanes are in the world, therefore, the gospel shall be preached in them. When Paul was in Corinth, "he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them" (Acts 18:11). Some of our people would "give out" the first week. Here is one of his short meetings: "He went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing (Please turn to page 11)

"These Things Speak"

By Lulu Johnson

---

"These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee" (Titus 2:15).

THESE are the words of Paul in his letter of instructions to Titus. This Epistle was written about 65 A.D. Paul placed Titus in charge of the church on the island of Crete. This was a corrupt community and God's ministers were faced with the problem of upholding the truth in opposition to false teachers. Paul mentioned truth, hope of eternal life, faith, faithful word, sound doctrine, and so forth, with such words as "acknowledging," "stopping mouths of vain talkers and deceivers," "rebuke sharply," "speak," "exhort," "convince," and "affirm." These expressions indicate that Christians should really "contend for the faith" (Jude 3).

Paul was directing Titus in regard to his dealings with those who despised him because of the things he taught and believed. From that day to this, the same conditions, in one form or another, have continued to exist, and Paul's method of dealing with them remains valid.

Has there ever been a time since the writing of this Epistle that a self-exalted world has not endeavored to trample God's beautiful truths under ruthless feet? Is there a lover of truth and light who has not felt the sting of bitter criticism, heard the voice of contempt, and looked into the eyes of scorn?

When the truths which have become so precious to us are thus assailed, what should be our attitude toward those who evidently despise us? We should not be concerned about the personal element in the matter, and the fact that a sacred thing is being maltreated by unclean hands should produce the incentive to rise up in its defense. Some would have us believe that "these things," are not important enough to be worthy of our defense. However, Paul did not advise Titus to "keep mum" and hide his light "under a bushel" when faced with such conditions. He gave him and us detailed instructions on the proper conduct in the presence of those who despise us.

Fight untruth with truth, and "these things speak."

If we look over those three short chapters and note the number of references made to truth, faith, hope, and sound doctrine, we need have no doubt as to what "things" to "speak." We are not left in the dark concerning our manner toward those who are not enlightened. We are to speak no evil of any man—leaving personal affairs out of the Lord's work. It is possible to exhort and rebuke with kindness and consideration. Paul has given no place in his instructions for sarcasm or unkind remarks. No possible good can come from wounding the feelings of anyone. True, there are times when it is best to keep silent. There are persons with whom it is foolish to argue, and we are to defend truth for truth's sake and not for the purpose of exploiting our own superiority.

Many people are willing and ready to learn, and we must not fail them. What doctrines are we to emphasize to those whose minds are open for instruction? Can we simply say, Christ is the Son of God, He died for us, He rose again, and is the hope of our salvation? There are few who do not already believe this, but many are ignorant of God's plan for His Son, of why Christ died for us, and why our hope is so closely linked with His resurrection. When we realize all that is involved in believing on Jesus Christ, then we shall realize the importance of a sound understanding of the Kingdom of God and all the things concerning it.

When we sum it all up, we find, in holding out the hope of eternal salvation to anyone, it is necessary to teach clear doctrinal truths—those same old truths that have always been dear to the hearts of real "soul sleepers." They are soul-saving, if the accepter will add to them Christian living. Either is incomplete without the other, but we must know God's plans, and for what to hope, before we can shape our lives to harmonize with them.

Christianity Versus Christ

In Two Articles—Article Two

By Jeanette Reeves

A NATIONALLY known radio preacher, speaking of Jesus, said, "He was sentenced to death, but destined not to die." In the light of Jesus' own words, "I am he that liveth and was dead," the implication is plain, whether intended or not. The testimony of the Apostle Peter is thrown into the same questionable light, for he said, "You killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses"; also that of Paul, who said, "If there be no resurrection (which means restoration to life, not continuance of life) of the dead, then Christ is not risen . . . our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. . . . Ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." It all hinges upon being raised from the dead.

Of course, these preachers will say, "Oh, yes, to be sure, His body died, but not His soul." Well, that makes it rather embarrassing for the Prophet Isaiah, who said of the Man of Sorrows, "He poured out his soul unto death."

In Matthew 24, Jesus tells His followers (of then and now) that there will be wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, and many other such things, as the beginning of sorrows; but His followers are not to be disturbed. There will be such a "time of trouble" as the world has never seen (see also Dan. 12:1)—still they are not to be disturbed. On the contrary, when they see these things beginning to happen with noticeable intensity they are to "look up, and lift up (their) heads; for (their) redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28), and they are to know that "the kingdom of God is nigh at hand" (21:31).

This Kingdom will usher in the promised "times of restitution of all things" (Acts 3:20, 21), when the Lord shall be "king over all the earth" (Zech. 14:9) and build again the waste places (Ezek. 36:33-36), cause springs to break out in the desert (Isa. 35:6; 41:18-20; 43:19), replace the thorn and thistle with the myrtle tree and pine (Isa. 55:13), make the earth "like the garden of the Lord" (Isa. 51:3), teach the people knowledge and righteousness (Isa. 11:9; Hab. 2:14; Isa. 26:9; 60:21; Psalm 72:7), cause them to "long enjoy the work of their hands" (Isa. 65:20-22), have progressively better health (as this reference and Isa. 33:24 show) until finally death is abolished (1 Cor. 15:26; Rev. 20:14). Above all, He will give lasting and just peace (Isa. 2:1-4; Micah 4:1-4; Isa. 9:7; 32:17; Hag. 2:9; Zech. 9:10).

Is this unspeakably grand consummation what religious leaders are expecting, and teaching their people to expect? By no means! If radio and newspaper sermons are fair samples of their preaching, there are very few who consider it at all; and Jesus says that it will come upon all the world as a snare—to take them unaware (Luke 21:35). While Jesus warned His followers to be always on the watch for the signs of His coming (Matt. 24:42, 44; Acts 1:10, 11; and many others), the religious world, at large, expects to go to Him. The glorious Kingdom that is promised forms no part of their thinking, and their only hope of peace is that the nations will finally make a just arrangement. Religious leaders who despair of a just peace in the near future no doubt are benevolent statesmen, but that they are disciples of Jesus is open to question.

Jesus reproached (to use a mild word) the religious leaders of His day for "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:9). Would He have less cause to complain today? Consider, for instance, the doctrine of the Trinity—is it of God, or of man? There is no mention of it in the Bible, and only a few verses which can in any way be construed as supporting it. When analyzed and compared with other portions of Scripture, even these fall down. But when we go to history, we find it budding in many lands, and reaching its full flower in Egypt. From here, doubtless, it drifted into the early church; for Athanasius, bishop of the church at Alexandria in Egypt, was the chief proponent of this doctrine at the Council of Nicaea, which formulated the Nicene Creed (325 A.D.). Thus, the Trinity became a part of so-called Christian doctrine.

H. G. Wells, in "The Outline of History," comments as follows upon the work of this council: "It marks the definite entry upon the stage of human affairs of the Christian church and of Christianity as it is generally understood in the world today. It marks the exact definition of Christian teaching by the Nicene Creed. It is necessary that we should recall the reader's attention to the profound differences between this fully developed Christianity of Nicaea and the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth."

Finally, Jesus said to His chosen disciples, "Be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren. And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven." (Matt. 23:8, 9; see also Job 32:21, 22.) The ministers of so-called Christianity, however, are called by such high sounding titles as "Reverend," "Most Reverend," "Father," "Holy Father," and so forth. Does the thoughtful reader require more positive evidence that they cast God's words behind them, and despise His instruction? (Psalm 50:17.) No wonder God says, "Hearken not unto the words of the prophets (teachers) that prophesy unto you: they make you vain: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord"! (Jer. 23:16.)

Paul foretold this apostasy when he said, "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine . . . and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Tim. 4:3, 4), and, "Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day (the day of the Lord's coming) shall not come, except there come a falling away first . . . For this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie" (2 Thess. 2:1-11).

In 2 Corinthians 6:17, Paul admonishes believers to "come out from among them, and be ye separate." God then promises that He "will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

The Truth or Fables

---

By George C. Walters

---

"Avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable."

THE Apostle Paul's meaning in Titus 3:9, quoted above, and which was written to Titus in Crete, might be more clear if we would consider that the advice was especially fitted to the time and state of things in Crete. There were many Judaizers among the Cretans. Paul told Titus what he should avoid and shun in preaching the true gospel. There are worthy questions to be discussed and clarified such as make for improvement in useful knowledge, but idle and foolish inquiries tending neither to God's glory nor the edification of men must be shunned. Some may have a show of wisdom, but are vain and abound in questions of no moment or use of faith or practice. Avoid these.

The Jews, like the heathen poets who made such "noise" about the genealogies of their gods, were very proud of their ancestry and were over curious and somewhat skeptical of the one genealogy that they should have received with all readiness of mind—that of Christ.

The Jewish interest in genealogy served only to feed their vanity and pomp. Jewish teachers boasted of their long pedigrees, and were too ready to trouble their hearers with the distinction of their tribes or families. With the coming of Christ who saves irrespective of one's ancestry, both Christ and His disciples taught to abolish the false standards of the Jews. Thus, Paul wrote Titus to withstand the foolish and vain questions and contentions of the Jews in Crete. Paul likewise wrote Timothy, saying: "Neither give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which minister questions, rather than godly edifying which is of faith" (1 Tim. 1:4).

As among the Jews there were some who introduced

Judaism into Christianity, so among the Gentiles there were some who introduced paganism into Christianity. Take heed of these, said Paul, watch against them, or they will corrupt and ruin all religion among you, for they minister questions and doubts instead of edifying. That which gives occasion for doubtful disputes not only does not build the church, but it actually destroys the church. Everything that ministers questions and doubt, rather than godly edifying, should be disclaimed and disregarded by Christian teachers. Such subjects are as seriously bad as were the Jewish fables and endless genealogies, for they tend to involve us in inextricable difficulties. They tend only to shake the foundation of Christian hope and to fill a convert's mind with perplexing doubts and fears. Every discourse of the true minister of Christ should have as its primary goal a Biblical edification of the hearers. The true gospel will not be unprofitable, but will help Christians to improve in godliness and to grow into a greater likeness of the blessed Christ, our Lord.

Observe further, that godly edifying must be "in faith." The gospel is the foundation upon which our faith is built, and it is by faith that man approaches God. (Heb. 11:6.) It is in the same way, and by the principle of faith, that we must be edified. Let the minister of Christ avoid disputes and insist on the great and practical doctrines of religion about which there can be no disputes. Disputes about essential truths may even draw the mind from the main design of Christianity and eat out the vitals of religion. May we not hold the truth in unrighteousness, but may we keep "the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience" (1 Tim. 3:9).

“Go Forward”

By Lottie E. Young

THOUGH many adults ignore the divine Hand as seen all through God's Book, often calling the Bible “just a book of history, more or less bloody, with some fairy tales thrown in,” there are few real children who do not delight to hear about the heroes of the Old Testament and what they accomplished. I was taken to “meeting” when such a small child that my feet were a long way from the floor, and was expected to sit still while elderly men for hours at a time discussed subjects far too deep for my little brain to comprehend. How different things are now for little folks when kind Sunday school teachers adapt themselves to the pupils, and everything is done to interest them in the lesson! I always loved to read, and as “fidgeting” was not permitted in the church gathering, I early sought refuge in the books of Genesis and Exodus which tell of the lives of the patriarchs, which led me into another world than the one in which I was living. Some of this was pretty “solid” meat for a child under eight years of age, but I gained a knowledge of life as it then existed, which has been a help to me in later years when, as a teacher, I have had to answer questions pertaining to those early days.

Every man and woman in the Bible had as distinct an individuality as those with whom we now come in contact; each had virtues and vices, and the recounting of the latter shows what a true book the Bible is in telling about them, as storybook heroes and heroines are always nearly perfect. If Joseph had not had the severe trials which came to him, he might have been that type; no evil is recorded of Daniel; but as the Captain of our salvation was made perfect through suffering, so these Old Testament men shine brightly because of the hard places through which they triumphantly passed.

The man, though, who has been the idol of the Jewish people, and one of the ten greatest names in the world's history is Moses. He was born of slave parentage, then became the adopted son of an Egyptian princess, was skilled in the learning of that onetime great country, having to flee for wrongdoing, but afterward returning to carry out God's plans for the Israelites in their misery, and to be their leader through all their long years of wandering in the wilderness. He had a magnificent personality, and perhaps at no place finer than at the very edge of the Red Sea, with millions of fugitive slaves to be looked after and no visible way of escape. Can you wonder at the murmuring of the Israelites when the wide waters of the sea stretched before them, the mountains hemmed them in, and hundreds of thousands of Pharaoh's horsemen and footmen pursued! It was very natural they reproached Moses for the course he had taken and asked, “Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us . . . out of Egypt? . . . It had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness” (Ex. 14:11, 12).

How does Moses answer this tirade? Hear him: “Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will shew to you to day,” doubtless lifting up his voice to God in earnest entreaty for wisdom and guidance as he said those words. In Exodus 14:15 we hear God's voice saying, “Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward”; while the next verse showed the way, so that six or eight miles of surging water became dry land, and the Israelites passed over in safety, while a glad song was made to the only One who could have accomplished this miracle. Suppose they had stood trembling on the brink of the sea, what would have happened when Pharaoh's soldiers came up?

There was another “go forward” from God when Joshua was commanded to take the Israelites over against Jericho and the stormy Jordan River was between. Again we hear Jehovah's voice, “Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest” (Josh. 1:9). The further history of this people shows that marvelous deeds of valor were performed when God was their Leader and they obeyed His commands.

Jesus Christ gave a similar order, as among His last recorded words are these: “Go ye therefore and make disciples, of all nations . . . and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world” (Matt. 28:19, 20, margin). How could those poor, untrained men go forward without money, powerful friends, or anything else which the world thinks necessary for success? How could they convince others that their Master was the Son of the only God, and would become the future King when all other monarchies had crumbled into dust? History tells us what was accomplished so that in thirty years from the death of their Leader, without any of the aids which modern science has brought to light, but by word of mouth only, the “Jesus doctrine” had been preached in all the then-known world. How was it done? Through faith in the One whose promises never fail, and who had promised to guide His children. The Israelites in the day of Moses walked by sight, but the disciples of Jesus walked by faith.

Not only is the Church of God at the Red Sea today, but all other professing Christians. Where is the old-time fervor manifested which made men cry out, "What must I do to be saved?"—and brought thousands to the cross? All denominations report indifference, lowering membership, lessening finances, "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God," in their ranks doubt and uncertainty are before them, enemies both within and without. Shall the church of Jesus Christ stand still in this emergency, or will each faithful member pledge earnest prayer to the One who gives wisdom, and do his best to stand behind it? "Man's extremity is God's opportunity," and it may be we are in this position to show what "good soldiers" of Jesus Christ can accomplish. Nothing can stand still and live. Fear is in the hearts of many; but may we live the word "faith," sounding the slogan, "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

"Should the world still remain in existence at that time, which God alone knows, then outstanding upheavals and transformations will occur which will effect our laws and political structure."

So wrote Cardinal Pierre d'Ailly of France in the latter half of the fourteenth century. The sentence, however, was not destined to see publication until 1490, some seventy years after d'Ailly's death. It was penned in reference to the year 1789, according to the author's own statement. And in 1789, the French Bastille was stormed, and the Revolution swept Marie Antoinette to the guillotine, and the history of the French monarchy merged with that of the French republic.

Upon such odd facts as these Henry James Norman hangs The Story of Prophecy (Tudor Publishing Co.; $1.29), which more or less entertainingly seeks to purvey the history of prophecy, human and divine, from the days of Zechariah to the time of Thomas Menes, who in 1934 predicted with uncanny accuracy the assassination of Premier Dollfuss of Austria. Norman frankly is uninterested in proving inspiration, divine or demoniacal; he is concerned solely with illuminating the peculiar correctness (and sometimes incorrectness) of predictions regarding the future.

Norman skips about a good deal, with a separate chapter for each leading philosophy or prophet. For example,

Chapter IV is given over to Davidson's well-known date-setting as based on the Egyptian pyramid theory; Chapter IX narrates the astounding story of the prophecies of Nostradamus, whose poetical predictions have puzzled historians and religionists for four centuries; Chapter XVII tells of the place granted America by various modern "prophets," most of whom have been noted more for their ability to secure publicity than for any profound thought. Biblical prophecy is covered briefly by Chapter V—unless, of course, one includes Chapter IV, also.

The book makes highly interesting on-the-side reading for almost anyone whose literary interests are not confined to the sports pages and the comic sections. For the Bible student, it presents a number of delightful problems, chief of which is: What endows some men and women to predict coming events with such detailed accuracy?

We can't get over ex-Governor Pollard's Connotary (Thomas Y. Crowell; $1.00). Any book that says a monologue is an argument between a man and his wife deserves attention! The Connotary (illustrated with delightful cartoons) would give anybody laughs—and any speaker or writer a whole swad of ideas. Just the gift for an invalid—but not if his operation still gives him pain. For here are definitions guaranteed to make even a Pilgrim Father smile.

and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God" (Acts 19:8).

Sometimes, when we hold a series of meetings for say three days, some of our brethren will disappoint us by remaining at home, but Paul disputed "daily in the school of one Tyrannus. And this continued by the space of two years; so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks" (Acts 19:9, 10). There are some who think it a disgrace and shame to dispute for even one day. Here is the record of a meeting that lasted three years; hear it: "Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears" (Acts 20:31). Paul did some crying. There is too much dry-eyed preaching with cold formality with us today.

I Shall Not Pass This Way Again

"The bread that bringeth strength I want to give,
The water pure that bids the thirsty live:
I want to help the fainting day by day:
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

"I want to give the oil of joy for tears,
The faith to conquer crowding doubts and fears.
Beauty for ashes may I give away!
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

"I want to give good measure running o'er,
And into angry hearts I want to pour
The answer soft that turneth wrath away;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way.

"I want to give to others hope and faith,
I want to do all that the Master saith;
I want to live aright from day to day;
I'm sure I shall not pass again this way."

Good Comes From God

James tells us that every good and perfect gift is from God. God never changes. He is always the same—in purpose, in goodness, in all things. God has done so much for us with His goodness. It is His will that we accept His way so that we will be "a kind of firstfruits of his creatures."

Because of God's perfectness and grace, we who have this wonderful privilege of accepting Christ and all the good He has in store for those who love Him, we should take heed of our lives. We should watch or guard our tongues, our conduct, and our thoughts. We should be doers and not only hearers of the Word of God.

The Test of Faith

When we are able to do good to one in need, and fail to do that good deed, we surely fail in that test of our faith! In our study of last week Paul proved to us that we could not be saved by our works, however good they were. Today, James, talking from a different angle, informs us that we have no faith if we have no works, for "even so, faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone" (James 2:17). We can have a knowledge of God, yet not have faith, without which we cannot please Him. We are told that "the devils also believe, and tremble" in their belief in our God (James 2:19). We will be justified or made righteous by our works, as were Abraham and Rahab, if those works are works of faith. Let us bring forth good fruit, so that our faith will be a living faith.

If the Lord Will

"Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. . . . For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that" (James 4:13-15).

These verses show that we are forgetful of God, and boast of our own strength, which is really a vapor! Be a doer of the Word. We should get into the Bible way of thinking about our everyday, material plans and wishes. Say, "If the Lord will." We Christians must remember that our lives depend upon the goodness and mercy of the Lord. Let us not be forgetful of His mercy, nor boastful in ourselves. Such boastings of what we will do in our own strength is evil, said James (4:16).

May We Ever Pray

"Lord, may I not rejoice in boastings still,
But ever know Thy faithfulness and love;
Let me do nothing, except it be Thy will,
Yea, Thy good and perfect gifts, my joys fulfill."

Love

By Ruth Pearson, Tipp City, Ohio

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

God's love for us was so great that He allowed His Son, Christ Jesus, to be crucified that all might obtain everlasting life. Jesus paid the price by laying down His life. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:13).

The world is full of men who are mocking and scorning. If you come in contact with such a one, teach him to love by your own example.

The law given by Moses to the Israelites demanded "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." Christ taught, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you" (Matt. 5:44).

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law" (Rom. 13:10). To love your enemies is quite the contrary to public opinion today. Men are racking their brains for devices to annihilate their foes.

"Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold" (Matt. 24:12). Paul exhorted the brethren to love one another that there might be unity and strength.

"Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen."

Inheritance

By Iris Hall, Alto, Mich.

"The Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee . . . and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." These beautiful words, full of promise, were spoken to Abraham centuries ago, but it is by these words, that we, living today, are full of hope and praise for the God, our Father, who spoke them.

At the time that God promised Abraham, "I will make of thee a great nation," Abraham was a young man, married, but with no hope of a family, for his wife was bar-ren. However, because of his implicit faith in the God of his fathers, he believed that however difficult or impossible it seemed, the promise would some day be realized.

We have a wonderful example in Abraham, and it would be well if each of us would make the heights of his faith our goal. When Abraham's faith had been sufficiently tried and tested, God made a covenant with him, saying, "I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God." To seal this covenant, God swore by His name, for there is no greater, and Abraham underwent circumcision "as a token of the covenant." We turn to Romans 4:11 to verify this with these inspired words, "He received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumcised; that righteousness might be imputed unto them also."

As God promised, the following generations of Abraham were blessed abundantly. From his grandson, Jacob, came twelve sons and their families, who were named "Israel" by the Lord, and the chosen people were protected, guided, and cared for as long as they followed Him. When in Egypt, the Israelites were held in bondage. God was with them and sent Moses to lead them to freedom, for He said, "I have remembered my covenant."

Finally, from the seed of Abraham, came one, the Son of God, worthy to be a redeeming Saviour, not only to a chosen few, but to all who might believe on Him.

During the short period of his life, He lived and taught the very principles that Abraham so long before had lived and taught—the love and obedience of God. It is by Christ and through Him that we, living today, might become heirs of that same blessed promise given so long ago to Abraham. We may be assured of this by Galatians 3:29, which states: "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

May we prove ourselves worthy to share in that blessed inheritance.

MISSOURI CONFERENCE REPORT

The thirty-fourth Annual State Conference of the Church of God of the Faith of Abraham was held at Fredericktown, July 12-26, 1941.

Bro. L. E. Conner of Oregon, Ill., opened the meeting and continued until Tuesday, when Bro. C. E. Lapp arrived to help with the work.

Bible classes were held each day at 10:30 a.m., and preaching at night—Bro. Conner and Bro. Lapp alternating in preaching and teaching.

On Saturday at 11:00 a.m., we met in business session with Bro. Lloyd Cooper, vice president, presiding in the absence of the president. The secretary's report was read and approved. Officers elected for the coming year are: J. H. Beckler of Hillsboro, president; Roy V. Thomas, Fredericktown, vice president; Ethel Manken, Fredericktown, secretary; Lloyd Cooper, Fredericktown, treasurer; Marvin Cooper, Fredericktown, as fifth member of the board.

It was voted to send Zeldia Cooper as a delegate from this State to the General Conference.

The Missouri State Conference will be held again next year at Fredericktown, the date to be decided later. On Friday night, Miss Florence Tierney came forward, asking for baptism, and on Sunday afternoon we met at the water where she was baptized in the name of Jesus by Bro. C. E. Lapp. Our meeting closed Sunday night. Much interest was shown and all felt that we had a good meeting.

(Mrs.) Ethel Manken, Secy.

BAPTISMS AT GENERAL CONFERENCE

It was our pleasure to baptize the following persons in Rock River near Oregon, Ill., Sunday afternoon, August 3, Mrs. Wilma Judy and son Daniel, Banning, Calif.; Eugene Ferguson, Rt. 2, Anderson, Ind.; Grace Schier and Iola Magaw, Oregon, Ill. May the Lord direct the lives of these new members, and may they faithfully follow His direction unto life everlasting. Sydney E. Magaw.

The Second Annual Ohio Conference will convene at the Brush Creek Church of God which is about eight miles southwest of Troy, Ohio. (Also, about midway between Tipp City and West Milton.) The dates are August 17-24, 1941.

Anyone desiring rooms should write to Sr. Emory Macy, Troy, Ohio, Rt. 3. The Brush Creek members are hospitable and enjoy company, so come and bring others with you. Mrs. Emory Macy.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Almost four hundred attendants have now registered at the General Conference. We are hoping to reach last year's mark of slightly more than five hundred.

"I wish it were possible to be with you during the General Conference, and pray to our Father in heaven that much good fruitage will result and that there will be a renewed inspiration to press toward the prize of the high calling."—Jessie M. B. Kauffman, Riverside, Calif.

"Best wishes for your Conference; wish I could be there."—Mrs. Allen Johnson, Freedom, Nebr.

We consider Bro. Tom Savage's article, "Jerusalem, Mystery Babylon," one of the most interesting prophetic articles we have published. He lives at Waite Park, Minn., and occasionally makes week-end preaching trips. If you need new spirit in your church, he's your man! Use him!

"Let me not, I pray you, accept any man's person, neither let me give flattering titles unto man. For I know not to give flattering titles; in so doing my maker would soon take me away" (Job 32:21, 22).

Bro. T. A. Drinkard recently closed a series of meetings at Lord's schoolhouse near Morrilton, Ark. Three young people were baptized. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Moll and Betty Williams, all of Morrilton, Ark., Rt. 1.

"I wish there were some way in which I could tune in to the various meetings and classes at General Conference."—Otto Dick, Frankfort, Ind., Rt. 3.

Sr. Nancy Penrod is seriously ill in a hospital in Indianapolis, Ind. As soon as she is able, she will go to her sister at Bloomington, Ind. Her address will be: Care of Blackburn Newton, Bloomington, Ind., Rt. 5.

"My name is Neil Gordon. I weigh five pounds, fifteen ounces. I arrived July 21, 1941, 9:58 p.m. My parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Guiles, 1428 N. Marshall St., Apt. 2, Milwaukee, Wis."

"Announcing the arrival of Dorothy Elaine to cheer the home of Bro. and Sr. S. H. Boyer, Waterlick, Va.

"My thoughts and prayers are with the General Conference, and I sincerely hope that everything will be accomplished 'decently and in order.' I know you have faithful workers in every branch of the Lord's service, and do hope the Bible Training School will produce men and women who shall be able to scatter the good seed wherever they go."—Lottie E. Young, 1924-46th Ave., S.W., Seattle, Wash.

"I wish for the ones who attend the General Conference a most enjoyable and profitable time I regret deeply that I cannot be there."—Azalia Winfrey, Bosworth, Mo.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Bro. Earle Tuttle, Geneva, Ohio, who suffered a sun stroke early Wednesday afternoon, July 23. Bro. Robert G. Huggins, pastor of the Lee Avenue Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, officiated at the funeral services the following Friday.

"Although it is impossible for me to attend General Conference, my prayers are with everyone who is participating to make it a bigger and better Conference. I pray much good may be accomplished in the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Mrs. Floyd Wood, Blanchard, Mich.

"I am sorry that I cannot attend the General Conference. . . . Plans are that I will go to central Texas in August for a series of gospel meetings."—J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Bro. S. G. Elton, Ventura, Calif., one of the patriachs of our work in the West.

"On August 23, 1941, it will be fifty years since I was immersed. I rejoice in the blessed hope more and more, as it is the greatest comfort in life."—Jessie M. Wilson, 1718 E. 20th St., Oakland, Calif.

The newly elected Executive Board of the National Bible Institution is composed of the following members: L. E. Conner, Oregon, Ill., president; Harry A. Sheets, Rt. 2, Newark, Ill., 1st vice president; C. E. Lapp, 512 S. Madison, Macomb, Ill., 2d vice president; Sydney E. Magaw, Oregon, Ill., secretary; and Mrs. Orpha LeMasurier, Oregon, Ill., treasurer.

SCOTT GEORGE ELTON

With sorrow we record the death of one of the oldest and most faithful defenders of the Kingdom message, Bro. S. G. Elton of Ventura, Calif. His name has been familiar to readers of The Restitution Herald for many years as a welcome contributor to its columns, and excellent articles appearing recently in the paper testify to the fact that his mental and spiritual faculties had in no way diminished with increasing age.

Scott George Elton was born January 7, 1856, in Cleveland, Ohio, and was taken by death at his home in Ventura, Calif., July 23, 1941. He awaits the Lord's coming in Mountain View Cemetery, in Pasadena, Calif.

Bro. Elton's association with the Church of God goes back to the early days of the church in Cleveland, where his father and mother were baptized in 1866, by Elder M. Joblin of beloved memory. Bro. S. G. Elton was baptized by his father, Elder George E. Elton, on the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving Day in 1872. On the same day his aunt Janet (Mrs. David Elton) and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Seldon were also immersed, the services taking place in Lake Erie at Collinwood, Ohio.

Bro. Elton was married October 4, 1882, to Minnie E. Green, who, with their son Worth Scott Elton of Ventura, Calif., and Mable Ruth Elton (Mrs. E. C. LaRue), of Pasadena, Calif., survive him. He also leaves four grandchildren, Merle LaRue (Mrs. Alex Krieger), Roberta LaRue, Annette La Rue (Mrs. Harold Rouand), Ruth Hey Elton, and one great-grandchild, Donny Krieger.

Words of comfort were found in the assurance that "there remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God" (Heb. 4:9).

MAGAZINE, ARKANSAS

We would like to tell you what a wonderful feast of God's glorious truths we had delivered to us by Bro. E. O. Stewart of Sweetwater, Texas, in a ten-days' meeting at Driggs, Ark. Such sermons as: "God Our Creator," "Justice and Righteousness," "Sign of the Prophet Jonah," "Rapture, Wrath, and Revelation," "The Time of the End," "Punishment, God's Objective," "Sufferings of Christ and the Joy to Follow," were an inspiration to us who had not heard such for over two years. Mrs. Floyd Yancy, Lola Fae and Leila May Penicks were baptized at the close of the meeting.

Bro. Stewart is one of the deepest men in the Scriptures to whom we have ever listened. Let us pray that he can be kept in the work for the Master until He comes.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

A REAL REUNION

Family reunions sometimes detract from church interest, as they are invariably held on Sundays—which results in people leaving the "house of prayer" for the park of play. . . . Thus, it was of special interest that the J. S. Lyon family was reunited at General Conference, Oregon, Ill., Sunday, August 3.

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. Order a good supply of tracts; then send them to your friends. It costs nothing to slip a tract into a letter, and it may "save a soul from death."

The following tracts and books, most of them written by men prominent at some time in the Church of God, are for sale by the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Send a self-addressed envelope or postage for tracts not priced. How many can you use?

Building for Eternity

By Sydney E. Magaw

WORKING in full harmony with the General Conference of the Church of God, the Board of Religious Education announces that the third term of the nine-months' Bible Training School at Oregon, Illinois, will begin Tuesday morning, September 16, 1941. It is the purpose of this School to develop in the youth of the Church of God a hungering for knowledge, a true love of the Lord and His message, and that zealous consecration required to faithfully labor in the field of Christian service until Jesus comes.

Our Call to Youth

Because of limited facilities, some of our young people might consider it unprofitable to attend the Bible Training School. This thought would be correct if only the immediate future were to be considered, but neither our objectives nor our responsibilities are limited to the immediate future. The Church of God is building for eternity! Students who now attend our School are not only building their own lives for better service, but they are by their very presence and cooperation helping to build an institution which will continue long to bless the Church of God, and which will produce fruitage unto everlasting life. Let those students who may be somewhat in doubt as to whether or not they should enroll in the Bible Training School consider well that their coming will in no small measure determine the continued success of this new and missionary work. Though we must build slowly, we must build well. To build well, we must have the wholehearted co-operation of our young people—those for whom the School was really founded.

The Teaching Personnel

The Board of Religious Education is pleased to announce that by unanimous agreement of its members, Elder Vivian Kirkpatrick, two years pastor at Blanchard, Michigan, has been called to serve as one of the instructors. Brother Kirkpatrick, an ordained minister of the Church of God, has recently won his B.A. Degree from college, and should become a valuable man in our educational work. Elder L. E. Conner, Sr. Leila Mae Doeden, and the writer will also continue on the staff, though Brother Conner may not be available until the second semester. Plans are being developed, too, whereby at least one of our leading ministers will be invited each semester to give a series of lectures as a special short course for all the students. The names of these ministers will be reported as soon as definite decision is made.

New Courses

Though the courses for this year have not been definitely determined, the following are some of the courses under consideration: History of the Bible, Old Testament Types, Music, The Pastor—His Office and Work, The Science of Bible Research, Prophecies of the Second Coming, Comparative Religion, The Sunday School and Other Auxiliaries of the Church of God, The Psychology of Religion, Religious Art, and Advanced Church History.

Order Your Prospectus

A fully illustrated "Prospectus and Catalogue" of the Bible Training School, newly off the press, will answer your every question about the School. It may be obtained by anyone, and in any number of copies, for ten cents each. Further, it will be sent free to any and all prospective students. Write for your copy today, and report the names and addresses of high (Please turn to page 11)

Your Servants

Members of the Executive Board of the General Conference and its National Bible Institution, being Brothers L. E. Conner, president, Harry A. Sheets, first vice president, C. E. Lapp, second vice president, Sister Orpha Le Masurier, treasurer, and your editor as secretary, appreciate the trust placed upon us. We are your servants in the Lord's work, and, as servants, need the constant good will and co-operation of all the Church of God, that the most possible good may be accomplished during the coming Conference year. Pray that we may be led of God.

"A Word Fitly Spoken"

Said Solomon: "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Prov. 25:11). True, words may cut like knives, and there are unclean words as surely as there are pure words, but that word which is "fitly spoken" may well be compared in value to fruit made of gold.

Brother C. E. Randall, as president of the Ministerial Association, read a very interesting paper before the Association at one of its regular meetings during the recent General Conference. His message was not made of soft, smooth, and simple praise, but was a challenge to the ministry to better do the work which Jesus committed to our trust. Considering our many failures and the too prevalent lukewarmness in the Church of God, we believe Brother Randall's message was a "word fitly spoken." Therefore, we have given it a conspicuous place in this week's Restitution Herald, that every reader may appreciate the rising spirit in the ministry of the Church of God to really and seriously get busy "while it is day"—for "the night cometh when no man can work" (John 9:4). If you want some golden apples, read the article beginning on page 3, then pass the word along.

"From Victory Unto Victory"

God has well blessed the work of the General Conference during the last several years. Golden Rule Home would be a credit to any denomination several times the size of the Church of God. Its resources are better now than ever before. The Bible Training School will begin its third term September 16, 1941, having, in all probability, its largest enrollment to date. There have been some little gains, too, in our publishing work, including: The Restitution Herald, Truth Seekers' Quarterly, the children's quarterlies, and tract work.

We must not, however, become easily satisfied. David's words, "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psalm 17:15), suggest that one should never really rest on his oars until the day of resurrection. Especially is this apparent when we consider the preceding verse stating that "men of the world . . . have their portion in this life." Instead of becoming lazily satisfied, the Church of God should press forward—"from victory unto victory."

Encumbered first with one difficulty, then with another, the General Conference has kept its benumbed evangelistic hands in its pockets. It is time now to get our hands out of our pockets, to put them to the plow, and to make some good furrows in the gospel fields before the Lord of harvest returns. Sad! if Jesus should come today! "Woe unto you that desire the day of the Lord! to what end is it for you? The day of the Lord is darkness, and not light, As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light?" (Amos 5:18-20.)

We are glad, therefore, to announce that the Executive Board of the General Conference has elected members of a Board of Evangelism, and with the co-operation of our brethren it is earnestly hoped we may soon more faithfully preach the gospel in new and undeveloped fields.

Better Organized for Progress

The recent General Conference authorized the establishment of three new boards to assist in our forward-looking movement. The Executive Board has elected the members of these three subsidiary boards as follows:

- (1) The Board of Evangelism is composed of Elders J. W. McLain, Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., and C. E. Lapp.
- (2) The Board of Publication is composed of Elders C. E. Randall, M. W. Lyon, and Harry A. Sheets.
- (3) The Board of Ordination is composed of Elders F. L. Austin, James A. Patrick, and C. E. Randall.

To My Brethren of the Ministry

By C. E. Randall

(An Address Before the Ministerial Association at General Conference)

ANOTHER year has passed, and Providence has brought us together for enjoyment of the communion and fellowship of the saints of the household of God. How favored we have been! The world is reeling to and fro like a drunkard—crazed and dazed—helpless and hopeless, yet we are enjoying liberty of action, freedom of conscience, unrestricted worship in an almost daring manner, with only a passing sense of thankfulness, and little concern over the imminence of losing all these blessings through the rise and conquering power of that beast that has come forth from his lair.

The momentous times in which we are living have not brought about the quickening of spiritual consciousness and energizing of our church forces that should mark our labors in the last days. Our preaching of prophecy in times past served to arouse people more than has its present fulfillment. As shepherds over God's heritage, we need to do some genuine heart searching and weighing of the spiritual status of our churches, to see if we are keeping our people awake to the opportunities of the times and conscious of the besetting perils that are rolling in on humanity as a great flood.

It was twenty years ago that our General Conference was organized. The objectives of the church which were set forth at that time, and to which we dedicated ourselves are far from realization. True, we have accomplished much in these twenty years! This is no time to bemoan the fact that we misspent much of our energy and turned our strength into channels that were not productive of spiritual fruits. If these years have brought to us a true perspective of real Conference values and ways whereby we can build a spiritual house that cannot be compressed by depressions, then much has been accomplished by time in instructing us in wisdom's ways.

As the general theme for our Ministerial Association meetings concerns the "Objectives of the Church," my paper will largely deal with these matters, but not in the particular and specific phases which the several ministers will present from morning to morning.

Before taking up this part of our presentation, I desire to direct your attention to one very grave danger that always lurks in Adventist bodies, which is: future planning for the development of our church work is likely to take our minds and the minds of our people from the basic doctrine of the Bible, the second coming of Christ and attendant blessings. One particular group comes to mind, whose emphasis on the second coming of Christ has almost become extinct because of the concentration of all their efforts on building a large church organization. I am not so sure but that we are somewhat afflicted with this evil; at least, we must be on guard as we plan for extension of our General Conference labors.

When our General Conference was organized, one of the principal objectives set forth for united labor was for an extensive dissemination of literature setting forth the doctrines of the church as outlined under the "Working Rules," and listed under headings "a" to "h," and such other kindred truths as may be deemed profitable for the enlightenment and nourishment of seekers after truth. To accomplish this purpose, it was the intent of those directing the organization and the desire of the Executive and Advisory Boards that colportage work be instituted. The following is a direct quotation of their recommendation:

"It is recommended that colporteurs be carefully considered as a desirable means of placing proper literature in the homes. Also, that many now isolated could in this way place literature in their respective communities, and that the interest created by the reading of this literature could be followed up with evangelistic efforts provided by the National Bible Institution. In this way isolated members would find a labor of interest and would receive cooperation from the people as a whole, which in many instances should be able to surround them with others of like faith and interest. Thus groups of interested worshipers might be created in various localities where isolated ones are now located."

It was also advised that, "as far as possible, aid be given to those who wish to make a business of colportage, with a view of qualifying them to converse freely on Biblical subjects with individuals in their respective homes, and with a view to conducting community Bible studies in various places."

The Advisory Board further recommended that "said publications be disposed of as largely as possible in such a way as to make the work self-sustaining, thus conserving the financial strength of the National Bible Institution, as also to induce interest upon the part of those who procure the literature, to read same."

It was further thought that the preparation of "said literature would furnish practical opportunity for study upon the part of some who might wish to study the Scriptures and things relative thereto, with a view to devoting their full time to the work of the ministry of the gospel."

As far as I am aware, there never has been any organized attempt to carry forward this noble purpose of colportage. Goethe said: "The decline of literature indicates the decline of a nation; the two keep pace in their downward tendency." So it is with the church. Its literature indicates its life! Seventh-Day Adventists have nearly evangelized the world with their literature. Jehovah's Witnesses have accomplished their astounding successes through literature. Their literature and adherents are to be found everywhere. The Church of the Latter Day Saints sends out its elders in twos, handing out their literature as they go. This is an effective and economical way of spreading the gospel. Such means open up many opportunities for personal evangelism and for meetings. The Minnesota Conference existed for forty years before it ever knew of the Churches of God in other states.

Failed

We have playfully neglected our literature! It has been years since one of our ministers has turned out a book. As a matter of fact, there hasn't been a single book published since our General Conference was organized a fifth of a century ago. It can't be said that it is a lack of money. Our people have the money. It is a lack of initiative and interest. In the early days of our work there were many books published. Outstanding works of scholarship came from the pens of our early elders: The Plan of Salvation by J. M. Stephenson; The Gospel of the Kingdom by Wiley Jones; Key Words by the same author; The Kingdom of God by R. V. Lyon; The Mormon Waterloo by W. L. Crowe; The Covenants by G. M. Myers; The Words of the Kingdom and The Words of Eternal Life by J. O. Woodruff; Addresses and Papers on Miscellaneous Themes by Robert McLaughlin; Emphatic Diaglott by Benjamin Wilson, and others.

The church is not lacking in talent. We have brethren who are wonderfully prepared to turn out works of scholarship on Bible truths—such men as S. J. Lindsay, F. L. Austin, G. E. Marsh, and others, whose abilities are well known, but whose scholarship we are allowing to pass away without being "lead in the rock." Brethren, these men will pass this way but once. Soon their mantles must fall on the shoulders of others. Are we going to allow their lights to go out, or shall we preserve for ourselves and our children, if time continues, the results of their vigils over the sacred pages? We can embalm the minds of these brethren in their writings, if—we apply ourselves with purpose and resolve. The question may arise in your minds. Why emphasize this matter upon us? Why not take it before the ones who must pay the cost? The answers are easy. We are the spiritual leaders. Our people do what we determine is for their good. If we here and now decide to launch out into the field of literature, and avail ourselves of the Bible strength of some of our elder workers, our people will gladly follow our lead.

Evangelism

Brother James McLain will present a paper during the Conference on "Our Objective in Missionary and Evangelistic Work," but I wish to call your attention to this subject for the purpose of opening up a thorough study of the whole setup of our church work. For the sake of provoking candid consideration of the whole situation, I wish to state that we have gone astray from the primitive methods of the early church. It was the divine purpose for the early church that they go "every where preaching the word." The Church of God has a "squatting ministry." Our determined purpose today is to build big local church congregations, whereas our efforts should be to spread the gospel as a witness. Why should we be preaching week after week, month after month, year after year to more or less the same people. We are feeding people who ought to be teachers, instead of being taught. The bulk of my Bible teaching is spent on those who are members of long standing. Brethren, we should be evangelists, rather than pastors. The plan adopted by the leaders of the apostolic church was for the evangelist to go into a field and spend enough time to create an ecclesia and qualify certain ones for the eldership. When this was done the church was "set in order," and the elders fed the flock thereafter. The evangelist went on to new fields, with an occasional visit to the established churches to strengthen them or correct any errors into which the church might have been led. These established churches, then supported the work of the evangelist in new fields. For example, Paul says of the ecclesia at Philippi, "Ye sent once and again unto my necessity."

It may be argued that churches would die out if not shepherded by a trained pastor. No, not if they have been grounded in the love of the truth. Members who are faithful only so long as they are tutored by the minister, are men-worshippers, and are on false groundwork. We have promoted the pastoral plan so exclusively and so long, that our people are self-centered and are always wanting to be fed. They have little concern for those who have never heard and who are hungering for the bread of heaven. If an ecclesia is thoroughly grounded in truth, it will matter little to its members who feeds them, as long as they get "meat in due season," and their zeal for the Lord's work will ever be increasing if they know that they are being responsible for the spread of truth in new fields. Instead of killing our churches, it would put new life in them. I have told my people on different occasions that I should be preaching to them only when there was no other place open for the message. The elders are capable of feeding the words of life. I am creating a consciousness of mind among my people along the foregoing lines.

If I am mistaken in interpreting the spirit and plan of the early church, I would like very much to have you brethren correct me, but on the other hand, if this view coincides with the policy of the New Testament church, then I urge you to give careful and prayerful consideration to the proposal set forth. I readily confess that the easy thing to do is to accept in totum the pastoral philosophy and just "tarry" as did the Jerusalem church, but the easy road is not usually the right road. The spreading abroad of the Jerusalem church did not destroy its usefulness, but increased it. It became stronger through its sowing in new fields. When forced to go out, it really carried out the command given to Adam to "multiply and fill the earth"—only in this case it was with the gospel rather than with literal offspring. It is time we reviewed our practices with those divinely given instructions of the church of the firstborn.

Spirit and Spirituality

Fear is the greatest hindrance to a candid and exhaustive study of the work and place of the Spirit of God in our daily lives, and in our church work—fear that we might in some way partake of a manner of likeness of some other religious group that may have gone to the extreme. It has been pretty well ruled out of our preaching to talk about the indwelling of the Spirit of God, and that God's Spirit "beareth witness with our spirit" calls forth an anathema from many congregations and leaders. It is not our purpose to enter into a discussion of the Spirit question, other than to observe that spirituality cannot be developed apart from the Spirit of God. Spiritual mindedness, that is, Christ-mindedness, is an absolute essential to the well being of the Church of God.

There is evidence that love for pleasure is taking its toll with our young people. Dancing, card playing, drinking, with an ever-increasing number of tobacco users, are sabotaging our spiritual vitality. I know of places where doctrine is preached with a vengeance, and these conditions winked at. There are four steps in the progress of evil. First it is abhorred, then it is tolerated, after this it is condoned, then embraced. These evils of which I speak were abhorred by our people a few years ago, but today they are not merely tolerated but are being overlooked, and in some instances embraced. Unless we can foresee the evil effect which these conditions will have on our spiritual life, our church, like many others, will be overwhelmed with the "form of godliness" that is lacking in power. There is need of a greater emphasis on that "holiness" without which no man can see God. To keep our church membership clean, "not having spot or wrinkle," will require the solid co-operation of everyone of us.

Sleeping Virgins

The present world crisis is of such grave consequence that it deserves some studied consideration on our part as leaders of the Church of God. I am more in the theater of war than the most of you, and perhaps see certain trends which have not as yet made their appearance in your communities. As you well know, I am of a patriotic turn of mind: I love my flag and am proud for all it symbolizes. However, my first allegiance is to God, and it is with grieving heart that I discern antipathy everywhere toward the seriousness of the times in which we live. Our people do not seem to sense the closeness of the change from the freedom of democracy to the oppression of Antichrist's paganism. Our writings in The Restitution Herald have been remarkable in their absence of material along these lines.

Our preaching and teaching in the past concerning the apostasy in the last days have made application of this departure from the faith as being applicable to other denominations. We seemed to be oblivious of the fact that it might happen to us. Unless we arise to the occasion of the times and give enlightened leadership to our people, we are going to witness that apostasy can come to us! We have all the material at our disposal to meet the new situation, for our message is potent. It is timely—it is constructive. The times are challenging, but not discouraging, as yet. It is my belief that much good would come from an epistle being sent by the ministers to all our brethren, such being published in The Restitution Herald and read from our respective pulpits—such a letter calling attention of our members to the seriousness of the times, and urging them to maintain themselves in full preparation for the coming of the Lord.

A Ministers' Conference

When our General Conference was organized at Waterloo, Iowa, a declaration of what Scripturally constitutes a conference was set forth. It read:

(1) "We understand that a conference is a conferring together of any or all members of the church who may choose to be present.

(2) "That by voluntary assembly members of the church meet at designated time and place to confer on any or all matters pertaining to Christian welfare; working toward a better understanding of truth, and more unity where differences exist."

A number of us have at times attended other ministerial conferences to our enjoyment and edification. Several of our men have suggested that we should have such a gathering, where subjects of special concern to our own ministers might be discussed. I would gladly give my support to such a move, and (Please turn to page 11)

The "Mysteries" of the Bible

By R. H. Judd

IT IS no uncommon thing when we discuss with some friend the deep things of the Bible, and that friend finds himself, or herself, unable to follow, for the remark to be made: "It is a mystery." The natural conclusions resulting from a human premise (such as for instance the doctrine of the Trinity) may be to all appearances absurd, and even in absolute opposition to definitely proved and divinely appointed, unalterable fact; yet strangely the hope still lies deep in the heart of some that the explanation given above covers the difficulty, and that by a hitherto unexplainable method palpable contradiction will eventually become demonstrated agreement. It is said that, "Hope springs eternal in the human heart." Unfortunately for that theory, the human heart is not eternal.

So often has the answer referred to been given in conversation and in correspondence, even by leaders in the churches, it was thought that a study concerning the Bible use of the word "mystery" might be helpful both to myself and others. We therefore submit the following study.

The word occurs some twenty-seven times in the Bible, and is found only in the New Testament. Examining every passage and its surrounding context where the word occurs, we find Young's definition that the Greek word signifies "that which is known only to the initiated" very fairly indicates the sense in which the word is used in Scripture.

Eight times at least (Matt. 13:11; Mark 4:11; Luke 8:10; Eph. 1:9; 3:3; 6:19; Col. 1:27; 2:2) it is said it is given us to know the mystery, or that it is, or has been made known. We are told (Rom. 11:25) not to be ignorant concerning it. The mystery (16:25) is said to have been kept secret, but now revealed. The same fact is reiterated in 1 Corinthians 2:7-10. In 1 Corinthians 13:2, Paul intimates the possibility that "all mysteries" may be understood. In 1 Corinthians 14:2 it is something not understood for the sole, simple, and obvious reason that it is not known to most of those present. In 1 Corinthians 15:51 it is said to be a fact formerly unknown, but now revealed. In Ephesians 3:3-6 the "mystery" is made known by revelation that the Gentiles should become fellow heirs of the gospel. In Colossians 4:3 it is something which ought to have been made manifest, and concerning which Paul felt the obligation laid on him. In 2 Thessalonians 2:7, 8 the promise is made that the mystery "shall be revealed." In 1 Timothy 3:8 the mystery of faith is the same to which reference is made by Paul in Ephesians 3. The "mysteries" in the Book of Revelation, indeed, in every instance in the New Testament, are something hitherto unknown, but now have been, are, or will be "made known," "manifested," or "revealed."

As intimated by Paul (already pointed out in 1 Cor. 13:2), a "mystery" is NOT something which cannot be understood; nor is it such because by its nature it is definitely and directly opposed to established unalterable fact. There is absolutely no hope that such a "mystery" can now, or ever will be revealed, for the conditions which prevail render it an impossibility. But is mystery thus dispensed with? Thank God, to this we can say an emphatic, "No." Mystery abounds around us. In fact, everything we see, hear, or feel has some mystery attached.

There is something yet unrevealed with regard to it. Every blade of grass and every herb of the field on which we tread has some secret that has not yet been made known. The very air we breathe has, during recent years, been revealed to us as a great reservoir of mysteries, and is doubtless the source from which many more will be manifested. King David of old could say, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made" with a fervency that we seldom hear these days. Yet, it is probably true that he had comparatively little of the knowledge we have today of the intricate and wonderful mechanism of these marvelous bodies of ours—and the horizons of our knowledge in this respect never cease to expand. Surmounting all the wonders of nature is this wonder of man himself, and as the writer of these lines increases in years the wonder of it increases with them. Every step from the cradle

MYSTERIES, BUT NOT ABSURDITIES

"Thou (Lord) hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it. Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee. For thou hast possessed my reins: thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.

"I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well. My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being unperfect; and in thy book all my members were written, which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them. How precious are thy thoughts!" (Psa. 139:5-16.) to the grave contains a fathomless mine of interest, pleasure, and profit, abounding with mystery that captivates but never satisfies, because the revelation of one is but the harbinger of others to follow.

Mystery? Yes, nature abounds in mystery in the heavens above and in and on the earth beneath our feet; but, so far are mystery and absurdity removed from each other it is well known that in every realm of science the true philisophers of mankind have had, as knowledge progresses, to admit that "mystery" is but the temporary hiding place of that which "cometh forth from the Lord of hosts which (who) is wonderful in counsel, and excellent in working" (Isa. 28:29). Where conclusions result in absurdity their source is not divine, but human.

Evil and Idle Speaking

By Mae Nedrow

---

"Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips" (Psalm 141:3).

MICHAEL ANGELO, the great sculptor, could take a chisel and a hammer and transform a block of marble into a beautiful statue. God, too, can bring out the good in us. This can be accomplished only by fiery trials. The writer of the Hebrew letter tells us that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth" (Heb. 12:6). James, too, believed that the "trying of your faith worketh patience" (James 1:3).

Perfume is made from bruised and crushed flowers. It is the same with the child of God—it takes a bruised heart to bring out the best in him. Many times our faith has been sorely tried; discouraged, we have watched the waves coming higher and higher—all too soon we were ready to drop the oars and let our bark drift in the storm. It was then we heard the voice of our Saviour saying, "O ye of little faith, wherefore do ye doubt?" Then we came in contact with our Pilot who guided us safely back to the shore, safe again under His protecting arm. There are times when we must endure severe testing, when there is no one to whom we can turn, except the Lord. It is by His sustaining grace alone that we receive comfort and strength.

Kind words cost nothing, but they sometimes fall upon aching hearts like a soothing balm. Unkind words leave in their wake: rancor, bitterness, and death. How well the Psalmist understood this, is brought out in his prayer to God: "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips" (Psalm 141:3). What a grand world this would be, if everyone would say a few kind words about his neighbor, friend, or the brethren. Surely there are some good qualities in all of us.

May I suggest we try this out at General Conference this year? Last summer, I became acquainted with a very sincere Christian, who had journeyed a great distance to worship with the brethren. She came with love in her heart for all, but I am sorry to say she left for home with a heavy heart. She said she was told so many things about some of the brethren that she was bewildered and disappointed.

Dear brethren, this should not be; do you suppose this good woman will ever make an effort to come back here again? Wouldn't it have been much better if these gossips had said nothing at all? The Christian should ever remember that it is written that "every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment" (Matt. 12:36). How dare we so-called Christians revile those of the world when we have whisperers among our own brethren who seek with the poison of their tongues to ruin the reputations of other of the brethren! Oh, how secretly they work—wolves as it were in sheeps' clothing!

Let us all pull together for the Lord. Today the world is filled with bitterness and misery. However, we must labor on through our storms and our sorrows, ever keeping our hearts attuned to the will of God. May this coming General Conference find each one of us working in the Lord's vineyard, preaching the gospel of the Kingdom of God, and of salvation through Jesus Christ, the "Son of God," the "light of the world."

If we, a gentle word would speak,
Desiring friends not foes to seek,
Could we but speak a word of cheer
To neighbor, friend, or someone near,
There'd be no wars, no strife today,
All pain and grief would pass away.

A few kind words is no great task,
A happy service, sure to last.
Let's start today, it's not too late,
Abandon malice, envy, hate.
As sowers, sow the seed of love,
Kind words—true greatness from above.

The Restoration of the Kingdom to Israel

By Laura Skeels

MANY years have passed since the apostles asked Jesus, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" We might ask the same question today, for the Kingdom has not yet been restored to Israel. The Israelites are yet scattered among the heathen nations, groping in darkness, their eyes still blinded, their land still being trodden down by the Gentiles. However, the times of the Gentiles will soon be fulfilled. When the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled, then will the kingdom be restored to the one whose right it is. We long for the great day of peace, when the Prince of Peace comes to rule in righteousness.

"Thus saith the Lord God; When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the heathen, then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell safely therein, and shall build houses, and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence, when I have executed judgments upon all those that despise them round about them; and they shall know that I am the Lord their God" (Ezek. 28:25, 26), and "I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people and I will be your God" (36:24-28). Continuing, we read: "Thus saith the Lord God; In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities and the wastes shall be builded. And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by. And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited. Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it.

"Behold, I will gather them out of all countries, whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God: and I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them: and I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them, to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me. Yea, I will rejoice over them to do them good, and I will plant them in this land assuredly with my whole heart and with my whole soul. For thus saith the Lord; Like as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, so will I bring upon them all the good that I have promised them" (Jer. 32:37-42).

Speaking of the land, the Prophet said: "Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth. And I will cause the captivity of Judah and the captivity of Israel to return, and will build them, as at the first. And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me; and I will pardon all their iniquities, whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me" (33:6-8). In verses 14-16 we read: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah. In those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land. In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely: and this is the name wherewith she shall be called, The Lord our righteous-

WHEN JESUS COMES TO ZION

"And I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps: and they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth.

"These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the firstfruits unto God and to the Lamb. And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God" (Revelation 14:1-5).

ness." "Thus saith the Lord" (vv. 25, 26), "If my covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth; then I will cast away the seed of Jacob . . . for I will cause their captivity to return, and have mercy on them."

The Gentiles are in feverish haste and are fast losing control of the governments. Their rulership is slipping away amid the rattle of machine guns and the thunderous roar of bursting bombs. However, sometime very soon we believe the Kingdom will be restored to the King, Jesus of Nazareth, for whom it is waiting. This Kingdom will be set up in the Land of Promise—the land for which God made a covenant to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob for an everlasting possession. So will the Kingdom of God or the Kingdom of Israel be established after the kingdoms of the Gentiles have all passed away.

God "Listens in"

By Alva Huffer

---

EVERYONE likes to talk to his best friend. Although God is unseen, He is the Christian's best and dearest Friend, and we may talk to Him through the medium of prayer. It has been said that the primary benefit of prayer is that it eases the mind, but prayer is more than applied psychology. It is our private communion with God through Christ. It is a privilege to pray. The hypocrites during Christ's ministry greatly abused this privilege, standing in street corners where they actually prayed before men rather than to God. (See Matt. 6:5.) We read in Matthew 6:6 that we should pray in secret. This text does not teach against public prayer—for Christ Himself made short public prayers—but it teaches that our prayers must come from our hearts.

Preparation is essential for prayer. Christians should be prepared in the sense of being in the attitude of prayer. True prayers are not those which are memorized and repeated again and again (Matt. 6:7), because they do not come from the heart. "Preparation of the heart in man" (Prov. 16:1) is necessary in prayer.

Reverence is very important in prayer. In prayer we enter into the most holy place we know in life. We, as Christians, should realize how small we are in comparison to God, and pause for a moment in reverence to Him. Paul says in 1 Thessalonians 5:17, to "pray without ceasing." This does not mean that we should be on our knees always, but to be in the attitude of prayer every minute of the day. The love for God must be within our hearts to obtain the answer to our prayers.

Assurance of the answer of the prayer must be in our minds before it is really answered. One of the requirements of prayer is belief or faith in the fact that God gives whatever is asked of Him, if it is according to His will. Why pray, if we know that our prayer will not be accepted or answered? This assurance must ever be within our hearts, if we expect an answer to our prayers. If we know ourselves—how really weak we are—we will trust

God and lean on Him through prayer.

Yield your prayers unto the Lord. This yielding can be made only through Jesus Christ. He is our only mediator, for in John 14:6 He says: "I am the way . . . no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." Our prayers need not be "flowery" ones, because God knows what is in our hearts before we utter a word unto Him.

Enthusiasm must be put into our prayers. We must be eager to thank God for our blessings and ask for the forgiveness of our sins. If we do not strive to forgive others, how should we expect God to forgive us our sins?

Rewards are made to those who really ask for them, provided they believe that God will answer their prayers. God often gives—in answer to prayers—things which are not really best. An example is: God gave the Israelites a king, although they did not need one. He gave them what they asked, because they were so persistent. If one lives a Christian life of prayer and devotion to God, he will be rewarded for his service, because in Revelation 22:12 Christ says: "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." If prayers go unanswered, the Lord's Prayer in large part is useless. God has power to give all that is asked of Him, if He sees proper, for He says through David, in Psalm 50:10, that every beast and fowl are His. If our prayers go unanswered, we have none but ourselves to blame.

Jesus prayed many times, especially at a point of decision or crisis, or at times of rest from the confusion of the great multitudes. The disciples sought out Jesus to ask Him to teach them to pray. He gave them every encouragement. He gave them a model prayer, commonly known as the Lord's Prayer. Jesus felt the need of help and strength from God; therefore, He prayed—which is the only way we have of reaching God. If we trust Him, we shall wait for the answer of the prayers, which will come because God truly "listens in."

“Set Thine House in Order”

By Zelda Cooper

“Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live” (Isaiah 38:1).

ONE of our greatest problems today is to get people to understand what happens to them when they die. There are so many different ideas, because the people fail to study for themselves. They take for granted what is told them and never read to find out for themselves.

We find Christ died and rose again from the dead; likewise, we have hope of a resurrection. Christ gave His life for us. It is necessary that we devote our lives to Christ by living as true Christians.

We read in Genesis 3:19: “In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.” All are from the dust; therefore, all shall return to the dust. Adam sinned, and for this disobedience was returned to the ground from which he was taken.

Abraham said, “I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am but dust and ashes” (Gen. 18:27). However, it has been asked, “Must we lie down and die like the beasts of the field?” God has not left us to choose this. “We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out,” but there is hope of a future life. We find some very important words in Job 14. Job compared life to a flower that withers away, also as a “shadow (that) continueth not.” It seems impossible to think that life could continue after death. In verse 14 we read: “If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come.” Of what change do you suppose he was speaking?

Christians are looking forward to the time when the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. 1 Corinthians 15:53 tells us how our corruptible bodies “must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.” “We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye” (vv. 51, 52). This will take place when Christ comes.

How will we know when He is coming? No man knows the day or the hour the Son of Man will come. We do know He is coming in glory, as in Matthew 25:31 we read: “When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory.” This text also tells us that Christ is going to occupy the throne.

We are looking forward for the time to come, but, are we ready? Do we have our house set in order for the Guest when He arrives?

Many of us would have so many other things to do we could not find time to entertain Him. We, today, can hardly find time to serve God, and we know He has commanded us to give our lives to Him. May we determine and labor to be worthy when He comes to set up His everlasting Kingdom on the earth.

The Road of Life

By Betty Macy

EVERYONE likes to travel down a beautiful highway. The road is smooth, and the scenery, the fields, and homes are beautiful. Such is the worldly way. So many like the broad highways—so few, the narrow, rough side roads and byways. The narrow way is “hard on the tires,” and many do not care to come that way. Such is the Christian way.

The Scripture plainly shows that there are two ways of life. David said, “The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish”

(Psalm 1:6). We cannot walk both ways; we must choose between the two. “No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon” (Matt. 6:24).

The roads are so far apart that we cannot walk both of them. There are side roads leading from the broad highway where “whosoever will” may go. When we turn to these narrow, rocky ways, we must leave behind all who walk the broad way. On the highway, we see the scencry and the people, but so many fail to notice the signposts at the crossroads. The sign, "To Destruction and Death," points straight ahead, but the sign pointing off to the right reads, "To Life Everlasting." There are those who see the signs, but think only of the modes of travel—the easy way and the hard way. They see rocks and rough places on the side road, so they continue ahead, thinking that they may get there by some other way. Christ said, "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber" (John 10:1).

On the broad way the sun shines so brightly that people often see what we call a mirage—seeing something which really is not. That mirage causes many to keep going along the broad way, but when they reach that place they realize that they have been fooled and misled. This leads only to disillusionment and embittered hearts. Those who travel the narrow way find their light is a true light—it does not deceive. They need not fear darkness. David said, "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?" (Psalm 27:1.)

Sometimes we get lost and stumble in the darkness. Then we should get out our road map—the Bible—and follow it. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm 119:105). If we have the love of the Lord and of His Word in our hearts, we need not fall. God guided His people, the children of Israel, through the wilderness—a cloud by day, a pillar of fire by night. By faith in Christ Jesus, and through baptism in His name, we may become God's children. He guides us with His holy Word. By studying and gaining understanding of His Word, the narrow way becomes smoother and less difficult to travel. We can lift our eyes to God and thank Him that He has prepared for us a way—that through His Son we have hope of eternal life.

Though we stumble, and though we sometimes grow weary, we must never forget or refuse to lend our strength and a helping hand to those who have fallen along the way. If we will only ask it, Christ, who is always near, will help us bear our troubles and make our burdens light. "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help" (Psalm 121:1).

The broad way leads only to death. The narrow way leads to life. Christ said, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:13, 14).

"See that each hour's feelings and thoughts and actions are pure and true; then will your life be such. The wide pasture is but separate spears of grass; the sheeted bloom of the prairies but isolated flowers."—Beecher.

school graduates in your community who might become interested.

The Outlook

According to the present outlook, there will be eight or nine of last year's students returning September 16, 1941, to continue their training. Though at this date no new students have enrolled, we hear of several prospective freshmen. It is our hope that at least seven or eight new students will enroll, that the School may continue to grow and better serve both the Church of God and all the world. We are building for eternity. Who will help us? Will you help us?

"Our hope is not hung upon such untwisted thread as 'I imagine so,' or 'It is likely'; but the cable, the strong rope of our fastened anchor, is the oath and promise of Him who is eternal verity: our salvation is fastened with God's own hand and Christ's own strength to the strong stake of God's unchanging nature."—Rutherford.

TO MY BRETHREN OF THE MINISTRY

believe that it would be of great blessing to our Bible College work and to the students in particular. Such a meeting would greatly refresh our spiritual powers. It would not be possible for some of our brethren at great distances to attend, but it would help those who are in range. I am more or less isolated, and I get lonesome for the fellowship and counsel of you brethren. It is possible that I feel the need more keenly than some of the rest because of my distance from any of our ministers. Believing much good will come to us from such meetings, I urge your careful consideration of such an undertaking.

In closing, let me suggest that our conduct during the two weeks we are here will have tremendous influence on the outcome of this Conference. If we maintain an intimate fellowship in our profession, such a spirit will be catching. The four or five hundred who will be here in the next few days will go home with about the same idea of the Conference which we have given them. Their interest in the classes and various meetings will rise to about the same pitch as our own. Therefore, let me urge each one to strive to be exemplary, be punctual in arriving at services on or ahead of time, and attend as many of the general services as possible; especially let each one of us endeavor to be in the devotional service, and give of our spirit and strength to the people. Above all, let us maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. May God be with us in our Conference.

Two "Peas" in Hot Water

Peter and Paul were such good friends and were so often found playing together that their friends began to call them "the two peas" because both of their names began with "P." Peter lived in town near their church, while Paul lived out in the country. Both boys were members of the "Truth-Tellers" Sunday school class.

Their teacher planned to take them to Paul's home for a lawn party one evening. Peter went out to Paul's home in the late afternoon to help Paul with his chores and to play a while before the party. They put the lawn mower away, fixed some benches nearer together, then looked around for more things to do.

Now, you know how much fun it is to climb on all the farm implements! Peter and Paul tried them all. Finally Peter pretended he was the mechanic and began to "fix" the tractor Paul's brother had made.

Soon supper was ready. The boys hurried through the meal, then they began Paul's chores. They fed the calves and helped lock the baby chicks safely in their brooder.

Paul's big brother, Tim, hastened to drive the tractor a little farther back in the rear, so the "Truth-Tellers" would have more room for their activities. The tractor wouldn't start! What was the trouble, anyway? After working and searching for the trouble, Paul and Peter came out to join him. They looked at each other guiltily. Peter said, "I know what the trouble is. I put some old batteries in when we were playing a while ago." Peter, a rather shy boy around older people, had to have quite a bit of courage to confess.

"Where did I put the batteries? Oh, over here," called Peter, running to get them.

"Be careful," cried Tim. "That acid on top, burns." He called too late, for Peter already had two holes burned in the front of his sweater.

"Now what will Mother think?" thought Peter, as big Tim drove the tractor away. "We had a verse of Scripture Sunday that I think I need to study—it was a little like hiding something in the heart, like it tells us to do in Psalm 119:11, so one won't sin against God," said Peter to Paul.

"I know the verse about which you are thinking," said Paul. "It is: 'Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as . . . a busybody in other men's matters'" (1 Peter 4:15).

"Yes, and the first part of our golden text tells us that we need not be ashamed when we suffer as Christians," agreed Peter. "What if I had gone home before Tim found out there was something wrong?" asked Peter. "Guess I'd have been an evildoer, wouldn't I, Paul? And now look at the holes in my new sweater!"

"Well," answered Paul, "I believe it is worse to do bad things on purpose. Thinking evil thoughts or saying evil things about someone is bad, too."

"Here come the rest of our 'Truth-Tellers,'" cried Peter, resolving to let other men's matters alone, and to try not to do things to harm himself or others.

Salvation Open to All Believers

"With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! . . . So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:10-17).

The Purpose

* * *

By Betty Luper, Los Angeles, Calif.

Christ died that we might live. In Romans 5:10 we read, "If, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life." Also in John 3:16, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

In 1 Corinthians 15:21 we read, "Since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." Since Adam sinned, Christ died for that sin that we might have everlasting life. Christ was raised to be conqueror over hell and death. In Revelation 1:18 we read, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."

Christ's resurrection laid aside all doubt of the incredible part of the resurrection. "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" (Acts 26:8.)

The followers of Christ were assured that Christ was the way of life. Christ has the words of eternal life. "Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life" (John 6:67, 68).

"If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. . . . If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins" (1 Cor. 15:14, 17).

"Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (John 20:29).

After Christ was resurrected, Thomas did not believe He was resurrected until Peter told him—he had to see Jesus to believe He was raised on the third day. We are blessed if we believe, having not seen.

The Bride of Christ in Type

* * *

By Shirley Smith, Oregon, Ill.

"Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready" (Rev. 19:7). Since man's creation, God has divinely foreshadowed the events of this age. The subject under consideration is one of these. The first man and woman are a type of Christ and His bride. We see that Adam was first formed, then Eve. Although Eve transgressed, Adam willingly partook of evil (1 Tim. 2:13, 14). After the first Adam—the created son of God—came the second Adam—the begotten Son of God. Thus, Christ came into the world taking on the nature of the first Adam. It is very easy to conclude that Jesus Christ is an antitype of the first Adam, but what is the antitype of the first Adam's wife?

We shall answer this question by an observation of the creation of Eve and the relation of Adam and Eve. "God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam" (Gen. 2:21). In this process of creation, God formed Eve out of that which was taken from Adam's side (Gen. 2:22). Then Adam said, "This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man." We also see after this act of creation the uniting of these two as one, and after their transgression of the law of God, woman was placed secondary to man, and man was to rule over her (Gen. 3:16).

Here we have an event in the Garden of Eden foreshadowing, in detail, Christ and His bride. We now step forward to Christ and view the likeness between Him and this type. Christ reached perfection through His trials and sufferings. However, He was without a helpmate, so by the grace of God He was permitted to purchase for Himself a bride. How did He purchase His bride? We see that Christ willingly fell into a deep sleep (even as did Adam) and there was taken out of His side that which purchased His bride. When Christ was on the cross, they "pierced his side, and therefrom came there out both blood and water" (John 19:34).

What is it today that takes a person out of the world and places him into the body of called-out ones? "Nothing but the blood of Jesus," put on us through the act of baptism. A noticeable fact in this connection is that Eve was called "Woman" because she was taken out of "Man." So is the church called "Christian" because it is taken out of Christ. Who, then, is the bride of Christ? By the facts which we have gathered we think it logical to believe that the church is the bride of Christ. "The husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the Saviour of the body" (Eph. 5:23).

The annual business meeting of the Illinois State Conference was called to order at 3:15 p.m., Thursday, July 31, 1941, at Oregon, Ill. The meeting was opened with a song and reading of Psalm 145 by Bro. Francis Burnett, followed with prayer by Bro. Walter Wiggins. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was read and accepted. Reports were read from the following churches: Dixon, Macomb, Oregon, Eldorado, Rockford, Marshall, and Ripley.

The two evangelists were present. Bro. James Watkins, who serves the Marshall and Eldorado churches, gave his report first. Bro. C. E. Lapp, who serves the Macomb and Fredricktown (Mo.) churches, then gave his report. Both reports were commendable.

Bro. Francis Burnett, working at Rockford, gave a good report of the work there. Bro. Alan McLain, acting as pastor at Dixon, reported on the work being done there. This was followed by a report of the Oregon church by Bro. Sydney E. Magaw.

The next order of business was the election of officers, resulting as follows: president, Bro. Leland Hanson, Leaf River; vice president, Bro. Francis Burnett, Oregon; secretary, Sr. Frank Laning, Mt. Sterling; and treasurer, Sr. Elizabeth Ford, Dixon. The two executive board members elected for two years are Bros. Frederick Claussen and Alan McLain. Those holding over are Bros. James Watkins and Frank Laning.

Bro. Paul Johnson gave a report of the building committee, stating that more sleeping room had been provided, that gas stoves, springs, and mattresses had been bought, and other repair work done—the total cost amounting to nearly $400.00.

It was moved by Sr. Leota Hanson that we continue the four dollar days. Second was made by the writer. The motion carried.

The need for communion trays was discussed. Sr. Leota Hanson made a motion that the Conference pay for one tray. It was seconded by Bro. Paul Johnson. The motion carried.

The picnic for Monday, Berean Day, was next discussed.

The next quarterly conference was discussed, and Marshall extended an invitation which was accepted. This quarterly conference will be held in September, on one of the Sundays of the evangelist's appointments there. Notice of this date will be given through The Restitution Herald.

There was a motion for adjournment by Bro. Sydney E. Magaw, and seconded by Sr. Elizabeth Ford. The motion carried.

MRS. HARRY TRITABAUGH

Our hearts were made sad when Mrs. Harry Tritabaugh, a resident of this community for many years, died at her home near Eden Valley, Minn., Sunday, July 20. Her death was due to a heart ailment with which she had been troubled for several years.

Shortly after their marriage, they came to the farm in Eden Lake Township. She united with the Church of God at an early age and has been an active member since.

Besides her husband, she leaves one son, Jesse Miles Tritabaugh, one grandson, and two sisters.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, using the words of the Apostle Paul as recorded in 1 Corinthians 15:44 for comfort. Burial was made at Lake View Cemetery, where she awaits the call of the Master.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"I am sorry for those who found it impossible to attend General Conference this year. It was one of the best conferences I ever attended. To be with those who are striving for the same everlasting prize, and doing so with as much if not more zeal than our own, is certainly a great inspiration. In this present turmoil we need more such gatherings. (Heb. 10: 25.)"—John Mercer, 301-4th Ave. S., Saint Cloud, Minn.

Sr. Orpha LeMasurier, treasurer of the National Bible Institution, and her daughter Diane are vacationing at Eden Valley, Minn., with Bro. and Sr. W. F. Hoskins.

"Texas is a big state, but it had a small representation at General Conference. We hope to be stronger in number and faith in the future."—Vernis D. Wolfe, Rt. 3, Gatesville, Texas.

"We surely enjoyed General Conference, especially our daily Bible classes with Bros. F. L. Austin and Harry A. Sheets. We hope to attend next year's Conference, too."—Elton Ruhn, Litchfield, Minn.

Next week's Herald will present the Secretary's complete report of the recent General Conference.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. Order a good supply of tracts; then send them to your friends. It costs nothing to slip a tract into a letter, and it may "save a soul from death."

The following tracts and books, most of them written by men prominent at some time in the Church of God, are for sale by the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Send a self-addressed envelope or postage for tracts not priced. How many can you use?

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

By A. L. Corbaley

"None of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand" (Daniel 12:10).

A STUDENT of the Bible and one who closely watches world events recently challenged the ministry of the Church of God with these words: "It seems that the Bear of the North is about to awake, but on the wrong side of the fence. Come on, you watchmen, and tell us, 'What of the night?'" This question is in the minds of many, and should not be ignored by the shepherds of God's flock. It is a question that should be answered with definite proof from the inspired Record and from definite historical facts.

We shall first call attention to Ezekiel 38: 1-4, where we learn that the Lord is against Gog, the "chief prince of Meshech and Tubal." All Bible commentators seem to be agreed that Gog is prophetic of Russia. Meshech is said to be the prophetic word for Moscow—one of the chief cities and the capital of Russia. The prophetic Voice says: "I will turn thee back" (v. 4). In the last two hundred years, Russia has ten times attempted to gain the city of Constantinople. This has been unsuccessfully attempted since the days of Peter the Great, the greatest Czar that ever ruled the Russian people, who, before his death, left a will telling the Russian people how they could become masters of Europe and, possibly, the whole world. Among other things, he indicated they should gain possession of the Bosphorus, the Sea of Marmora, Constantinople, and the Dardanelles. These objectives gained, the Mediterranean Sea would become a great Russian lake. Since the day of Peter the Great, Russia has consistently tried to follow out his will, but so far the Bear of the North has failed to gain her objective.

The nearest Russia ever came to capturing Constantinople was in 1877. The Turks were then persecuting the Bulgarians—brutally massacring thousands of them.

Europe was otherwise at peace at the time. Russia proposed to the other nations that she, with their permission, would go down to stop the persecution. She was told to go. The Turks were defeated, and the Russians came within sight of Constantinople (now Istanbul). Lord

Beaconsfield was premier of England at the time. The Russians saw the British battleships out in the Golden Horn, ready to defend the city. The Czar received a telegram signed by six European powers stating that the Russians should not enter the city, that the persecution had ceased, and that they would be amply repaid for their trouble. Russia had to withdraw and was never paid for the trouble and expense of the campaign. England took the Isle of Cyprus for her trouble. All this, however, is in the past. Now, what of the future of Russia, mighty Bear of the North?

The prophetic Voice again says: "I will . . . put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horesmen (it is said that three fourths of the horses of the world are in Russia), all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company . . . all of them handling swords" (Ezek. 38:4). (A recent news despatch claims that the Russian Cavalry destroyed a whole detachment of Axis soldiers.) Verse 5 foretells that Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya will be with Russia. Persia is now under the domination of Russia. The British and King Haile Selassie's army have driven the Italians out of almost all of Ethiopia, and Germany (Italy's ally) has attacked Russia. This throws England and Russia together. Consequently, Ethiopia and Russia are against Germany—throwing Ethiopia (Abyssinia) and Russia together exactly as the Prophet Ezekiel foretold. No matter how the nations are lined

Introduction

We are pleased to present the accompanying picture by way of introducing Brother Vivian Kirkpatrick, new instructor in the Bible Training School, Oregon, Illinois. Brother Kirkpatrick, a graduate of Aurora College, Aurora, Illinois, having there received the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, was ordained to the Church of God ministry by the Minnesota State Conference, and comes to our service as an instructor after a two-year pastorate with the Church of God at Blanchard, Michigan. Thus, having both a good academic training and a good Church of God background, we look to this young man for strength and courage and talent to help in the development of the Bible Training School into a bigger and better institution of learning.

Vivian Kirkpatrick

Mr. Peltz in our home where, with other friends, we visited for an hour or more.

Among other topics of discussion, we asked for his thought about the outcome of the present war. Recalling that the First World War really profited no people except the Jews, Mr. Peltz explained that this Second World War would likewise imperil both the victor and the vanquished, and that the Jews again will probably be the only ones to really gain. He called attention to the fact that Great Britain's leaders of a few years ago who failed to keep the British pledge to make Palestine a homeland for the Jews are no longer in office, that the present British leaders are in favor of making Palestine a Jewish refuge and home, and that, if and when England wins, there will result the greatest exodus of Jews to Palestine that has ever been witnessed. (Cp. Ezek. 36:19-38.)

It was good to hear a Jew tell the story—the true gospel story—of the restoration of David's throne and the coming of David's Seed, Jesus the Messiah, and to learn from a Jew that many of Abraham's descendants are looking more and more to Palestine where soon they will see the King "come in his glory" (Matt. 25:31).

Time to Enlist

Eight o'clock, September 16, 1941, time for the first class of the third year of the Bible Training School, will race upon us within four short weeks. In a sense, September 16 is racing against every prospective student. To win this race to Oregon, Illinois, every student planning to attend the School should immediately get into his running clothes, and sprint a little by signing and mailing the enrollment coupon which appears on page 15.

While the nation conscripts for military training, the Church of God calls for volunteers in spiritual training. "How long halt ye between two opinions?" It is time to enlist for God. The Bible Training School is prepared to accommodate and educate a large class. Here is opportunity for youth. God grant that many students will avail themselves of this opportunity "while it is day." Jesus warns: "The night cometh, when no man can work" (John 9:4).

A Jew Watches for Results

Mr. Jacob Peltz, converted Jew and secretary for the International Hebrew Christian Alliance, preached an interesting sermon at the recent General Conference. Following the church services, it was our privilege to have

Seven All-Jewish Towns in Palestine

It is reported that there are now seven towns in Palestine which are all-Jewish, and which have populations of more than five thousand, each. They are as follows:

Petah Tikvah	17,600
Rehovoth	8,800
Rishon Le-Zion	7,200
Hedera	7,000
Nothanya	6,200
Ramat Gan	5,200
Herzlia	5,200

In considering these towns, one should not overlook that there is also the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, which has a population of over 200,000. Jerusalem, also largely Jewish, has a population well over 100,000, and the new part of the city is ten times the size of the old city within the walls. Zion's "set time is come" (Psalm 102:13). Watch!

Minutes of Our 1941 General Conference

Oregon, Illinois, July 29—August 10

That our brethren everywhere may get a glimpse of the recent General Conference, we are publishing the Secretary's minutes, complete.

PRESIDENT L. E. Conner called to order the first meeting at 3:15 p.m., July 29, with singing, prayer, and a Scripture reading from Proverbs 1. By call of the Chair, Brother C. Alan McLain, chairman of the Credentials Committee, requested that all delegates be reported as soon as possible.

Brother G. H. Loudenslager, chairman of the Auditing Committee, reported that this Committee completed its work July 26, 1941, that it "found the books of the National Bible Institution had been faithfully kept during the last fiscal year, and that the books are approved." (C. Alan McLain, G. H. Loudenslager—Auditing Committee.) Brother Harry A. Sheets and Sister Emma C. Railsback moved that the Auditing report be accepted and placed on file. Motion carried.

Brother M. W. Lyon, chairman of the committee to make recommendations for amendments to the General Conference Working Rules, presented proposed changes in reference to delegate voting at General Conference, explaining that the present system was cumbersome and in some respects unfair. The Chair explained that any changes made this year would not affect the system of voting until the next General Conference. Also, the Chair requested that the proposed changes be carefully considered and compared with the present system of delegate voting.

Brother Charles Netts, speaking about the Retired Ministers' Fund, called attention to a map on exhibit showing the various places where Golden-Rule-Home banks have been placed, and reported that he has other banks ready for Sunday schools or other organizations which may wish the same.

Brother M. W. Lyon inquired about the work of the Dormitory Committee appointed at last General Conference. The Chair said the Committee had made investigation and that it had been found impracticable to remodel the Conference dormitory for Bible Training School purposes, and that the Students' Home used during the first year of the Bible Training School has also been used during the past year.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Charles Netts moved to recess until 3:15 p.m., July 30. Motion carried.

3:15 p.m., July 30

President L. E. Conner called to order the second meeting at 3:15 p.m., July 30. Brother James Watkins offered prayer and Brother Conner read a portion of Proverbs 16.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting and they were approved as read.

Sister Orpha LeMasurier, treasurer, presented her annual report of the National Bible Institution and Golden Rule Home. (See page 5.) Brother Charles Netts inquired as to whether or not the Ministers' Fund was kept separate, to which the Chair replied in the affirmative. It was moved by Brothers Harry Goekler and Leland Hanson to accept the Treasurer's report and that it be placed on file. Motion carried.

Brother C. E. Randall inquired about the accuracy of Article 3, Section 3, of the Constitution. The Chair replied that this section of the Constitution has not been respected, and authorized Brother Randall to formulate any revision of the same that was considered advisable.

Brothers Leland Hanson and Harry Sheets moved to accept the complete printed report presented by the Treasurer, which included both the regular and summer Bible Training Schools. Motion carried.

Brother C. E. Randall expressed sincere appreciation for the Bible Training Schools' success, as both Schools had been operated without incurring any indebtedness.

The President's Report

President L. E. Conner presented his annual message, reporting that there are no outstanding notes against the Institution, and no indebtedness (other than local current bills), except a mortgage of $2150.00 on the 160-acre farm near Oregon, which is one of the Golden Rule Home properties and which is now rented for $350.00 per year. The Chair further explained that all properties connected with the Institution belong to Golden Rule Home, except the National Bible Institution's plant and offices building and a few lots in Oregon, Illinois. The Golden Rule Home properties are:

A Dixon, Illinois, residence, estimated worth $3500.00—rented at $31.00 per month

A residence in Oregon, Illinois, estimated worth $3000.00—rented at $35.00 per month

A residence in Oregon, Illinois, estimated worth $4000.00—rented at $35.00 per month

A residence in Riverside, California, estimated worth $3000.00—rented at $25.00 per month

A 160-acre farm near Oregon, Illinois, estimated worth $8000.00—rented at $350.00 per year

The Chair explained that it is his thought that, as far as possible, properties which come into the hands of the Institution should be retained rather than sold, as the rentals received therefrom invariably prove in the long run to be more profitable than to sell the properties. This system, if continued, and which the Chair recommended as being continued by the next manager, should eventually make Golden Rule Home self-supporting, but in the meantime necessitates continued co-operation on the part of our brotherhood in making regular contributions for upkeep and running expenses of the Home. Upon inquiry by Brother Leland Hanson, the Chair explained that the Haywood Contract might also be included with Golden Rule Home properties, but that he had not included it because there is some question as to its value, whereas the other properties are a hundred per cent good.

Brother M. W. Lyon, noticing that the estimated values of the properties listed by the President did not total to the value of the properties as listed in the Treasurer's report, asked for an explanation of the difference. The Chair explained that he had not included Golden Rule Home itself, which would more than make up the difference, and that if Golden Rule Home is worth what the annual Survey Committee usually estimates, the total value of Golden Rule Home properties would be several thousand dollars more than our figures actually show.

Sister T. J. Ellis inquired about the rent on the farm, it seeming that a 160-acre farm should bring in more rent than that now being received. The Chair explained that he has tried to practice the Golden Rule and not charge too high a rental, further explaining that there are no buildings on the farm (except a corncrib), that the fences are in poor condition, that some of the acreage is in woods, and that the prices on farm products have been low the last few years.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Leland Hanson moved to accept the President's report. Motion carried.

Brothers Harvey Krogh, Jr., and Leland Hanson moved to separate the Ministers' Fund from the Golden Rule Home income account as listed in the Treasurer's report. Motion carried.

The Secretary explained that though the Ministers' Fund was listed as an income to Golden Rule Home (for it will eventually there be used), the Fund has been kept separate and no part of it has yet been spent—it being in a special savings account in the Ogle County National Bank.

Upon question by Brother James W. McLain, it was explained that the Evangelistic Fund is also kept in a separate bank account.

Motion was made by Brothers F. L. Austin and Harry Sheets to reconsider the motion approving the Treasurer's report. Motion carried.

Brothers Charles Netts and Harvey Krogh, Jr., moved to recess until Friday, August 1, 3:15 p.m. Motion carried.

3:15 p.m., August 1

President L. E. Conner called to order the third business meeting with singing and prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

Election of Officers

The Chair then called for election of officers for the ensuing year. Elder L. E. Conner was elected president and Elder Harry A. Sheets 1st vice president.

The Conference hour being then more than used, Elder F. E. Siple moved to adjourn to call of the chair. Motion carried, and meeting adjourned. (Note: Later in the day, to accommodate some of the delegates who were not able to stay all of Saturday afternoon at the Conference, the Chair called for the next meeting to begin at 11:00 a.m., Saturday, for the purpose of continuing the election.)

11:00 a.m., August 2

President L. E. Conner called to order the fourth business meeting at 11:00 a.m., August 2, for the purpose of continuing the election. The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read. Election results were as follows: 2nd vice president—C. E. Lapp, elected by majority vote; secretary—Sydney E. Magaw, elected by motion for a unanimous ballot, said motion being made by Elders F. L. Austin and C. E. Randall, and passing without dissenting vote; treasurer—Orpha LeMasurier, elected by motion for a unanimous ballot, said motion being made by Brother Leland Hanson and Sister Idona Romine, and passing without a dissenting vote.

The Secretary then presented his annual report, presented here in brief:

and to a limited extent to reach beyond their regular schedules, as they might find it advantageous without incurring much expense. Both men reported some field work, and remuneration was made to one of the men who reported some little extra expense.

Children's Quarterlies: The Childrens Quarterlies have proved to be popular with many of our Sunday schools, the following schools now being on the subscription list:

Blackduck, Minn.	Bosworth, Mo.
Eden Valley, Minn.	Alliance, Nebr.
Michigantown, Ind.	Lawrenceville, Ohio
Grand Rapids, Mich.	Gladbrook, Iowa
(Pennellwood)	Tempe, Ariz.
Ripley, Ill.	Marshall, Ill.
Macomb, Ill.	Hickory Ridge, Ark.
Maurertown, Va.	Plymouth, Ind.
Fonthill, Ont.	Omaha, Nebr.
Dixon, Ill.	Los Angeles, Calif.
Oregon, Ill.	Corvallis, Ore.
Shady Springs, W. Va.	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Eldorado, Ill.	Pomona, Calif.
Rockford, Ill.	Corpus Christi, Texas
South Bend, Ind.	Moorefield, Nebr.
Arkansas City, Kans.	Purmela, Texas
Casey, Ill.	Wichita, Kans.
Hammond, La.

According to present plans, the Children's Quarterlies published hereafter will be of even better quality than at present, and the Secretary encouraged wider use of them and the Truth Seekers' Quarterlies that there might be more of the spirit of unity and co-operation in our publishing work.

Tracts to England: During the past year, ten thousand of our leading tracts were printed and sent to England for distribution by a tract society in London. President L. E. Conner reported receiving a letter of acknowledgment of the tracts, showing that they had been received.

Retired Ministers' Fund: During the last fiscal year $504.85 was received and placed in a special savings account for the Retired Ministers' Fund.

Remodeling of Offices: During the past year, the offices of the National Bible Institution were remodeled, providing a private office for the Secretary—this by authority of last year's Conference in session.

The Restitution Herald: There is now a weekly average of about thirteen hundred twenty paid subscriptions.

The editor feels the need of more prophetic articles for The Herald, and especially articles written by leaders in the church.

The Bible Training Schools: Both the nine-months' Bible Training School and the Summer School during the past Conference year have been operated successfully and without any deficit. There were ten regular students and three part-time students in the nine-months' Bible Training School. There were twenty-nine students in the Summer School, comprising the largest Summer School to date. The outlook is favorable for having at least fourteen or fifteen students to begin the next term of the regular School, starting September 16, 1941. Attention was called to the Bible Training School Prospectus which has recently been published and is now ready for distribution.

Over $1100.00 have been received in the Building Fund, and we are informed that a friend of the Bible Training School has included in his will $3500.00 for the Building Fund.

The Secretary urged continued co-operation on the part of all our brethren in all our activities, that the Lord might be exalted in that work which we are doing in His name.

Brothers Harry Goekler and Walter Wiggins moved to accept the Secretary's report. Motion carried.

Motion was made by Brother Harry Goekler and Sister Emma C. Railsback to recess to call of the Chair. Motion carried.

11:00 a.m., August 5

President L. E. Conner called to order the fifth business session, reading a lesson from Psalm 19. Brother T. A. Drinkard offered prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

The Survey Committee

The Chair appointed a Survey Committee, consisting of the following members:

T. F. Carpenter (Ky.)	Albert Siple (La.)
A. L. Corbaley (Wash.)	Ivan Hughes (Pa.)
William Huffer (Ind.)	Clarence Lake (Mich.)
Lyle Doan (Mich.)	J. S. Lyon (Ala.)

"Owe No Man Any Thing"

The Chair reported two current bills: one of about $350.00 for the expenses of remodeling the National Bible Institution offices; the other being a bill for a new supply of paper, this bill also amounting to about $350.00.

The Chair introduced the matter of reconsidering the Treasurer's report. Brothers C. E. Randall and Harry Goekler moved to accept the Treasurer's report, directing also that the Treasurer hereafter separate the various funds of the National Bible Institution and Golden Rule Home in making financial statements. General discussion followed. Those participating were: Brothers James W. McLain, C. E. Randall, Celaine R. Randall, Charles Netts, C. E. Lapp, M. W. Lyon, and F. L. Austin. The Treasurer answered various questions about the present figures and method of bookkeeping.

Golden Rule Home Discussion

Brother C. E. Randall, calling attention to the fact that there are now only four regular members of the Home, and that there is an annual loss of several hundred dollars, expressed the opinion that while the General Conference should fulfill its every obligation toward present members, the expense is too large to justify indefinite operation of the Home, and that it would be well to look forward to its eventual liquidation.

The Chair explained that what may seem to be a loss at Golden Rule Home should not be understood as meaning that the security of the Home is being jeopardized. Rather, the stated loss simply indicates that the income from Golden Rule Home properties is insufficient to maintain the operating expenses, and that, actually, the steady accumulation of properties for Golden Rule Home is building to that amount where the Home should eventually become self-supporting.

Sister Gertrude Logan recommended that Golden Rule Home be endowed with a sufficient amount of money that the interest therefrom might cover the operating expenses. Sister Charles Netts also spoke in favor of having an endowment fund for the Home, and especially to continue maintaining the Home in view of our obligation of caring for retired ministers.

The Secretary called attention to the fact that though there are at present only four members in the Home, a fifth member has already placed her property in the hands of the Institution and will a little later become an actual resident. Also, a sixth person has recently offered to give sufficient property to the Home to provide for her entrance a little later. Still further, at least two or three others are in communication with the President as to the possibility of becoming members.

Recognizing that the National Bible Institution should be doing more evangelistic work, and being fully in accord with attempting to develop the evangelistic department as specified in the Constitution, the Secretary, nevertheless, questioned the advisability of discontinuing our present maintenance of Golden Rule Home which, after so many years, is now well established and which eventually should become self-supporting.

Brother F. L. Austin and others spoke words of appreciation of the Treasurer's work during the past year.

In the foregoing discussion, the motion by Brothers C. E. Randall and Harry Goekler was kept in mind, and following the discussion, said motion was passed.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harry Goekler moved to recess until 3:15 p.m. Motion carried.

3:15 p.m., August 5

President L. E. Conner opened the sixth business meeting by reading Psalm 1. Brother Harry A. Sheets offered prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

The Chair called attention to the importance of regularly attending the business sessions, and urged speeding of the Conference business that openings might be made for one or two preaching services not previously scheduled.

Amending the Constitution

The Chair then introduced further consideration of proposed amendments to the Constitution, calling upon Brother M. W. Lyon, chairman of the committee on "Recommendations for Amendments to Working Rules," who presented and explained the following:

Recommendations for Amendments to Working Rules

VIII. (13) Representation in the General Conference shall be as follows:

A. Each church, of fifteen or more members and which has held at least six preaching services during the year, shall be entitled to one delegate for each fifty active members or fraction thereof. Only active members of their respective organizations shall be represented or serve as delegates. It is recommended that elders (other than pastors) be given first preference in selecting delegates. Alternates may also be selected, to serve if needed.

B. An active member shall be considered as one who, during the year, has attended at least four church services, or who has made either a financial or a service contribution to the church.

C. Additional delegates shall be:

The officers of the General Conference, of the National Berean Society, and of the Sunday School Union of the Church of God

Chairmen of boards and standing committees of the General Conference

One delegate from each state or district conference

All recognized ministers associated with the General Conference

D. A Credentials Committee shall be appointed by the President before the opening of each Conference, whose duty it shall be to examine and pass on the credentials of all delegates, and with authority to disqualify any delegate not presenting the proper credentials.

E. Each church shall certify to the Secretary, by the proper officer, the names of its delegate or delegates and alternates, if any, together with a list of the names and, if known, the addresses of its membership to be represented by such delegates. No church's delegate shall be recognized without such credentials. If more delegates are named than the number to which a church is entitled, they shall be given preference in the order in which they are named.

F. All other delegates shall present whatever credentials are necessary to satisfy the Credentials Committee of their right to be recognized.

G. All matters of Conference business shall be open to the discussion of all members present, but only delegates may vote or introduce motions. No delegate shall cast more than one vote on any one ballot. All delegates, for the convenience of the Chair, shall be seated in a section of the auditorium nearest the Chair which shall be reserved for the exclusive use of delegates. No vote shall be permitted any delegate not so seated.

H. No delegate shall be seated whose credentials have not been recognized by the Credentials Committee prior to the session at which he desires to vote. If any delegate is necessarily absent from any session, his alternate may serve in his place, or if there is no designated alternate, he may appoint one with the approval of the Credentials Committee.

XII. (17) A quorum for the transaction of business in General Conference convened shall consist of not less than twenty-five duly qualified delegates, but a less number may adjourn the meeting from time to time.

I. (6) From the present reading, strike out the words, "in the full enjoyment of any and all its mutual privileges and services," making it read,

"Every member of the Church of God at large who approves of the aforesaid spirit, aim, and purpose, upon request and registration shall become a member of this Conference. Those who prefer may be registered collectively through their respective churches or state and district conferences."

Respectfully submitted,

M. W. Lyon, C. L. Netts, J. M. Watkins,
Revision Committee.

Brother F. L. Austin questioned the seeming infringement of the democratic spirit of the proposed changes, this in respect especially to members coming from long distances. Brother Charles Netts replied that everybody would have a voice in the Conference, but only delegates could vote. Sister Idona Romine questioned the new system as being unfair, as many individuals like to cast their own votes. Brother Netts replied that experience has shown that individual votes are so few as to scarcely affect results, anyway. Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., speaking in favor of the proposed changes, mentioned that individuals could introduce motions through their respective delegates. Brother Harry Goekler, questioning the wisdom of the proposed changes, called attention to the fact that delegates sometimes cannot stay more than a few days. Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harvey Krogh, Jr., replied that the "alternate" provision answered that objection. Brother Celaine R. Randall, favoring the changes, suggested that delegates working under the new system would come to respect and appreciate their responsibilities as delegates and probably would be more inclined to stay through the Conference than under the present system. Brother Harry Goekler called attention to the fact that inasmuch as every minister in good standing with the General Conference would have a vote, he would not be eligible to also serve as a delegate for his respective church, and that it would be necessary for his church to send at least one more delegate, if it wished to be represented, which in some cases would involve considerable extra expense, as churches a long way from headquarters sometimes have no other representative at the General Conference than their respective ministers.

Various other questions and comments were made and considered in general discussion, Brothers M. W. Lyon and Charles Netts, members of the Revision Committee, fully explaining the different features of the proposed changes, and fully endorsing them as providing for a more fair system of voting than our present system. By general acclamation several minor alterations were made in the wording of the proposed changes, which alterations have been incorporated in the foregoing wording of the proposed amendments.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Charles Netts moved to adopt section A. The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harry Sheets moved to adopt section B. The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Leland Hanson moved to adopt section C. The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harry Goekler moved to adopt section D. The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harry Goekler moved to adopt XII (17). The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Celaine R. Randall moved to adopt I (6). The motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Charles Netts moved the adoption of "Recommendation for Amendments to Working Rules," as a whole. The motion carried.

It was moved by Brothers F. L. Austin and Charles Netts to adjourn until 11:00 a.m., Wednesday. Motion carried.

(Secretary's note: Later, by consultation, the Chair dismissed the 11:00 a.m. meeting, and called the meeting for 3:15 p.m.)

3:15 p.m., August 6

President L. E. Conner called to order the seventh business session of the Conference, asking the assembly to unite with him in the Lord's Prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

Licensing of Ministers

The Chair then suggested further consideration of the matter left over from last year in reference to the General Conference licensing and ordaining ministers. The Secretary, having previously reported the receipt of a goodly number of letters from interested parties favoring the General Conference having this right, read a letter from Brother G. H. Bradford, of the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference, which letter was also favorable, but a part of which presented a matter which the Secretary thought advisable to at least present before the Conference, and which follows:

"Our Conference at the last session passed a resolution favoring the issuing of ministerial certificates and licensing preachers by the General Conference. This we hesitated doing on account of a certain case. If a man is not preaching the doctrines of our State Conference, we do not believe he should be recognized by the General Conference."

The particular case to which Brother Bradford referred concerned a minister who some time ago resigned from the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference, but whose ministerial credentials have since been submitted to the Secretary by a church in Texas.

Brother T. A. Drinkard asked the Chair for a reading of said resignation.

Brother C. E. Randall asked that personalities be left out of the present consideration of the General Conference being authorized to license and ordain ministers, stating further that details should not be allowed to defeat the main objective. Brother C. E. Randall then moved that the General Conference be authorized to license and ordain ministers. Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., seconded the motion.

Brother T. A. Drinkard denied his having any personal grievance against the minister who had resigned from the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference, but again asked the Chair that the resignation be read and that this local matter, which seemed to Brother Drinkard to be of vital importance in relation to the motion, be given further consideration. The Chair ruled that Brother Drinkard's request was out of order at the present time, but stated that such details should be properly considered in their time and place.

Brother Harry A. Sheets inquired as to qualifications of those who might wish to be licensed or ordained by the General Conference. The Chair ruled that this, too, was really out of order at present, but would be given due consideration in its time and place, mention being made that the Bible qualifications of 1 Timothy 3 and Titus 1 should apply in every request for license or ordination.

Brother C. E. Randall and the Secretary explained that the true purpose of the motion was not to infringe upon the rights of any other organizations (either local church or state conferences) to license and ordain, but that the motion, if passed, would simply grant to the General Conference that right which is now exercised by the various churches and conferences.

Brother Leland Hanson, favoring the motion, stated that he thought it not only well that the General Conference should be given similar right in this matter to that now exercised by churches and conferences, but that it should do all the licensing and ordaining.

Brother F. L. Austin asked for a reading of the motion. It was again read, and the vote was taken. The motion carried.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Harry Goekler moved to defer further consideration of the foregoing question until 3:15 Thursday. The motion carried.

"Look on the Fields"

Brother M. W. Lyon inquired as to what the Executive Board had done during the year as to field work. The Chair asked the Secretary to answer the question. The Secretary explained that there had been some little advertising at the beginning of the Conference year, inviting calls for advertised fieldmen, and that no calls had been received. The Secretary further explained that the receipts for said work were very limited, that the Board of Evangelism of the Ministerial Association was still doing some of this type of work, that Brothers C. E. Lapp and James W. McLain had been given official right to represent the General Conference in their various evangelistic trips, that both had done a limited amount of this work, and that remuneration was offered them for such limited services as they might be able to conveniently arrange in connection with their scheduled work.

Luke 14:28-30

The Chair further reported that Brother F. L. Austin had been considered as a fieldman, but that there had not been sufficient amount of money on hand to justify any negotiations with him—stating further that the General Conference most too readily votes responsibilities upon the Executive Board without providing for the financial backing necessary to fulfill those responsibilities. As an illustration, he called attention to the decision at last year's General Conference to remodel our National Bible Institution offices so as to provide a private office for the Secretary, stating that this remodeling had been done at an expenditure of about $350.00, with no provision or seeming responsibility on the part of the Conference in session of paying the costs.

Textbooks From Senior Ministers

Brother C. E. Randall, choosing to introduce a different subject, read from the Declaration of Understanding certain sections which showed that one of the original intents of the General Conference had been to disseminate literature. As a spokesman for the Ministerial Association, he urged that the Executive Board proceed to solicit and publish some works by our senior ministers. He called attention to various books written by our ministers of more than a generation ago—this in contrast to the past generation wherein practically nothing of permanent form has been published by our ministry.

The Secretary spoke in favor of Brother Randall's recommendations, calling attention to the fact that the Bible Training School could well use textbooks on certain subjects which might be better prepared by our ministry than by any other writers.

Brother C. E. Randall and the Secretary moved that a Board of Publication be authorized to immediately secure manuscripts from our elder ministers for publication, and that such other literature as is urgently needed be solicited and published as soon as possible. The motion carried.

Brothers James W. McLain, C. E. Randall, M. W. Lyon, and others called attention to the fact that the foregoing motion and certain wording of the Constitution indicated a definite need of having a Board of Publication.

Brothers F. L. Austin and Leland Hanson moved to instruct the Executive Board of the General Conference to return to the original purposes of the Conference as specified in the Constitution—particularly Article 2, Section 3, providing for various departments, especially as regards Boards of Evangelization and Publication. The motion carried.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Charles Netts moved to recess until 3:15 p.m., Thursday. The motion carried.

3:15 p.m., August 7

President L. E. Conner called to order the eighth business session of the Conference, calling upon Brother F. L. Austin to offer prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

The Chair called for further consideration of the question concerning licensing and ordination of ministers by the General Conference.

Creating a Board of Ordination

Brothers C. E. Randall and Harry Goekler moved that the General Conference have an Ordination Board of three men of middle or aged life, having qualifications of elders as given in 1 Timothy 3 and Titus 1. Upon question by the Chair, Brother Randall explained that it was not the intent that an Ordination Board would be arbitrary in expecting candidates for the ministry to comply with definite and defined rules as to the manner of ordination or consecration, but that there is sufficient need for such a Board as to justify itself—it being fully understood that ministers not desiring ordination, but who from their services are recognized as ministers in good standing, would continue in that good standing irrespective of any procedure in ordination of those ministers who may desire ordination. Further, candidates for the ministry who might not care to be ordained would not be obliged to receive ordination. The motion carried.

The Secretary and Brother M. W. Lyon moved that the Executive Board elect the Ordination Board, said Board to consist of three members (one member to be this year elected for one year, one member elected for two years, and one member for three years; and each year succeeding, one member to be elected for three years). Further, and as part of this motion, recommendation was made that the following men be elected as the first members of this Ordination Board: James A. Patrick, F. L. Austin, and C. E. Randall; the order of names listed having no significance as to length of office—this matter to be decided by the Executive Board. The motion carried.

School Will Begin September 16, 1941

By suggestion of Brothers C. E. Randall and Leland Hanson, members of the Board of Religious Education, the Secretary, as chairman of said Board, was asked to make report of a recent meeting of this Department. The Chair granted the request, and the Secretary made such report, a summary of which follows:

(1) Some of the courses of study under consideration for the coming School year are: History of the Bible, Old Testament Types, Music, The Pastor—His Office and Work, The Science of Bible Research, Prophecies of the Second Coming, Comparative Religion, The Sunday School and Other Auxiliaries of the Church of God, The Psychology of Religion, Religious Art, and Advanced Church History.

(2) Sister Edna Brewer has been re-employed as matron of the Students' Home.

(3) The students will this year have their meals at the Students' Home, but separate rooming quarters will be provided for the young women.

(4) There will be a School recess of four or five days during the Ministerial Conference being planned by the Ministerial Association.

(5) As heretofore, plans will be made for an evangelistic trip each semester.

(6) A special lecture course of probably one week's duration will be given each semester by a leading minister of the denomination.

(7) The cost per student (for board, room, and tuition) will be $270.00.

(8) There will be an Easter recess.

(9) The Board of Religious Education recommends that contributions sent to the Bible Training School to help pay students' expenses should be used as loans to the students, rather than outright gifts, said loans to be made without interest, and not to become due until two years following the date the student receiving such a loan graduated from the School or discontinued his studies.

The Secretary asked for co-operation of the brethren in distributing the Prospectus and Catalogue advertising the Bible Training School, and asked the brethren to report the names and addresses of prospective students.

Brother C. E. Randall spoke of two other matters that had been considered by the Board of Religious Education: namely, 1) the Degree of Bachelor of Theology will be bestowed upon students graduating from our School, and 2) the Board wishes a more suitable name for the School than it has at present, and Brother Randall moved that the name Maranatha College be adopted. Brother John Eagleston seconded the motion. Discussion followed in which the meaning of "Maranatha" was explained as being, "The Lord Cometh"—which was considered very appropriate for our Bible School.

Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., and the Secretary moved to amend the motion to read Maranatha College of the Church of God. There was considerable discussion and Brother M. W. Lyon and Leland Hanson questioned the advisability of too quickly selecting a name. Following further discussion, Brothers Leland Hanson and James W. McLain moved to table the matter until the business meeting at 3:15 p.m., Friday.

The Secretary and Brother Leland Hanson moved: "Considering the lengthy, faithful, and acceptable service of our Business Manager, that Brother and Sister L. E. Conner be granted life membership in Golden Rule Home." The motion was quite generally discussed, after which motion was made by Brother F. L. Austin and the Secretary to table this question until 3:15 p.m., Friday.

You Will Want a Church Directory

Statistician M. W. Lyon presented a verbal report of his work during the past year, and informed that all his figures would soon appear in our first Church Directory which will soon be ready for sale at reasonable cost.

Brothers Leland Hanson and Alan McLain moved to accept the Statistician's report—gratefully acknowledging his faithful and painstaking work—and that Bro. Lyon continue his work for the ensuing year. The motion carried.

Brother C. E. Lapp and Sister Ruth Hoskins moved to adjourn. The motion carried.

3:15 p.m., August 8

President L. E. Conner called to order the ninth business session of the Conference, the congregation uniting with him in the Lord's Prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the preceding meeting, and they were approved as read.

The Secretary reported that the Executive Board had elected officers to the following Department Boards:

(1) The Board of Evangelism

James W. McLain, chairman—three years

Harvey Krogh, Jr.—two years

C. E. Lapp—one year

(2) The Board of Publication

C. E. Randall, chairman—three years

M. W. Lyon—two years

Harry A. Sheets—one year

(3) The Board of Ordination

F. L. Austin, chairman—three years

James A. Patrick—two years

C. E. Randall—one year

(4) The Board of Religious Education

Sydney E. Magaw—three years

Naming Our Future College

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Harry Goekler moved to take from the table the question of re-naming the Bible Training School. The motion carried. The Secretary read the motion and its amendment which were carried over from the preceding meeting. There was general discussion, Brothers Harvey Krogh, Jr., M. W. Lyon, C. E. Randall, T. A. Drinkard, and Sister G. H. Loudenslager participating. Following the discussion, said motion and its amendment were withdrawn.

Brother Leland Hanson and the Secretary moved that irrespective of the name finally chosen, the School should be called a college. The motion lost.

The Secretary and Brother George Siple moved to leave further consideration and decision of the naming question in care of the Board of Religious Education. The motion carried.

Gratitude

Brothers Harry Goekler and George Siple moved to take from the table the motion concerning granting membership in Golden Rule Home to Brother and Sister L. E. Conner. The motion carried.

The Secretary explained that several delegates who had been present at the Conference, but were returned to their homes, had favored the motion as presented by the Secretary, but that he had not carefully planned the wording of the motion—having really expected some other person to present the question. Therefore, with the consent of his second, the Secretary withdrew the former motion and presented a new motion as follows:

"Considering the lengthy, faithful, and acceptable service of our present business manager, the Secretary moves that Brother and Sister L. E. Conner be granted life membership (including board and room only) in Golden Rule Home." Brother Leland Hanson seconded the motion. The motion carried.

The Chair, on behalf of himself and Sister Conner, expressed words of appreciation for this kindness and for the loyal support and co-operation of the brethren during all his years of service.

Survey Committee's Report

The Secretary read the report of the Survey Committee, as follows:

The Survey Committee respectfully submits to the Conference its opinion regarding the properties of the Golden Rule Home.

Having visited the various pieces of real estate in Oregon, Dixon, and environs, we feel certain that the valuation placed upon them in the financial report of the Conference officers is moderate, and that these properties are being administered in an efficient and conservative manner.

We believe the prospects of the Home are safeguarded by the methods of administration now in control, and that the progress made in this one institution in its short lifetime, and the benefits it has effected, are truly remarkable.

We believe any suggestions we could make have been already provided for by the present administration.

J. E. Hughes	J. S. Lyon
A. L. Corbaley	Albert Siple
William M. Huffer	T. F. Carpenter
Clarence Lake	Frank Laning.

The Chair approved the report, and discharged the Committee.

The Chair expressed appreciation for the work of the Credentials Committee and the Constitution Revision Committee, discharging the same.

Brother Celaine R. Randall recommended that plans should be made whereby the more important questions to be considered at General Conferences hereafter be presented early, that sufficient time might be given for thorough consideration.

Brother Leland Hanson and Sister Idona Romine moved to adjourn until 3:15 p.m., Saturday. The motion carried.

3:15 p.m., August 9

Vice President Harry Sheets called to order the closing session of the Conference, which was called only for the reading and passing of the minutes of the previous meeting. Said minutes were read by the Secretary, corrected, and approved.

Brothers Harry Goekler and F. L. Austin moved to adjourn. Motion carried.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secretary.

WHEN EVERYBODY WORKS

"Go to the ant," said Solomon, "consider her ways, and be wise: which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest" (Prov. 6:6-8).

Now, if everybody in the Church of God would really get to work, there would be nothing too big to move—said Paul: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). An individual Christian is stronger than any other individual, for Jesus is his Partner. Consider, then, the power and the breadth of success that would prevail if our every member of the Church of God should, like the ant, go to work with all his might, and do so without a guide, overseer, or ruler telling him to do so. Christ is Captain enough. He commands, and who dares hesitate? Organized religion is invariably formal, cold, slow, and not infrequently produces scarcely enough fruitage to keep its own organization from starving. The great successes in Christian fields have come from men who, moved by the spirit of the Great Sacrifice, lost themselves in service that Christ might gain. Therein, too, they prepared for their own harvest!

As never before, the Church of God is looking and moving forward. What will we not do when everybody works?

COMING EVENTS IN THE LIGHT OF PROPHECY

up at one time, they always turn about and do just what the Word of God says they will do.

Let us next consider, "Gomer, and all his bands" (v. 6). Gomer is conceded to refer to Germany. Thus, Gomer has already collected "his bands"—the countries he has overthrown. "Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands" (v. 6) probably refers to the "north quarters" of the Scandinavian countries.

Germany and Russia had a nonaggression pact signed some time ago, meaning they were pledged not to attack each other. Germany's invasion of Russia now shows how little dependence can be put in Hitler's word—or in any of the rest of them, for that matter. In Daniel 12:10 we read, "None of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand." Also, in Isaiah 8:9, 10, we read: "Associate yourselves, O ye people, and ye shall be broken in pieces; and give ear, all ye of far countries: gird yourselves, and ye shall be broken in pieces. Take counsel together, and it shall come to naught; speak the word, and it shall not stand." I recently heard over the radio that Germany and Russia were like two men sleeping peacefully together in one bed. Suddenly, they threw off the covers and grabbed each other by the throat.

The Meeting Was Called to Order

On August 4, 1941, the representatives of the various Berean societies throughout the country met at Oregon, Illinois, to pass resolutions, elect officers, and appoint committees. The official board was rather thoroughly overhauled, and reports which were presented were very encouraging.

Our treasurer reported $47.19 on hand August 1, 1940, receipts of $180.29, expenditures of $51.18, and $176.45 on hand August 1, 1941. The receipts included $68.28 which was received at the National Bible Institution for the sale of Berean literature.

Mrs. Elmo Gaspar, chairman of the Junior Social Correspondence Committee, reported a total of 865 letters written by the seventeen members. Emily Fyfe of Jericho Springs, Missouri, was star correspondent with a total of 171 letters written. She also sent out 219 tracts out of a total of 749 distributed by the Committee.

Muriel Randall, editor of the Echo, reported the publishing of four issues during the year, and explained this small number by stating that very little material had been received from the individual societies, and the wide separation of the members of the staff had made the publishing quite difficult.

The writer reported receipt of material from thirty-one members, with approximately four hundred thousand words printed on the Berean Page during the year. This made quite a bit of work for the thirty-one people to do.

As a result of the various difficulties of the editors, it was decided to combine the efforts of our writers into The Restitution Herald with the addition of a column of news from the various societies appearing twice monthly on the church pages.

Orally, Mrs. Verna C. Thayer reported on the work of the Junior Home Study Committee. She mailed out 468 lesson books and attempted to organize the work in the various states by placing one person in each state in charge of the work in that district. She reported that to date only Virginia, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Missouri have been so organized. She will present a more complete picture of the work of her committee in the near future.

The officers chosen for the coming year were as follows:

president, Vivian Kirkpatrick, Oregon, Illinois; first vice president, Francis Burnett, Oregon, Illinois; second vice president, Mrs. Ellsworth (June) Routson, Oregon, Illinois; secretary, Zelda Cooper, Fredericktown, Missouri; and treasurer, Virginia Smith, London, Arkansas.

Brother C. E. Randall had reported earlier in the meeting on the discussion regarding Berean work which was carried on at the Ministerial Conference earlier in the day. He stated that the older people had been left out of the work in many societies; so, to correct this situation in the National Society, M. W. Lyon, Mrs. F. L. Austin, and C. E. Randall were elected honorary members of the National Berean Board in a consulting capacity to unify the efforts of the younger and older members.

During its meetings the new National Berean Board appointed the following committee chairmen: publishing committee—James M. Watkins, Eldorado, Illinois; editors of the Berean Page—the writer, 205 N. Hinkley, Rockford, Illinois, and Muriel Randall, Oregon, Illinois; Junior Home Study Committee—Mrs. Verna C. Thayer, Rt. 2, Rockford, Illinois; Junior Social Correspondence Committee—Lorna Macy, Troy, Ohio; and Senior Social Correspondence Committee—Mrs. Rhoda Hanson, Caledonia, Michigan. The chairmen of these various committees were instructed to choose their own assistants to enable them to carry out the work planned for the coming year.

The publishing committee was authorized to publish a new type of Berean study material planned to be issued in sections, each section covering a period of perhaps six months and the entire series to extend over a period of several years. Each subject treated is to be covered thoroughly in a connected series of lessons, and periodic examinations are planned.

The Publishing Committee was also authorized to publish a mimeographed picture supplement to be included with each copy of "The Children's Bible Story and Study Book."

To Winifred Reynolds was appointed the task of providing each state conference with samples of National Berean Society publications. The first week of October was designated as self-denial week, one half of the receipts of this effort to be sent to the National Berean Society and one half to be retained in the local treasury.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

As fifty-one issues of The Herald comprise a year's subscription, there will be no Herald published next week. After the staff has its "breathing spell," it will be back rested and strong September 2.

Children: Please be patient with us. We omitted your page this week in order to publish the complete report of the recent General Conference. We hope you will be doubly hungry for your page next issue, dated September 2. . . . How many of you heard how Willie used "deduct," "defeat," "defense," and "detail" in one sentence? He said, "Defeat of deduct went over defense before detail."

"Because of failing sight, I am able to read only large print. I take great delight, however, in repeating the Psalms that I committed to memory several years ago. I am now eighty-six years of age."—Sarah E. Smith, Delake, Ore.

"The strenuous times in which we are living make me want my very own copy of The Restitution Herald in my post office box each week, so as to help me keep up with the development of fulfilling prophecy. World events are moving forward with rapid speed."—Ethel M. DePue, Clarksville, Iowa.

Sr. Nancy Penrod, recently a patient in an Indianapolis hospital, may now be addressed at Bloomington, Ind., in care of B. Newton, Rt. 5. Sr. Penrod was baptized by Bro. James A. Patrick more than twenty years ago. The past four years she has served as a trained nurse in the Indiana State Sanitorium at Rockville.

Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick will preach for the Pennellwood Church of God the Sundays of August 17 and 24.

"I pray there was a wonderful work accomplished at General Conference."—Mrs. Elsie Galbraith, Vancouver, Wash.

"I long to see more young people start out in the Lord's work. We need ministers who will stand for the truth. I love the Church of God, and pray that God will bless all the teachers and others interested in the Bible Training School."—Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle, Cheyenne, Wyo.

No Herald next week. The next issue will be dated September 2.

"When I saw 'Uncle' John Foore's name in The Restitution Herald, it brought back old times to my memory. He baptized my sister and me in the fall of 1881. The baptismal services were conducted at Mine Creek near Pleasanton, Kans. I am trying to live true to the gospel, though I am the only one in this community of the true faith."—Mrs. Charles A. Harris, N. Pope St., DuQuoin, Ill.

"If people turned out to church as they do for Ringling Brothers' Circus, church work would be easy—or would it?"—Evan Knodle, Oregon, Ill.

Thank you, Frederick: Both the main office and the editor's office in the National Bible Institution building are now streamlined with fluorescent lights, gifts from Bro. Frederick Claussen, Oregon, Ill. We're modern now!

When you read these lines, the editor and most of his family will be in attendance at the Iowa State Conference—at Waterloo.

Did you order your Prospectus of the Bible Training School? It's waiting for your order. The price is ten cents, generally, but free to prospective students.

No Herald next week. The next issue will be dated September 2.

"I thank God for the good articles that the students of the Summer Bible Training School have been writing. They truly bear witness to the doctrine of life only through Christ."—Mrs. H. H. Kent, 1132 Euclid Ave., Pueblo, Colo.

Sr. F. M. Cawby, Masonic Home, Franklin, Ind., asks an interest in the prayers of our church people.

Thank you! "Enclosed you will find $50.00 to add to the Building Fund of the Bible Training School."—Mrs. Mabel Burk, 208 E. 31st St., Tacoma, Wash.

Bro. Gail Grimsley is now in camp at Cheyenne, Wyo.

Bro. and Sr. T. A. Drinkard, Handley, Tex., reporting that their son Curtis has been called into training in the Coast Guard Service, add: "May the Lord soon come and cancel the preparation for war that can never bring to us a system of righteousness."

NATIONAL BEREAN COLUMN

By Muriel Randall

I am the General Conference of 1941. I am twenty-one years of age, friendly, attractive, and always very busy. July 28, blue, red, green, black, gray, and tan cars drove up in front of the Oregon, Ill. Church. Big and little people, men and women proceeded out of these cars with suitcases packed for a one- or two-weeks' visit.

Everybody was busy greeting old friends and meeting new ones. These people remarked about the beautiful scenery around Oregon and the picturesque setting for the church.

One of the most popular places on the grounds that night was the shower. How refreshed people felt after a good cleanup, and how much more refreshed they felt after two intensive weeks of mental and spiritual refreshment! Happiness and kindness were two of the most evident characteristics during my life.

Lights went out after all were settled for the night and all was quiet—but not for long. The morning call came at six o'clock, and everybody, yea, every tangible object came to life. For many, the day ahead was an entirely new experience, but all were anticipating a full and interesting day. Each day was planned much like the preceding, yet each day was different because new faces appeared and more familiar faces left.

My co-workers included teachers, preachers, officers, cooks, a matron, faithful janitors, and many willing friends. Each in his place made daily preparation for my success.

My visitors were privileged to take part in vital discussions, song services, to hear talented speakers and good music. People frequently left the grounds to visit or picnic at the Pines, Castle Rock, Black Hawk, and other well-known points of interest, but they always returned to the little stone church.

I saw and heard joyous and heart-rending experiences; hearty meetings and tearful goodbyes; laughter and serious discussions; truths of the Bible explained simply and elaborately; young and old thoroughly enjoying their association with those of "like precious faith"; and, in short, I saw the backbone members of the Church of God living together and loving it.

Each morning a devotional period began the day of activity. There it was that the people paused for a moment of prayer and praise. No wonder my friends had so much vitality for the day, for they got their energy from the great Power House!

As the day began in worship, so the day ended with a worship service. A preaching service was held each evening, and very often some of my visitors learned to know Jesus as their personal Saviour.

Fellowship of the "bestest" variety was the end of a perfect day. Everyone spoke to everyone else—the young man spoke to the young lady and they were "twining" it for the evening. And what can I do when Bro. James Watkins, the Berean Day speaker, said we needed more romance? Maybe he meant love—for God and His Son.

I said goodbye to my friends, Sunday, August 10, and now I am looking forward to next year. Won't you come to see me next year? Already I am anticipating your visit. Many pictures were taken of me, so for further references ask to see me. Far be it from me to brag, but—I was "tops."

Evan Knodle was appointed chairman of a committee to organize a file to contain personal statistics of each Berean member throughout the country. This promises to be quite a job, but complete co-operation by each society and isolated member will enable him to assemble a file that will provide officers and committees with valuable and necessary information. More later!

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 2, 1941

NUMBER 47

The above picture of ministers in attendance at the recent General Conference of the Church of God, Oregon, Illinois, though not including all the ministers present, presents a good representative number of the Church of God shepherds who are faithfully laboring until the "chief Shepherd shall appear," when they shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (1 Peter 5:4). Until then, let us "fight the good fight of faith" (1 Tim. 6:12).

Now, as a new Conference year begins, may one and all co-operate in a renewed determination to "occupy" until Jesus comes. "It is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed (first believed). The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day . . . not in strife and envying" (Rom. 13:11-13).

A College for Our Boys and Girls

Parents whose children are nearing the age when they will be ready for college are always concerned about making a wise choice among the many institutions of higher learning that are already available. Many of America's colleges were founded as religious seminaries, but not a few of these schools are today undermining the rock foundation upon which they were built. This is not surprising. The various denominations represented by these schools are far less zealous for Bible truth than in the early days of American life. How, then, should these schools be challenged to the plumb line of God's Word? The churches which support the schools are, themselves, guilty of being more interested in sociology, ethics, and politics, than in faith, repentance, and baptism.

The editor's own boys and girls will soon be ready for college. Where may they go to receive both a higher education and the necessary Scriptural education to properly qualify them as builders in the Church of God? Their parents prefer, and they may prefer, that they have the privilege of attending a college founded and operated by the Church of God. We are not alone in this preference. There are many homes in the Church of God where young men and young women will soon be looking for a college, and where a need will be felt for a college founded and operated by those strong in "the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." The Church of God can have its own college—"All things are possible with God"—and, in fact, has already taken the first several steps forward in that right direction.

Having learned to walk, let us refuse any longer to crawl. Let us plan a college for our boys and girls.

A Bigger and Better Faculty

According to present plans, there will this year be five instructors in the Bible Training School—true, only three teachers will be serving the first semester, and probably only four the second semester, but each of the five instructors will have contributed of his talents and influence before the term is completed. The members of this bigger and better faculty, as presented from left to right on this page, are: Elder L. E. Conner, Sister Alice Carpenter, Elder Vivian Kirkpatrick, Sister Leila Mae Doeden, and the writer. As the School continues to grow, we trust to present an ever-growing corps of instructors.

The outlook is favorable for growth this year in our student body. New students are coming from Washington, Ohio, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan, and possibly from other states. Further, we have been informed of others who are already planning to enroll one year hence.

Pray that God will continue to direct and bless this work, and, if we ever keep God and His Son foremost in all our plans, we may be sure God will bless this work. "Where there is no vision the people perish," so do not become frightened by seeing a little of it. "Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee. Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from evil" (Prov. 4:25-27). Though none can fully know the future, we hope that in a few years, if the Lord tarries, one might look backward to the pictures on this page, and say: "See, that was the faculty of Maranatha College of the Church of God in 1941." (Or, maybe you have a better name? Send us your suggestions.)

Shall We Get Rid of the Jews?

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THERE are many people who want to get rid of the Jews. The Jews are a nation without a country, yet they have a good share of the wealth of the world. Jacob said to his son Judah, who was father of the Jews, "Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies," but some people have found this to mean: "in the neck of thine enemies' purse." One reason for Hitler's hating the Jews is that they came to Germany and bought the good places of business when the German people were financially down and out. It is said that the Jews are the international bankers whose loyalty to our nation is secondary. They are accused of promoting wars in order to finance both sides.

Hitler has gotten rid of many of the Jews by force. Some people in this country would like to get rid of them the same way, if they could not do it in a better way.

The Church of God should not hate the Jews. Our Lord was a Jew. David the Psalmist was a Jew. Many of God's faithful people were Jews—including the Twelve Apostles and most of the writers of the New Testament. Jews were the first Christian martyrs. Peter, a Jew, spoke these words: "We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him" (Acts 5:29-32).

Before the days of printing the Jews copied with great pains the Scriptures and accurately preserved them. If they made so little as one mistake, they copied whole scrolls over, and counted every word to insure accuracy. This suggests only a part of our debt to the Jews. Paul said: "If some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee" (Rom. 11:17, 18). Romans 15:27 tells us that we who were Gentiles have been made partakers of the Jews' spiritual things.

If the Jews have done so much for us, why do we want to get rid of them today? Well, it is for this reason, partly: the Jews as a whole are not the benefit to mankind that they were at one time. Therefore, some would like to get rid of them. Not only does the Bible not give any assurance that man can do away with all the Jews, but Christians are commanded to take care of as many of them as we can.

Jesus said, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations" (Matt. 28:19). The Jews comprise one of the nations, though they have been scattered over all the earth. If you and I can make disciples of the Jews, they will be no more Jews, because Paul said: "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:27, 28). It is evident that all will not accept Christ in this age. The Father is calling out a people for His Name. "Many are called, but few are chosen." That, however, does not excuse us from preaching to all nations—even to the Jews.

JEWISH PEACE AND POPULARITY

Foreseeing that God will yet bless the Jews, Zechariah prophesied:

"As ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing: fear not, but let your hands be strong. . . . Again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah: fear ye not" (8:13-15).

Various fasts "shall be to the house of Judah joy and gladness, and cheerful feasts. . . . Many people and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you" (vv. 19-23).

The Bible Research Society of Los Angeles, California, has started to evangelize the Jewish people. The Church of God ought to be interested in all nations. If we had just one missionary to come back from his field and tell us of the gospel still being the power of God unto salvation, and of the hardships that are not to be compared to the glory that shall be revealed, we would feel obligated to help preach the gospel in more places than in our own little communities.

Will you help to convert the Jews, and Gentiles, too—helping to make them disciples of Christ? That is the only Scriptural way to get rid of the Jews.

That the Apostle Paul believed in trying to convert Jews as well as Gentiles is evident from his words: "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved" (Rom. 10:1), "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16), and "Unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews" (1 Cor. 9:20).

World Confusion

By Howard H. Hawkins

DURING these "last days," confusion seems to be more pronounced than it has ever been in the past, and this can apply to individuals, groups of peoples, or nations.

Our mind goes back to the time when the population grew, and the people planned to build a city and a tower "whose top may reach unto heaven," and this was to be done to their own praise and glory, a monument to the power of man as distinct from the power of God. Did God approve of this? Evidently not, for He "confounded their language," so they could not understand each other, which, of course, put a stop to the work; and he "scattered them abroad . . . upon the face of all the earth." (Gen. 11:1-9.)

Mankind of every tongue and land over all the earth seems to be drifting farther away from God. One reason is given in a sad picture of a recent Gallup poll taken in 7,600 middleclass homes, which revealed the startling fact that forty per cent of these homes did not own a Bible, and another survey showed that nearly seventy per cent of our youth are growing from infancy to maturity without any systematic instruction and training in either morals or religion.

When spiritual things leave the home, church, and land, other things creep in to take their place. People in general have gotten away from the art of entertainment and amusement, and have resorted to pleasure madness in drinking, dancing, card playing, and other questionable pastimes. We sometimes hear of dancing and card playing in church parlors, and what a sad picture of affairs! Out of the atmosphere of drinking comes disillusionment, marital infidelity, divorces, heartbroken children, bankruptcies, suicides, and other disasters. "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them! And the harp, and the viol, the tabret, and pipe, and wine, are in their feasts: but they regard not the work of the Lord, neither consider the operation of his hands" (Isa. 5:11, 12).

Aside from conditions in this country, we need only to look across to Europe and other parts of the world to see millions of men engaged in warfare, destroying homes and cities of which the like was never known, affecting women and children, the aged and infirm, rich and poor, alike. Thousands of children have been separated from their parents as bombs fell about them, and in many cases probably they will never see one another again. Fruitful fields of grain are being destroyed, and desolation reigns supreme. Is it any wonder that people are in bewilderment and confusion, when they gaze upon the death that is raining down upon them from the heavens?

The chapters of Matthew 24 and Luke 21 give us a prophecy of the time in which we are now living—when "nation shall rise against nation . . . and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and . . . all these are the beginning of sorrows." Along with these conditions comes "Jacob's trouble" (Jer. 30:7) when the Jews are to undergo great trials and tribulations as they are now experiencing.

Will man be able to settle and solve the conditions as now existing? Many of us recall the dedication of the Peace Palace at The Hague which was built through the generosity of Andrew Carnegie, and all world problems were to be settled there—yet one of the last war's greatest battles was fought only a few miles from this building.

Should there be a lull or short peace following this present war, there will be want, suffering, and misery following in its wake. Many will become atheists and anarchists—and what have you?—and these will desire to become a law unto themselves. "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the ways thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 14:12).

Is the wickedness of this earth to continue forever? We would say emphatically, "NO!" "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44).

The present world chaos is a sign of the times that precede Christ's second coming. The world needs a Master Mind, a powerful and just Ruler possessing wisdom to solve its great problems for the good of man and to the glory of God, and possessing the right to govern and the strength to overthrow the oppressor. The world needs such a One now, as it never did before.

Spiritual thinking people of many years ago were looking for the return of the Lord. We might refer to an extract from the Baptists' Confession of Faith presented to Charles II, March, 1660. "We believe that the same Lord Jesus . . . which was taken from His disciples and carried up into heaven shall so come in like manner as He was seen going into heaven . . . and we shall reign with Him on the earth."

It may be of interest to note that the American Society for Amelioration of the Jews, held in New York, May 7, 1848, passed the following resolution: "Resolved: that the signs of the times should arouse all who love the Lord Jesus Christ and who wait for His salvation to renewed earnestness and enlarged effort in this holy enterprise."

If faithful men in days gone by were alarmed by the signs at that time, how much more should we be enthused and encouraged as we see prophecy unfolding before our very eyes! Today we see so-called Christian nations battling to death, and some may ask, Is Christianity on trial? The most enlightened, the most civilized nations, are bent on annihilating one another. Some may wonder whether God has forsaken the world, or if there is still a Supreme Being to whom they may turn for comfort and consolation during these perilous times.

The Challenge of the Day

By Richard Smith

---

"We both labour and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that believe" (1 Timothy 4:10).

HISTORY has a tendency of repeating itself, sometimes to the benefit of society, but more often to the detriment of it. In the cycle of the world's history there have been periods of warfare followed by longer periods of peace—famines followed by periods of plenty. Then, we read that in a few centuries this procedure has been repeated. This is not only true of the history of the nations of the world, but in the history of a distinct people of the Bible. Reference is not made to any one nation or people, but to the holy ones of many nations or those set apart from the world.

From the beginning, God has preserved a remnant through which His name shall be glorified. This remnant—at one time the nation of Israel through whom all nations of the earth are to be blessed—has sometimes been disobedient. Either preceding or following any catastrophe there has always been a period of apostasy. Only during the periods of trouble have men seriously thought of God.

The examples of Israel and Judah are outstanding, for the prophets of the Old Testament condemned their idolatry. They pronounced the judgments of the Lord on them for a long period of time before Israel fell in 722 B.C., never to return from her idolatry in spite of the teachings and pleadings of the Prophet Jeremiah.

When Judah was delivered by Cyrus from her captivity in the land of Babylon, there was, for a time, a period of praising the Lord, and it seemed that Judah had repented. Soon after the people had returned, however, they were again more concerned about filling their own "bags with holes" than of building the Lord's house. It was necessary for the Lord to stir up the spirit of Zerubbabel that the house of the Lord might be built. A consecrated leader was needed to do the work of the Lord.

As leaders arise in days of national strife, so do great leaders arise from persecution and turmoil among those who profess to be Christian today. The fathers of the Christian church came to the front largely because of the mistreatment of their associates of that day. It is sometimes true that if we would cause a person to believe more implicitly in his religion, we should try to take it away from him. The apostles laid down their lives for the gospel of Jesus Christ.

As history tends to repeat itself, and as the church is being persecuted more each day, we cannot help but feel that great leaders will arise from this chaotic condition to meet the challenge and to champion the cause of Christianity.

Perhaps this period of persecution in foreign lands, together with this war of hate, will end before the coming of the Lord. Men are now turning to God. Societies are now organizing for a "Back-to-God Movement." Men are now fearful, and have no other way to turn. However, with the coming of an era of peace, men will again turn to their wicked and sinful ways. They will forget, as did the children of Judah, that there was a time when they were not so blessed. They will forget the building of the Lord's present temple, the church of the living God. Again, the Lord will stir up a Zerubbabel or a John the Baptist that the work might be finished.

The challenge is to each one who today claims the name "Christian." Now is the time to lay the foundation for the work of the future. The materials are easily accessible now. Soon it may be too late. We do not buy insurance on the house that has already burned to the ground!

Put your trust in the Lord and say, "Here am I, send me!"

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

A Serial—Part Two

By A. L. Corbaley

The sure word of prophecy foretells that a great confederacy of nations will swoop down upon Palestine when the Israelites have returned to their land. (Ezek. 38:1-12, 16.) The Turks held Palestine until General (now Lord) Allenby drove them out. Then the League of Nations gave England a mandate over that country for twenty-five years—commencing in 1922 and to end in 1947. True, England and Russia are now fighting against Germany, but when Russia attacks Palestine it is almost certain that England and her allies will "kick the covers off" and resist Russia and her huge army.

Ezekiel prophesied of Gog and other devastating powers, saying: "Thou shalt ascend and come like a storm, thou shalt be like a cloud (many airplanes) to cover the land, thou, and all thy bands, and many people with thee. Thus saith the Lord God; It shall also come to pass, that at the same time shall things come into thy mind, and thou shalt think an evil thought; and thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwallled villages; I will go to them that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and, having neither bars nor gates" (Ezek. 38:9-11). There are now in the land of Palestine more than three hundred unwallled villages, some of which are large cities. Tel Aviv, the largest of them, has a population of more than two hundred thousand. It is an all-Jewish city, where the Hebrew language is the language of its citizens. In Jerusalem there are more than one hundred thousand Jews, and they are dwelling safely because the Arab riots, which were caused by foreign propaganda, have ceased. The Arabs and Jews are now dwelling in harmony.

Continuing, we read, "To take a spoil, and to take a prey; to turn thine hand upon the desolate places that are now inhabited, and upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the midst of the land. Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish (England), with all the young lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take a spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to take a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take a great spoil?" (vv. 12, 13.) The "young lions thereof" would be her colonies, as: Australia, New Zealand, India, Canada, and all the rest of them—possibly including the United States which was once a young lion, but in 1776 separated from the mother country.

The Spoils

As the land of Palestine is comparatively a very small country, the question naturally arises, What wealth is there in that small country that would cause a great army to invade it? Following are some figures given by the "New Palestine" in answer to that question. "Last year the land produced three hundred thirty-four thousand tons of threshed grain—corn, barley, wheat, and rye. In addition to this, the people would have exported forty million crates of oranges, and other citrus fruits, if there had been no war to prevent the shipments. The Dead Sea has long been considered a valueless expanse of salt water. Scientists, however, have discovered that it contains, in solution, all the salts and bromides which are found anywhere in the earth.

A company has been formed, led by British and Jewish engineers, to remove these valuable products from the Sea. Men have dug shallow vats covering more than one thousand acres of land. The Sea water is run into these vats. In a short time the water evaporates, leaving a heavy deposit of the precious product. This is taken to large factories where the ingredients are separated, and there is a world market for the products. It is estimated that the Sea contains, in solution, at least $1,270,000,000,000 worth of these precious substances—more valuable than all the resources of the United States of America. So, this may be the incentive that will cause Gog (Russia) and her huge army to come up against the "land of unwallled villages," where there are now more than five hundred fifty-five thousand Jews living under the protection of the British government.

Though England has not carried out all the terms of the Balfour Declaration, which gave the Jews the right to buy and settle in any part of Palestine, many thousands of young Jews from Palestine have joined the British forces and are fighting against the Axis Powers. The British government has not allowed the Jews to buy land east of the Jordan River (Transjordan) for fear of offending the Arabs of that land, although it was included in the Mandate. The Jews have protested against this action of the Mandate government, but they have been helpless to effect any change in the decision—just as they had no power to resist the barbarism of Adolf Hitler who, in his book "Mein Kampf," declared that the Jews should be exterminated. (Please read Isaiah 51:17.)

"How Long Shall It Be?"

In every country that he has conquered, the Jews have received the same merciless, harsh treatment, robbery, and persecution. They are as "a wild bull in a net." If the Jews struggle, the cords are drawn tighter until they become absolutely helpless at the mercy of their tormentors. Will this condition continue forever? The answer is found in Isaiah 51:22, 23, saying: "I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury; thou shalt no more drink it again; but I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee; which have said to thy soul, Bow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as the street, to them that went over."

The governments of the world see how the Axis Powers, with Hitler as their head, have conquered many nations in such a short time. They have been filled with fear that he desires world conquest; now that he has attacked Russia, they are sure of it. All the nations of the world are preparing for war in feverish haste, as never before in the history of the world. Do we know what is going to happen—what the result of the conflict will be? Will all nations be involved? And, what will be the final result? These are questions which man, with all his wisdom, cannot answer. However, in the days of Daniel when Nebuchadnezzar had a dream, none of the king's wise men could tell his dream, but it was revealed to Daniel by the God of heaven. The God of Daniel is still in heaven, and He tells us in Amos 3:7: "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." We read in 2 Peter 1:19-21, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place. . . . For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." The world is truly a dark place today (Isa. 60:2, 3), but we have God's promise of better days to come.

Germany has attacked Russia. What will be the result of that conflict? Ezekiel 38:7 tells us that Gog (Russia) will be a "guard" to the other nations which from that great army will come down against the "land of unwallled villages" (Palestine)—not a guard to protect them, but to compel them to unite their armies together to invade Palestine. So, it would seem, Russia must be successful in the present conflict, in order to compel the other armies to join forces with hers. When that is accomplished, these armies will move southward toward Palestine. The first country they would have to cross would be Turkey, which Russia has so many times attempted to conquer, but so far has always failed. Let us here consider a little history:

Beware of the Turk

In 1798 the French government sent Napoleon Bonaparte with an army to conquer Egypt. The Egyptian army was no match for the French, so the Egyptians made only a feeble resistance. Napoleon took a number of their cities, including Alexandria, but he received word that the German and British armies were pressing the home forces too closely, and that he must return at once. So the mighty general had to withdraw his army from Egypt. A huge army of Turks had invaded Egypt, and Napoleon had to fight a rear-guard action to protect his army from them. The Turks took possession of Egypt, but the Sultan said to the Khedive of Egypt: "I do not care to rule over you, but if you will pay me an annual stipend of gold, silver, barley, and corn, I will withdraw my army, and you may rule yourselves." This agreement was made, and Egypt paid this annual stipend to Turkey until 1914, when in the first World War it seemed uncertain for a time which way the Turks would go—whether with the Allies or with the Central Powers. England then compelled Egypt to cease those annual payments to the Turks.

Going back further in history, we would mention that after the death of Alexander the Great his kingdom was divided among his four leading generals: Seleucus had the north-east portion, and was known as "King of the North," while Ptolemy had Egypt, and the balance of the territory once held by Alexander was divided between Lysimachus and Cassander. Later, the Turks conquered the territory that had been held by Seleucus, and from that time forward the Turkish government, in accord with the prophecy of Daniel, was known as the "King of the North." In Daniel 11:38, we read of a king of whom it is said, "In his estate shall he honour the God of forces (the God of munitions, marg.)." In verse 39 we read that he "shall divide the land for gain."

Napoleon Bonaparte was ambitious to conquer the world, and, like Adolf Hitler, he invaded Russia with a large French army. The Russians retreated before him, but they burned the towns and cities behind them. The French army soon ran out of supplies and had to retreat. It was winter. Many of the French soldiers perished of cold and hunger, and wolves devoured many of those who wandered away from the main body. The Russian army followed the retreating army, and the retreat became a rout. However, Napoleon, all undaunted, hurried back to France. He had no funds to further carry on the war, so he confiscated the estates of the nobles, who at that time owned the greater part of France in the form of large estates. Napoleon sold the land in small tracts to the common people. In this way he secured funds to further carry on his wars of conquest. It was a blessing for the peasantry to secure homes of their own, instead of being tenants of the former owners of the land. Thus, he did "divide the land for gain," as the Prophet said he would.

In Daniel 11:40 we read: "At the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him," which, as already stated, was Egypt, whose resistance to the French army was very feeble. "The king of the north shall come against him"—the Sultan of Turkey and his invading army. After the Turks had conquered Egypt, they pressed their war of conquest into Europe, but were finally checked in Austria by united European armies.

The Prophet said that he would enter into the countries, and "overflow, and pass through." Moreover, "He shall enter also into the glorious land, and many countries shall be overthrown." In 1798 the Turks captured Palestine ("the glorious land"), which clearly identifies Turkey as the King of the north. He also, as already noted, took over Egypt, and put that land under tribute, fulfilling the words: "He shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt: and the Libyans and the Ethiopians shall be at his steps" (v. 43). The Prophet further told, however: "Tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him: therefore he (the Turk) shall go forth with great fury to destroy, and utterly to make away many" (v. 44). Though the Turk is said to be a good neighbor and normally of a good disposition, when aroused by imaginary or real wrongs, or by religious fanaticism, he becomes a fiend incarnate, and spares neither age, sex, nor conditions—as proved by the Armenian atrocities, and other massacres of innocent peoples, which caused him to receive the name of "The bloody Turk."

Turkey's Fall at Jerusalem

In Ezekiel 38, we read that Persia will be one of the countries which will come with Russia against the land of Palestine. Persia is east of the present capital of Turkey, Ankara, and Russia is due north of Ankara, just across the Black Sea. The Turks claim to have two million men under arms to resist any enemy who may attempt to take from them a foot of their land. What will happen to the Turk is prophesied in Daniel 11:45: "He shall plant the tabernacles of his palace (his capital) between the seas (the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean Sea) in the glorious holy mountain (Mount Zion); yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him." When Gog and all his allies come down from the North against the Holy Land, Great Britain and her provinces and the United States will resist them. Who could or would help the Turk, when he had just gone "forth with great fury to destroy, and utterly to make away many" (v. 44).

When the Turk comes to his end at Jerusalem, what will then happen? The first four verses of Daniel 12 tell us: "At that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people." Who were Daniel's people here mentioned by the angel? Daniel was an Israelite according to the flesh, but he was also a member of the body of Christ (the saints) which includes the faithful from righteous Abel to those living at the second coming of the Lord. "There shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book."

The Book of Life

Daniel here spoke of the book, a particular book that has no counterpart, of which there is only one in existence. In Exodus 32:32, 33 we read, "Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written. And the Lord said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book." What book is the Lord keeping in which the names of His people are recorded? In Revelation 3:5 we read, "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels." In Philippians 4:3, the Apostle Paul spoke of his "fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life." Where is that book in which the names of the righteous are written? Jesus said, "Rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven" (Luke 10:20). What will become of those whose names are not written in this book? Whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:15). How important, then, that your name and mine should be recorded in the book of life in heaven, and how important it is to keep it there by living a true Christian life! There is no place in the Bible where it tells that there is a book being kept where the names of the children of Israel, according to the flesh, are being kept.

So, Daniel must have been referring to those whose names are written in the book of life, when he said: "Every one that shall be found written in the book." What follows in the next verse confirms that conclusion. "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (12:2). Some have concluded that because the two classes are mentioned as coming up in the same sentence, that both the righteous and the wicked will come up at the same time, but in Revelation 20:4-6 we find it stated, speaking of the righteous: "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished (the rest of the dead would be the rejected ones of the human family). Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." This proves conclusively that none of the wicked will be resurrected at the first resurrection.

Reward and Punishment

Now, returning to Daniel 12:3, we read: "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." What a glorious reward is in store for the humble, faithful Christian who meekly follows in the steps of the Master, refusing to take part in anything that is contrary to God's Word, though he might forfeit this present life by doing so! (Read Matthew 16:24-27.)

Let us now turn back to Ezekiel 38:18-20, where it is written: "It shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come up against the land of Israel, saith the Lord God, that my fury shall come up in my face. For in my jealousy and in the fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; so that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground." In the business part of the city of New York it is estimated that there are as many people going up and down in elevators, as there are thronging the streets. It would be impossible to estimate the loss of life, not only in New York, but in any large city, when "every wall shall fall to the ground." Now, what will happen to Gog when these terrible shakings occur? "I will call for a sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord God: every man's sword shall be against his brother. And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone" (vv. 21, 22). How many of this vast army of Gog will escape death? The Prophet Isaiah said: "Come near, ye nations, to hear: and hearken, ye people; let the earth hear, and all that is therein; the world, and all things that come forth of it. For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies: he hath utterly destroyed them, he hath delivered them to the slaughter. Their slain also shall be cast out, and their stink shall come up out of their carcasses, and the mountains shall be melted with their blood. . . . For it is the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompences for the controversy of Zion" (34:1-3, 8). So every man that goes into that army will lose his life.

Will the present conflict involve all nations of the world? This is a question which man cannot answer, but the Word of God gives the answer to that question. Read Jeremiah 25:15 to the end of the chapter. The Lord gave to Jeremiah the "wine cup of this fury," saying: "Cause all the nations, to whom I send thee, to drink it. And they shall drink, and be moved, and be mad, because of the sword that I will send among them" (vv. 15, 16). Jeremiah said: "Then took I the cup at the Lord's hand, and made all the nations to drink, unto whom the Lord had sent me: to wit, Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and the kings thereof, and the princes thereof, to make them a desolation, an astonishment, an hissing, and a curse; as it is this day."

In Ezekiel 21:25-27 we read: "Thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." The Lord sent the Prophet Ezekiel to the king of Judah, Zedekiah, with the foregoing message. Chapter 22 gives the reasons why Jerusalem was to be destroyed, and the kingdom to be overturned "until he come whose right it is."

In Jeremiah 39, we have an account of the destruction of the city of Jerusalem. The great majority of the people were carried away to Babylon, where they were kept in captivity until the days of Cyrus, the king of Persia. He granted the Jews, under the leadership of Ezra and Nehemiah, to return to the Holy Land and rebuild the city, the walls of the city, and the Temple. However, since the days of Zedekiah, the last king to sit on the throne of David in Jerusalem, the Jews have had no king of their own, but they have been ruled by Gentile kings.

In 70 A.D. Titus, the Roman general, besieged Jerusalem, during which siege one million one hundred thousand Jews were slain, and the city was destroyed, and the rest of the Jews were sold as slaves and dispersed throughout the world. This was a fulfillment of Amos 9:9, saying: "Lo, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." The ten northern tribes had been carried away by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 721 B.C., after their capital city was besieged and taken, following a siege of three years. Samaria was taken during the reign of Hoshea, the king of Israel. The king of Assyria carried Israel away into Assyria, and placed them in Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes. For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt" (2 Kings 17: 6, 7). Today, they are known as the ten lost tribes of Israel. They await their promised King. (To be continued)

Testimony Meetings

By Rufus A. Curtis

IT LINGERS in my memory, almost like a well-nigh forgotten dream, that many years ago a certain noted minister was presiding at a religious meeting, in which he asked for testimony from persons present who had experienced the joy of pardon. Among those present, similarly blessed, was a son of his who was studying for the ministry. The minister called upon him in a persuasive voice to "Stand up for Jesus." In attempting to comply with his father's request, possibly through paucity of cogent reasons on the one hand, or timidity on the other, he continued his desultory remarks to such length that his father made a second request of him to, "Please sit down for Jesus' sake."

To most of my readers it may sound like a paradox, but the briefest testimony in a religious meeting that I have been permitted to hear consisted barely of two words; but the resolutions that were then awakened in my heart have not been forgotten to the present time. The incident took place at the conclusion of a protracted meeting in which a score of young converts were added to the membership of the so-called orthodox persuasion. The minister requested the converts to give a few words of testimony for the religion they had accepted. One of them, trying to comply with her pastor's request, trying also to overlook the whispering and tittering of her schoolmates who observed her confusion, attempted to do so. In her perplexity and timidity, however, she uttered only two words: "Brothers" (with a few moments' pause, after which she added), "Sisters"; then she completely collapsed.

It was then that I resolved that if young people holding to such theoretical views as could not be consistently explained, or logically defended, were willing to risk their reputations as sentient beings for such hallucinations, should not I? Should not I testify, seeing that I had been so recently enabled through God's "loving favour" to shake off the shackles of human tradition, and be made "free indeed," "through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth," which is God's immutable "word" which I should take as "a lamp unto my feet, and a light that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be unto my path." (Prov. 22:1; Mark 7:13; John 8:32; 2 Thess. 2:13; John 17:17; Psalm 119:105.) I should let my "light so shine before men," that only "good works" would be the needful evidence that I had "been with Jesus," and learned of him. (Acts 4:13.) "Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit" (Matt. 7:16, 17). With such abundance of proof from the heavens above and all the earth beneath, "full of thy riches," how can we question God's ability "to perform" the "exceeding great and precious promises" left on record "for our learning," that we "might have hope," even though "it is marvellous in our eyes"? (Psalm 8:3-8; 104: 24; Rom. 4:21; Matt. 21:42; 2 Peter 1:4.)

God has given us ample proof that "he is," or exists, and that He "is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). To believe in Him as a rewarder would be an impossibility without some definite statements being made concerning a reward for what given, when bestowed, and where to be enjoyed.

At witnessing the young woman's testimony of two words, culminating in a pitiful breakdown of her ability to speak, I resolved that from that time onward, whenever an opportunity was presented to me to witness for "the only true God and Jesus Christ" whom He has sent, I would thankfully accept the same with an unshaken confidence that life eternal is linked indissolubly with those two names (John 17:3). "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart saved." (Rom. 10:9; Heb. 7:24, 25.)

"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong" (1 Cor. 16:13).

"Drop a pebble in the water:
Just a splash and it is gone;
But there's half a hundred ripples
Circling on and on and on.

"Drop a word of cheer and kindness;
In a minute you forget;
But there's gladness still a-swelling,
And there's joy a-circling yet."

Where Are the Dead?

In Two Parts—Part One

"Men and brethren, let me freely speak to you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. For David is not ascended into the heavens" (Acts 2:29, 34). "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man" (John 3:13).

IT NEED hardly be stated that so important a subject as that which our question introduces has had the most profound investigation and study from time immemorial. It is the great question of all time—the question that ceaselessly intrudes itself upon the attention of all men. Hence, for a man to declare himself disinterested in the subject of the state of the dead, is to proclaim himself idiotic—thoughtless. The fact, however, that large numbers of thoughtful people are making inquiry and seeking information on this question, assuredly implies that after all the study the subject has had, but few are really and thoroughly satisfied with their conclusions.

It is recognized that a correct understanding of this subject of man's state in death, with its various related questions, has become almost a necessity to Christian steadfastness. For centuries it has been the teaching of "orthodoxy" of all shades, that the great God of heaven, before creating our race, had prepared a great abyss of fire and terrors, capable of containing all the billions of the human family which He purposed to bring into being; that this He had named "hell"; and that all the promises and threatenings of the Bible were designed to deter as many as possible ("a little flock") from such wrong-doing as would make this awful place their perpetual home.

Whence Came This Doctrine of Torment?

The doctrine of eternal torment was undoubtedly introduced at a much darker period in human history than the present, at a time of greater ignorance, when the grossest superstition prevailed in the then civilized world. This theory of endless torment flourished at the time when the Crusades were called "holy wars," and men and women were often tortured and burned at the stake for thinking or speaking contrary to the teachings of the established religious order; at a time therefore when the sun of Gospel truth was more obscured than it is today, and when the Word of God had fallen into disuse and the reading of it was prohibited by any but those in high authority.

In the light and moral development of this day many thoughtful people no longer believe this doctrine; and while we are glad to see superstition fall and truer ideas of the great, wise, just, and loving Creator prevail, it is to be observed that the tendency with many who abandon this long revered doctrine is toward doubt, skepticism, infidelity and disbelief in the Bible as the Word of God, supposing that the Bible really teaches and supports the doctrine of eternal torment. The purpose of these lines is to show wherein the Bible is falsely accused of being the authority for this baneful teaching, and that the Scriptures when properly understood give no support whatever to the doctrine of torture and suffering for the dead.

Let it be borne in mind, first of all, that the Old Testament Scriptures were written in the Hebrew language and the New Testament in the Greek. The word "hell" is an English word, sometimes selected by the translators of the English Bible to express the sense of the Hebrew word sheol and the Greek words hades and tartaroo—some times rendered "grave" and "pit." The word "hell" in old English usage, before misguided ecclesiastics gave it a new and special significance to suit their own purposes, simply meant to conceal, to hide, to cover; hence the concealed, hidden, or covered place. In old English literature records may be found of the helling of potatoes—putting potatoes in the pit; and of the helling of a house, that is, covering or thatching it. The word "hell" was therefore properly used synonymously with the words "grave" and "pit," to translate the words sheol and hades as signifying the secret or hidden condition of death.

What Say the Scriptures?

We ask the earnest truth seeker to observe that the various theories concerning the conscious state of the dead, the torture of the wicked in death, and so forth, are based upon the assumption that death does not really mean death—that to die is to become more alive than before death. Further, in Eden it was God who declared to our first parents, "Ye shall surely die." It was Satan who declared, "Ye shall not surely die." The heathen, as well as many Christians, have accepted Satan's falsehood, and correspondingly rejected God's truth. They all agree with the serpent's statement, "Ye shall not surely die." They all claim that the dead are alive—much more alive than before they died. This has been our common point of mistake. We have followed the wrong teacher, the one of whom our Lord said, "He abode not in the truth," and that he is the father of lies (John 8:44).

False conceptions of the state of the dead have prevailed among the heathen for many, many centuries, but they gained an ascendancy in the professing church of Christ during the Dark Ages, and had much to do with producing the darkness thereof. If our forefathers had believed God's testimony, "Thou shalt surely die," there would have been no room for the introduction of prayers for the dead, masses for their sins, frightful thoughts respecting their torture. The Scriptures proclaim from first to last that "the dead know not anything" (Eccl. 9:5), and that their sons come to honor and they know it not; they come to dishonor and they perceive it not of them (Job 14:21). It is the Scriptures that tell us where the dead are and their condition; that they are experiencing neither joy nor sorrow, pleasure nor suffering; that they will have no knowledge of anything done under the sun until their awakening in resurrection. Let us be reminded of the Wise Man's words: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol), whither thou goest" (Eccl. 9:10). In the Old Testament and in the New Testament it is written of both the good and the bad that they "fell asleep" in death. The Apostle Paul speaks of those who "sleep in Jesus," and those who have "fallen asleep in Christ"; who, he declares, are perished if there is no resurrection of the dead. Could they perish in heaven, or in purgatory, or in a hell of torment? Assuredly no one so teaches. They are already in a perished condition in the tomb; and the perishing would be absolute, complete, unless a resurrection be provided for their deliverance from the power of death. Hence, we read: "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

In a word, then, the Bible teaching is that man was made superior to all the brute creation—in the image and likeness of his Creator; that he possessed life in a perfect degree in Eden and might have retained it by full obedience. But in his trial, his testing, he failed, and came under the death sentence: "In the day that thou eatest thereof, dying, thou shalt die" (Gen. 2:17). There the dying began, which, after nine hundred thirty years, brought Father Adam to the tomb and involved all of his children in his weaknesses and death sentence. He died in the very day, which the Apostle Peter explains was not a twenty-four-hour day, but a thousand-year day, saying, "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years" (2 Peter 3:8).

During six of these great days, the death sentence has brought man down in some respects to the level of the brute, and left him without hope of future life, except as God might take compassion upon him and bring him some relief. This was hinted at in the statement that the seed of the woman should bruise the Serpent's head. It was yet further elaborated to Abraham, saying, "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:3).

But not until four of the great thousand-year days had passed did God send forth His Son to redeem the race, by meeting Father Adam's penalty, by dying, "the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God" (1 Peter 3:18). As a result of that redemptive work accomplished at Calvary, there is to be "a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust"—a recovery from the death sentence, from the prison house, the tomb. (Acts 24:15.)

Death, Not Torment, the Penalty

Note well the mistake made in assuming eternal torment the wages of original sin, when the Scriptures explicitly declare that "the wages of sin is death"—not eternal torment. (Rom. 6:23.) We search the Genesis account of man's fall, and the sentence imposed, but find no suggestion of a future eternal torture, but merely of a death penalty. Repeating that sentence, the Lord said, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19). But He said not a word respecting devils, fire, and torment. Note the fact that none of the prophecies mention any other than a death penalty for sin. Note that the New Testament likewise declares the same. Paul, who wrote nearly one third of the New Testament, and who assured us that he did "not shun to declare the whole counsel of God" (Acts 20:27), says not a word about eternal torment. On the contrary, discussing this very matter of sin and its penalty, he said, "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12). Note that it was not eternal torment that passed upon one man, nor upon all men, but death. If someone suggests that death would not be a sufficient penalty for sin, all we would need to do would be to point him to the facts, and thus prove his suggestion illogical. For the sin of disobedience Adam lost his paradisaic home—lost eternal life and Divine fellowship, and instead got sickness, pain, sorrow, death. Additionally, all of his posterity, reasonably estimated at twenty thousand millions, disinherited so far as the blessings are concerned, have inherited weaknesses, mental, moral, and physical, and are, as the Apostle declares, "a groaning creation" (Rom. 8:22).

View the situation! Twenty thousand millions born in sin and shapen in iniquity (Psalm 51:5). A few short hours or days or years of trouble and disobedience brought them to their deathbeds; the weeping friends stood around with breaking hearts. They were carried to the tomb—"ashes to ashes; dust to dust." Reviewing the whole situation, and remembering that all sickness, sorrow, pain, death, mental and moral decrepitude, result from Father Adam's transgression, what sane man would say that the penalty has been insufficient and that justice could and does demand that these millions shall, at death, be hurried to a hell of endless woe, trouble—tormented by demons to all eternity? Surely the person who thus reasons indicates to us that he either never had the power to reason, or that he has lost it.—Selected from a pamphlet published by the Pastoral Bible Institute.

WORLD CONFUSION

confusion, but of peace," and in due time He will send His Son as "Prince of Peace" to bring about that condition when they shall "beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; and nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"Ask me," says God, "of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me . . . For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else . . . I have sworn by myself . . . that unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear (or confess)" (Isa. 45:11, 18, 23).

Now, obviously, if God who swore these promises is the Almighty Controller, and if His purpose is with this discordant earth, then it is perfectly compatible with His covenant with man, indeed necessary, that He should control great national decisions.

God has promised that He will "judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth," and has sworn that as truly as He lives "all the earth shall be filled with (His) glory."

The ultimate condition of the earth, therefore, is a state of unity, subject to a central power, and enjoying perfect surroundings suitable to the highest attainments of a perfect people.

Such a state, it will be appreciated, is impossible by evolution from the divided and degraded state of the world as it now is. Evidently, therefore, a great period of transition of power, authority, and territory has yet to be introduced to usher in a condition of unity, peace, and perfection. The fulfillment of events in times past is the assurance of the fulfillment of those yet future. God has sworn that men shall not always oppress, corrupt, and spoil the earth. Is His arm shortened at all, that it cannot redeem?

The fall of Babylon (confusion) is sure, for God's Word is sure and steady. We can look forward, knowing that the Apostle Paul, speaking of Babylon's fall, said that the Lord will consume her "with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy (her) with the brightness of his coming" (2 Thess. 2:8).

ATTEND THE MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

According to plans now in the making, the Ministerial Association of the Church of God will, D.V., conduct a ministerial conference at Oregon, Illinois, sometime this coming winter, probably in January or February.

May all the ministers whose names occur above in this column, and as many more as find it possible, attend this conference especially for the ministry.

We are living in the last days, in days when there should be united effort among ministers to "hold the fort."

"Being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Heb. 5:9).

Covenants

There are different covenants, or agreements, mentioned in our Bibles. The Lord God made a covenant with Noah after the Flood, saying that He would place His bow in the cloud—a sign of His covenant between Himself and the earth that "the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh" (Gen. 9:13-15).

What is known as the Old Covenant was given to the Israelites. It is the covenant of works. God said He would bless His people if they would obey Him. Because of their failure to obey God, they were given many laws or rules. One was about sacrificing of animals for different reasons. The blood of a sheep offered in a certain manner would cleanse them of sin for a time.

The New Covenant is "a better covenant" (Heb. 7:22), because Christ is the one who sacrificed His life blood for our redemption. He broke the bonds of death, rising again to be our perfect High Priest. He is the only one through whom we can gain salvation. Do you not see, then, how important it is to "put on Christ" by being buried with Him in baptism? This New Covenant is not one of works, but a covenant of grace. We are to have faith in Christ, accept Him as our Saviour, and follow His example of living to gain others for Him.

Under the Old Testament or Covenant, there was a ceremony kept as a memorial. It was called the Passover. The Lord's Supper is the sacred service that is the memorial of the New Covenant. Just as circumcision was the seal of those who belonged to God, baptism is now the seal of the faithful.

Christ, Our All-in-All

Did you ever pause to consider how much Christ has done and will do for us?

He gave Himself—a pure sacrifice—for our sins. His sacrifice was made only once for all mankind who will accept Him.

Christ is our High Priest. He is our Mediator. When we sin we have Jesus to whom we can go and ask forgiveness for our wrongs. He sits at God's right hand, interceding for us. He is "the way." His death atoned for all our sins. "If . . . the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh: how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" (Heb. 9:13, 14.)

Offerings

Cain and Abel were brothers, sons of Adam and Eve. Cain tilled the soil; Abel was a shepherd. When they offered their sacrifices, Abel offered one that was accepted of God. According to Genesis 4:3, 4, Abel offered a firstling of the flock, while Cain offered grain or "fruit of the ground."

God couldn't accept Cain's offering, because "without shedding of blood is no remission" of sins (Heb. 9:22).

Christ, who was our Sacrifice, was pure, without spot. He shed His blood for us. Let us accept this blood of Jesus by being baptized and then living a godly life.

A Scripture Reading

"My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: and he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him. He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as he walked. Brethren I write no new commandment unto you . . . The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning. Again, a new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you: because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth" (1 John 2:1-8).

More and Brighter Lights

* * *

By Hazel Reed, Oregon, Ill.

Today our world is full of turmoil and strife, and so full of war and bloodshed that it has become literally blackened with sin. More than ever before we are hoping and praying that Christ will soon come to set up His Kingdom where there shall be no more sin or sorrow.

Matthew 24:14 tells us, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Now, ask yourself this question, Unto how much of the world has the gospel been preached? Yes, we need to get busy. The time is short—"the harvest is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matt. 9:37, 38).

We need more people today who are prepared to preach the gospel of the Kingdom. To prepare ourselves for this work we must study God's Word. Christ who is our example was about His Father's business when a child.

Christ is the great Light of the world, and we are the lower lights. When the light was burning in the top of the lighthouse, and the lower lights along the shore had gone out, the ship could not find its way to the harbor. Therefore, the ship sank and many lives were lost. So, it is our duty today to let our lights shine to guide others to Christ.

When we first accept Christ, our lights shine brightly. If, as we come up against the hardships of this life, we become discouraged, little by little our light grows dim and at last it will go out. In the Sermon on the Mount, when Christ was talking to His disciples, He told them, "Ye are the light of the world." Then He said, "Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:15, 16). So, let us as Christians today let our lights so shine in this world of sin that others may see our good works and turn to Christ, being lower lights for Him.

The more lights there are in a city, the more attractive the city becomes, and the more easily it can be seen from a distance. So it is with the Christian—the more and brighter the lights, the easier it is for people to recognize the true Christian. Yes, our great need today is for more and brighter lights to bring others to seek the beauty of the great Light which is Christ.

Our Duty

By Francis Burnett, Oregon, Ill.

"Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:13). At first glance this, naturally, presents the thought that possibly anyone can be saved, for the Scripture says, "Whosoever." However, in verse 14 of this same chapter we read, "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?"

Of course, the first thing we hear someone say is, "I am not a preacher." Fellow Berean companions and workers, we are writing to you and to those of you who may not be Bereans. For what purpose were the Bereans organized? For what do we stand? If we understand correctly, the Bereans organized with the same purpose in mind as had the Apostle Paul in Acts 17:11 where he stated that the people of Berea were "more noble than those of Thessalonica" because they studied the Scriptures. It is our understanding that this verse indicates the purpose of the present-day Bereans.

Are we doing our part? Are we upholding the standard as set by the people of Berea? To those of you who possibly would like to have a Berean society and do not, we say this, as stated previously, "How shall they hear without a preacher?" There are many people who do not know of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Especially is this true of young people. Perhaps you can start a Berean class in your community. We have books in our National Bible Institution offices with lessons prepared that anyone might use in teaching a class. Perhaps you may say, "I can't do it." Remember this, every Christian must help spread the gospel into every land. We should not expect to receive a reward by merely professing Christ and doing nothing.

Could it be that if we failed to help someone by not having a Bible class that our work wouldn't stand the test of the fire? Christian brethren, do your part—teach the Scriptures.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF EVANGELISM

Sept. 20, 21—Illinois Quarterly Conference at Salem Church near Marshall

OHIO CONFERENCE NOTES

The 1941 Conference opened Sunday, August 17, at the Brush Creek Church with 128 present for worship service.

Bible classes convened each morning and afternoon during the following week. These classes were taught by Harvey Krogh, Jr., adults; M. W. Lyon, young people; Ellsworth Routson, juniors; Alice Lindstrom, primary; and June Routson, beginners. Bible classes this year showed a twenty-five percent increase over last year.

Each evening we were privileged to hear an inspiring sermon from one of the ministers present. Those in attendance were: Bros. Harvey Krogh, Jr., M. W. Lyon, Emory Macy, Walter Wiggins, F. L. Austin, and Ellsworth Routson.

At the business meeting held Saturday afternoon, the following officers were elected: Alice Lindstrom, treasurer and A. J. Hoke, board member. Others reelected were: J. A. Patrick, president; H. H. Hawkins, vice president; the writer, secretary; C. L. Nettis and P. H. Overholser, board members. Due to illness Bro. Patrick was unable to be present. He was mentioned often in our prayers.

An invitation from the Golden Rule brethren to meet with them in Cleveland next year was accepted.

The committee on arrangement deserves a hearty vote of thanks for the splendid way in which it arranged and carried out the Conference. We were entertained royally, so thank you, Bros. A. J. Hoke and James Kessler and Sr. Eunice Pearson.

We are told that the ladies served 1,090 meals during the eight days. That is a good sized family. We hope everyone left the Conference filled spiritually as well as temporarily, and will come again next year to Cleveland bringing others.

In addition to those from the churches in Ohio, namely, Delta, Cleveland, Lawrenceville, and Brush Creek, we were honored by the presence of those from Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, Michigan, and Minnesota. Come again, one and all!
Clark Ballentine, Secy.

MEETINGS IN ARKANSAS

We returned home from Arkansas, where we had held meetings at Driggs, Walnut Grove, McGintytown, Cedar Creek, and Cleveland. The large crowds that greeted us at each place were gratifying. While in the state, we baptized ten into the all-saving name of Jesus. Two were baptized at Charleston, three at Driggs, and five at McGintytown. Many more were "almost persuaded" to obey the gospel, and will, we are sure, do so at a future date.

We received $110.00 for our services. Many thanks to the brethren, and may the Lord bless the work that is done in His name.
E. O. Stewart.

BAPTISMAL

Baptismal services were conducted near Rensselaer, Ind., Sunday, August 17, when Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Abraham and Emma Myrtle Hurley of Rensselaer, Rt. 4, and Mrs. Ruth Clair Davis of Rensselaer were immersed by Bro. J. H. Anderson.
(Mrs.) Mattie H. Scott, Secy.

THE BLOOD RIVER CHURCH

In honor of one of our splendid young church workers, Vernon Lobell, the Bereans sponsored a farewell party Saturday night, August 16, at the home of Ernest Barnum. There were many interesting forms of entertainment which were enjoyed by both young and old. Choice refreshments were served, after which we joyfully engaged in singing. We regret very much that Vernon must leave for the army, since he has been such a faithful and loyal worker, and his absence will be felt keenly.

Barbara Elaine arrived August 8, to bless the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson. The young lady weighed eight pounds. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

Our new church building is well under way, and the co-operation among the brethren is splendid. We hope to have the building sufficiently completed by the time our pastor, Bro. Harry Goekler, returns from his vacation so that church services may be resumed. At the present time Sunday school services are being held under the shade of trees near by, and the attendance is very good. Berean classes are conducted in the homes of various members by those assigned the lesson.

Miss Clara Barnum is again a patient in Charity Hospital, New Orleans, and we hope for her a speedy recovery so she may resume her work in the church. Mary Richardson.

SUCCESS AT WATERLOO

Accompanied with Mrs. Magaw and five of our children, also Bro. J. S. Lyon, "Grandma" Hatch and "Uncle" Paul, we enjoyed a pleasant vacation at the Iowa State Conference of the Church of God. We appreciate the many kindnesses given us.

Bro. J. W. Williams and the writer conducted a baptismal service Sunday, August 24, when the following converts were immersed in Cedar River: the Misses Winifred and Janet Moore, Green Mountain; Miss Catherine Fish, Colo; Richard Torrey, Waterloo; Ralph Williams, Gladbrook; and Paul Luckow, Rockford, Ill. May the Lord direct the steps of these new members in "the way everlasting" (Psalm 139:24).

We are glad to report, too, that plans are being made to build a dormitory near the Waterloo church, where Conference attendants may be given better accommodations than in the present tents. Still further, we are glad to report that at least one, and probably two, young men at the Conference are planning to attend the Bible Training School to begin at Oregon, Ill., September 16. Still further, we hear that there is a possibility that the local Waterloo brethren may invite a student minister for week-end visits during a part of the time this winter and next spring.

Waterloo, keep up the good work.

Sydney E. Magaw.

Bro. James W. McLain reports that a brother in Virginia plans to boost the Building Fund of the Bible Training School.

NATIONAL BEREAN COLUMN

By Muriel Randall

On Friday evening, July 25, the young people of the Church of God at Ponthill, Ont., met in the basement of the church to organize a young people's Berean class. The meeting was opened by singing "Stepping in the Light," accompanied by Mabel Fletcher at the piano, followed with prayer by Bro. C. E. Randall. The theme of Berean work was explained by Bro. Randall. Election of officers followed and resulted thus: president, Mabel Fletcher; vice president, Grace Davis; secretary, Irene Payne; treasurer, Ruby McCombs; social correspondence committee, Mabel Fletcher, Grace Davis, Ruby McCombs, and Ruth Jones; and pianist, Ross Anger. It was decided to hold the meetings every Friday night, with a social once a month. The members of the class are going to take turns teaching lessons. The meeting was closed by singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," followed by the Berean benediction. . . . This report was sent in by Irene Payne, Secretary.

This past summer, instead of discontinuing the Oregon (Ill.) Berean Society an experiment was tried. Each Sunday afternoon the young people met at the church at about 2:30. Free transportation was provided to various parks, such as the Pines, Lowell Park, and Spring Lake at Rochelle which were selected for an afternoon of good clean entertainment and Christian fellowship. Everyone was at liberty to do as he wished—swim, hike, read, sing, play, or rest. Oftentimes the whole group sang and played together. There were no set rules, so some Sundays a picnic supper was taken. One Sunday before eating, an open-air Berean meeting was held. Several Sundays the regular Berean meeting was held in the church at the regular time, 6:30—7:30, after the afternoon of fun, fellowship, and frolic. The Junior Bereans were invited on all of these Berean activities and the older juniors were usually present. The results were that the Bereans were more friendly and made friends among the young people of the church. They did not need to go outside of the church for all their fun, and they found that church work can be a pleasure. More people were given responsibilities, that is, providing transportation, food, games, and other necessary plans besides taking part in the regular Berean meetings. Several young people became interested in Berean work through this experiment, and are now coming to some of the church activities. Did it pay to try something new? During the last year Berean meetings have included a period of devotion and Bible study. Several times adults have spoken on selected subjects. Tests are frequently given. Different members lead the devotional season and the lesson. This summer the Bible Training School added numerically and spiritually to the Berean classes and the sociable afternoons.

The purpose of this column in The Restitution Herald is to take the place of the recently retired "Echo." This is your opportunity to tell us what your societies and members are doing. Please address your news articles to one of the Berean editors, as listed in the heading of the Berean Department on page 13. Thank you! We can't spell SUCCESS without U.

COX - COLEMAN

On the night of August 24, Sr. Leola Cox and Mr. Harold Ray Coleman, accompanied by Bro. Robert Cox drove to our home and were married, the writer officiating. After the ceremony, we went to church and heard a wonderful sermon by Bro. Alan McLain.

The bride and her husband will reside at 1010 Elm St., Paris, Ark. We, with their many friends, wish them a long, happy, and prosperous life, with God's richest blessings.

The Restitution Herald is the official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. It is published by the National Bible Institution at Oregon, Illinois.

Orpha LeMasurier . . . Treasurer

Subscription Rate.—51 issues per annum, $2.00.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Illinois Evangelist

By Leland T. Hanson, President

"When the Church Builds Evangelism, Evangelism Will Build the Church."

The Past Year

It might be well to review briefly the work of the past year. Illinois, with the co-operation of the churches at Fredericktown and Bosworth, Missouri, employed two evangelists, Brothers C. E. Lapp and James M. Watkins. The reports given on the conference floor showed that both of these men did splendid work.

Brother Delos Andrew's treasurer's report showed that the work was well supported. A study of the records shows that approximately one thousand dollars more was contributed by the churches and individual contributors this year than in previous years.

Our list of individual contributors has been increased from thirteen regular contributors in the year 1939-'40, to thirty-three in the past year. We hope to get all the isolated members of the State on this list if possible. You will be hearing soon from our new treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Ford, 123 W. First Street, Dixon, Illinois.

New Pastors

It is my hope and prayer that each church in the State will soon be able to secure a regular pastor of its own. We have good news to report along this line. The Dixon and Rockford churches have secured the services of Brothers Alan McLain and Francis Burnett, respectively. These young men will be serving as student pastors. With the proper support and encouragement, we anticipate a good report from them at our next conference business meeting.

The church at Ripley has secured a full-time pastor. Brother Richard LeCrone, formerly of Virginia, is now in charge of the Ripley church. The Ripley congregation has done more than secure a pastor—it has purchased a parsonage. We hope other churches will follow Ripley's example.

Evangelists

Brothers Watkins and Lapp have been engaged for another year to carry on the work with the same churches as last year. This was done at the request of the churches which they have served.

Food Contributions

A number of churches and individuals, not only in Illinois but in other states, contributed food to be used at conference. This proved to be a great help in preparing the meals and satisfying the appetites. Thanks to all those who aided in this way! The Board hopes each and every church in the country will enter into this program next year. Some of the food supplies needed are potatoes, all kinds of fresh and canned vegetables and fruits, preserves, honey, meats, and so forth. Plan now for your canning bee!

Quarterly Conferences

We expect this year, D.V., to hold three quarterly conferences. The first conference will convene at the Salem Church, near Marshall, September 21, 22. The others will be announced later.

Dollar Days

It was voted by the conference in session to have four Dollar Days—the first to be held during the week of the first quarterly conference. Cards will be mailed out by the treasurer, Sister Elizabeth Ford. Let each individual respond by sending his dollar promptly.

Thanks

We wish to personally express our thanks to our heavenly Father who has guided and directed us in the work of the past year. To all those who have contributed financially and materially, we wish to thank you, and we urge and ask your further co-operation and support. To the outgoing officers: Brothers Andrew, Lindsay, Johnson, and Sister Leota Hanson, we want to especially express our gratitude for your years of faithful service and fine spirit of co-operation.

Pressing Toward the Prize

By the Editor

"This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13, 14).

THE Apostle Paul, turned by the Damascus Road vision from darkness to light, walked thereafter in "the way of salvation" (Acts 16:17) that "leadeth unto life" (Matt. 7:14). As he pressed toward the prize, his influence radiated to every other living Christian and to multitudes who were lost in the darkness of sin. He who is entirely "converted" unto Christ will both "strengthen the brethren" (Luke 22:32) and "preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15) insofar as he has opportunity.

Isaiah, called and inspired of God, charged the faithful remnant of Israel, saying: "It is a light thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth" (Isa. 49:6). Every faithful minister and the remnant of the Church of God are today likewise responsible before God and the Lord Jesus Christ to do more than raise up the fallen within our own ranks: we must proclaim the truth "unto the end of the earth."

Forgetting the Past

How the past might have haunted the Apostle Paul who had "persecuted this way unto the death (i.e., unto the death of martyrs), binding and delivering into prisons both men and women" (Acts 22:4), and who had punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them . . . persecuted them even unto strange cities (Acts 26:11)!

Being repentant of his former ways, Paul said he was "not meet to be called an apostle" because he had "persecuted the church of God" (1 Cor. 15:9). Paul was not disheartened by his evil past, however, for he had been "baptized . . . in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." (Acts 2:38; 9:18.) Said John: "If our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things" (1 John 3:20). Thus, being forgiven of the Lord, Paul said: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:13, 14).

Though the carnal interests of an ever in-crowding world would "bruise the heel" of Christian progress, the Church of God and all its ministers should, like the Apostle Paul, press faithfully forward "toward . . . the prize." The glory of the prize—immortality and eternal heirship with Jesus in the coming Kingdom "wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13)—dare not be dimmed by any present clouds of trouble, by any earthly enterprise, nor by entangling and voluptuous lusts. The high calling of God will present its prize to those only who "diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). God "will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life: but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, (Please turn to page 11)

THE TIME IS RIPE

The time is ripe for the Church of God to evangelize, to care for our retired ministers, to provide both Biblical and collegiate education for our youth, to publish and distribute tens of thousands of tracts and books from the pens of our leading minds. The time is ripe for the Church of God to send Christ-inspired and Paul-devoted missionaries into every state of the United States, into every province of Canada, into Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, Mexico, South America, and "unto the uttermost part of the earth."
—JESUS.

To accomplish this work, the time is ripe, and more than ripe, for the Church of God to "pay (our) vows unto the most High"—if we expect deliverance "in the day of trouble."

God Is

"God is love" (1 John 4:8, 16) and "God is a consuming fire" (Heb. 12:29), telling God's characteristics, prove, too, that "He is" (Heb. 11:6). An impersonal God could neither love nor destroy. God's qualities prove His Personality; His characteristics prove His character.

God's first requirement of man is faith in the Divine Personality. The 1941 streamlined interpretation that all the God there is is love—it being utterly forgotten that "our God is a consuming fire"—faithlessly, if not impudently, closes eyes and ears to the text that says: "Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that HE IS, and that HE IS a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6).

"I Kill and I Make Alive"

What are the gods of the heathen? What did they create? What have they destroyed? Concerning the heathen, Moses said, "Their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges" (Deut. 32:31). God says: "To me belongeth vengeance and recompense. . . . See now that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal" (vv. 35-39).

Because "God is love," many students think it irreverent to speak of God as One who has, or could have, anything to do with death. Though God "created all things, and for (His) pleasure they are and were created" (Rev. 4:11), and though it was the creature (man) who sinned, thereby shaming the Creator and making himself guilty, it was the Creator, nevertheless, who inflicted "the wages of sin"—even death. (Rom. 6:23.) A disobedient child does not punish himself, but the parent does. Said Israel's king, "Am I God, to kill and to make alive?" (2 Kings 5:7). Likewise, Hannah said, "The Lord killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up" (1 Sam. 2:6). When Herod accepted the praises of men, saying, "It is the voice of a god, and not of a man" (Acts 12:22), "immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost" (v. 23). When Ananias and Sapphira lied "unto God," who shall we suppose inflicted their sudden death?

In no sense can God be blamed; death is the righteous judgment of God, even as we read prophetically of Jesus: "In righteousness he doth judge and make war" (Rev. 19:11), and, "With the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked" (Isa. 11:4). God is sovereign; God is God!

Divine Healing

All life is God-given: "In him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:28). Therefore, all healing is of God, for health is an attribute and part of life. In this sense, then, every Christian believes in divine healing. There is today, however, a more specific meaning in the words "divine healing"—a meaning that is unscriptural and dangerous. We refer to the theory of instantaneous healing by the laying on of hands, anointing with oil, or by prayers of one supposedly endowed of God with the Apostolic "gift" of healing.

Jesus said, "These signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover" (Mark 16:17, 18); but those "signs" long centuries ago did "follow them that believe," that God's Word might be confirmed with miracles. We read in verse 20: "They went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them and confirming the word with signs following. Amen." Must God's Word be everlastingly reconfirmed?

Paul wrote that the gospel of the Lord "was confirmed unto us by them that heard him (Jesus); God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts (including the gifts of healing and raising the dead) of the Holy Ghost" (Heb. 2:3, 4). Seeing that the Word has long been confirmed, signs are no longer necessary; it is faith in the Word that is required today. Do you believe? Have you been baptized? Then you "shall be saved" (Mark 16:16) when Jesus comes to "change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (Phil. 3:21).

Sickness is a step or a part of death. Death cannot be destroyed until Jesus, the Life-giver, comes. Therefore, real divine healing awaits, too, the coming of our Lord.

He Shall Be Like a Tree

By C. Alan McLain

IN THE BIBLE, trees are often symbolical of individuals. There are as many different types of individuals as there are different kinds of trees. Some trees grow to be very large, other trees are very small. Some trees grow rapidly but soon die, while others grow more slowly and last many years. Some men become geniuses almost overnight, but soon fade from view. The man that develops slowly and surely will endure every hardship and eventually enjoy success.

The value of trees differs according to their usefulness. The walnut tree is used to make gun stocks and for furniture. The rubber tree is very important for its widely used rubber products. Farmers use the hedge tree for fence posts. The orange groves produce delicious fruit. . . . People, too, differ much in their usefulness. Some of the Lord's people are accomplished musicians, some are good evangelists, others make splendid pastors, and still others are excellent organizers in the church. Let us use our talents to the glory of God, seeing that the coming of our Lord draws near.

There are trees that have extensive root systems, while other varieties have not enough roots to hold the trees erect. Trees that are not rooted deeply into the earth will soon be blown over by strong winds. A story about a tree comes to my mind.

Two men started climbing a mountain and, as they ascended, no sign of vegetation could be found—not even a blade of grass. This mountain was almost solid rock. After the men were nearly exhausted from the exertion and the blistering sun, they reached a rock ledge where they could see an Indian shepherd resting with his sheep under the shade of a large tree. The men were not so much interested in the Indian shepherd or the sheep; they were interested in the large shade tree. They marveled how a tree could grow in such a place. By close observations, they found that the roots of the tree reached far down into the crevices of the mountain of rock, to soil and moisture. The tree had stood for many years against the cold winter winds and the hot blasts of summer because it had an extensive root system. On this tree was delicious fruit. A righteous man could be compared to this tree, as:

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. The ungodly are not so: but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish" (Psalm 1).

He who meditates upon God's Word, day and night, searching and reaching deep into the soil of wisdom and knowledge of truth, shall stand the test of the winds of doubt, fear, hatred, and malice of this world. He shall not be driven about "with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive," but shall be established as the tree on the mountain. We who believe the true gospel have "an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast" (Heb. 6:19).

Trees that bear good fruit are of much value. This is true of people as well. God expects spiritual fruit, and not religious "nuts"! We are to study, if we are to bear fruit that is acceptable to God. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

If we are rooted deeply and firmly in the Word of God, we shall be able to stand the test of every evil wind that blows. The man that is not rooted deeply in God's Word is like the chaff that is blown here and there, having no stability. Many men committed suicide when they received word that they had lost all their wealth in the Wall Street stock-market crash in 1929. They trusted in their money more than in God. When their money was gone, in which they trusted, they had nothing more for which to live. Let us trust in God in "whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning" (James 1:17). If we are to branch out that we might bear more fruit, we must be rooted more deeply into God's Word and love.

Some people are like trees in that they become top-heavy. They make a big show trying to get people to think they are very important and wise, but have no stability. The roots of a tree (though not seen) are as important as the branches that are seen. Some members of the church do good that only the Lord sees.

Destruction shall come upon all people that are like the chaff. God "knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish." God will abundantly bless the righteous man and prosper him to the proportion of his faith.

The World's Supreme Necessity

Text: Matthew 6:6-13

By Arthur G. Young

WEBSTER defines a necessity as something that is indispensable. In these days, I am afraid to get in the habit of using this word carelessly, as many things we call necessities are not proper to so class. We do, however, put the word to its proper use when from our physical standpoint we say food, drink, raiment, and shelter are necessities, or to put it quite basically, I would say the fundamental necessity of mankind is life itself.

Webster defines the word "supreme" as extreme, highest, utmost. In order to state what is the supreme necessity of the world and the individuals in it, it is really necessary to first try to define what the needs are, and to analyze the position.

Have you ever stopped to think real carefully why mankind during its approximately six thousand years of existence has not advanced further toward perfection than it has? Facing the facts, is imperfection not really due to mankind not having within itself the ability and power to overcome the laws of nature that have pressed upon each successive generation? To look back historically on the generations preceding ours, is it not true that each generation has been going pretty much in a circle, owing to the circumstances and laws of this life being in the main beyond their control? Nations rose and fell. Individuals were great and their successors could not carry on their work successfully. This record is actual fact, so I again ask, What are the reasons we in this age are not basically better than men who lived thousands of years ago? Of course, where Christ has come into our lives, we are better men and women, but I am not talking about this, as this condition is due to an outside influence. What I mean is that men in themselves, apart from the instruction of God, are not one whit better than the ancient Babylonians or Romans. Of course, the youth of each generation, strong in their own opinions, think they are going to clean up all the wrongs that are so apparent, but step by step along the pathway of life they find they have to compromise here, drop the program there, and this is due to the inexorable pressure of events and circumstances beyond their control.

Well, to use a business phrase, what is the great "overhead" that is burdening the human race that presses so hard on each generation, or, in other words, what are our physical, mental, moral, and spiritual limitations? To specify:

The Physical: we must have food, drink, raiment, and shelter, and you know the limitations of same, as food and drink will normally only last the human system a few hours, and raiment and shelter only comparatively a little longer. It must be constantly replaced, and as we all grow older we realize how short life is.

The Mental: however bright, mentally, we may be, we all realize our limitations, and it is a common saying by those who are the deepest students in any field of endeavor that they find by the time they are old and just getting into the subject they are only beginning to touch the great reservoirs of knowledge, or as one great student put it—"he felt he was as a child playing with the pebbles on the seashore with the great ocean of fact and knowledge stretching away into illimitable distance."

The Moral: it has been amply demonstrated that man in himself is not a moral being, and only as he comes in contact with God and is taught and given standards by Him has he any conception of morality or the laws of right and wrong.

The Spiritual: almost the same remarks might be made about this, as apart from a revelation from God of Himself, man's conception of things spiritual is crude, unformed, and confined only to those things to which he can physically apply his senses, such as worshiping the sun, moon, stars, and other men.

Let us briefly enumerate the "overhead" in our lives in this age of all ages where mankind with his inventions has done more to lighten the load than perhaps any previous time in the world's history. We have twenty-four hours in the day, and how are they used?

Well, I still need to sleep . . . . .	8 hours
I must work . . . . .	8 hours
Going to and from work . . . . .	2 hours
(Or, if I work on a farm near my work, the workday is ten hours, instead of eight.)
Eating and incidentals . . . . .	3 hours
Doing what I like to do . . . . .	3 hours
(Less, of course, the natural restrictions that we all have.)

Total . . . . . 24 hours

This, of course, is an attempt to state an average. Some persons do not get any free time, and some get more—owing to the fact that they are living off the excess labor of someone else who does not have any free time. I am inclined to believe if I asked a large number of average people if they averaged three hours per day for pleasure, recreation, study, constructive thinking, or something in which the element of compulsion was not found, the reply I would get would be that three hours was too high an average. Ask, for instance, the busy housewife with her family to look after, or the busy man who tries to keep a garden to help out the livelihood, and you would probably get about the same answer that the little boy gave when he saw the giraffe—"There ain't no such animal." Well, to numberless people, the theoretical average of three hours leisure simply does not exist.

Then, out of this three hours which we will say mankind has, how much real constructive thinking and doing do you think the average man does. It reduces it down pretty small, does it not? When one takes into consideration the shortness of the years of each generation's life—getting right down to "brass tacks"—it really is not hard to understand why mankind has not made greater advances than it has. Really, the wonder is that it has been able to do the things it has done.

Now, I desire to state and point out that these limitations are our problem today, and they have been the great difficulty of all past generations, and I affirm boldly it has not and does not now lie in man's power to overcome them except by guidance and help from the source of life and wisdom, that is, God, through the channel He has provided. How can man get this great burden of overhead off his back? Is it not becoming clearer and clearer, as we go along, how supremely necessary to the world is a remedy that will cope with this situation, and really solve it?

You, who are fast approaching the end of this life, know you need something outside of yourself to stop advancing infirmities and death. Those of younger years, with youth and vigor still running strong in your body, feel self-reliant, but the inexorable and unwelcome fact (unless Christ should come before that time) is that in not so many years you will be in the same position as your parents. Their nature is yours, as is your children's. Oh, how many millions of parents in each generation have cried aloud, "If I could only live longer, if I could only have health and strength to put to use the knowledge I have gained! Oh, if I could only pass on to my children the lessons I have learned in the bitter School of Experience, so they could start where I left off!" The world would progress faster if it were so, but the brutal, hard fact is that each generation must learn its own lessons. Because, for instance, I may be the most learned Bible student, know more about mathematics, astronomy, electricity, or the arts, does not prevent my children from having to learn their ABC's.

To illustrate this, I ask a hypothetical question. If the child of the most learned man in the world at the tender age of one year was left on an island entirely away from any contact with the world, so it had no access to the literature, culture, and speech of the world, but was simply left in the care of a deaf mute who only knew enough to administer to the physical wants of the child, so it could grow, do you not believe, as I do, that the child when grown would not even have the power or ability of speaking intelligently any language? It would simply have to grope after knowledge from the things it could observe or impressions it would receive from its senses. The child would have to begin where our forefathers did, and the fact is the learning of the father is not transmittable to the child under such circumstances. You would never have known your letters unless you had heard them from some outside source.

Mankind turns and twists in its efforts to find a remedy. This theory and that are advanced to overcome the great impregnable stone wall upon which it is battering itself to pieces. That man is not in necessity of a solution, as everything is all right, is even advanced by some. The fact remains: those who claim there is no need of a solution pass off the scene of life and are heard of no more. One would think if there was this supreme problem of humanity, and there was an adequate answer easy of access, that when found, everybody would be glad to accept it. The sad fact is that man wants to find his own remedy and does not want to accept a remedy coming from an outside source, though it is from the Source of wisdom through revelation. God, let me state, is the only possible Source of the remedy, because it takes the conception, ability, and power of the Divine to plan and execute the remedy.

The simple answer to the cause of all this great burden is found in God's revelation to man, the Bible, and it all comes back to sin and the consequences of sin. Sin and its consequences are inextricably interwoven into my very being, and I can no more eradicate same through my unaided efforts than I can lift myself by my own bootstraps.

Nothing I have said here, however, should be construed to mean we should not try to improve ourselves, our conditions, and surroundings. It is right, and our duty to do so, but I am trying to point out the fact that in our present state, there are such things as definite limitations. These very limitations are real and make up the largest proportion of our burden. Also, in our present state, without the intervention of an outside and divine force, we are helpless to lift the burden or remove the limitations.

Yes, the necessity is here, and it is the supreme problem of the world? Is there an answer that adequately fits this case? Yes, there is, (Please turn to page 10)

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

A Serial—Part Three

By A. L. Corbaley

Who is to be Israel's future King of whom it is said, "It (the Kingdom) shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him"? The answer is found in both the Old and New Testaments.

Jesus, the Coming King

"Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

Who is this child that was to be born to Israel, who was to "reign over the house of Jacob for ever"? In Luke 1:26-33 we find the answer. The Angel Gabriel was sent to Mary, a virgin "espoused" to Joseph. "The angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." So, Jesus is the one who is to restore the throne of David, and the one who will restore the Kingdom to Israel.

When will that throne be restored? When will Jesus reign over the house of Jacob? "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory" (Matt. 25:31). So, when Jesus comes He will restore that throne and the Kingdom of Israel, and will "reign over the house of Jacob for ever."

All Nations Will Drink

The prophecy concerning Jerusalem and her people, the Jews, the first nation to drink of the "cup of fury from the Lord," will be literally fulfilled and finished when Jesus comes. We can be sure, though, that as literally as the Jews are being punished, whatever is said about the other nations drinking of that cup will also happen to them. God mentioned Egypt, Jeremiah 25:19, as being the next nation to drink of the cup of His fury. Then, He named many other nations who will drink of the cup, and in verse 26 we read, "All the kings of the north, far and near, one with another, and all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth: and the king of Sheshach shall drink after them."

The question, naturally arises, If all the kingdoms upon the face of the earth drink of that cup of fury, who then is Sheshach who is to drink after them? The term is used only once in all the rest of the Bible, in Jeremiah 51:41, where it is applied to Babylon. The term has the same meaning as Babel or Babylon, that is, confusion or tumult. The king of Sheshach would refer, therefore, to the leader of a great tumult or confusion that will come upon the armies of the nations when they drink of the cup of fury from the Lord.

In Jeremiah 25:27-29, we read about the effect drinking of the cup of fury will have on all the nations. "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Drink ye, and be drunken, and spue, and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you. And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup at thine hand to drink, then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Ye shall certainly drink. For, lo, I begin to bring evil upon the city which is called by my name, and should ye be utterly unpunished? Ye shall not be unpunished: for I will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the Lord of hosts." From these statements, we can be certain that the present conflict will spread until all nations of the earth are engaged in the deadly conflict. So, once more the world will be "filled with violence as it was in the days of Noah (Gen. 6:11).

"As It Was in the Days of Noe"

In Matthew 24:37-42, we have a comparison between the days of Noah and the days to precede the coming of Jesus. "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." In Mark 13:36, Jesus added, "Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping."

Noah built an ark: "Being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house." If he had failed to obey God, and had not built the ark, he would have been drowned as were the other people of the world. Now, "perilous times" of the "last days" are here (2 Tim. 3:1). Men are "lovers of their own selves." Has not God warned us, and provided a way by which we can escape these perils of the last days? In 1 Peter 3:20, 21, we read that as "few, that is eight souls were saved by water" in Noah's day, salvation is now provided for those who accept the gospel—Noah's salvation being "the like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." As Noah warned the wicked people of his time that the Flood was coming, the true ministry today warns of Christ's coming to judge the earth. Baptism into Christ is the present ark of safety. Someone might ask, "How do you know that Noah warned the people of his day that the Flood was coming?" In 2 Peter 2:5 we read that God "spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly." This "preacher of righteousness" showed his faith in God's Word by building the ark while he was warning the people. Later, the ark floated upon the surface of the water, and so saved the "eight souls" from drowning; but all others perished by the water.

"Repent and Be Baptized"

If Noah and his family were saved by the ark, what will now save men from the destruction that is coming upon the world? Peter's reply is: "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us." Then, it is an absolute necessity for one to be baptized to be saved—as necessary as it was for Noah to enter the ark.

Baptism, though, is not all that is necessary for one's salvation? In Hebrews 11:6 we read, "Without faith it is impossible to please him (God)." Then, in James 2:20 it is written, "Faith without works is dead." So we must have both faith and works. Paul said, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1:16). Thus, one cannot be saved without believing the gospel. In Acts 8:12 we read, "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." So, there is something very definite in which one must believe before he is baptized. He must believe in the prophecies about the coming Kingdom!

In Acts 2:38 the Apostle Peter, when the Jews cried out, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" said to them: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." So, to repent is also necessary to salvation. Ananias said to Paul, "Now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16). Then, in order to be saved, one must believe the gospel of the Kingdom of God and in the things that relate to the name of Jesus Christ, he must repent of his sins, and be baptized for the remission of his sins.

Christian Growth

What is one to do next? Beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:5-11). These are the characteristics which one must cultivate to be successful in the race for eternal life. If they are not built into his character he will fail to gain an entrance into the Kingdom of God.

Escaping God's Wrath Upon the Nations

The Flood did not commence until seven days after Noah went into the ark. We believe the saints will likewise be in a place of security when the Battle of Armageddon is fought, in which Battle the armies of the world will be destroyed.

In 1 Thessalonians 4:16-18 we read of the coming of the Lord from heaven "with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." This describes the resurrection of the righteous dead, and the translation of the righteous living. They will arise "to meet the Lord in the air."

Now, let us turn to Isaiah 26:19-21, where we read of the resurrection of the same class, the righteous: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." The next verses tell us what the Lord will say to the saints when they meet Him in the air: "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity."

So, the saints will stay in this place of refuge, between heaven and earth, "a little moment, until the indignation be overpast." How long this "little moment" will be, during which "the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth," is not revealed, but the saints will stay there until the punishment is finished.

The Wrath of God

Now, we shall see how the Lord will punish the people on the earth, and the result of that punishment. Turn to Revelation 19:11-13, where we read: "I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, that no man knew, but he himself. And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God." In John 1:14 we read, "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us," so the expression, "the Word of God," refers to Jesus. "The armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God; that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great. And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshipped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone. And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh" (vv. 14-21). These passages clearly teach the absolute destruction of the armies of the world, which armies will resist the Lord when He comes.

Who are they that will compose the "armies of heaven," who will come with Jesus? We find the answer in 2 Thessalonians 1:7-10: "To you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power; when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe . . . in that day." So, the angels of heaven are the ones who will compose the army which will come to the earth and destroy the armies of the world.

In speaking of the return of Jesus and the resurrection of the righteous dead, we read in 1 Thessalonians 5:2, 3: "Yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them." When the Armistice was signed November 11, 1918, the world shouted with joy, many claiming there would be no more wars in a thousand years, and that all disputes would be settled by arbitration. The League of Nations was formed, and the Kellogg Pact was entered into, but today we can see how futile all of men's efforts have been to maintain peace among the nations. God's Word has said: "Behold, their valiant ones shall cry without: the ambassadors of peace shall weep bitterly" (Isa. 33:7).

We read in Zephaniah 1:14-18: "The great day of the Lord is near, it is near, and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of the Lord: The mighty man shall cry there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord: and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as the dung. Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he shall make even a speedy riddance of all them that dwell in the land." These verses need only little comment. The distress and trouble we see coming upon the world is because of the sinfulness of the people—they have forgotten God, and are destroying one another. In the place of sending a flood of water, as in the days of Noah, these evil conditions are coming upon the people of the world.

Again, in Zephaniah 3:6-9 we read what the Lord intends to do with the nations of the world: "I have cut off the nations: their towers are desolate; I made their streets waste, that none passeth by: their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, that there is none inhabitant. I said, Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive instruction; so their dwelling should not be cut off, howsoever I punished them: but they rose early, and corrupted all their doings. Therefore wait ye upon me, saith the Lord, until the day that I rise up to the prey: for my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy. For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one consent."

In Zephaniah 2:1-3, the Lord gives advice to His people, telling them how they should conduct themselves in these evil times to be under His protecting care: "Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation not desired; before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, before the day of the Lord's anger come upon you. Seek ye the Lord, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger." Isaiah has already told us where they will be hid, when they arise to meet the Lord in the air (Isa. 26:19, 20).

Before the saints are caught away to meet the Lord in the air, all nations will be engaged in a world war. Great Britain and her allies will attempt to hold back Gog (Russia, Germany, and all their allied forces) from invading the land of Palestine. (Ezek. 38:10-16; Dan. 12:1-3; Jer. 25:29; Gen. 6:11; Luke 21:25-27.)

Herod, a Type

The Wise Men came from the East, following the star of Bethlehem which guided them to where Jesus was born, and they came "to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him" (Matt. 2:1, 2). When Herod the king heard these things, "he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born. And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judaea: for thus it is written by the prophet, And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel. Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also" (vv. 3-8). When they found the child, and offered their gifts, "being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way" (v. 12). Joseph was also warned in a dream, so he took the child and its mother and departed into Egypt.

Why was Herod so anxious to find out just where the young child was? Did he really desire to worship Jesus? We find the following account in Matthew 2:16: "Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently enquired of the wise men." An estimate has been made of the number of little children that were slain by order of Herod. It is placed, in the least, at twenty thousand. What was his object in having so many little children slain? He believed the little Child, if allowed to live, would take his position as ruler in Judea. Although Herod believed enough in the Scriptures to go to the priests to find out where Christ was to be born, he thought he could thwart God's plan of having Christ rule Judea by destroying Him when He was only a little child.

The foregoing is a type of what the present rulers of the world will do when they learn that living righteous people have disappeared instantly. Jesus having prophesied: "Two shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left" (Matt. 24:40, 41). How quickly will the one disappear who is taken? "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump" (1 Cor. 15:52). There will then be no time for a change of character, so the Saviour warns: "Watch . . . lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping" (Mark 13:35-37).

The rulers of the world will then learn from the Scriptures, and from those who faithfully believed in His coming and who were, therefore among those rejected, that Christ's judgment will soon begin. Christ is coming "with ten thousands of his saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds" (Jude 1:14, 15). "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (Psalm 72:8). "The Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee. . . . In that day . . . the Lord shall be king over all the earth" (Zech. 14:5-9). "Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously" (Isa. 24:23). So, the nations will soon know—in these days of radios and telephones—that Christ and His saints are to rule the world in righteousness, and that "in the days of these kings, the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44).

A Plea to the Nations

Let us now turn to Psalm 2:1-9 to learn what effect this knowledge will have upon the warring nations. "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision. Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure. Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. . . . Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potters' vessel." (To be continued)

That Formidable Monster, the Tavern

By Terry Ferrell

AN EVIL that seems to be common with man is the craving for alcohol. This craving for drink has caused many taverns and roadhouses to be established everywhere throughout the country. These taverns and roadhouses, considered as a whole, are as a great dreamland monster roaming about the country, visiting every town, village, and city alike, leaving broken lives and divided families in its wake. Free and unmolested, the monster has been permitted to take its prey, but with the undying efforts of such organizations as the Anti-Saloon League and the Women's Christian Temperance Union, a few victims have been torn from its clutches. It will not be until it is put in chains, that mankind will have safety.

Well does God's Word warn: "Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things. . . . They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not sick . . . when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again."

The saloon "in the good old days" was much publicized as being the haunt of "hard" men and "tough" women. Shooting was not infrequent, and gambling for "big money" was not uncommon. The saloons were not patronized by respectable people, and children were not to be seen in such places of destruction. Those saloons are existent at the present time—they are disguised in new clothing, in the form of taverns and cocktail lounges. Women and children frequent the taverns and cocktail lounges as they would any respectable place of business, yet there is no difference between them and the saloons of former days, unless it would be that the taverns are worse.

The influence of the tavern is so wide-spread, its disastrous results upon the community and nation are alarming. Taverns are so plentiful, it is no wonder that they hold such a sway on the people. In Illinois, alone, there are 21,000 taverns, 11,000 of which are in the city of Chicago. On our way from the Students' Home to the Bible Training School there are three taverns in two blocks, with one in the same block as the School building.

The cause of education is largely defeated, in that the larger percentage of indulgers are young and strong. Everyone of us can recall some person who may have been a very brilliant and outstanding scholar or athlete, but who "met his Waterloo" when he started drinking. There are cases similar to that in everyone's home town, and the general result is that progress is being hindered.

To get a better understanding of the effect liquor has on the American people, let us notice a few statistics. Although the basic cause for epilepsy is not known, it is believed by those who are in constant contact with victims of that disease that alcohol is one of the main causes for that condition. From this conclusion, it is believed that from one third to one half of the cases of epilepsy and imbecility are caused from the use of alcohol.

In a research conducted in seventeen prisons, housing 13,401 inmates, it was estimated that fifty per cent were imprisoned, directly or indirectly, because of alcohol.

It is also estimated that twenty per cent of the divorces, twenty-five per cent of the insanity, twenty-seven per cent of the poverty, forty per cent of the child misery, and over fifty per cent of the crime in the United States, is caused, directly or indirectly, from alcohol.

These figures should present a challenge to every church-going and God-fearing person. Where there is drunkenness there can be no godliness. In the average community there are more taverns than churches. The aim of the tavern is—"Everybody a drinker." One aim of the church might be to bring to an end the reign of this formidable monster, the tavern.

Where Are the Dead?

In Two Parts—Part Two

NOTICE again why our Lord died for our redemption, and see in that another evidence of the penalty. If the penalty against us had been eternal torment, redemption from it would have cost our Lord that price. He would have been obliged to suffer eternal torment, the Just for the unjust. But eternal torment was not the penalty; hence Jesus did not suffer that penalty for us. Death was the penalty, and hence, "Christ died for our sins." "By the grace of God he tasted death for every man." Whoever could pay Adam's penalty could settle with Divine Justice for the sins of the whole world, because Adam alone had been tried—Adam alone had been condemned. We, his children, were involved through him. Behold the wisdom and the economy of our Creator! The Scriptures assure us that He condemned the whole world for one man's disobedience, in order that He might have mercy upon all through the obedience of another—Christ. We were condemned to death without our consent or knowledge. We were redeemed from death without our consent or knowledge.

Someone may inquire, "Are we, therefore, without responsibility? Will there be no individual penalty upon us for individual wrongdoing?" We answer, "A just recompense of reward" will be meted out to all; but our eternal destiny can be settled only by ourselves, by our individual acceptance or rejection of the grace of God. The Scriptures clearly inform us that every sin, in proportion to its willfulness, brings a measure of degradation, which involves "stripes," chastisements, corrections, to regain the lost standing. Thus the more mean and more wicked a man or woman may be, the greater will be his or her disadvantage in the resurrection time, and the more they will then have to overcome, to get back to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed by Christ.

"And the Dead Came Forth"

At His first Advent our Lord's miracles foreshadowed the great work which He, with His glorified church, will accomplish for the world during the Millennium. Then all the sick, lame, blind, and deaf will be revived, and, if obedient, will be brought ultimately to full perfection. The disobedient will be destroyed in the second death. The most notable miracle which our Lord performed was the awakening of Lazarus, His friend. Jesus had been gone several days when Lazarus took sick, and, of course, knew about the matter. Nevertheless, Martha and Mary sent Him a special message, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick" (John 11:3). They knew of Jesus' power to heal, even by the word of His mouth.

They had faith that if He could help strangers, He would surely be glad to assist His friend. But Jesus remained where He was and allowed Lazarus to die, and a rude shock to come to the sisters. Then He said to His disciples, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth" (John 11:11). Then, coming down to their comprehension, He added, "Lazarus is dead. And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there" (vv. 14, 15). On arriving at the tomb, Jesus prayed and cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth." And we read that, "He that was dead came forth." Mark well that it was not the living that came forth, but that Lazarus that was really dead. Mark well that he was not called from heaven, nor from purgatory.

"All That Are in the Graves"

What Jesus did for Lazarus He intimated He would ultimately do for Adam and his entire race. Note His words: "The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth" (John 5:28, 29). Does this astonish us? If so, the reason is not far to seek. It is because we have gotten so far away from the teachings of the Bible, so fully immersed in unsound doctrines, have come so fully to believe in the Serpent's lie, "Ye shall not surely die," so blinded to the Lord's declaration, "Ye shall surely die," and "the wages of sin is death."

The remainder of John 5:29 explains that there will be two general classes of the dead to come forth. The first, those who have had their trial and who have passed it successfully; the second, all the remainder of mankind who have thus far failed to have divine approval. The approved will come forth from the tomb unto a resurrection of life—perfection. The disapproved will come forth "unto a resurrection of judgment" (see R.V.). The coming forth is one thing; the resurrection is another. The Apostle explains that they will come forth, "every man in his own order" (1 Cor. 15:23). On thus being awakened, the privilege will be theirs of rising up, up, up out of the degradation—mental, moral, physical—to the glorious perfection which Adam enjoyed in the image and likeness of his Creator. The uplifting or resurrection work Peter refers to as "the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21).

Let us be reminded again of our Lord's teaching on this subject. He entered the synagogue at Capernaum, and, being asked to read the lesson, He chose Isaiah 61, and read respecting Himself and His work—that a part of it would be "to open the prison doors and set at liberty the captives." We are well aware that our Lord did not open any of the literal prisons, such as that in which John the Baptist was confined. He made no effort to succor him. The prison-house which Christ will open is the great prison-house, the tomb, which now holds approximately twenty thousand millions of our race. At His Second Advent, our Lord will open this great prison-house and cause all the prisoners to come forth, just as truly as He did in the case of Lazarus. Nor will He call them from heaven, purgatory, or hell, but just as He declared, "Lazarus, come forth," so "all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth."

From what we have presented, foregoing, it becomes most manifest that the hope of the dead lies in the promise of the resurrection; that during this interim between death and the awakening time the world of mankind, even though they know not the Lord as yet, are spoken of as being "asleep." . . . Because, as the whole world was under condemnation of death through Adam, and that without knowledge or volition on their part, at the time of the sentence, for they were then in the loins of their father Adam, so now, since Jesus laid down His life a ransom for all, and because they all shall be awakened from death, therefore, it is proper for all those who are aware of the divine provision for the awakening, by faith to speak of the interim figuratively as a sleep.

Further, the Apostle exhorts us to trust and hope in the resurrection as respects all our dear friends who go down into the prison-house of death, and not merely as respects those who were sanctified in Christ Jesus, which would include, as a rule, only a small proportion of those for whom we would be inclined to sorrow. He says, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep (all of our sleeping friends), that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died ( a ransom for all) and rose again (that He might be Lord and Life-giver to all), even so (let us believe as truly that) them also which sleep in Jesus (all whom He purchases with His precious blood) will God bring with him (from the prison-house of death)."

Nor does this mean universal everlasting life, for the Scripture declares that such as refuse to profit by the glorious opportunities of the Millennium, such as refuse to be uplifted to perfection, shall be destroyed from among the people, in the second death—"they shall be as though they had not been" (Obad. 16). Thus seen, the thousand years of the reign of Messiah and His faithful disciples will be the world's judgment or trial day—that trial will culminate either in their sentence to the second death, incorrigible, and unworthy of the gift of God, eternal life—or in their perfection, and their final adjudgment of worthiness to have and enjoy the great boon of life eternal, under the blessed conditions which are then promised to prevail—when there shall be no more sighing, no more dying, no more crying, because there will be no more sin and none of the penalties for sin, for all the "former things" shall have "passed away" (Rev. 21:4).

THE WORLD'S SUPREME NECESSITY

right here in the Bible, and it is a complete and adequate one.

The answer to this problem is the coming back to this earth in power and majesty of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and the exercise of this power along the lines of the plan of redemption. This will overcome all that is now wrong with the world. We do not have the power ourselves, but Jesus has, for He said that all power was given to Him, both in heaven and in earth. The manner of its application to us in an individual sense is dependent upon whether or not we have complied with the conditions laid down of God. Yes, we all need Christ to return. Why? Because He has said He will lift this great burden of overhead from mankind and, as I said, He has the power to do it. The setting up of His Kingdom will supply the very needs we have been enumerating.

Let us briefly go over some promises made in the Bible to remedy this "fix" in which God knows we are:

Eternal life: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14, 15).

"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23).

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10).

"God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things have passed away" (Rev. 21:4).

The physical: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (Isa. 40:31).

"He shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him: and they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither the light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 22:1-5).

The mental, moral, and spiritual qualities are very closely interwoven, and I really know of no better text to illustrate the complete change that will take place upon Christ's return to those who love His appearing than:

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2).

Cannot we now see more clearly why Christ should pray for the coming of God's Kingdom on this earth, so His will would be done perfectly as it was then and is now being done perfectly in heaven? Cannot we echo with longing, the cry of John—"Even so, come, Lord Jesus"? His coming will answer the great question of the ages. May we all realize how indebted we are, not only to God who planned all this for those who accept His Son, but also for Christ's sacrifice upon the cross that made it possible. Christ is our necessity now, and the necessity of every living creature. His coming means there is to be no more curse. We should accept Him before it is too late. He will take the burden off our hearts, and He will give us eternal life and happiness when He comes.

Jesus Christ, and His return in majesty and power to this earth, are inseparable and inevitable. May we be ready, not only as a denomination, but as individuals, to meet Him, is my prayer.

PRESSING TOWARD THE PRIZE

indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil" (Rom. 2:6-9).

Obviously, the prize is for the one who qualifies and seeks, and he who seeks will surely find (Matt. 7:7, 8). When Jesus comes, He will "give every man according as his work shall be" (Rev. 22:12). To those who have suffered with Him will be given eternal "joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Peter 1:8), and "no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly" (Psalm 84:11).

"Occupy Till I Come"

Until Jesus returns, the Church of God must "press" faithfully forward "toward the mark (the finish goal) for the prize." The Lord has committed His talents to His servants, and not one talent dare be buried in the ground. There is gospel work waiting to be done. "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof" (Rom. 13:12-14).

During the last generation or two, members of the Church of God have accomplished so little in gospel work that we might feel somewhat ashamed, if not condemned, but God both knows and is greater than our hearts. If we henceforth will to progress, we shall progress. God gave victory to Gideon's three hundred. The future of the Church of God will be either rust or rapture: we can, by doing nothing, rust into oblivion, or, by faithfully occupying until Jesus comes, be ready to meet Him "in the air" (1 Thess. 4:17).

"Redeeming the Time"

"Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. . . . Walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil" (Eph. 5:14-16). Jesus prophesied, "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved" (Matt. 24:12, 13). Plainly, many nominal Christians will in the last days be so discouraged as to become quitters; but true Christians, knowing that the evil days portend the brighter days of Jesus' presence, will speedily use every opportunity to serve, pressing toward the goal—"redeeming the time, because the days are evil."

As in the days of Haggai, the timid may cry, "The time is not come" (Hag. 1:2), but, as in the days of this Prophet, his voice can again be heard, crying in reply: "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house (God's living Temple today) lie waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts; Consider your ways" (vv. 5, 6).

The time is ripe for the Church of God to evangelize. The time is ripe for the Church of God to provide both Biblical and collegiate education for our youth. The time is ripe for the Church of God to care for our retired ministers. The time is ripe for the Church of God to publish and distribute tens of thousands of tracts and books from the pens of our leading minds. The time is ripe for the Church of God to send Christ-inspired and Paul-devoted workers into every state of the United States, into every province of Canada, into Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, Mexico, South America, and "unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8). "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14).

Who gains the prize must first resolutely run the race. We press toward the prize. Behold, the goal is drawing near! Who dares to falter now?

Be Beautiful

Perhaps you boy readers do not like to admit it, but surely you look into a mirror sometimes. You girl readers probably gaze at yourselves a little more often. However, today we are going to get "fixed up" a bit. Now, how can we do that properly without a mirror?

James tells us that the Bible can be our mirror. Yes, we will find many reflections in the words of the Sacred Book. "If any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass: for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the word, this man shall be blessed in his deed" (James 1:23-25). What plainer words need we read to inform us that the Word can be our mirror? Where, except in our Bibles, can we learn of the "perfect law of liberty"?

Now that we have our mirror, we need some light. Who can see himself clearly without a light? Listen: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm 119:105). "My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother. . . . The commandment is a lamp; and the law is light" (Prov. 6:20-23). So, we see there are many lights in our Bibles. Also, let us read a portion of 2 Samuel 22:29: "Thou art my lamp, O Lord."

There is one other light of great importance. Turn that one on nearest you! "Ye are the light of the world . . . Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:14, 16). "Ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light" (Eph. 5:8).

Now, with the lights shining brightly, let's sit here in comfort and take a look at ourselves, using this mirror.

Oh! Oh! See those blemishes? Those dark patches! And that sore! "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need" (1 John 3:17), and does nothing about helping that brother—that person has not the love of God in his heart. "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also" (1 John 4:20, 21).

What else do we see in our mirror? "Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away" (2 Tim. 3:2-5).

True Beauty

Many ladies in the Bible are called beautiful. The heart of a Christian is not centered in her beauty, or in such things as outward adornment. Peter says: "Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price" (1 Peter 3:3, 4). Let this new mirror shapen your lives so that your true beauty may be revealed.

Words of Beauty

"As he thinketh in his heart, so is he" (Prov. 23:7). That being true, here is the answer as to what we should think upon: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true . . . honest . . . just . . . pure . . . lovely . . . of good report . . . think on these things" (Phil. 4:8).

Don't forget to look in your mirror again tomorrow!

Looking Forward

* * *

By Vivian Kirkpatrick, Oregon, Ill.

If you will turn back to the Berean Page in The Restitution Herald of August 19, you will find the report of the business meeting of the National Berean Society. Combined into this one report were the appointments of committee chairmen and projects for this coming year—thus we began!

However, now that we have made the beginning, is it your wish that we cease to function actively for another eleven months, or shall we—national, state, local, and individual Bereans—get our shoulders, and heads, behind the wheel of Berean progress and get it to rolling?

“Co-operation” is the key word of progress. The national officers cannot be figureheads without the active backing of the state and isolated societies. State societies cannot function without the active backing of the local societies, just as a local society cannot exist without active Bereans. Each is dependent upon the other.

The National Board is desirous of working, and has made some definite plans to help each society for the unification of the whole body, for drawing scattered individuals into closer friendship and fellowship. Are you behind us?

From time to time you will learn more of these plans we have made. We seek constructive criticism. By that I do not mean we seek for a blind acceptance of ideas presented. I do not mean we are to be told the idea is not practical or usable—that is destructive criticism. What I do mean is that if the suggestion does not meet with your approval you tell us why it does not, and suggest ways and means for improvement.

How may we help you? That is what we want to know.

It has been suggested that only a small percentage of Bereans are able to attend General Conference to become better acquainted with one another. We hope we have a plan now which will remedy the situation, and will at least bring those Bereans of like interests into closer communion.

For a number of years there has been considerable criticism of the type of Berean study material published in the Berean books. We have heeded that criticism and plan to have ready for your study, by January 1, 1942, an entirely new course of study. Brother James Watkins will bring our ideas to your attention shortly.

Our Berean Constitution was last revised and printed in 1929. That printing is now exhausted and many revisions have since been made. We plan to print an up-to-date issue of the Constitution after the Berean Conference of 1942.

Now, we await your desires, your suggestions, and your criticisms. By working together, may we all make of this coming year a banner Berean year.

Making the Choice

* * *

By Mary Richardson, Hammond, La.

All through life there are moments when individuals are faced with facts requiring decisions. Intelligent individuals with foresight will weigh the facts carefully and, thereby, reach a logical and plausible decision—one which is advantageous to all concerned. Some people, though, seem to make few correct decisions, for either they are narrow-minded and selfish, or they wish to gratify their own desires.

One who has not yet accepted Christ as his Saviour is probably faced with the question, “Should I follow this Jesus, choosing Him rather than the world?”

There is a subjective conflict in the mind of the person who is debating the above question, but if he has good reasoning faculties he will know how to deal with a problem of this nature. If he has any stability of character, he will readily and willingly accept Christ as his Saviour and choose Christ as his example.

There are some people, who, when confronted with the question of accepting Christ, will laugh and shun you for believing such a “fairy story,” as they call it. They will tell you that you are wasting your time on such unsupported claims. These people will always continue on the downward path to destruction, because they refuse to believe in Jesus Christ as the Life-giver.

The Christian life, as experienced by those who really try to live it, is one filled with happiness, joy, contentment, and solace. God’s blessings are poured out upon those who are truly His servants. The person making this decision has all to gain and nothing to lose. Why not make this important choice today?

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF EVANGELISM

Sept. 20, 21—Illinois Quarterly Conference at Salem Church near Marshall

GOD NEEDS YOUTH

In both Old and New Testament times, God has frequently called youth in His work. David was anointed in his youth; Jesus, even at the time of His ministry, was a young man. Solomon said, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth" (Ecc. 12:1), and Jeremiah said, "It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth" (Lam. 3:27). Paul, writing to Timothy, said, "Let no man despise thy youth" (1 Tim. 4:12). God needs young men and young women today. Week by week, the old pioneers of the Church of God are finishing their faithfully run courses, leaving places in the front-line trenches of service to be occupied by volunteers. Youth must heed the call, if the Church of God is to properly fulfill its mission to the world.

It was the youth of the Church of God who asked for a Bible Training School; and it is for the youth of the Church of God that there is today a Bible Training School. Thus, as we approach the opening day of the School's third term, September 16, 1941, we make this final call to our young men and young women who have completed their high school education: ENROLL TODAY IN THE BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Courses of study for the first semester are: Church Auxiliaries, Millennial Prophecy, Church History, Religious Psychology, Religious Art, Public Speaking, Geographical Palestine, Bible History, and Pastoral Technique. The cost per student for board, room, and tuition is thirty dollars per month. We have sufficient facilities to care for several more students, and would be especially glad to enroll more freshmen who plan to complete the three-year course. This is our last call for this semester. School will start at 8:00 a.m., Tuesday, September 16. Use the enrollment coupon on opposite page. Be here when the first bell rings.

Sydney E. Magaw, Dean.

"I love to read The Restitution Herald. When everything is so upset, I think we ought to keep informed of the times so we can be on the watch for the coming of our King."—Hattie M. Poland, Los Alamitos, Calif.

OHIO BEREANS

During a discussion among a group of faithful Bible students, Bro. M. W. Lyon moved that "wheels" be set in motion to form an Ohio Berean Society, and the deliberations which followed resulted in the election of the following officers to conduct the business of such an organization: Amy Dunbar Frye, president; Mildred Macy, first vice president; Eunice Halls, second vice president; Clark Ballentine, secretary; and Ruth Tomlinson, treasurer.

A Constitution Committee and a Program Committee will soon be working under the direction of our president to make our society a real live one. So, Bereans, will you please co-operate to the utmost if and when you hear from any of the committee or officers.

Clark Ballentine, Secy.

YOUR ATTENTION, PLEASE

They say it pays to advertise, and I know it's true, for we sell any number of books that are advertised in Bro. Arlen Marsh's column.

We aren't trying to sell you something, but we want you to know that to keep The Restitution Herald coming to you each week all year it is necessary for us to buy paper stock at least twice a year. We have recently (in August) purchased enough stock to keep The Herald coming to you a few more months, BUT we need money to pay for it. The paper company is already paid, but to pay our bill it was necessary to borrow the money. We also had a bill for remodeling our offices this summer (painter's and plumber's bills not in as yet) which has been paid with borrowed money. These two bills total over five hundred dollars—$511.67.

We appreciate your help at all times, but we shall especially appreciate some extra help right now, that we may pay our bills and keep the Lord's work growing. Please! Please! We do need money. Can you help? Will you?

Orpha LeMasurier, Treasurer.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. John Mercer, pastor of the Church of God at St. Cloud, Minn., plans this fall to attend Marquette University in Michigan.

"Hello folks: I arrived at the home of Clarke and Margaret Gilbey, Winona, Ont., August 20. Mother and I are doing well, thank you. Daddy is recovering, too. All four grandparents seem pleased, and so does my great-grandmother; so I think I'll stay. I am looking forward to the time when I, too, can read The Restitution Herald, and maybe attend General Conference. My name is Maynard Clarke Gilbey."

We are sorry to report the death of Sr. C. H. Horton, Lometa, Texas, which occurred August 11, 1941.

Bro. and Sr. L. E. Conner, Bro. and Sr. G. H. Loudenslager, Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay, and Bro. and Sr. George Siple are vacationing in good old Minnesota where the fish bite best.

"God expects spiritual fruit, and not religious 'nuts'!"—C. Alan McLain, Oregon, Ill.

Sr. Edna Brewer, matron of the Students' Home, has been visiting with her daughter, Sr. Louise Lapp, Macomb, Ill., but will soon return to her duties at Oregon, Ill. Daughter Louise writes: "She should be all rested up for the beginning of the Bible Training School!"

The Bible Training School is appreciative of a mangle (not the kind you eat) recently given to the Students' Home by friends at Delta, Ohio. We understand that faithful Sr. Alfred Reighard first thought of making the gift, other brethren at Delta quickly and cheerfully co-operating. Thank you, brethren, for both the gift (which will greatly help Sr. Brewer, our matron) and for your interest that prompted the gift.

Bro. Harvey Krogh, Sr., of Blair, Nebr., his brother Raymond and wife, their son Bob, and an aunt of the Krogh brothers, Mrs. Minnie Bugeon, pleasantly surprised the editor and family with a brief stopover visit, September 1, while en route to Chicago.

EVANGELISTIC FIELD NEWS

Incidental to our recent trip to the Virginia Conference, we visited three points under discussion by the Board of Evangelism as prospective fields for immediate effort.

This is a comparatively new field of endeavor. The people are coal miners, isolated in a large measure by the mountainous region. They have obtained a dwelling from which they have removed some of the partitions for the purpose of making an auditorium, leaving some small rooms for additional class rooms.

The Board of Evangelism is making a search for prospective fields of missionary activity, and will welcome correspondence in such regard.

In the near future we hope to contact the membership by personal letter, introducing the work and plans of the Board of Evangelism.

Contributions are coming in steadily from the field in support of evangelism. We hope to acknowledge these individually as soon as forms for that purpose have been prepared.

Add your prayers to the effort of evangelism. Board of Evangelism, J. W. McLain, Chairman.

DELTA, OHIO, CHURCH

It was our rare pleasure and privilege to have Bro. and Sr. Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley, Minn., with us for several days. On the evenings of August 24 and 26, Bro. Wiggins delivered two splendid sermons to our small number.

Nine members of our church well represented our group at the Ohio Conference which was held at the Brush Creek Church, near Tipp City, August 17-24. We take this opportunity to thank all those kind fellow members who made our stay so pleasant and enjoyable.

Monday night, September 1, the children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren of Sr. Elizabeth Reighard gathered in the home of Bro. Bert Reighard and wife to surprise Grandmother Reighard on her ninety-third birthday.

IRA F. WILSON

Ira F. Wilson, son of Thomas Wilson, fell asleep in death August 16, at the age of eighty years. He was a resident of Kansas City, Mo., for fifty-five years, and was engaged in the real estate business.

He leaves his wife, the writer, two sons, E. F. Wilson of Topeka, Kansas, Ira M. Wilson of Eldon, Mo., and four grandchildren. Sarah Francis Wilson.

MRS. FLORA McCANNEIL

Seldom do we contemplate a life of the length of this one. The Biblical "threescore and ten" years becomes brief indeed. However, three short years more and Aunt Flora—such was she to the whole community—would have lived fivescore years.

Mrs. Flora McCanneil, born Flora Macleod, came of a family of brave pioneers who settled in western Ontario, Canada, having come from Scotland in a sailing vessel. She was born in Acton, Ont., October 6, 1844, and fell asleep in Jesus August 13, 1941.

She was one of a family of ten children: seven brothers—Archie, Angus, Duncan, Dougall, Donald (the writer's father), John, and Malcolm; and two sisters—Margaret (Mrs. Moses Whitehead), and Mary, all of whom preceded her in death.

Aunt Flora ever stood for righteousness and integrity, and she shall receive "a crown of righteousness, that fadeth not away," which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give to all those who love his appearing.

Norman J. Macleod.

Bro. J. E. Hammond, Anaheim, Calif., has recently been studying some of the Bible time measures, which indicate to him that Christ may return very soon, and he comments: "How appropriate and timely is the admonition of Israel's coming King: 'I say unto you, Watch!'"

Sr. Louise Lapp sends us the following: "One friend asked the other, 'So you have stopped being an atheist?' 'Yes,' he answered, 'There's no future to it.'"

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16).

The Church of God has cause to rejoice that the load of debt left to our General Conference by the depression has now been entirely lifted through the efforts of our Business Manager and the co-operation of the people. We can now use our full resources to promote forward-moving gospel projects.

Through well-established departments of publishing, education, and benevolences, The Restitution Herald, books and tracts are published, ministers and workers are trained, and the aged are receiving care. These departments need our continued hearty support.

The original organization of the General Conference provided for a Department of Evangelism to open new fields and to meet the needs of the churches everywhere. Past circumstances made it difficult to carry out this provision. Recognizing the imperative need for immediate evangelistic and missionary effort, the General Conference this year made provision for the appointment of a Board of Evangelism. The personnel appears at the head of this letter.

To begin a survey of the field to locate communities where effective missionary work may be done, the chairman of the Board of Evangelism met with brethren of Washington, D. C., Skelton, W. Va., and other places convenient to the trip to and from the Virginia Conference. Suggestions of other prospective fields are welcome. The people will be kept informed through The Restitution Herald concerning the fields of evangelistic activity.

Viewing the many states where we have no work at all, we must be impressed with the wonderful opportunities we have for preaching the gospel. The fields are white unto harvest, but "the labourers are few."

World conditions indicate the timeliness of our message to those whose hearts are failing them for fear. With this season of increased prosperity, surely it is a time to labor. With a compassion for the lost and a determination to be in service when the Master returns, let us press on with vigor in the field of missions and evangelism. This we will do with God's help.

The Great Day of Wrath

By Lyle Rankin

"The great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?" (Revelation 6:17).

WHEN John the Revelator saw "three unclean spirits" (Rev. 16:13), he said of them: "They are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of the great day of God Almighty" (v. 14). The following words, "Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth," show that the foregoing evil work is to be in action immediately before the return of Jesus. Likewise, Jeremiah, referring to the gathering of the nations in battle, prophesied: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Behold, evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth" (Jer. 25:32): "Wind" in prophecy represents war or destruction, as in Daniel 2:35, we read: "The wind carried them (earth's carnal kingdoms) away, that no place was found for them." (See also Isa. 34:1-3 and Zech. 14:3).

It is not the Spirit of God that calls the people of the earth together to prepare war—to beat their plowshares into swords and their pruning hooks into spears. Rather, it is "the spirits of devils," which work is said of God to be evil and not good. Let us who belong to Christ have "no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness" (Eph. 5:11).

Various signs indicate Christ's coming is near. God is sending rain in Eretz Israel as promised in Joel 2:23; Judah is returning and Jerusalem is prospering as prophesied in Joel 3:1; the proclamation is going forth to "prepare war" (3:9); Gomer (Germany) has gathered in his bands (Ezek. 38:6); there is "upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity" (Luke 21:25), and many other signs show we are close to the return of Jesus. These conditions also clearly show that the mustering of men for war and all that goes with war (including preparation for defense), in this time in which we are living, is the result of evil going "forth from nation to nation." This is the "day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers" (Zeph. 1:16). People are afraid of being attacked, so they are calling together the men of war and preparing to defend themselves.

As the whirlwind gets larger, "all nations" will eventually be represented in it by their manpower, and in a "rage" will come into the "controversy" with the Lord. (Joel 3:1, 2; Psalm 2:1-6; Jer. 25:31.) "The Lord shall roar from on high, and utter his voice from his holy habitation . . . he shall give a shout . . . against all the inhabitants of the earth. A noise shall come even to the ends of the earth; for the Lord hath a controversy with the nations, he will plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the Lord. . . . And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground" (Jer. 25:30-33).

When Jesus descends "with his mighty angels," vengeance will be taken, not on those only who "know not God," but on all "that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ"; and they "shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power; when he shall come to be glorified in his saints" (2 Thess. 1:7-10).

The love of money is taking its toll. The abounding of iniquity, likewise, is causing lukewarmness, and fear of the present distress is causing a sinking of faith, as when Peter looked upon the tossing waves of Galilee and began to sink while trying to go to the Master on the troubled sea.

Jesus is still pleading for His children to walk in the light (Rom. 13:9-14), though as pilgrims and strangers we must yet for a little while live "in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation" (Phil. 2:15). Hear, O reader, the voice of the Lord, (Please turn to page 9)

Before this messenger waits at your door, the Bible Training School will have conducted the first several classes of its third year. At this writing, September 11, it is impossible to report a complete list of students coming, but we are reasonably sure of enrolling at least fifteen students. . . . Well did David say of God: "Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works. The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth. He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him" (Psalm 145:16-19).

"Well begun is half done"; but "half done" is not our goal. Now, "to the plough"! "to the plough"!

"Follow Thou Me"—Jesus

As Jesus called men to follow Him many years ago, He today calls men to follow Him in the ministry of God's Word. Pray that God will direct and bless each and every student in the Bible Training School to proclaim, in some small way at least, the gospel of the Kingdom—entrusted to Christ's followers as that message which must be preached in all the world before the King comes. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matt. 9:38). "The night cometh, when no man can work" (John 9:4).

Someone might ask, "Has not the gospel already been preached in all the world?" Well, it may be true that "another gospel: which is not another" (Gal. 1:6,7) has been preached in all the world, but the Church of God may be positively sure that the "gospel of the kingdom" has not yet been "preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations" to the extent, and in the purity, that Jesus intends it shall be preached, for He has not yet come; and He plainly promised that, following the worldwide preaching of the true gospel, the age would end, saying: "Then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14).

The Jesus-shift-the-load spirit was not confined to Peter. This is no time to ask the Lord, concerning other denominations, "And what shall this man do?" (John 21:21). It is time, rather, for the Church of God, having somewhat like Peter professed to love the Lord—and truth—"more than these" (v. 15), to suddenly and faithfully heed Jesus' rebuke and command: "Follow thou me" (v. 22). Now, we cannot follow Jesus and do nothing. Jesus was a worker. True, there was a betrayer, but Jesus never had a lazy disciple. He never had a secret disciple. He never had a disciple, worthy of the name, who would not at the last lay down his life for the one and only "gospel of the kingdom."

Jesus who "went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God" (Luke 8:1), who "endured the cross, despising the shame" (Heb. 12:2), who overcame "the world" (John 16:33), calls today to his every honest disciple: "Follow thou me." There is work to be done until Jesus comes. "Be thou faithful unto death" (Rev. 2:10).

SONGOLOGY

By Muriel Randall

"Is any merry? let him sing psalms" (James 5:13).

IMAGINE, if you can, that there were no song—no melodies from persons, birds, or instruments. Now, let us realize and appreciate that we have music every day of our lives. How thankful we should be that the God of all creation gave us songs and the ability to sing!

Song is God's way of showing emotion; anger is the Devil's way. So, when the Devil knocks at our door, why not let God answer the knock? God always wins. We who have voices should use them. Do we remember the Parable of the Talents? God doubled the talents of the two men who made use of their talents. We cannot all preach sermons or lead church services, but we can sing—if only in a feeble manner. Why should we sing? Why shouldn't we sing?

The day goes just a bit smoother when one hears a song in the morning. Someone has to sing that song—why not you? Matthew 25:40, paraphrased, might say: "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have sung it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have sung it unto me." "The least of these"—maybe a passerby, maybe a fellow worker, or maybe a member of your family.

Have you ever tried to sing when you were angry? A song will calm anger, and, more than that, make you feel that you want to live and let live.

Sometimes people, children especially, will long remember the songs we sing, after our admonitions are forgotten. If we are concerned about what we sing before men, what about our singing before God? If we were as conscious of behavior toward God as we are toward our best friends, God would not be treated so impolitely.

That beloved character of the Old Testament, David, was a songster. He loved to sing of God's goodness. His songs were written and inspired of God, and we today listen to those songs for much of our inspiration and comfort. Do you not think that in some small way we might help someone along life's way by singing some of those songs? Would it not be worth while to sing if we could introduce someone to Jesus by our song, that he might be in God's great chorus?

Song is the melody of life—why not make our lives so melodious that others might see the beauty of Jesus? We, as professing Christians, should be confessing Christians. Confess your faith to the world by the use of gospel song.

Jesus said, "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 10:32). Do your songs confess Jesus? Would you be denied by the Saviour because you failed to sing when you were happy in His service. We as Christians should be the happiest people on this earth. If we truly know that "joy unspeakable," how can we keep from singing?

One of the first things that the saints will do after they meet Christ is to sing the Redemption Song. (See Revelation 5:9.) Oh, Christian friends, let's get busy now and practice honestly for that great song.

Our words, actions, and songs constitute part of us. We are the only Bibles some people ever read; we are the only songs some people ever hear. Just what do they read, and what do they hear in our lives?

Our lives and our lips must agree, if we expect others to believe we are true worshipers of God. Have you ever considered how inconsistently we live? We sing "Living for Jesus," and then make a special effort to satisfy our own desires. We sing "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," and then ask God for the very things that are against His will. How often we sing promises to God, and then forget to keep those vows! For example, how many times we have sung "Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee," yet soon forgot that we are consecrated to the Lord. We sing "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow," and we are content with a white-wash that will rub off with the least resistance. We sing "It Pays to Serve Jesus," and then we pay to serve the Devil.

Perhaps, if we knew the setting of the songs that we sing, we might better adjust the lives that we so poorly live. We are all familiar with the old hymn, "God Will Take Care of You." Here is the story connected with the writing of that hymn:

A certain William Martin, a pastor, was on a vacation with his family. He had accepted an invitation to be a guest speaker at another church. Sunday morning his wife became sick, and he was ready to cancel the engagement, when his small son came to him and said, "Father, don't you think if God wants you to preach today, He will take care of Mother while you are away?" What a challenge! So the minister (Please turn to page 10)

The Nature of Man

By Arthur G. Young

WHAT is the nature of man? This is a fundamental question which must be correctly answered by the student before a right understanding of God's Word, as a whole, can be secured. Job considered this question when he asked, "If a man die, shall he live again?" Each generation has pondered this question, and, apart from belief in God and that He has revealed His plans to humanity, it is as much a riddle today as in the time of Job. In other words, apart from revelation from a higher source than man's knowledge, it is not possible for mankind to know his own nature and destiny.

As we are to confine ourselves to Bible evidence on this subject, naturally the first thought is to turn to the very first book of the Bible wherein is clearly stated the story of creation. We read in Genesis 2:7: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul (creature)." The Bible, therefore, states man was man when formed from the dust of the ground, and before life was breathed into him. Man is a unit. Observe closely in all quotations that in the nouns and pronouns there is never stated, or inferred, any duality of being or dual responsibility of man. If the record of Christ's death upon the cross and His resurrection is closely studied, it will be very clearly seen that that which died was Christ, and that which was raised was Christ.

The passage quoted from Genesis does not contain any reference to the length of the life given. It simply states that man lived after the breath of life was put in him. The next step, therefore, is to consider what kind of life God gave to man. In Genesis 2:17, we read: "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Adam and Eve ate of this tree of knowledge, and the penalty of death was passed upon them, as we read in Genesis 5:5 that Adam did die. "All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died."

In view, however, of extenuating circumstances caused by Adam and Eve being tempted by an outside influence which had greater knowledge than they then possessed (Gen. 3:11-14), no inflicted immediate death was passed upon them. Through their disobedience, the sentence of death was passed upon them, but they were allowed to live until such time as their natural constitutions ceased to resist the action of the consequences of their transgressions. Their bodies being more perfectly prepared to resist the operation of decay than are ours, is the explanation of their longer life. Bear in mind, there would have been no descendants of Adam if the penalty had been immediately inflicted; the race would have ceased to exist. God, however, prevented Adam and Eve from making themselves immune against death (which they could have done through eating of the tree of life) by preventing them reaching it. (See Gen. 3:22-24.)

Adam could pass to his descendants only whatever life principle he possessed, the same as we, his descendants, can do. Adam's history, as cited above, in this regard, must govern his natural descendants.

The evidence strongly points to the natural mortality of man, and that any change from this condition must be and can only be by exercise of God's almighty power and will.

Arthur G. Young

Let us examine further.

Many, in discussing these texts of Genesis, try to place a strained meaning on the word "soul." Much misunderstanding and confusion in the minds of people has resulted. "Soul" is one of the most common words in the Bible. In the Hebrew, it is nephesh, and occurs seven hundred fifty-two times in the Old Testament. Translators have rendered the translation in the Authorized Version forty-four different ways, among which those having more than five repetitions are as follows:

Soul	. 446	Self	. 19	Creature	. 9
Life	. 117	Mind	. 15	Body	. 7
Person	. 31	Heart	. 15	Desire	. 5

There are several additional minor definitions, but absolutely nowhere are the words "immortal" and "soul" used or inferred in connection with each other. By examining the passages in which nephesh is translated by the various words here listed, to ascertain the determinative adjectives, the evidence proves that apparently very many harmful things, including death, can affect the soul. Examine the following texts:

Ezekiel 18:4, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."

Joshua 10:28, "That day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein."

Verse 30, "The Lord delivered it (Libnah) also, and he (Joshua) smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein."

Verse 39, "He (Joshua) took it (Debir), and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and . . . smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein."

Verse 40, "He (Joshua) left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed."

Is "soul" peculiar to man? No! The animals created prior to man had soul, or life, given to them, also. We read in Genesis 1:20, "God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life." The marginal reading uses the word "soul" for "life," but both words are translated from the same Hebrew word, nephesh. Therefore, the words "life" and "soul" are here synonymous. In verse 30, we read, "To every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life (margin, "a living soul," or nephesh) I have given every green herb for meat, and it was so."

As the Bible speaks similarly of man and beast having the same life principle in creation, so it does in death. Ecclesiastes 3:18, 29, 20 read as follows:

(18) "I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts."

(19) "For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity."

(20) "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."

If the soul of man is immortal by natural inheritance, it cannot be destroyed. What, though, does Matthew say God can do to man's soul—having reference to the second death? "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell (gehenna) (10:28).

Further texts as to man's nature and its similarity to that of the beast follow. David says in Psalm 104:29, referring to the beasts of the earth,

"Thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust."

But in Psalm 146:4, referring to man, David said, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish."

The one thing believers in man's natural immortality contend for the soul is, that it is conscious in itself apart from the body, that when separated from the body it can perform all things as well as when in the body, yet the foregoing text and the following one flatly state the contrary.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Eccl. 9:10).

"Man dieth, and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?" (Job 14:10).

"As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up: so man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep" (Job 14:11, 12).

We know Job believed in the resurrection, as he plainly showed further in this chapter. He also stated in verses 20, 21, that after man "passeth," "his sons come to honour, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." If a man in death was conscious of all, is it not reasonable to suppose that, if possible, he would like to know if his sons came to honor? Or, if they were in trouble, would he not wish to be of assistance to them? But he cannot be of help, if he is in entire ignorance of their condition—and that is exactly what the Bible teaches.

How are the words "immortal" and "immortality" used in the Bible. They occur so few times that we can take time to examine each one. The word "immortal" is used only once. It appears in 1 Timothy 1:17:

"Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever." "Immortality" occurs only five times, as follows:

(1) "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life" (Rom. 2:7).

It is, therefore, apparently not a possession of man now, but it is still necessary to seek for it to obtain it.

(2) "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53).

As immortality is something still to be "put on," it cannot be a possession now, through succession from natural parents; it must be put on to bring to pass, as stated in verse 54: "Death is swallowed up in victory." This language by no possible stretch of imagination can be made to mean that men now have immortality.

(3) "When this . . . mortal shall have put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:54).

(4) "Who (not speaking of man) only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto" (1 Tim. 6:16).

(5) God's grace "is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (2 Tim. 1:10).

These texts certainly do not state that man is now immortal. The phrase, "hath" (Please turn to page 10)

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

A Serial—Part Four

By A. L. Corbalcy

Strong nations are today fighting for territory. When they learn that the object of Christ's coming is to be King over all the earth, they will cease fighting against each other and "imagine a vain thing" (Psalm 2: 1), namely, that they can overcome Christ by uniting all their forces against Him. They will learn from the Scriptures that He is coming to the Mount of Olives, the very place from which He ascended when He was here before. (Zech. 14:4; Acts 1:12.)

Nations, Beware of Jerusalem!

So, in Zechariah 12:2, 3, 8, 9 we read: "Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people round about, when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem. And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it. . . . In that day shall the Lord defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the Lord before them. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem."

Let us see what the result of the conflict will be, as told in Zechariah 14:1-5: "Behold, the day of the Lord cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. (See Judges 7.) And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south. And ye shall flee to the valley of the mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee."

In Isaiah 26:20 we learned that when the saints arise to meet the Lord in the air, they will be told: "Enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast." The armies of the world will be destroyed when Jesus comes to the earth with His saints.

In Zechariah 14:8, 9, we read: "It shall be in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former ("eastern," in margin) sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one." The next verses further tell us how the armies are to be destroyed. "This shall be the plague wherewith the Lord will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from the Lord shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour. And Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance. And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague. And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, that have no rain; there shall be the plague, wherewith the Lord will smite the heathen that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles" (14:12-19).

It is an established fact, that it never rains in the land of Egypt, but up at the head of the Nile River, in Abyssinia, there are torrential rains. This water comes down the Nile River, and as the River rises, the people move back, and as it recedes, they follow up, and plant their crops. The British have built the Assuan Dam near the point where the River forms a delta, just above where it divides into seven streams; so if there is not sufficient rise in the River, they can close the dam and raise the River to any height desired. Nevertheless, all this work of man will avail nothing, unless there is worship of the Lord.

In Revelation 14:19, 20, in giving the results of the battle of Armageddon, we read in verse 20, "The winepress was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the winepress, even unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs" (or a river of blood two hundred miles long). Can anyone feature such destruction as that? God's Word, though, always proves to be true. Jesus said, in praying to the Father for His disciples, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth" (John 17:17).

In Jeremiah 25:31-33 we read: "A noise shall come even to the ends of the earth; for the Lord hath a controversy with the nations, he will plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Behold, evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth. And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground." In Ezekiel 39:4, 9, 10, we read of the doom of the armies which fight against the Lord when He comes: "Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy hands, and the people that is with thee: I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts of the field to be devoured. . . . They that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the handstaves, and the spears, and they shall burn them with fire seven years. So that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests; for they shall burn the weapons with fire: and they shall spoil those that spoiled them and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord God." In verse 12, we read of the bones being buried in the valley of Hamongog. "Seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land." Read the balance of the chapter, where it shows that the house of Israel is gathered back unto their land, and settled there.

Jesus Will Reign in Jerusalem

Will the Lord, personally, dwell in Jerusalem? Some deny that He will. Please, let us read from Zechariah 8:3: "Thus saith the Lord; I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth." In Matthew 5:35, we are told to not swear "by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King." Then in Joel 3:20, 21, we read: "Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: for the Lord dwelleth in Zion."

What will be the conditions upon the earth during Christ's reign of one thousand years (Rev. 20:4, 5)? David prophesied: "He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire" (Psalm 46:9). Isaiah likewise prophesied: "Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish (England; thus, she will not lose all of her ships in the present conflict) first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee. And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee. (Isaiah is here speaking of the city of Jerusalem.) Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the forces (wealth) of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought. For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted" (Isa. 60:9-12). Read all the chapter.

In Isaiah 11:6-9, we have a good view of the conditions during the reign of Christ and His saints on the earth: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child (Please turn to page 15)

The Sunday School Convention

---

THE first Sunday School Convention of the Church of God convened at Oregon, Illinois, Saturday morning, August 9, 1941. A short devotional service was led by Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., after which the chairman, Brother Leland T. Hanson, read a report from Brother Arlen Marsh who was secretary of the committee appointed during the 1940 General Conference to further the work of organizing the Sunday schools of the Church of God. In the absence of Brother Marsh, Brother Hanson appointed Sister Esta L. Starbuck to take the minutes of the meeting.

Various topics pertaining to Sunday school work and organization had been assigned to different speakers, each talk to be followed by a few minutes of open discussion on the topic presented.

Brother James W. McLain gave the keynote address, some of the highlights of which were as follows: The Sunday school is a comparatively new organization gaining in popularity during the last one hundred years. The Sunday school is an educational institution, and must have definite goals, or nothing will be accomplished. Therefore, the Sunday school superintendent should be a leader in education, not only a song leader to open the service. There is no excuse for haphazard work. The Sunday school is more than an educational institution—it builds for eternity, and should be a spiritual organization. It must have a goal; it must be educational, but of a spiritual nature. Its aim must be to lead girls and boys and men and women into Christian fellowship.

The Relationship of Pastor to Sunday School was discussed by Brother F. L. Austin, and he brought out the following thoughts: Pastors are shepherds—not alone to teach, but to watch over, lead, nurture, and feed in spiritual matter. The pastor is the head and leader in spiritual things. Too many Sunday schools consider themselves as separate organizations, and in some cases even work against the pastor. The sermon is only a small feature of a pastor's work, and the Sunday school hour, likewise, is only a small feature of the superintendent's work. The Sunday school superintendent should be an assistant to the pastor, and should have the highest possible spiritual qualifications, personal habits, and character. The majority of church members are brought in during the teen age, many before the age of sixteen years. What a responsibility and privilege rest with the Sunday school superintendent who has charge of that group! The Sunday school should recognize the pastor as its spiritual leader.

The Sunday School as an Integral Part of the Church was Brother James Watkins' topic, which contained the following statements: About eighty-five per cent of church members come up through the Sunday school, yet how many Sunday school members have gone through Sunday school and never became members of the church! Our Sunday schools have become too far divorced from the church. Many Sunday school members are lost in the teen age. The Sunday school must have a definite aim—to bring individuals into the church through successive and logical steps. Some Sunday schools are employing officers and teachers who are not members of the church. How can we hope to lead children to membership in Christ in such manner? Our Sunday schools should educate for church work and for Christian living equally as much as does any trade school educate for its particular trade. We should be more practical in our Sunday school teaching and work, and train our young people to accept responsibilities and positions in the church. The Sunday school superintendent should be a member of the church board in order to tie the Sunday school and church more closely together. The superintendent should select the Sunday school teachers, and place them over the various classes to the best interests of all concerned; they should not be selected by the choice of the class. Statistics show that the Sunday school saves forty per cent and loses 60 per cent of its membership for the church.

The Sunday School Superintendent as an Educational Administrator was presented by Brother M. W. Lyon. The Sunday school is handicapped in educational instruction because of lack of time—only thirty minutes per week, whereas in public school there are thirty hours per week, or sixty times as much for work not nearly so important. The Sunday school also suffers because of lack of authority. Therefore, it requires more concentration on methods, trained teachers, and so forth. The best should be given to God's work, yet our public schools have definite requirements to be met before anyone can begin to teach, and we often pick up anyone who can be persuaded to take a class, regardless of qualifications. Parents who send their children to Sunday school have a right to expect that they receive education and training. It is not possible to teach effectively without an aim or goal—we can't know how to go if we don't know where we are going. We often let our materials run us, instead of using them for their true purpose. Our chief purpose is not to get people to come to Sunday school, or to get them to study, but to prepare them for Christian living and service. Our chief aim is to teach them the knowledge of the Bible. When they have gone through our Sunday school, do they have a definite knowledge of the Bible sufficient to inspire them to accept the Christian life? If our own church doctrines were taught more to our young people, there would not be so many of them leave our Sunday schools during the teen age. It is not the knowledge we acquire that develops right character, but the attitudes we have; so we must not only give passive knowledge, but teach them to apply that knowledge to their emotions and attitudes, thus making Christians of them. Teachers must be adequately prepared for effective work. Every Sunday school can have a teacher's training class, and teachers can read books on teaching.

Following Brother Lyon's talk, the question was raised, "How can we teach our church doctrines if we use the International Sunday School Lessons, as they generally keep away from those doctrines?" The answer given in favor of those lessons was that they do cover the entire Bible every few years, and there are many times where the teacher can bring out Bible doctrines if he is alert and resourceful.

The Successful Sunday School Teacher was the topic considered by Brother Harry A. Sheets, who listed the following eight requirements and attached importance to them in the order given: 1) Consecration—a true follower of Christ; 2) Knowledge of Church Doctrines; 3) Love for People; 4) Ability to Teach; 5) Correct Methods; 6) Co-operation; 7) Personality; 8) Not a Radical. We perhaps learn more Christianity by absorption than by teaching—head knowledge. Fundamentals—unless we have something vital, not taught by other churches, we have no excuse for existence. Therefore, our teachers should surely know these fundamental truths. And they should be taught positively—never point out how they differ from what others teach, but as though their acceptance were a matter of course. Your state librarian will mail books on any subject, for postage only, to be used for a period of time, if you will write and give an idea of what you want. Thus, anyone can have access to the best books on teaching methods and other features of Sunday school work.

The Sunday School Pupil was the subject assigned to Brother John Mercer, and he read Proverbs 22:4-6 and 2 Timothy 3:14-17 by way of introduction. The first Sunday school was organized in England nearly one hundred fifty years ago. It contained a few children gathered from the slum district of a large city, and the only requirement of those first pupils was that they have their faces clean. There are thirty million children growing up now without religious education or training, and our prisons are increasing in teen-age groups.

There were seventy present at the meeting at this time, all of whom were, or had been, Sunday school pupils, and Brother Mercer conducted a little test which showed the following results: thirty-eight became members of the church before the age of sixteen years; sixteen between the ages of sixteen and twenty years; seven became members between the ages of twenty and twenty-five years; four between twenty-five and thirty years; and five from thirty up. A count showed there were three Sunday school superintendents and thirty-three Sunday school teachers present at the meeting.

Sunday School Record was the topic ably presented by Brother C. E. Lapp. He showed samples and illustrated the use of a "Sixpoint record envelope" for each member of the Sunday school, the six points being: Attendance, thirty per cent; Punctuality, ten per cent; Bible, ten per cent; Offering, ten per cent; Church Attendance, ten per cent; Lesson Preparation, thirty per cent. Each member checks his own record and puts his offering in the envelope. There is space provided for monthly and yearly records and grades. Brother Lapp recommended this system as having increased attendance and interest in Sunday schools using it. It is put out by the Scripture Press, Inc., 800 North Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Sunday School Practices and Materials was discussed by Sister Verna C. Thayer, who presented it as the "Seeing side of teaching." It must begin with the teacher; she must see the pupil as an individual in the community and in the home before she can see the pupil in the right light in his Sunday school and church life. Learn to adapt the material available to the pupil or class with whom you are working. It takes time and preparation on the part of the teacher, but it can be done. The same material can be used for a wide range of ages by stressing different phases of it. The following characteristics were most commonly requested in a Sunday school teacher by the fifty persons questioned: patience; good example; one who keeps her word; knowledge of the Bible; lesson preparation; appealing personality; clear voice; be able to keep conversation going; punctuality; bring Bible; be able to ask the proper questions. Sister Thayer also explained the different children's quarterlies and lesson books which our church publishes.

Sunday School Organization was presented by Brother Harvey Krogh, Jr., as follows: Many people fear the word "organization" which only means many parts working together harmoniously. Simple organization for Sunday schools of fifty members or less: superintendent, secretary, treasurer, four teachers for classes as follows: Beginners and Primary, five to eight years; Juniors and Intermediates, nine to fourteen years; Seniors, fifteen to twenty-five years; Adults or Bible Class, twenty-five and over. For schools of more than fifty members, eight classes are advisable: Nursery, up to three years; Beginners, four and five years; Primary, six to eight years; Juniors, nine to eleven years; Intermediates, twelve to fourteen years; Seniors, fifteen to seventeen years; Young People, eighteen to twenty-five years; Adults, twenty-five years and over.

There may also be superintendents over various departments. The organization should be elastic and should be adapted to the needs of its particular school. Gradation is important; keep pupils in their proper age groups. Place emphasis on special days. Officers and teachers should have frequent meetings to plan the work, special programs, solve problems, and so forth. "New Training for Service" is a very helpful book. The Sunday school is a part of the organization of the whole church, should be subordinate to it, and recognize the superiority of the church. Some simple organization is often advisable within the classes or departments, but it should not be too cumbersome. Classes of ten or twelve members are more interesting and easily handled than larger numbers and give more incentive for growth.

The business meeting convened at 3:15 p.m. The Chairman stated the question to be discussed and decided: "Shall we form a permanent Sunday school organization?" Brother C. E. Lapp asked of what this organization would consist, and what would be its purpose. Brother J. W. McLain mentioned the provision in the National Bible Institution working rules for the addition of various departments from time to time as needed, and stated that the organization is to bind together our Sunday school efforts, exchange ideas, methods, and so forth. Brother M. W. Lyon stated that he did not realize that it was to be tied up with the National Bible Institution, but to be a separate organization such as the Berean organization. The consensus of opinion of those present favored the suggestion of Brother J. W. McLain that we organize now and try it out for a year to see if there is a need for such an organization, after which time it could be continued as a separate organization or added as a department to the General Conference. Brothers F. L. Austin and M. W. Lyon moved that, if it is in order, we undertake at this time to perfect a permanent national Sunday school organization. The motion carried.

A motion by Brothers F. L. Austin and H. A. Sheets was passed making Brother Leland T. Hanson temporary chairman for this organization. It was moved by Brothers F. L. Austin and Harvey Krogh, Jr., that Sister Esta L. Starbuck be temporary secretary for the organization. The motion was carried.

Following a discussion of selecting a suitable name for the organization, a list of suggested names was placed on the blackboard, and the following name was chosen by an almost unanimous vote: "Sunday School Union of the Church of God."

Brothers Paul C. Johnson and Sydney E. Magaw made a motion that the officers of this organization consist of a chairman, a secretary, and a treasurer. The motion was amended to read that the officers consist of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. The motion carried as amended, and the meeting proceeded to the election of officers.

It was moved by Brothers M. W. Lyon and C. E. Lapp that a majority vote be required to elect officers. The motion carried.

The following were placed in nomination for president: James W. McLain, G. E. Marsh, Leland Hanson, Harry Sheets, James Watkins, Arlen Marsh, Arlie Townsend, Frances Walls, and Evelyn Austin. A number of these withdrew and stated that because of the enormous amount of work now being carried they could not possibly do justice to the office, and could not serve if elected. There was no majority on the first and second ballots, and the third ballot resulted in the election of Sister Frances Walls of Rockford, Illinois, for president.

The nominations for vice president were Robert Hardesty, James W. McLain, June Routson, and Herbert Stadden. There was no majority on the first, second, or third ballot—the fourth ballot resulting in the election of James W. McLain for vice president.

Arlen Marsh was nominated for secretary. It was moved by Brothers C. E. Lapp and Frank Laning that the nominations be closed. The motion carried. Brother M. W. Lyon and Sister Evelyn Austin moved that Brother Arlen Marsh be declared elected secretary. The motion carried.

Sisters Esta L. Starbuck, Mildred Laning, and June Routson were nominated for treasurer. There was no majority on the first ballot, but the second ballot resulted in the election of Sister Mildred Laning of Ripley, Illinois, for treasurer.

In discussing the next order of business, it was moved by Brothers F. L. Austin and Paul C. Johnson that the work of perfecting and carrying on the work of the organization be left to the officers. The motion carried.

There was some discussion regarding this year's Sunday school exhibit, the preservation of the material and the provision for continuing the exhibit. It was moved by Brothers Harry Goekler and Wayne Laning that the present exhibit committee take care of this year's exhibit, and that plans for next year's exhibit be left to the officers of the organization.

The convention was adjourned on motion of Brothers Harry Goekler and C. E. Lapp.

Esta L. Starbuck, Temporary Secretary.

calling: "Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation not desired; before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, before the day of the Lord's anger come upon you. Seek ye the Lord, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger" (Zeph. 2:1-3). "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man" (Luke 21:36).

Jesus will descend to the battle with His mighty army (the angels). "The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining: and the Lord shall utter his voice before his army: for his camp is very great: for he is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the Lord is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?" (Joel 2:10, 11). . . . Where will you and I be? Some will have feared man, heeded the call of "the spirits of devils," and will be in the controversy of the Lord, fighting against Him, but the God-fearing saints shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger. (Luke 12:4, 5.)

SONGOLOGY

kept his appointment. When he returned, Mrs. Martin was much improved, and she had written a short poem during his absence. That poem was inspired by the words of her son, and is the song that we sing today. Within a short time, Mr. Martin had improvised a melody on the organ. That is the story behind the hymn that we still sing and love.

That all might see how songs influence us, we append the following meditation:

"Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," I thank You for "Jesus, Blessed Jesus" who died on "The Old Rugged Cross," and now "He Lives" and "He's Coming Soon." I thank You that "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart" I have "Sweet Peace" and "Joy Unspeakable." I pray that You will keep me "Near the Cross," and "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," I will remember that "He Included Me."

I thank You that "Jesus Took My Burden" and now "He Keeps Me Singing" "Moment by Moment." I thank You that I am "Standing on the Promises" and can "Tell the Old, Old Story." "I Am Thine, O Lord." "Take My Life," and "Have Thine Own Way." I want to "Trust and Obey" so completely that I will "Stand Up for Jesus" always. "Make Me a Blessing."

Dear God, I want to "Launch Out" and "Help Somebody Today," to draw "Near to the Heart of God," that they, too, might know "What a Friend" "The Stranger of Galilee" will be to "Whosoever Will" "Take Time to Be Holy." I thank You for the "Blessed Assurance" that "Jesus Never Fails."

I pray that I might always be "Looking for That Blessed Hope," and, when "My Redeemer" shall appear, that I may see Him "Face to Face." Now, kind Father, I thank you for this "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Amen.

THE NATURE OF MAN

abolished death," sometimes confuses when taken alone without any other scripture to explain it. Christ "hath abolished death" in that by His sacrifice and resurrection an offering for the sin of the Adamic race was made, and a race which was under the law of death was thereby given proof to confirm the previous promise of a resurrection from the dead. Furthermore, He did abolish death in Himself, as He was raised out of death with an immortal life principle, and through this He abolished the operation in eternity of the death principle for all those who comply with God's terms of salvation.

Much is also made by believers in men being immortal now of the text in John 5:24: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." Taking this text alone, the most those who advocate man's possession now of immortality can say is, that only the believer after believing has immortal life. But has he? I am certain that all believers can testify that there was absolutely no fundamental change in their life principle after believing. What does John, however, say in further explanation in this regard? In 1 John 5:11 we read: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." This explains it: the life is in Him, held there in reserve to be conferred upon those who comply with the conditions of salvation.

When will believers get this life from Christ? At resurrection! "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life" (Rev. 2:10) "at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14).

Paul expected his reward of righteousness for which, in order to enjoy, he must be in possession of life, not after his conversion, for in writing to Timothy after that conversion he did not speak of having received his reward. But, along with the others who love Christ's appearing in glory, he referred to receiving it at that day—the day of judgment and reward at resurrection. Speaking at that time when death was near, he said: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. 4:8).

We cannot close without some brief remarks in connection with the mission of Christ, as relating to this topic. Pray tell where Christ's mission, the necessity of His death and resurrection, comes in at all in the scheme of things, if man is naturally immortal by inheritance from creation. Why was it necessary he should live, teach, and above all die and be raised from the dead, unless this had a vital relation to the life of the human race? Where is the essential relation to the salvation of the human race in His sacrifice, if man is naturally immortal?

If so, all those who lived on earth prior to Him had already been judged, and those worthy were enjoying the bliss of the Kingdom, irrespective of His death—and His death could have no meaning for them. This thought might be continued at length, but the fact is that Christ's death and resurrection were absolutely necessary in order that man might have a further life, not only for Adam and all those who lived down to Christ, but also for those living between Christ's first coming and the judgment—even "as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive."

Without going into detail, Christ was the first of a virgin creation fresh from God's hands, even as Adam was. Christ was pure at birth, not having a sin-cursed nature as all have who are of the Adamic race. So, one can easily see His sacrifice was just as complete and adequate a covering for the sin of the Adamic race as was Adam's sin which brought death upon that race. It was the sacrifice of a pure, virgin-race life for a sin-cursed race life. In each case the redemption and punishment, respectively, flowed to those who became race successors. Adam's successors all come under the condemnation of sin and the consequent penalty of death, as do we who become children of Christ and part of His body, being bought by Him through His sacrifice, participate in the redemption.

In conclusion, therefore, after considerable study of Bible texts on this subject, as well as reading evidence and arguments advanced by those who believe in the immortality of man's nature, I believe the Bible clearly teaches the following truths regarding man's nature, which, to the best of my knowledge and belief, coincide with the facts of this world as I observe them:

- (1) God created man a mortal being.
- (2) That man, by disobedience to God, sinned, and as a consequence of that sin, the law of death was made operative in his nature and those of his descendants.
- (3) That man will, after death, forever remain dead, unless by exercise of divine power and will he is again imbued with life.
- (4) That God has in His revelation to man stated it is His purpose to confer immortality as a free gift upon those of mankind who comply with His conditions. This conferment of immortality will be at such time in the future as is according to His (God's) best judgment.
- (5) That God has provided a means whereby the failure of the Adamic race through the transgression of Adam is atoned, and that this means is the Lord Jesus Christ, who by His sacrifice has brought immortality to light—same to be a certain possession of all those who comply with the conditions God has decreed.

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

H. V. Morton has contributed no end of fine things to the religious literature of the world; but one of his best—perhaps the best—is Through Lands of the Bible (Dodd, Mead; $3.00).

The book is delightfully written, and takes the form of the travelogues that have made Morton (an Englishman) famous. It touches on most of the important Bible lands, describing in a detail that reminds one of Lawrence's Seven Pillars of Wisdom Morton's journey from Baghdad to Rome.

The account is peculiarly personal, and deeply religious. There is no effort made to teach anything about the Bible; this is not the book's purpose. Rather, there is an effort made to see that the reader gathers a comprehensive picture of how people live, of what people are like, of how politics operate, of how transportation and sanitary systems function, in ancient lands.

Names that sweep up visions of the magic carpet are commonplace with Morton. Baghdad already has been mentioned; Rome at Easter, slow, pre-war Syria, mosques in Jerusalem—these are the things of which the balance of the book is made. This is no dry, dull geography; this is living history, such as might be found in the National Geographic Magazine.

The book might be stronger if it were more profusely illustrated; but what photographs there are, are excellent and beautifully reproduced. Morton's ability as a writer largely compensates for the paucity of illustrations, anyway; his descriptions are as vivid as a Mexican girl's skirt at fiesta time.

Through Lands of the Bible has its place for the careful Bible student, the casual reader, the one who is simply interested in world affairs at large. These lands—Iraq, Syria, Palestine, Greece, Egypt—which are news today, come to have new life under the spell of Morton's gift of words. We don't go in for travelogues as a general rule; this makes our whole-hearted approval of Morton's work a little notable—at least to us.

Morton is the author of In the Steps of the Master (Dodd, Mead; $3.00), which was reviewed here some months ago.

The Best Armor

Our Lord has promised to supply all our needs. In these days of war and troubles, we have a special need. What we should do about it is told us in Ephesians 6:11: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."

What protection do we get from God's armor? The loins are bound up with truth. The breastplate is righteousness. Our shield is faith. The head is covered with the helmet of salvation. Our sword (of the Spirit) is the Word of God. Yes, even our feet are protected with God's armor. They are covered with the "gospel of peace" (Eph. 6:13-17).

We need this armor today. If we have on this whole armor, we will find that way of escape promised us with every temptation that appears. This protection can be ours. We can study the Bible so we will be able to use our sword of the Spirit which is sharper than a two-edged sword. We will then be ready for every thrust to protect us from sin. Strive for peace; keep your faith in God's truth and righteousness which will help to gain salvation and eternal life—our free gift.

The Meek of the Earth

The meek, as the word is used in our Bible, are the gentle, kind, and patient people. In Psalm 37:11 we read: "The meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Jesus, in His Sermon on the Mount, referred to part of that verse. He said: "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth" (Matt. 5:5).

Many people like to wear ornaments of gold and jewels. Peter said, "A meek and quiet spirit" is an ornament of great price in the sight of God (1 Peter 3:4). Meekness is also called a "fruit of the Spirit" in Galatians 5:23.

Paul, in Colossians 3:1, 12, 15, informs us: "If ye then be risen with Christ (by being baptized), seek those things which are above. . . . Put on therefore . . . meekness. . . . And let the peace of God rule in your hearts . . . and be ye thankful."

Meekness, then, should be desired by Christians. It is something we can cultivate in our daily acts and words—among friends as well as strangers. May we ever strive to be gentle and kindly, becoming more perfect, more like Jesus, daily.

The Revelation of John

The Greek name for this Book is Apocalypse. Revelation, or the unveiling, is a translation. There are many books written about the Revelation. There are also many different ideas as to just what it tells us and when it is to take place.

It is generally agreed that it was written by the Apostle John on the Island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea, not far from Ephesus.

One verse we should know is Revelation 1:3: "Blessed is he that readeth and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand."

In today's lesson, we have a war in heaven. Sin and evil are overcome by the blood of Christ, and the heavens are told to rejoice. We get a different picture of the earth, for there is woe upon the earth, for the Devil is cast down to the earth for a short time.

The last part of our study tells of songs of victors—"victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name"—songs with harps for accompaniment.

May every day be a victorious day for each one of us over sin and self.

Let's Get Together—More Often

Watch the cars as they speed by on the busy highway. What age group predominates in this endless caravan? Most likely the young people of our country. They are not content to stay within the confines of their own little community. They want to see how the world outside struggles through this earthly life, and they want to see it for themselves. The "movies" are very nearly becoming a thing of the past. They only portray what someone else has seen. Interesting, yes; but you can't properly respect a lake whose waves are gently tossed in the summer breezes until you are actually in a boat riding on those beautiful waves.

Our people, young and old, enjoy both state and national conferences. Else, why do so many return again and again? All those who govern their lives by the same Biblical principles cannot live in the same community throughout the year, but each individual is strengthened in faith and in understanding of the other's problems if all are able to meet at a common place at regular intervals. This is a proved fact.

The Illinois brethren will meet at Marshall on September 20, 21. It is mentioned here because many of the National Berean officers are planning to meet at Marshall to plan in more detail the work of the organization. Why don't all of you Bereans within driving distance of Marshall, especially those living in Illinois, make a sincere attempt to attend a part of this conference? We'll surely have an enjoyable time, and it will be possible to explain many phases of the Berean work, particularly new plans, to you personally, thus getting the ball rolling in much less time than it would take to work things out by correspondence.

If you would like to organize such a conference program, but do not know just how to get started, write to Miss Zelda Cooper, Fredericktown, Missouri. She will help you make arrangements for your locality.

Presidents

Presidents of local, state, and national societies, tonight there are many Bereans thinking about you! They have elected you to lead their organizations. They want to learn more about the Bible, and they want to be able to tell others about it. They want to bring their friends to their Berean meeting for the purpose of showing them a group of people who believe in the same doctrines as do they, and who are living happily under those doctrines; ever eager to learn more about them and their application to present-day problems.

Have you so planned your course of study that the members of your society have acquired a certain definite amount of Biblical knowledge at the end of a certain period of time? How do you know how much knowledge they have gained? How do you know whether or not they have gained the impressions the leaders had intended they should gain? Periodic, well-organized examinations on the work covered would go a long way to let you know what your society is accomplishing.

Yours is a responsible position, presidents, just as responsible as you make it. You can, by automatically appointing someone to lead some lesson out of some book or other publication, be assured of a meeting once each week. Your group, perhaps dwindling in numbers by now, will meet and will automatically go through that lesson which they may not have studied, perhaps because they did not know what they were to study. They might even enjoy themselves while they are doing this. How profitably are they spending their time which they are endeavoring to devote to the Lord's work? And how can they improve their work unless they are carefully directed by you to do so?

Remember those other nice people, elected at the same time as you for the offices of vice president, secretary, and treasurer? Do you find that no matter how hard you work, you cannot seem to get all the necessary work done? It might be a good idea to "wind up" the rest of the workers on your board and set them running around a little. Their services might prove invaluable before you know it.

One of the most important requirements of success is planning. Many can follow the plans given them and turn out very satisfactory work. Members of societies elect officers to plan their Berean work in such a way that each member will obtain the greatest amount of benefit for the time spent. Presidents, do you have definite plans for the immediate future?

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF EVANGELISM

Sept. 20, 21—Illinois Quarterly Conference at Salem Church near Marshall
 October 5-19—Special meetings at Hope Chapel, South Bend, Ind.

OCTOBER MEETINGS

The Hope Chapel Church of God of South Bend, Ind., is pleased to announce the engagement of Bro. C. E. Randall of the Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., churches to conduct a series of evangelistic services following the first Sunday of October.

These research studies of "How Can I Become Partner With Christ" are to begin Sunday morning, October 5, at 9:45, with a great Sunday School Rally under the leadership of our enthusiastic, wide-awake superintendent, Mrs. Lottie Pickerl, who has really been "doin' things" the past year.

Sunday School Rally will be followed with two church Rally Day services. First, there will be a Communion service at 10:45. Our prayer is that the spirit of devotion to Christ within the Christian people of South Bend and vicinity will so truly rally them as to make this the largest attended and most inspirational Communion service yet held in Hope Chapel. Pulpit subject: Christ's "Forget-me-nots." Second, the pastor, F. L. Austin, hopes to Rally the largest attendance for evening worship and Bible study, to date. Subject: "Today Versus Tomorrow."

On Monday, October 6, D.V., that electrified bundle of pent-up energy, C. E. Randall, will steam in to conduct such an inspiring and uplifting meeting as to dispel war clouds from off all faces.

Where? Hope Chapel, 1723 Leer St., South Bend, Ind.

When? October 5, plus two weeks.

Who? C. E. Randall, Minister.

What? Gospel Evangelistic Services.

Why? For Life With Christ.

Whom? For men and women, Gray hairs and Childhood, Rich and Poor.

F. L. Austin, Pastor.

LOUISIANA CHURCH NOTES

After attending General Conference and spending several weeks at home, we arrived in Hammond, September 5, to resume our work with the churches here. The attendance at church services Sunday, September 7, was good and we are pleased to note the faithfulness of the members during our absence.

The new Blood River Church is progressing very well, and we are able to hold services in it now. Everyone is proud of the new church. Though it has meant hard work and sacrifice, it is truly worthy of the effort.

Mrs. Gus Landry has been ill for the past two weeks and is still taking medical treatment.

Mrs. John Williams is in a New Orleans hospital for observation and treatment.

Miss Clara Barnum has returned home from the hospital, but is still confined to her bed. We pray God's blessing to be upon these who are ill.

During the past six weeks four new babies have been born among our church folks. Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson have a boy, James Edward; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Baurele, a boy, Gerald Foster; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Foster, a girl, Vera Lou. Sr. Mary Richardson has already reported the other. All are doing well.

Harry Gockler, Pastor.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

We were privileged to have Elder Harry Gockler with us two Sundays during August.

We were very glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Murphy and two daughters in our community. They formerly lived in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Richey and daughter have moved to Nashville, Tenn.

Bro. William Melton, who was a faithful member of our church, died August 12.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kammacher of Gary, Ind., announce the arrival of a baby girl, Sharon Sue, born July 31. Mrs. Kammacher was formerly Miss Marjorie Richey, a member of our church at Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Claypool are spending a few months in Balleub, Minn. Bro. Claypool suffers from hay fever and the only relief he can get is to go to a different climate for a few months. We miss their presence at the church services, but we are glad he can go away for a few months.

The Illinois Quarterly Conference is to be held at Salem Church located near Marshall. The church members extend a hearty welcome to anyone who can come. There will be room enough for all who can come. Elder James Watkins will hold a week of services preceding the Conference and anyone wishing to come for the week will be welcome. We will try to have a few signs placed at different places so the church will be easier to locate. We will be looking for you at Marshall, September 20 and 21. Come and bring the family.

 Ruth Gockler, Secy.

ATER, TEXAS

Elder J. M. Morgan of Bristow, Okla., conducted a series of meetings from August 15-24 at Ater, Texas. Bro. Morgan delivered some very interesting sermons on the fundamental doctrines of the Church of God.

On Sunday, August 24, B. M. Wolfe, Jr., was baptized into the all-saving name of Christ. We welcome Bro. Wolfe into the household of faith, and pray that he may continue in the faith to the end.

This was Bro. Morgan's first meeting in central Texas, and we hope that he will be able to be with us again.

Wayne Yows.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Did you know? The General Sherman Tree, Sequoia National Park, Calif., is probably the oldest and largest living thing on earth. It is 101.6 feet in circumference, 36.5 feet in diameter, contains 600,120 board feet, and is probably not less than four thousand years old. . . . Thanks to Sr. Bernice Roberson, Tulare, Calif., for this information.

Children: Cross out all the "y's" and see what Jesus said: "Yiy ywiyl yoymey yagayiy."—Selected from Sr. Louise Lapp's section in the next Truth Seekers' Quarterly.

"I could not get along very well without our Herald, as it is about all the preaching I have. . . . The times are indeed evil."—Mrs. Maurice S. Guest, 23 Clinton Ave., Fredonia, N. Y.

"Perfection will never be brought in by ballot, and righteousness will never come by the sword or gun."—F. E. Siple, 147 Nottingham, S.W., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Thank you, Sr. Humphreys: "I like The Herald and hope it will continue to do much good for the cause of our Saviour while it is yet day. . . . I am sending a quilt for Golden Rule Home, hoping it will help in the Lord's work."—Mrs. Kittie C. Humphreys, Royal, Ark.

Sr. Emily Fyfe has recently moved from Springfield to Jerico Springs, Mo.

"I do hope I can attend General Conference next year, for I have always believed the teachings of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, and enjoy and get much help from my copy of The Restitution Herald."—Sarah Francis Wilson, 2310 Denver Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

"Put sin to death, or sin will put you to death."—F. A. Stilson, 411 E. South St., South Bend, Ind.

"As I came home and took up my home duties, after having been at General Conference, I felt that it was mighty good to have been there. My family and I had a real vacation and met with those of like precious faith and really feasted on the Word of God. . . . We also had good clean beds and plenty of good cooked food. Better plan to go next year!"—Mrs. Orval Lynd, Rt. 5, Rushville, Ill.

Brush Creek, Ohio. We have casually learned: Bro. Sam Hoke and wife are the parents of a son born August 19; Sr. Vera Doll was married to Louis W. McBarron of Dayton, Ohio, August 16, Bro. M. W. Lyon officiating; Bro. and Sr. Forest Pearson have a "spanking" new daughter; and Sr. Martha Pensyl recently became the bride of Bro. Roger Pearson. . . . Sorry we do not know further details as to names, dates, etc. Keep the news coming!

Wanted: A vest-pocket edition of the Bible, fully illustrated, having maps, center references, self-pronouncing, concordance, as many other "helps" as possible, and type large enough for grandma to read without using her glasses. . . . Send free sample.

Did you notice? The recent General Conference, attended by nearly five hundred Christians, was, so far as we know, not scented by cigarette smoke. Smokers are invited and wanted at Conference, but not their smoke. Jesus leads.

Keep hoping. "If the Lord tarries, we hope to attend General Conference next year."—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, Spicer, Minn.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

The work at the Dixon Church of God is steadily progressing under the leadership of Bro. C. Alan McLain.

About this time last year the members planned to have one of the students speak each Sunday. They gave splendid talks on Bible truths, which is proof of the excellent teaching that is given in our Maranatha College. June 1, 1941, Bro. McLain moved to Dixon. He has served us faithfully, and gained many friends.

During our pastor's absence, while on a vacation, Bro. Robert Hardesty of Oregon, Ill., took his place. We hope Bro. Hardesty will come again, as many words of praise have been heard in his favor. Bro. McLain will continue to serve this church when he returns to the Bible Training School.

Plans are under way for Rally Day, and something is being planned in honor of the Fifteenth Anniversary of the church.

We regret to report the death of one of our loved members, Mrs. Lester Paine. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. L. E. Conner.

We are rejoicing over the baptism of Ivan Croften, which took place the Monday evening following General Conference. Ivan is a fine young man of high school age, and is to be commended on his stand for the truth.

We pray God will give us strength to carry on His work, and when Christ returns may we hear His, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant" (Matt. 25:21).

Mrs. William Ford, Secy.

IOWA ANNUAL CONFERENCE

We were again happy to have Bro. S. E. Magaw with us this year. He favored us with several good sermons, and taught the adult class and young people's class each day. We can say the same of Bro. J. W. Williams. The other classes were taught as follows: Bro. Delbert Jones and Sr. Barbara Fish, junior class; Sr. Mayme Jones, primary; and Sr. Eldridge Ellis, beginners.

We were happy again to have so many young people stay throughout the week. Two hundred ten registered—the same as last year, but possibly the last Sunday had a larger crowd than for a few years in the past.

We also rejoice with the three girls and three boys who chose Christ as their guide in life.

It was good to have Bro. J. Eagleston back this year as well as several others from out of the State. Come again, folks!

The following officers were re-elected: president, H. S. Hunt, Clarksville; vice president, A. M. Jones, Eagle Grove; recording secretary, Mrs. W. H. Allard, 1118 Rainbow Dr., Cedar Falls; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Oscar Jenkins, Stanhope; and treasurer, Charles W. Howe, 1036 Newton, Waterloo. All moneys—as pledge—and dues, please send to Bro. Howe. Who will be first to make a donation for the new dormitory, which we hope can be planned and built before next Conference? We voted to do this, but, of course, it depends on whether it will be financed or not. Let us do all we can toward this movement without hurting the evangelistic work.

It is planned that Bro. J. W. Williams will return to his charges with his excellent services, and that we shall also have some services in the State by student ministers of the Bible Training School.

We hope Bro. Delbert Jones' plans are working out to preach not far from his school. Let us hear from you, Delbert.

Thanks to everybody who helped in some way to make this Conference such a success. Praise God that it was just that!

Mrs. Oscar Jenkins, Cor. Secy.

YOUR ATTENTION, PLEASE

They say it pays to advertise, and I know it's true, for we sell any number of books that are advertised in Bro. Arlen Marsh's column.

We aren't trying to sell you something, but we want you to know that to keep The Restitution Herald coming to you each week all year it is necessary for us to buy paper stock at least twice a year. We have recently (in August) purchased enough stock to keep The Herald coming to you a few more months, BUT we need money to pay for it. The paper company is already paid, but to pay our bill it was necessary to borrow the money. We also had a bill for remodeling our offices this summer (painter's and plumber's bills not in as yet) which has been paid with borrowed money. These two bills total over five hundred dollars—$511.67.

We appreciate your help at all times, but we shall especially appreciate some extra help right now, that we may pay our bills and keep the Lord's work growing. Please! Please! We do need money. Can you help? Will you?

Orpha LeMasurier, Treasurer.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. E. E. Giesler (for others); Kittie C. Humphreys; Mrs. Elmer Holthaus; Mrs. L. F. Slocum; Mrs. Maurice S. CARRIE DELLA SHEARER

Sr. Carrie Shearer died Saturday morning, August 23, 1941, at her home near Burr Oak, Ind. She was born Carrie Della Osborn, the daughter of Samuel and Henrietta Rice Osborn, November 2, 1875, in North Bend Township, Starke County, Ind., in the building which served as her home throughout life. This home was built by her father—a Civil War veteran—who resided in this county since 1840.

On March 14, 1900, she was united in holy matrimony with James Shearer, and to this union three children were born: Violet, who died in infancy; Samuel Howard; and Mildred Fern.

She was baptized in 1900, by Elder F. L. Austin in the Church of God, of which she remained a faithful member throughout life.

Her prime interest in life was the maintenance of a good Christian home for her husband and children. She was a kind, helpful, and loving wife and mother, and she was beloved by neighbors and friends alike. She was always eager to help in the affairs of the community, and her death will be keenly felt by all who met and loved her.

The last twelve years of her life she suffered from a heart ailment which made her duties increasingly difficult, but she carried on bravely to the end.

She leaves to survive her: her husband, James Shearer; her daughter, Mildred; her son, Samuel; and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted from the Burr Oak Church of God by Elder J. H. Anderson assisted by the writer. Bro. Anderson gave an excellent Church of God resurrection sermon and used that as a basis for comforting words to those who mourn her death.

C. R. Randall.

BAPTISMS AT KOKOMO, INDIANA

Sunday, September 7, a large crowd gathered at the water to witness the baptism of Robert Bengé and his wife Beulah of Indianapolis. This service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Elder D. G. Harvey.

Robert is a son of Mrs. Margaret Bengé, a member of the Kokomo church. Mr. Bengé and wife have spent most of the past two years in Sunny Side Hospital at Indianapolis. We pray for their speedy recovery and God's choicest blessing in their new start in the Christian life.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Law of the Harvest

By J. R. LeCrone

THE harvest fields of the United States have this year borne one of the most bountiful harvests with which the farmers have been blessed for many years. When asked the reason for this, they reply that the season was unusually favorable for the production of crops. The rains came when they were needed, the sun did its indispensable work, and there were no floods, hail, or high winds to destroy the crops, except in limited sections.

No thinking man will take to himself the credit for the increased yield, for he knows that he prepared the ground, planted the seed, cultivated the growing plants, only as he had in years past when the harvest was much less bountiful or even a complete failure. The difference between the failure and the big harvest lies in conditions over which the farmer has no control. He can only do the work. The increase must come from God.

In His beautiful Parable of the Sower, Jesus spoke of a man who went forth and sowed seed broadcast. Some of it fell on good soil; it sprang up and produced abundantly. Part of the seed fell in poor locations, and for various reasons failed to produce. We need not guess at the meaning of this Parable, for Jesus Himself interpreted it for us, as follows:

"Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower. When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the way side. But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it; yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended. He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful. But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit . . . some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty" (Matthew 13:18-23).

Let us look at the Parable for a moment from the viewpoint of the sower. Apparently, only a small percentage of the seed sown fell upon good ground. Yet, in order to insure a harvest, he broadcast the seed abundantly. A less liberal sowing might have missed the good ground and produced no harvest at all. Far better to waste some of the seed on poor ground, than that there should be no harvest!

Everyone can and must do his share toward increasing the harvest by carefully preparing the ground to receive the seed, and caring for the growing plants. Yet it often happens that seed sown in what appears to be unpromising soil springs forth and produces, while that sown in soil that has been carefully and painstakingly prepared, withers and dies. We can never exhaust the possibilities of the Word of God. There will never, in this age, be a shortage of seed. "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully" (2 Cor. 9:6).

One often fails to grasp an opportunity to sow, because he feels sure that it will do no good; but God says: "As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child; even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all. In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good" (Eccl. 11:5, 6).

Let us not become discouraged when the seed that we sow seems not to bear fruit. (Please turn to page 11)

The Garden of Eden

It was a beautiful Garden. God made it, and "there he put the man whom he had formed" (Gen. 2:8). "Every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food" adorned the Garden and graciously offered fruit-laden branches to Adam. "The tree of life also" was "in the midst of the garden" where it was most inviting and where, through paths hedged with gorgeous flowers and luxuriant ferns, it could be most conveniently approached.

A river, flowing its liberal strength through four channels, watered God's Garden and reflected paradisaical beauty along its shores. The river served, too, as a mirror wherein "the image of God" first saw his own image—backed by the limitless blue, as though God would cast down the very heavens for man to better see. Nearby, in "the land of Havilah," was gold, bdellium, and onyx stone—valuable pearls and varicolored quartz—and "the gold of that land is good" (2:12). There were gems for the king, unto whom God made every living thing to obey.

Nor was the man long lonely! What a joyful surprise when he awoke! Evolution? Bah! Are we to suppose Adam, Rip Van Winkle a la mode, slept countless years while his rib, changed by environment only, gradually evolved into the woman he needed? He would have died with nervousness, waiting! Further, Adam lived only nine hundred thirty years, and evolution cannot even in this zooming age change a rib into a woman that quickly! Rather, Adam's dream, if he had one, suddenly became reality; and we think the incision healed instantly—for God "closed up the flesh instead thereof" (2:21). There stood the woman—when Adam opened his eyes! There had been no tedious years of expensive courting, no plaguing risk of more audacious suitor! Then, the Lord, knowing that "it is not good that the man should be alone" (2:18), "brought her unto the man" (v. 22) in her natural beauty, virgin innocence and charm. Not once in Adam's nine hundred thirty years did he grieve that he was one rib "shy." Mother Eve was a loyal companion.

Now, concerning the fruit of one tree in the Garden, God commanded: "Thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (2:17). Then came the Serpent, saying: "Ye shall not surely die" (3:4). Somebody lied. Was it God? Moreover, the Serpent said: "In the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods" (3:5). Eve was deceived; she ate; Adam ate with her; they died. Thus, Satan lied and became guilty of the first murder.

Preachers, beware! How dare you tell the innocent, the inquiring, that there is no death? Who told you that the soul goes to heaven at death? Satan first said, "Ye shall not surely die, and, "Ye shall be as gods." Jesus said of Satan: "He was a murderer" (John 8:44), giving as His reason: "He is a liar, and the father of IT." Do you still teach IT at funerals? Preach the truth; truth only can save.

"The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23), "The soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:4, 20), "The dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9:5), Christ will not even judge until His "appearing and kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1), and no-death funeral sermons in a million churches cannot change the doctrine of God: "Thou shalt surely die."

The Nature of God

By Mabel Lindsay

"Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort."

PRACTICALLY all churches accept the doctrine of the trinity. Not only do they endorse it, but they hold it as an essential part of their church creed. It is one of the doctrines which so widely separates our Church of God from other church organizations. On first thought, it may appear of little importance, but let us consider the subject to see where this teaching, if accepted, would lead us.

This is the doctrine of the trinity stated briefly: There are three persons in the Godhead—Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. These three are one. Each is God in person. That this is a generally accepted belief is evidenced in the words in many of our hymns. The beauty of many otherwise wonderful hymns seems marred by their lack of Scriptural truth. It serves to show, however, how almost universal this doctrine has become. Christ is often referred to as the Maker or Creator. Was Christ the Maker? (See Genesis 1:1.)

In song and in prayer, reference is frequently made to the death on the cross of Christ our God. Did God die on the cross? No! God is immortal. It is impossible that He should die. If He had died, by whose power would He have been raised to life? and would there not have been chaos while the Ruler of the universe lay dead? This is a complex and unscriptural doctrine. It is for many a mystery—something accepted, but not understood. It is closely bound with the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and this is where it leads to serious error.

If Christ was God and died on the cross, there could be only one reasoning, namely, that He did not really die, only His body died. Then, if He did not die literally, He was not literally resurrected. "If Christ be not risen," said Paul, "your faith is vain. . . . Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." We would then have no hope, whatever, for a future life. "But," Paul continues, "now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept." (See 1 Cor. 15:

13-17.) So, we are assured that Christ died and rose from the dead, and by this we have the blessed hope of our own resurrection and future life.

Now let us for a while study some texts that seem to offer proof of the trinity. Let us remember this, We do not study merely to "bolster up" our own belief or to prove that someone else is wrong, but we study to learn what is taught in the Scriptures.

In different places in the Bible, Jesus is called God. Isaiah 9:6 is one which is often quoted. A son always bears his father's name, yet they are not one and the same person. So it is with our heavenly Father—it is right and proper that His Son should bear His name. Another text that is often used while studying this subject is John 1:1: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." Concerning this verse, the following comment is taken from Abbott's Revision of the New Testament: "We are forced upon the alternative of either admitting some incomprehensible distinction in the oneness of the Godhead, or else peremptorily rejecting this testimony."

The latter they would not do, of course, leaving us this fact: There is some "incomprehensible distinction in the oneness of the Godhead."

It does seem incomprehensible if we read only the first part of John 1, but like many other passages it is less difficult of intelligible understanding when viewed as a part of the whole record.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth," and "known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world." From the beginning, Jesus was with God in thought. He was part of God's great plan. God referred to a redeemer, Jesus, when He pronounced the curse on the Serpent. Jesus is the promised Seed of Genesis 3:15.

As Moses, in that far day, declared to his people Israel, "The Lord our God is one Lord," so we believe and teach today. Our God is one Lord, (Please turn to page 10)

"ONE GOD AND FATHER"

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth" (Gen. 1:1). "O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee! . . . The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine: as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them" (Psalm 89:8-11). "God himself . . . formed the earth . . . I am the Lord; and there is none else" (Isa. 45:18). "I am God, and there is none else" (v. 22).

Three Gods? Two Gods? "The Lord our God is one Lord" (Mark 12:29), and, said Jesus: "My Father is greater than I" (John 14:28). Said Paul: "There is none other God but one. . . . To us there is one God, the Father" (1 Cor. 8:4-6), and, "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5). By what mathematics and biology—for it would require both—could the Son and His Father, each, be synonymous both with each other and with another third Holy Ghost? Is God three? or only one third? Who begot, and who was begotten? Who died, and who resurrected? Did the dead raise the dead? God is one, not three!

Was Christ a Pacifist?

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THE late Mr. Chamberlain, former Prime Minister of England, was a lover of peace. "Peace in our time" was a slogan that he frequently used, and he tried to prevent war by following the principles of pacifism. Those who oppose the military ideals, who emphasize the defects of military training and the cost of war and preparation for it, and who advocate the settlement of international disputes entirely by arbitration are called "pacifists."

In all sincerity, Mr. Chamberlain went to Mr. Hitler, trying to grant the Nazi leader his desire, and thus avert war. Czechoslovakia was sold to buy peace. It was called "appeasement." But Mr. Chamberlain is dead, and all the world is uneasy because a war is raging that may spread over the face of all the earth. It seems that something is wrong with pacifism and arbitration.

Therefore, we wonder, "Was Christ a Pacifist?" Let us consider His record. Jesus had gone to the Jews' Passover and "found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting." "When he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables" (John 2:15). This is the only record concerning the scourge, and it does not say that Jesus struck those whom He drove.

In Matthew 11:21, 22, are the harsh words which our Saviour used in upbraiding certain cities: "Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you"—yet He never laid a hand on a man to harm him.

Isaiah prophetically testified of Christ's gentleness, as quoted in Matthew 12:18, 19: "Behold my servant, whom I have chosen; my beloved, in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles. He shall not strive, nor cry; neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets." In Isaiah 53:7, we have the following fulfilled prophecy of the day of Christ's death: "He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth."

It may also be well to consider some of Jesus' direct teachings. "Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: but I say unto you, That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain. Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away. Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."

We may also learn something from the actions of Jesus' followers. Stephen threw back no stones at those who stoned him, but rather said, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." May we go one step further, and discover the teaching of the Saviour's followers? Paul, in writing to the Roman Christians, said: "Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men. . . . Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" (Rom. 12:17-19). Paul very plainly implied that it was better to be defrauded than to stand up for one's rights against a brother. (1 Cor. 6:7.)

Judging from this wealth of evidence, we are compelled to say, "Yes, Jesus was a pacifist." He followed the principles of non-resistance. He used no force. He did not harm so much as a sparrow! He wept over a sinful city because it would be destroyed forty years later. One time He quietly escaped from those who would kill Him, another time He allowed His enemies to take and crucify Him, but He never fought back nor resisted. "Father, forgive them," He said.

There are prophecies, however, that might seem to change this whole argument. John, telling of his vision of the Son of God, said: "The armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God" (Rev. 19:14, 15). The Christ going forth to war! Paul assures the persecuted Christians by saying: "To you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Thess. 1:7, 8).

Christ WAS a pacifist, but will He be a pacifist when He comes again? NO! Even as Solomon said, there is "a time of war, and a time of peace" (Eccl. 3:8). Why did Chamberlain decide to fight? We answer, There are those who will not arbitrate. Why will the prophecy in Isaiah 11:4 be fulfilled? We read: "With righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked." Why? Because some sinners will refuse God's mercy. The same Prophet wrote these words, "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18). There are some who will not reason with God, and God will destroy them when He chooses.

Jesus did not resist when He was here on earth, because of the nature of His mission. He came to learn obedience and to be "made perfect through suffering." He came to give His life, and to call out a people for a special work with Him in the age to come. Did you ever consider the nature of our work for Him today? By love and gentle persuasion we urge others to learn patience and obedience to our loving Master. Today, we resist not evil, except that which is in our own hearts. James spoke of Christians in connection with the judgment of the wicked rich, saying to the wicked rich: "Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you" (James 5:6).

Tomorrow, the Lord will destroy the evil out of the earth. There is a time of war and there will be a time of judgment. The time of war for the nations is today. As a boil is evidence of impurity in the body, so war is an evidence of sin in the world. Unforgiven sin will make itself manifest. So, there will be wars.

Do not confuse our mission with that of God's Son when He comes with His saints to execute judgment. If you and I remember to purge sin out of our own lives today, we shall not perish with those who strive.

Too Wonderful for Words

By Alfred Anthon

---

THE Apostle Peter wrote sublime words when he said: "Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Peter 1:8). The word "unspeakable" probably means that which is too wonderful for words, not that which is unlawful to tell, though this latter meaning may seem to be stated in Paul's saying that "he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter" (2 Cor. 12:4).

That which is unspeakable, as the "Joy unspeakable" of 1 Peter 1:8, might be said to be "indescribable"—and would provide topics of sublime thought, philosophies of things eternal, and about that which man knows very little.

In fact, we do not believe that after God and Christ had permitted Paul to have insight into these profound philosophies of Christlike life, Paul was forbidden to tell them to other men. The Greek word exon, here translated "lawful," means "being known and publicly accepted." Therefore, what Paul heard, and which it is said was "not lawful for a man to utter," may simply have been certain revelations from the Lord which were not publicly or commonly known. Therefore, these things did not have their beginning in the mind of man. They were "thought up" in the mind of God.

The wonderful things about which Paul spoke may have been the revelations received when converted on the road to Damascus. The things of God are too wonderful for thorough explanation, though a man should get a glimpse of them. Indeed, no man would have ever "thought up" such a philosophy as: "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son (to be rejected and crucified by man), that whosoever believeth in him (and obedience follows true belief) should not perish (in the second death), but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Is God's anger appeased toward sinful man because man crucified His only Son? If man had not been wicked enough to crucify the Son of God, would God then have refused to forgive man? Did Jesus' martyrdom cause God to lower His requirements for entrance into Paradise? No! No! Rather, God so loved the world that He permitted His only Son to be crucified—the Son willingly consenting—to prove to man that man was very wicked. Man's sin was exceeding sinful, sinful enough to kill God's only Son, though the Son was doing heavenly good among men. Such love is really too wonderful for words.

Our Bible Training Institute and The Restitution Herald—an Appeal

By R. H. Judd

RECENTLY there appeared in the columns of The Restitution Herald a very instructive article by Brother C. E. Randall in the form of a personal communication to his brother ministers. It contained helpful suggestions and earnest recommendations for a more active evangelical spirit in the Church of God; nor was it without plain statements as to the shortcomings of the Church of God, and warnings as to the outcome if these were allowed to continue. The present writer was pleased to see that the welfare of the Church of God as a whole was considered in the publishing of it, and that the minor interests and fear of offending some individuals did not weigh too heavily on the other side of the scale.

The Church of God is certainly endeavoring to pull up her tent pins and enlarge her borders, and a great deal of the credit of her aggressive movements is due Brother Randall in his untiring efforts and warm-hearted zeal. The statement he made that much of the talent of the Church of God has been allowed to lie dormant is unquestionably true, as is also the danger hinted at, if not directly expressed, of allowing our students and the rising generation of writers to be almost wholly dependent on the literary labors of other churches.

But when all is said, it still remains true that The Restitution Herald is, or should be, the main factor in our testimony, and the predominant source of instruction for both young and old who come in contact with the Church of God, either as members or friendly adherents or interested outsiders.

To the writer's mind, if I may be allowed to express myself as clearly and forcibly as did Brother Randall, and with the same kindly spirit, the desire (sometimes expressed) to "give everybody a chance" has given many outsiders, and to some within the forefront of our own ranks, the impression that there is far too much confusion of thought between our own writers. This is notably true in subjects which have their basic beginnings in the opening chapters of the Divine Record.

If we are to have a Bible Training Institute—and God grant that we may—are we to lay ourselves open to the charge that according to our official organ the Church of God has not yet made up its mind as to the understanding of the main themes of the very first chapters of the Bible, and that views obviously contradictory of each other and of fact, are given equal prominence and apparently equal credence. This, irrespective of the fact that in some instances the exegesis is arrived at by ignoring time, circumstance, and context, and basing emphatic assertion on misunderstood and often misquoted remarks occurring in Scripture many centuries later; apart from which it would be impossible for intervening generations to obtain a correct understanding of scriptures which have preceded.

The writer can recall many instances in the recent past which have occurred, and concerning which some of our leaders and contributors have written, at their own suggestion, expressing protest and dissent, and which probably accounts for (in some degree at least) the fact, and the complaint of The Herald, that the older and more experienced contributors to our pages have refrained from writing.

The issue of September 2 affords a very suitable illustration, and the opportunity of using it, without being open to the charge of direct though kindly criticism being applied to our own writers. In the selected article from the Pastoral Bible Institute pamphlet on page 10, where reference is made to the "day" of Adam's penalty, we have the statement: "The Apostle Peter explains (it) was not a twenty-four hour day," saying, "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years" (2 Peter 3:8).

In more than one respect the remark is seriously incorrect, and it appears without any editorial correction or comment. There is no evidence whatever that Peter's remark when properly quoted had immediate or, indeed, any reference to the "day" of Adam's penalty, as indicated by the author of this article in his use of the word "which." Further, the writer states but half the truth expressed by Peter. The other half on the same principle would limit the Millennium to a single day. Peter's statement does not in any way alter the actual meaning of the word "day" in its natural sense in either instance of its use in that verse. If the reader will notice the two occurrences of the word "as," he will have no difficulty in coming to a correct understanding of Peter's remark.

In Genesis 2:17 clear distinction is made (as definitely implied as if it had been stated) between the "day" on which Adam eats of the fruit and every other day of his natural life. Anyone who thoughtfully examines the language used will admit that. Such distinction would be impossible in a "day" of one thousand years, for Adam does not live one such day. Besides, a little Irish humor would come to the surface of even a Scotchman when we think of telling a man he must not eat of a certain fruit within the compass of one thousand years. A careful survey of the facts will show clearly that in mercy the penalty was remitted for one of penal servitude for life. One has only to compare the sentence of Genesis 2:17 with that of Genesis 3:17-19 for corroboration of the above statement. We may quite reasonably ask, If "day" in Genesis 2:17 means "not a twenty-four hour day, but a day of a thousand years," why does not the same interpretation apply in Genesis 3:17 where the word is used in the plural? Obviously, the word "day" in both instances is a natural day, otherwise absurdities obtain, and there are no absurdities in God's Word. See Genesis 5:5—"And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died." Did Adam live nine hundred and thirty thousand years?

Twenty-odd years ago the writings of Brother Aldridge of New Zealand brought these facts to my notice, and I have since thanked God for it, and have never had occasion to change. Correct interpretation lies at the base of every true understanding of any Bible topic. A Jewish brother also brought some of these facts to me.

We do not deny to an earthly judge the mercy and the right, under given circumstances, to commute the sentence of death, even when already pronounced, to penal servitude for life. Why, then, deny it to God Almighty who is Judge of all the earth?

Thousands read The Restitution Herald. Its influence for good or evil, for right and wrong, is greater than we sometimes think. Have we a right, a moral right, to pass unnoticed such a statement as that "the Apostle Peter explains that the day of Adam's penalty was not a twenty-four hour day"?

If at any time in my writings I make a statement that is not in accord with Bible fact, I will be thankful to whoever may kindly point it out even by name. Honest, straightforward, kindly criticism is to be desired for our own good, and that of others.

"Ye Should Follow His Steps"

By Richard Smith

---

WITH the thought in mind of helping one in the Christian walk of life, many have counseled: "Follow in the footsteps of the Saviour, use His example as a pattern for your life, and in so doing fulfill His words, 'Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.'" (Matt. 5:16.)

Yes, it is true that the best counsel one can receive is that "ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21), especially in this present time when the world is so crowded with vice, trouble, and temptation. Inasmuch as mankind is beset by all temptations, vices, and sins, it was necessary that the Saviour of mankind, in becoming the perfect Example and Pattern, should face the temptations and trials common to man. We look into the Scriptures for some evidence in reference to this thought, and read: "We have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15). When Jesus was tempted in the wilderness, three propositions typical of temptations common to all men were placed before Him. That this statement might be vindicated, we shall analyze the temptations. First, however, it should be considered that His temptations were heavier than are ours, for we, not being the Son of God, would lack the power to do the things suggested to Him; and in that Jesus did have such power, He might have resorted to it to prove His Messiahship. Jesus refused, however, to heed Satan's cunning temptations, even for suggested and otherwise legitimate gain in proving His Messiahship.

Christ, hungry and probably weak after forty days of fasting in the wilderness, was told, "If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread" (Matt. 4:3). Christ's answer, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (v. 4) is typical of the answer every Christian should give when tempted to devote his attention to the bread that perishes instead of the "living manna"—even that Word of God that came down from heaven. Let us ever remember the words of Christ at a later time: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:3).

The second temptation was designed to see if Christ would ask God for something that was unnecessary, it having been written: "Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God" (Deut. 6:16). The prospect of having God perform a miracle to save His Son from harm though He should leap from a pinnacle of the Temple, which miracle would add prestige to Christ and show that He could have the necessary riches of the world, (Please turn to page 10)

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

A Serial—Part Five

By A. L. Corbaley

In Luke 19:10 Jesus said: "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." What did Adam lose by sinning? First, though, let us consider what was given to him when he was created? "God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth" (Gen. 1:26).

Jesus Will Remove the Curse

The earth and all the animal creation is now in revolt against man, and the man himself is subject to death. Not only did the man who sinned lose his life, but his posterity was included in the death sentence. The sentence pronounced upon Adam was, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:17-19). In Romans 5:12 we find how death came upon mankind: "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Death not only is passed upon all men, but also upon the whole animal creation. Even the ground is cursed; so trees, flowers, and all the products of the ground are subject to decay and death.

Christ will redeem all from this curse, however, as it is written: "Now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment: so Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Heb. 9:26-28). "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). Then, those who believe in Christ will receive everlasting life, and those who do not believe in Him will perish. If Jesus had not taken our sins upon Himself, we would all have perished. In the sentence on Adam, there was no future life promised—he would simply "return unto the ground." What, then, has the death and the resurrection of Jesus secured for the family of Adam? We read in 1 Corinthians 15:21-23: "Since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." The expression, "every man in his own order," is a military phrase, and means, in his own band or company. The phrase, "as in Adam all die," we know means the whole race, but to every rule there may be exceptions, and this one has exceptions.

In Hebrews 11:5 we read, "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death." Elijah, too, was translated in the days of the prophets of Israel. (2 Kings 2:11.) Jesus said to Martha in John 11:26: "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." He was speaking to her of those who would be living when He returns to the earth, at the time of the resurrection of the just. (1 Thess. 4:17; Acts 24:15).

In John 5:28, Jesus said: "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." Here is mention of two resurrections. In Revelation 20:4-6, in speaking of the resurrection of the righteous, John said: "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead (the unworthy ones) lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." The rest of the dead would refer to all who had ever lived and died. It would mean that every one of Adam's race will live again after the first death. In proof of this statement, let us turn to Romans 5:18, saying: "Therefore as by the offence of one (Adam) judgment came upon all men to condemnation (resulting in the first death); even so by the righteousness of one (Christ), the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life"—clearly proving that every one of Adam's family will live again.

Jesus Will Restore the Davidic Throne

In Matthew 19:27, 28, the Apostle Peter asked Jesus a question: "Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore? And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me (in this life), in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Men are generated into life by natural birth, and death takes life away. Then "in the regeneration" would mean, when we live again at the resurrection day. That will be the time when the apostles will "sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

If the apostles are to judge the twelve tribes of Israel, when will the tribes be gathered out from among the nations where they are scattered? Will it be before or after the coming of the Lord? and if after, what will be the conditions in the world when they are gathered back to their own land? That they will be gathered back is abundantly proved by passages in both Old and New Testaments. (See Ezek. 36; 37; Luke 1:32, 33; Rom. 11:25-27; Rev. 7:1-8.)

Hosea 3:4, 5 reads: "The children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall fear the Lord and his goodness in the latter days." Likewise, in Jeremiah 32:37, 38 we read, "Behold, I will gather them out of all countries, whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God."

Could there be any better proof than these testimonies from God's Word? We see some of the Jews, more than 550,000, are now in the land of Palestine, but this is only a tithe of what the land could support, when properly tilled. The rebuilding of the Kingdom indicates the coming of the King, as we read: "When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory" (Psalm 102:16).

In Isaiah 11, we read of the conditions that will be brought to pass upon the earth under the rule of Jesus and His saints when He shall be King over all the earth. "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. And in that day shall there be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious" (vv. 9, 10).

The Regathering of Israel

When the Kingdom of God has been fully established upon the earth, "it shall come to pass . . . that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time (the first time was from Egypt in the days of Moses) to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel (the ten tribes), and gather together the dispersed of Judah (Judah and Benjamin) from the four corners of the earth. The envy also of Ephraim shall depart, and the adversaries of Judah shall be cut off; Ephraim shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim. But they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philistines toward the west; they shall spoil them of the east together: they shall lay their hand upon Edom and Moab; and the children of Ammon shall obey them. And the Lord shall utterly destroy the tongue of the Egyptian sea; and with his mighty wind shall he shake his hand over the river, and shall smite it in the seven streams, and make men go over dry shod. And there shall be an highway for the remnant of his people which shall be left, from Assyria; like as it was to Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt" (Isa. 11:11-16).

Here we have a perfect view of the restoration of the whole house of Israel: the two tribes, designated by the term "Judah," and the ten tribes by the term "Ephraim," or Israel. So, we can clearly see that while a small portion of Judah has now returned to the Promised Land, as we read they would do (Ezek. 38), the great regathering of the twelve tribes to the land will be after the Lord has perfectly established His Kingdom on the earth.

In Ezekiel 20:33-38, we learn that the Lord will not lead the now scattered people of Israel directly into the Promised Land, but, as in the days of Moses, He will take them through a course of training and discipline. "As I live, saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you: and I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people and there will I plead with you, face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant: and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me: I will bring them forth out of the country where they sojourn, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am the Lord."

We read, moreover, "In mine holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord God; there shall all the house of Israel, all of them in the land, serve me: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the firstfruits of your oblations, with all your holy things. I will accept you with your sweet savour, when I bring you out from the people, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered: and I will be sanctified in you before the heathen. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country for the which I lifted up mine hand to give it to your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have been defiled; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have wrought with you for my name's sake, not according to your wicked ways, nor according to your corrupt doings. O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord God" (Ezek. 20:40-44).

From these verses we learn that the whole house of Israel is now scattered among the nations, and will be brought out from among them; definitely proving that no nations on earth are now Israel, or any part of it; for Israel is scattered among them. "The Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other: and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone. And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but, the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind: and thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life" (Deut. 28:64-66).

Zion's Peace and Exaltation

In Micah 4:1-9, a beautiful picture is presented, showing conditions to be on the earth when Jesus comes. "In the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it. . . . In that day, saith the Lord, will I assemble her that hath been driven out, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted; and I will make her that halted a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the Lord shall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion: the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem."

Here, again, we learn by the Scriptures that the complete restoration of Israel will be after all wars have ended, when the world is in peace and security, as it was in the Garden of Eden before the fall of man. Every man will have a home where he can raise his living with no fear of it being taken from him. Then "all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." (Isa. 11:9; Num. 14:21). Then "the kingdoms of this world (will have) become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."

Gross Darkness to Precede the Day

Today, the very opposite conditions prevail upon the earth. Jesus prophesied there would be "upon the earth, distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:25-27). So, we must be on the threshold of that time.

When men fear danger, and there seems to be no other way of escape, the natural thing for them to do is to provide weapons and arm men to resist the enemy. That is what the whole world is doing today. Man is "making" business, and the chief business is found in high manufacturing plants where men turn out war materials in the greatest possible speed. Millions of men are being trained for war: in the army, in the navy, in the air, and even under the sea—to destroy their fellow men who are engaged in the same business to destroy their fellow men! Millions of men are now engaged in mortal combat, where not only the men of war, but thousands of non-combatants—men, women, and children—are being slaughtered by explosives showered down from the heavens, upon cities and towns. Men are mining the seas with deadly explosives, and sinking thousands of vessels with the deadly submarines. Such is a very mild picture of war, as it is being waged today by the leading nations of the world. So dreadful is the situation that many of the Bible writers were inspired to warn God's people of its coming, and to tell the results.

"Multitudes in the Valley of Decision"

In Joel 3:9-21, we read: "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; Prepare (or sanctify, or make a business of) war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up: beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord. Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining. The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake; but the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. So shall ye know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more.

"And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord. . . . Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land. But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: for the Lord dwelleth in Zion."

The Lamb Will Be the Lion

Judging from what the prophets have said, God has left man in control of the earth about as long as He intends to do so. Man has shown his unfitness to rule over his fellow man, so God intends to send His Son to this world to bring peace and order out of the present chaotic condition that now exists. Soon the Lamb will reign as the Lion.

In Daniel 2:44 it is expressed in this way: "In the days of these kings (our present rulers) the God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." This will be the fifth universal kingdom on earth. Those that preceded it were: Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. The Roman Empire was divided into ten kingdoms by the year 476 A.D., and many of them have been subdivided since that time, yet in the Scriptures they are reckoned as ten kingdoms till the end of their history under mortal rulers.

We find this truth further indicated in Revelation 17:12, which reads: "The ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast. These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast. These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings."

"Seducing Spirits"

In 1848, in the city of Rochester, New York, there lived a family by the name of Fox. In this family there were three sisters, afterward everywhere known as the Fox Sisters. They were the leaders in spirit manifestations in modern times. They were supposed to receive messages from people who had died: first, by spirit rappings; then by independent slate writing where the spirit, all invisible, would guide the hand of the writer; then by seances, when the medium would be locked up in a cabinet, and the spirit would appear in material form before the audience to answer questions anyone would ask. In a short time the movement became very popular, and seances were held all over the United States. It spread to other countries, and multitudes of the people consulted spirit mediums for information and advice concerning their affairs in life: business, marriage, and other things of vital interest. It soon spread to certain rulers of governments. They held seances, and had spirits dictate their policy of dealings with other countries.

In 1870, Louis Napoleon sent to the United States, having nine American mediums come to Paris. A seance was held in the royal palace. Louis Napoleon wanted to know whether or not he should make war on Germany at that time. The spirit answered, "Yes! Now is the time; you will be successful." Emperor William of Germany heard what Napoleon had done; so he sent to the United States and had some mediums come to Berlin. The spirits told him that he would be successful, that he would humiliate Napoleon Bonaparte. So the War of 1870 between France and Germany was fought. France was defeated. The spirits told Emperor William the truth, but they lied to Napoleon. Today, it is said that the policy of the rulers of the world is largely dictated by communications from the spirit world. What is the world doing today? Every nation on earth is prostrating all of its resources in preparation for war—making that its chief business.

Where do these mediums get their information? Does it come from God, or from some other source? For an answer, let us turn to the "sure word of prophecy" which tells us: "The sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the waters thereof were dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared. And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. . . . There were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great. And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found" (Rev. 16:12-20). (To be continued)

LIFE'S MIRROR

By Mary Mae Nedrow

If we could look into life's mirror,
A picture of our lives we then would see.
We'd see ourselves as others see us,
And bow our heads in deep humility.
We'd not find time for cheap or idle gossip,
For cutting words to faint and faltering hearts,
But see ourselves as in a mirror,
And at ourselves we'd point the poison darts.
We'd feel the pain we oft caused others
By thoughtless words we were so swift to speak.
If we could look into life's mirror—
We'd humbly kneel, and true forgiveness seek.

HELPING YOUR PREACHER

Financial support of your minister does not fulfill your duty toward him; every member of the church, and every attendant, should consider that the following "helps" may mean fully as much as any money given:

- (1) Be quiet and attentive in the service.
- (2) Attend church to worship, not to visit.
- (3) Move over to the center of the pew, and share your songbook with others.
- (4) Bring your company with you to the services; you would take them to a less important meeting.
- (5) Introduce yourself to visitors, and invite them to come again; your invitation will be less expected and therefore more effectual than the invitation of the pastor.
- (6) Move forward, reserve rear seats for the bashful.

THE NATURE OF GOD

not three. This does not detract in any way from the glory and majesty of Christ our Saviour. He is God's Son. The Holy Spirit is God's power.

"Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever" (1 Tim. 1:17).

TOO WONDERFUL FOR WORDS

When a person realizes that he is wicked, in reality very wicked, and when he becomes thoroughly ashamed of himself, he will loathe himself (cp. Ezek. 20:43) and become contrite. God will bless a contrite heart; He will curse a stiffneck. Let us all be ashamed, for we have all (all mankind) joined hands in sin in some form or another, which sin brought about the crucifixion of Christ. Obviously, if Christ died for the sins of the whole world, the sins of the whole world were instrumental in causing His death on the cross; and all mankind is as surely guilty before God as were the Jews who cried, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Had you and I been in Jerusalem during the Passion week, would we have been more faithful than Peter who denied the Lord or the other disciples who forsook Him and fled?

Let all mankind fall prostrate and weep bitterly at the death of Jesus who gave Himself a martyr to teach mankind contrition which reconciles us to God—not God to us. Contrition is God's prerequisite for salvation. God and Christ did not lower their requirements. They made a superhuman sacrifice to teach man how to qualify, how to pass the entrance examination, for Eden. This love for sinners is truly too wonderful for words.

In that God resurrected Christ Jesus, we may be assured that God's promises are genuine—not man-made, not possible of failure. Anticipating the eternal love and grace of God, anticipating, too, eternal heirship with Christ who died for us while we were yet sinners, we "rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Peter 1:8).

"YE SHOULD FOLLOW HIS STEPS"

was as formidable to Christ as a like temptation could be before men today.

The third temptation was, we believe, the most difficult to resist. Looking over the kingdoms of the earth, having vision and promise of the pomp and glory of world-wide rulership, anyone, even the Saviour, would find it difficult to resist. Christ, however, rightly answered when told He must worship Satan to attain the rulership, saying: "Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve" (v. 10). Here, Jesus made wise choice between the world and God, God being His choice; and in this, Jesus gave the correct example for all mankind.

Everyone must put away the temptations of appetite, avarice, and ambition. He must worship God. He must choose Christ as his Master and Pattern of life, and the One for whom he will faithfully labor.

As Christ taught us to yield not to temptation, He also showed forth a love for mankind and a zeal for service to be manifested in the lives of all. His love for all—rich and poor, old and young, crippled and stalwart—who had fallen into the snares of sin, including the harlots and publicans, is an example to all who claim the name "Christian." A Christian, nominally, is a follower of Christ. Did Christ teach men to lift those who had fallen in sin, or did He tell men to make it all the more difficult for the fallen to rise by adding gossip to their burden? Deceivable, detestable stories! We answer this question with the words of the Saviour when He was condemned for associating with the publicans and sinners, when He was helping where needed. He said: "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick" (Matt. 9:12).

Christ was a mortal man, tempted in all points, yet He was faithful to God, helpful to man, and showed loving kindness to the poor and sinful. He suffered and was reviled, yet there was no "guile found in his mouth" (1 Peter 2:22). In all this, Christ "suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (v. 21).

God will not hold us responsible for the fruit bearing, only for the husbandry. God makes the fruit bearing His own responsibility, and assures us that His Word shall accomplish that for which it was intended, saying: "As the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it" (Isa. 55:10, 11).

Let us, therefore, resolve that during the coming year we shall prepare the ground more carefully, and sow the seed more liberally than ever before. We shall leave the increase in the hands of God, knowing that whether or not we are able to see any visible results of our labors, they will not go unrewarded. Said Paul, "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase" (1 Cor. 3:6, 7).

BUILDING YOUR LIBRARY

Book Reviews

By Arlen Marsh

To remedy the almost universal ignorance regarding the King James Version, Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, famed editor of the New Testament section of An American Translation, offers The Translators to the Reader (University of Chicago Press; 50 cents).

It should be required reading for every Christian who uses English. If it were, a great deal of the difficulties engendered by archaic language, by definitely bad grammar and worse punctuation, by palpable mistranslations, and by the Trinitarian ideas of the translators themselves would be forever done away.

The book comprises three sections: a short critical commentary on the original Preface (as penned by the translators) to the King James; a modernized (modernized as to spelling and punctuation so as to permit easy reading) reprint of the original Preface; a facsimile reproduction, page by page, of the entire original Preface as it first saw the light of day.

The present Preface to be found in many editions of the King James is hardly a skeleton of the original, which has been eliminated in order to save space and expense. The original Preface states bluntly: (a) that the translators were not inspired; (b) that they had made a great many mistakes; (c) that they had made no effort to revise their mistakes, or to correct them; (d) that no effort was made to consult commentaries on the original languages so as to insure accuracy of thought.

Dr. Goodspeed's critical analysis of the Preface may be confirmed by any religious historian. The facsimile reprint of the original Preface speaks for itself; so does the exact "translation" of the Preface into modern spelling. The facts are clear, and they are unimpeachably correct.

Indirectly, Dr. Goodspeed raises the question which frequently has occurred to us during discussions of the various English translations: If the King James be the sole dependable version, in what sorry state were the English before 1611, and in what sorry state are those who cannot now read English? To this, the translators reply by remarking that these others had really been fed "good wine," and not the "gall of Dragons."

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son" (Revelation 21:7).

Wonderful Things to Come

John, the writer of the Revelation of Jesus Christ, saw what to us may be called some beautiful pictures of wonderful things to come. He saw a heaven and earth made new and a holy city, the New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven.

John also heard a great voice out of heaven, explaining the meaning of this city coming to earth. The voice said that God would dwell with men, and He would "wipe away all tears from their eyes."

There was One who spoke a warning which we must heed today: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

We then must be overcomers. Of what? Selfishness, greed, even all appearance of evil—all sin, no matter what form. This should be our aim in life: to be an overcomer.

There is no need of a sun in this city. Christ, the Lamb, is the light. There is no temple there, for God and Jesus "are the temple of it." Yes, those who worship in that city will have a God and Christ whom they can see and hear. How wonderful to be in that Holy City that John saw, which will be seen by some of us someday when Jesus and God have Their Day!

Help Yourself!

If a new cafeteria opened in our town, and on opening day the owner said, "We will let you eat all the food you wish once a week, if you will just pay us a small sum once a year"—why; we'd "jump at the chance"! Wouldn't we?

We can liken this foregoing illustration to our own Restitution Herald, can't we? The "opening day" is the day one subscribes. The "owner" represents the business officials. The "food" is the Word of God and ideas sent in from many people and places—once a week.

The "small sum" is well stated in The Herald, third column, page 15.

Will you ask your parents to send for The Herald, so you can read the Children's Page and be a member of our ECE Club? Send me your name, address, month, day, and year of birth. Your membership card will be sent to you. Our Everyday Christian Expression Club has over three hundred members, but we need you, too. Will you send me a post card today?

The Place of Judas

You know about Judas Iscariot, the man who, although one of the Twelve Apostles, took thirty pieces of silver to lead the enemies of Jesus to Him! Did you ever pause to think that there are betrayers or traitors today in almost every group we may be in?

We must walk close to God and His teachings, lest we slip and fall into the place of Judas. Sometimes by our thoughts, words, and deeds, we dishonor God. We want to be like Jesus, if we are trying to follow Him. We must be overcomers, then, by doing good deeds, speaking kind words, and thinking pure thoughts.

May we rid ourselves of all cares and sins that separate us from the love of God, for we know neither the hour of Jesus' coming nor the time of our death: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life" (Rev. 2:10) at "the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14).

Extra!

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults. . . . Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalm 19:7-12, 14).

It Means Work

By Zelda Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo.

As secretary of the National Berean Society, we would like to ask for a little co-operation from the secretaries of all local societies. We shall use the society at Fredericktown as an example of what we would like to have you report to us.

The secretary here keeps minutes of each meeting. In these minutes a record is kept of the name and number of the lesson, the name of the leader, the name of the leader for the following week, the attendance, and an account of any important business which may arise. The treasurer gives his report, and this is included in the minutes which are read at the following meeting. We have a social each month, and a record of these activities is also kept.

We have a Sunshine Band in connection with our Berean society. This is composed of all the little folks up to eight years of age. Their records are kept with the Berean secretary. They have an average attendance of thirteen students. The little folks seem to get even more enjoyment from these meetings than they do from Sunday school. They have their song service, and nearly all of the older ones can lead in prayer. The smaller ones memorize short prayers. The children here like to sing, and we spend much time singing. Sometimes, we have opening exercises and sing before the whole group.

When a secretary keeps a record of the activities of a Berean society, she is able to know definitely what work is being done by each individual. We are suggesting that the secretary of each society keep a record of each week's activities and send a copy of them to our Berean editors. From this material, they will be able to gather news of sufficient general interest to all societies to print in the Berean columns. In this way, we can be drawn closer together, and can profit by the experiences of others.

It seems that one of the foremost things which holds the National Berean Society back, right now, is the lack of co-operation. In the near future, we are going to make an effort to get, from your secretaries, a considerable amount of information concerning your society and its members. If all members and all secretaries will agree to do their very best to help us, they will make it possible for us to organize more thoroughly than ever before.

So Little Will Help So Much

A number of years ago the Bereans worked out a plan which served to both remind the members of the purpose of their work and provide an increase in funds in the treasury. The plan was very simple, and it met with considerable success. Each year, a week would be chosen during which time all Bereans would deny themselves of all luxuries—turning the money they would have spent for these nonessential items over to the treasurer of their society. The treasurer would then send half of the amount received to the National Berean treasurer.

It has been decided to revive "self-denial week" this year during the first week in October. Therefore, if you are a loyal Berean, during this week (all seven days of it), you will refrain from purchasing any luxury, and will turn this money over to your local treasurer as soon as possible. The treasurers are then to send fifty per cent of the money received from this special offering to Virginia Smith who will issue a report of the amounts received as soon as all of the returns are in.

Although the first week in October will be here very shortly, in order for the plan to be successful it will be necessary that each Berean participate. Some of those in your society may not have an opportunity to read this column, and your president may overlook it. Just to be sure that everyone is familiar with what we are trying to do, why don't you make it a point to announce "self-denial week" to the members of your Berean society.

One fellow asks, "What if I just have to have a package of gum or a candy bar during that week?" The only thing for him to do will be to go ahead and buy that package of gum, and then "dig up" another five cents to put into his "self-denial" (?) fund. This method will probably serve to strengthen considerably the will power of many members. It will cost you double to give way to that consuming desire.

Wouldn't it be better for you only to donate a certain amount to your Berean fund without going through all this inconvenience? We think not. Your paying to refrain from something will help to increase your appreciation for that great effort of which you are a member. Come on, try it with us, then let us know what success you have.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF EVANGELISM

October 5-19—Special meetings at Hope Chapel, South Bend, Ind.
October 12—California Conference at Pomona.

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE

The next California conference will be held in Pomona, the second Sunday in October, which will be October 12. There will be good speakers at services both in the morning and evening. The young people will take charge of the afternoon meeting. A potluck dinner will be served at noon in the park.
Everybody come!

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

Our new year of work has started with Bro. J. R. McCrone as pastor. The pastor and family arrived September 2. They are living in the newly purchased parsonage across the park from the church. The first preaching service was Sunday, September 7.

Sunday school attendance has increased each Sunday. The attendance last Sunday was sixty-four.

We have organized a choir which we hope will add interest to the work. May God's blessing rest upon the work here.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Secy.

EAST SIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Oregon, Illinois

Our Sunday school has grown to such an extent that it was necessary for us to call for help. Two of the brethren kindly responded to our call, and offered their services as teachers. We now have three classes instead of one large class. The enrollment is fifty-seven—from two years of age to sixty-five years of age. Adults have just started coming to our classes.

We wish to thank the many brethren who visited our Sunday school east of the river, during Conference this summer. Your presence gave us just the encouragement we needed. We are sincerely grateful to you for your interest, and hope that you will continue to pray for us.

We are still holding our school in the open. God has been very gracious to us in that it has never rained while our Sunday school was in session, and we are thankful for his loving kindness. Though the clouds gather, and the rain may descend upon us, we shall still carry on. "He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap."

M. M. Nedrow.

AN OKLAHOMA REPORT

In Arch, Okla., we have had a fine discussion which lasted four nights between Bro. T. A. Drinkard, representing the Church of God, and Elder Gussie Lambert, Holdenville, Okla., representing another denomination. The propositions discussed were: 1) The Scriptures teach that the Jews as a nation will return to Palestine when Christ returns to the earth, and they will be converted to Christ; 2) The Scripture teaches that Christ will establish a literal throne in Jerusalem and will reign over the whole earth for a period of one thousand years. Bro. Drinkard took the affirmative side; Elder Lambert took the opposite.

Bro. Drinkard and Elder Lambert conducted themselves very well. We had a large attendance and good order. Everyone seemed to enjoy the debate very much.

Bro. Drinkard preached Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings. On Saturday, September 13, our son, Elgie Simmons and his fiancée, Miss Alice Rudtsill, came forward and made the confession of their faith. At the close of the service they were united in marriage by Bro. Drinkard. The writer preached Sunday morning, and in the afternoon our son and his wife were baptized into the all-saying name of Jesus Christ. He and his wife will leave in about two weeks for San Antonio, Texas, as he is in the army, stationed at Fort Sam Houston.

The meeting closed Sunday evening, September 14, and Bro. and Sr. Drinkard returned to their home on Monday, September 15.

W. R. Simmons.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

As September 13 was Bro. Richard Smith's birthday, the members of the Blair church had a surprise party at the home of Bro. and Sr. Elza Appleby in his honor. As a token of love and respect, Bro. Smith was presented with a leather brief case.

Bro. Smith has been our student pastor during the summer, and we are going to miss him greatly at the close of his work here. May the Lord ever guide and direct him in his future life.

Mrs. E. L. Appleby.

VIRGINIA CONFERENCE REPORT

The years still come and go. So do we of the Church of God located at Maurertown, Va. Our 1941 Bible School and Conference was held from August 14-24. Our visiting ministers were Bros. S. J. Lindsay and J. W. McLain. Their wives accompanied them.

On Sunday morning, August 17, we were pleasantly surprised to greet Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin in company with Bro. and Sr. Leland Hanson. How splendid to know that there are those in this land of freedom who choose to spend their vacations visiting church conferences! By their fruits we know them. Never before have we had two of our senior ministers at Conference time to preside at the Communion Table. A spirit of sacred devotion seemed to overshadow the breaking of bread and the drinking of the cup—emblematic of Christ's suffering on the cross for our salvation.

As usual, our Bible school was divided into four classes. The adult and young people's classes were taught alternately by Bros. Lindsay and McLain. Bro. Lindsay gave us practical lessons on maintaining unity within the church group and living the Christian life at all times under all circumstances. Bro. McLain discussed the timely subject of prophecy as it relates to the symbols in the Book of Revelation. It seems to us that God, through Christ, has sealed this young elder with a foretaste of the Holy Spirit to discern the signs of the fig tree—Israel—in the world today and warn us of impending tribulation and wrath as we see it now beginning to come to pass preparatory to the coming of Christ and the end of Gentile times.

Sr. LeCrone had the intermediate class in which her girls and boys learned timely Bible verses from their big clock, and studied the meaning of well-known scriptures such as Psalm 23. Sr. Louise Thut told the primary class stories of the Bible Babies from selections from Sr. Thayer's Children's Quarterlies.

The class records showed an enrollment of one hundred two, with an average attendance of seventy. Sr. Thut's class of eleven led the list with an average of nine present each day.

Bro. and Sr. Clarence Poland from Skelton, W. Va., came on Saturday, August 16, bringing with them his mother, Bros. Capps and Szoke and ten of their children of various ages, several almost grown young ladies. We were glad to have them with us and wish they could have remained for the full term of the Bible school.

We also had as visitors on Sunday, August 17, brethren and sisters from Washington, D. C.; Bro. and Sr. Orr and family from Baltimore, Md.; Bro. and Sr. Fincham from Arlington, Va., formerly from Delta, Ohio; and Sr. Florence Updike Caesar and daughter from Texas. The last mentioned is Mrs. Austin Railton's mother.

The first Sunday of our Conference was banner day in attendance. We give Bro. Lindsay full credit for being the magnet of attraction. It had been announced that he could not remain over the second Sunday, as he had previously promised the Omaha, Nebr., brethren to be with them August 24. Bro. Lindsay deserves this popularity and we were especially pleased to see him looking so well and hope his health will permit him to continue in the Lord's work until Jesus comes. It was a pleasure to have Sr. Lindsay with us, too.

Their happy married life together for the past fifty-four years is a most worthy example to the young, and a source of inspiration to the older people.

The children's program, which was a review of their classwork was given on Friday afternoon at one o'clock. The business meeting followed. As in past years, we found our treasurer, W. E. Boyer, had ample funds in his bank to pay all expenses, with a small surplus left for next year's Conference. The all-too-familiar subject of money had not been mentioned at any other class meeting or preaching service. Our financial policy in Virginia is based on freewill offerings paid to the treasurer privately. We find this procedure works admirably and more nearly harmonizes with New Testament teaching. Jesus said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). This method puts the gospel first, and our temporal needs second, as Christ and His true followers would have us do. The election of officers resulted as follows: P. G. Coverston, president; J. M. Boyer, vice president. Other officers remained the same as in former years.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The one note of regret that permeated our Conference this year was the knowledge that the J. R. LeCrone family would be leaving Virginia after September 1. Before the family left, Bro. LeCrone held meetings over the week end of the fifth Sunday at Browntown, Va. We are pleased to report the baptism of William Hicks and Helen Baker at the close of these services. We extend to this new brother and sister in Christ our good will and offer any assistance we can give in helping them grow in favor with God and the church.

We think Bro. and Sr. LeCrone left Virginia with kindly feelings toward all the brethren here, and we know that all here wish them joy and success in their new field of Christian labor at Ripley, Ill. Our loss is their gain. May they continue to abide in the true Vine, always serving Him in faith and love.

This leaves us without a shepherd, but we trust none of our sheep will stray far away from the fold, and we hope it will not be long before we can secure another pastor to take Bro. LeCrone's place.

Virginia R. Kincheloe, Secy.

Elizabeth Boggs Railsback was born May 30, 1863, in Illinois, and died August 13, 1941, in the Maywood hospital, Maywood, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles. She is survived by one brother, Horace J. Boggs of Los Angeles and one half-sister, Mrs. Elwood Coffing of Clarksville, Ind.

Sr. Railsback was a member of the Los Angeles Church of God, having been baptized by Bro. F. E. Siple in 1929. In 1933 she had a fall which resulted in a broken hip, from which she never fully recovered, suffering for eight years with complications which included arthritis and palsy. Her brother, who had been in charge of her welfare during her long illness, suffered another misfortune the day after her death. His wife, aged eighty-two, fell and broke her arm. Brief and private funeral services were held for Sr. Railsback, and interment was in Inglewood Cemetery.

The gospel of the Kingdom must be preached in all nations before Jesus will return from heaven. Every member of the Church of God can help to evangelize the world. The following tracts and books, most of them written by men prominent at some time in the Church of God, are for sale by the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Send a self-addressed envelope or postage for tracts not priced. How many can you use?

When Jesus Comes

By the Editor

SATAN, mechanized, mobilized, and mad, you are doomed! When Jesus comes, He "shall bruise thy head" (Gen. 3:15), that you "should deceive the nations no more" (Rev. 20:3), for He is coming to "destroy the works of the devil" (1 John 3:8). You are stretching your borders, "Mystery of Iniquity" (2 Thess. 2:7), but "when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels" (1:7), you "shall be punished with everlasting destruction" (v. 9). Napoleon had his Elba, but you cannot have Crete—when Jesus Christ possesses "the uttermost parts of the earth" (Psalm 2:8), and when His "enemies shall lick the dust" (72:9). When Jesus comes with "keys" to unlock the graves of faithful dead, He will "bind" you, Satan, with a "great chain" and "cast" you into "the bottomless pit" for a "thousand years" (Rev. 20:1-3). The Day draws near!

It will be better fortune for Balaam, when Jesus comes, for he who "heard the word of God," and "knew the knowledge of the most high," will not wait in vain to "see him"—even the "Sceptre" that "shall rise out of Israel" (Num. 24:16, 17). A "Sceptre" from the Israelites? Yes, "the shout of a king is among them" (23:21). "Where is he that is born King of the Jews?" (Matt. 2:2). Balaam will "see him" soon!

David "shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel" (Jer. 33:17), for when Jesus comes, the "Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:32, 33). When David is raised to see his Seed glorified, he will have no "want" for another or better king. Rather, David will then be fully satisfied, as he prophesied: "I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psalm 17:15).

When Jesus comes, He "shall judge the nations . . . nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Isa. 2:4). When "the great trumpet shall be blown . . . they shall come which were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and the outcasts in the land of Egypt, and shall worship the Lord in the holy mount at Jerusalem" (27:13). "In that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity" (29:18). "Jacob shall not be . . . ashamed, neither shall his face . . . wax pale. . . . They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine" (vv. 22-24).

When Jesus comes, the glorious Lord will be unto us a place of broad rivers and streams; wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby. . . . The Lord is our king; he will save us. . . .

The inhabitants shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity" (Isa. 33:21-24). "Sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (35:10).

When Jesus comes, He will immortalize the saints "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump" (1 Cor. 15:52), and will "give every man according as his work shall be" (Rev. 22:12). He and His will then be "glorified together" (Rom. 8:17), having "power over the nations" (Rev. 2:26) to "reign for ever and ever" (22:5). "The saints . . . shall take the kingdom" (Dan. 7:18), and all "shall serve and obey him" (v. 27).

"There shall be no more curse" when Jesus comes, for "the throne of God and of the Lamb" (Rev. 22:3) shall be in "the holy city, new Jerusalem" (21:2)—even the "city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 11:10). "God shall wipe away all tears" (Rev. 21:4), and "the King of glory shall come in" (Psa. 24:7).

"I WILL COME AGAIN"—JESUS

While the disciples watched from atop Olivet, Jesus "was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight" (Acts 1:9). Then angels, suddenly standing by, asked, "Why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" and plainly promised, "This same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11).

Likewise, John prophesied, "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Revelation 1:7); Paul assured, "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:28); and Peter promised, "When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (2 Peter 5:4).

Where Are the Living?

The Serpent's theology has so widely influenced religion, that there has been good reason for faithful ministers to preach many sermons on, "Where Are the Dead?" Knowing, however, that "in the grave, whither thou goest," "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom" (Eccl. 9:10), that "a living dog is better than a dead lion" (v. 4), that "the dead know not any thing" (v. 5), that "in death there is no remembrance of thee (God): in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalm 6:5), that "there the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest" (Job 3:17), a sermon title of at least equal importance is: "Where Are the Living?"

Side by side stand church and cemetery. The church is a symbol of life; its cemetery is a symbol of death. When, on a bright Sunday morning, the minister opens the Book, somebody may be wondering about, "Where Are the Dead?" but vastly more vital is the challenge of empty pews, crying: "Where Are the Living?"

Year by year, reports are published that the church outlook is bright, that new faces are frequently in the audience, that there seems to be better unity than ever before, that the Sunday school, too, is growing, and that a few conversions during the past year indicate a real soul-stirring revival "just around the corner." After reading similar reports over a period of eight or ten years, and never hearing a "peep" about the Demases (2 Tim. 4:10), one who had not learned better by close observation and experience might optimistically visualize a zealous membership of several times the actual "faithful few" who "carry on" from year to year. The cemetery which, fortunately, seldom has a revival, but grows slowly with only two or three new members per year, invariably on bright Sunday mornings has a larger attendance than the church near by.

Where are the dead? In their places—we hope!
Where are the living?—the baptized and forgiven?

"Lovers of pleasure
 More than lovers of God,"
 Having "form" of religion,
 But scattered abroad!

"It's the Christ That Ties Us Together"

Two women of unlike personalities are steadfast friends and companions. They "give and take"—sometimes to the extent that one might question their abiding friendship. There is, however, a link that binds them closely together; said one, and it might have been the other: "It's the Christ that ties us together." They await the coming of the King.

"Take Fast Hold of Instruction"

Said Solomon: "Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life" (Prov. 4:13). He who refuses instruction invariably later complains that he has never been given a fair opportunity for success, but he who takes "fast hold of instruction" will be repeatedly surprised throughout life at the opportunities that persist in coming his way. Instruction is a bosom lover—"Let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life."

"Buy the Truth, and Sell It Not"

One usually pays for that which has value. The truth is no bargain-counter commodity; it is invaluable. Will one pay "In-God-We-Trust" money for the hundreds of material goods of life, yet expect to receive spiritual and eternal goods without any sacrifice? Not only ought one to "buy the truth," but he should so love the truth as never to bargain it away. Said Solomon, the preacher, "Buy the truth, and sell it not" (Prov. 23:23).

How much are you sacrificing for that in which you profess to be most interested? "Money talks," but insofar as the Lord's work is concerned, it sometimes doesn't talk loud enough. The National Bible Institution would not be frightened if it should hear some good old-fashioned shouts!

Winter Evangelism

Summer may be the logical season for conferences, as people attending from long distances have better traveling conditions, and there are more vacations than in other seasons. Winter, however, is a good time for local evangelistic effort. An outdoor baptism in winter may be longer remembered than one when it's baking hot.

Life Lines

By William F. Thut

"Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years. And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died" (Genesis 9:28, 29).

RECENTLY, a class of Bible students was asked this question: "How old was Abraham when Noah died?" The answer, given quickly and surely, was this, "Oh! Noah died long before Abraham was born." What a surprised group they were when they learned that Abraham was fifty-eight years of age when Noah died! Certainly a remarkable fact! Although the answer is found in the Book of Genesis, a mere reading of the text does not disclose it, because the actual relation of one generation to the others cannot be kept in mind.

This relationship can be seen on a chart based on the figures given in Genesis 5:1-32; 11:10-32, and a few other portions of the same Book. Reference to such a chart quickly shows that Noah's life did overlap Abraham's; furthermore, that Noah was contemporary with sixteen other generations. Six of these generations were before the Flood, reaching backward in time to within fourteen years of Seth, the son of Adam, and to within about one hundred twenty-six years of Adam himself. We see, too, that Noah outlived two of the ten generations he saw after the Flood. Peleg, who was born seven hundred one years after Noah was born, died ten years before Noah died. Nahor, grandfather of Abraham, born seven hundred ninety-three years after Noah, died nine years before Noah did.

If Noah had lived forty-two years longer, he would have seen the birth of Isaac. Even so, he came close to witnessing two important covenants God gave to man. God made the covenant of the rainbow with Noah after the Flood, and the covenant of the promised land and the seed was first made to Abraham only seventeen years after Noah died. How do we know this? In Genesis 12:1-4 we read that Abraham was seventy-five years of age when God told him, "In thee shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Since Noah died in the fifty-eighth year of Abraham's life, it is evident that the promise was made seventeen years after Noah died. Now, Noah lived three hundred fifty years after the Flood, so the covenant which is the very foundation of our faith was first made to Abraham three hundred sixty-seven years after the Flood.

Shem, Noah's son, although living only six hundred years as compared to Noah's nine hundred fifty years, was contemporary with fifteen generations. Three of these were before the Flood, reaching back ninety-eight years into the life of Methuselah. The other generations in Shem's life came after the Flood, and his life overlapped into Jacob's by fifty years. Shem died before Jacob married, but Esau, Jacob's twin brother, had been married to two wives for ten years before Shem's death.

Arphaxad, the son of Shem, was born two years after the Flood, but he lived until the eighth anniversary of Isaac's marriage to Rebekah. Methuselah, the oldest man recorded in the Bible, lived to see all the generations from Adam to the Flood, including Shem, and, strangely enough, died in the same year that the Flood came upon the earth, but we are not told if he died immediately before the Flood or in the Flood. Enoch and Adam both lived to see nine generations, and "Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him" (Gen. 5:24). But Adam, by whom sin entered into the world, was spared the humility of witnessing Enoch's departure and reward, for Adam died fifty-seven years before it took place.

Many more interesting facts can be learned through a study of the generations of man, but one fact stands out above all the rest: the reliability of the Record. Can the Bible be true? Do you think that God would allow one portion of His Holy Word to (Please turn to page 10)

The Administration of Evangelism

By J. W. McLain, Chairman

IN beginning the administration of National Evangelism, we are faced with the task of creating a department of our national work which has existed in intent and theory only, except as devoted servants of God took it upon themselves to launch out into the field, many times without the support of their brothers behind them.

J. W. McLain

The machinery by which evangelism is to be carried on must be developed from the ground up, until it may truly "meet the needs of the church everywhere, and to open up new fields of missionary activity" (page 7, Declaration of Understanding of the General Conference of the Church of God, Section 14 of Article A).

The development of National Evangelism entails three specific tasks: administration, promotion, and evangelism.

Administration has to do with the management of the program, correspondence, and oversight of the new fields and evangelists.

Promotion has to do with keeping the people of the whole church informed by articles, letters, and personal appeal in a way that will gain their interest in and support of evangelism. A collection of pictures of the various fields is being made into lantern slides, which will be available to show the churches what is being done, in a way that they may see with their own eyes the fruit of their support of evangelism.

Evangelism is the actual work in the field of preaching the gospel. The efficient evangelist must give all his time to it. It is a work for the specialist. He must be able to put together and reveal in simple language the picture of God's plan of redemption. We are sadly lacking in such specialists who are available to give their whole time to it. We pray that the Bible Training School will develop more who are called to evangelism.

The Board of Evangelism is undertaking each phase of the work outlined above, and will develop it as rapidly as the support of the people provides the material with which to work. Lend your prayers to evangelism.

HOW SHALL THEY HEAR?

By C. E. Lapp, Treasurer

When Jesus ascended into heaven, He left in the hands of His disciples the great work of telling the gospel story to all the world. The promise had been made, "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

The question was, and still is: "How shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" (Rom. 10:13-15.)

C. E. Lapp

The responsibility for the salvation of the lost and the opportunity for their hearing the gospel is in a large measure dependent on those who have accepted Christ. To the Christian, Jesus has entrusted that vital work of preaching the gospel!

"How shall they hear without a preacher?" Again we face the same situation that existed in Jesus' time. He said, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matt. 9:37, 38). The Lord is laying a burden upon more of our young people than ever before that they should help to gather in the harvest of precious souls.

The other part of our obligation is this: "How shall they preach, except they be sent?" For several years the Board of Evangelism has been functioning, but in a rather limited field. This year, evangelism has been placed with the major objectives of our work, and we have every reason to believe the Lord will bless the effort for the salvation of others.

In the past, a number of individuals and Sunday schools have been contributing to this fund. Many Sunday schools have been giving their birthday offerings, some the Sunday school offering for one Sunday of each month. We sincerely appreciate the unselfish co-operation of those who are now interested, but we are praying all will manifest a desire to see this work supported.

If your church or Sunday school is anxious to help, or if you as an individual wish to carry the gospel of Jesus through the medium of this evangelistic effort, please send all gifts to the "Board of Evangelism," care of National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. God will abundantly bless you for being concerned about the eternal welfare of others. Let everybody give; "not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver" (2 Cor. 9:7).

OUR NEED OF EVANGELISM

By H. U. Krogh, Jr., Secretary

It is necessary for us to promote evangelism to maintain our standing before God. When we became followers of Christ, and thus "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with

Harvey Krogh, Jr.

Christ," we took upon ourselves the obligation of bearing the good news of salvation to others. We can have no boldness to approach the "throne of grace," if we are not doing His service. Neither can we do our best in anything without being in the favor of God.

Aside from the definite command to make disciples of all nations, there are other reasons why it is imperative that we do our part toward the reproduction of faith in the lives of others. One of these reasons is that the life of the church is bound up in evangelism. Had the early disciples failed to evangelize, there would be no church today. By using the same reasoning, there would be no church tomorrow if God's people failed to do that same work today. Therefore, this service is necessary for the continuance of faithful servants of the Lord upon the earth until He comes. Furthermore, the Lord has commissioned us to "go." Dare we not evangelize?

Another reason is that we may be properly developed, though the service must be for others. The Scriptures tell us that it was necessary to make "the captain of our salvation perfect through sufferings." We are reminded from other passages that although He was made perfect through sufferings, yet that suffering was for others. It is also written, "So be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." We notice that we are to suffer "with him," and until we labor and suffer for others, we ourselves will not grow. Neither are those who labor for self alone, promised eternal life. "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." Evangelism is for others.

The measuring rod of our maturity in Christ is the fruit that we bear for Him. We need evangelism.

Service to Others

By Emma C. Railsback

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them" (John 13:17).

THE lesson on service that the Saviour gave to the Twelve Apostles, in the upper room on that eventful night before His betrayal, is one that we have been long in comprehending. In looking for the events which led up to the need for an illustrated lesson of this kind, we turn to Matthew 20:17-28, where we find the story of Jesus taking "the twelve disciples apart," as they were going up to Jerusalem, and explaining to them the details of the awful trials that awaited Him there. However, they seemed incapable of comprehending the meaning of His utterances, and two of them began immediately to seek for the highest positions to be obtained in the Kingdom at its establishment. "When the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation against the two brethren" (v. 24). This selfish request seems to have bred a spirit of jealousy among the apostles, for we find traces of it up to the Last Supper. In Mark 9:33, 34, we read: "He came to Capernaum: and being in the house he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way? But they held their peace: for by the way they disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest." His rebuke to them, at this time, was quite pointed: "If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all" (v. 35).

In Luke's account of what took place on that Passover night, after describing the institution of the Communion service, he stated in 22:24: "There was also a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest." John records further details of how Jesus gave them a more emphatic lesson, by insisting on exercising the office of a household servant for them, that their minds might be more fully centered on the services which they must so soon be qualified to perform, instead of jealously seeking the highest reward which He had already told them was not His to give. The meaning to be sought in the example He gave to His disciples, by washing their feet, does not lie on the surface. I cannot render a service to my sisters in the faith by washing their feet in a public service, but there is a way in which I can and do try to render services to those of like precious faith, which is a washing worth while.

Now let us look at the two (Please turn to page 11)

"Sufficient Unto the Day"

By Muriel Randall

GOD made promises long ago to Abraham, Noah, and other of our ancients. Some of these promises have been fulfilled, but many are yet to be completed. Besides the promises of life and an eternal inheritance, God has given us many promises that He fulfills daily if we keep the promises that we made to our Father when we became His children. One of these promises is given to us by Matthew, who before his calling to discipleship was much concerned about the very things that Jesus talks to us about in Matthew 6:25-34. God in His Fatherly way (Heb. 12:6-8) has given a promise that tells us surely what we are to do to receive of His bountiful goodness today.

In Matthew 6:25, Jesus tells us, "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?" The world at large is more interested in three meals a day and clothing than in any other phase of living. It is sometimes called the first law of man, that of self-preservation. We all become hungry no matter how devout we are, but we are told not to be too concerned about eating, drinking, and clothing. We frail humans are so desirous of temporal things that we forget that the body must be fed with spiritual food and clothed with the garments of righteousness.

"Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" This verse tells us in such simplicity that our feathered friends are not anxious about their food and clothing, because the heavenly Father cares for them. One of our poets, Elizabeth Cheney, has so aptly expressed the thought of this scripture in secular verse:

"Said the robin to the sparrow,
 'I should really like to know
 Why these anxious human beings
 Rush about and worry so.'
 Said the sparrow to the robin,
 'Friend, I think that it must be
 That they have no heavenly Father,
 Such as cares for you and me.'"

We would not compare ourselves to a bird, yet we put ourselves below the bird family when we worry. The whole tenor of this portion of Scripture points out that it is definitely a sin to worry!

To further emphasize our foolish worry over necessary things, the next verse intimates that we worry over trivialities. "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature?" We know that, stretch as we may, our actual height is not increased. In fact, the more we "fret and stew," the more bent with cares we become, and we defeat what we intended to accomplish.

"And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." The foregoing verses should put us to shame. Who is not over-anxious to wear beautiful and becoming clothes? Yet, the most expensive "creation" does not compare to the lilies that God clothes with a beautiful white. Even the wise Solomon, who must have known how to dress well, was not to be classed with the lilies of the field.

"Wherefore"—now Jesus explains why He has been speaking of commonplace grass and birds—"if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you?" We can draw our own conclusions. Surely God is more interested in mankind who has the ability to think and do His divine will, than in the grass which is so short lived and cannot do His bidding. Jesus frankly says, "O ye of little faith." We actually deny God's power to see and fill our needs, when we worry. We even forget to acknowledge His past blessings.

"Therefore, take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?" This again tells us not to be overly anxious about such sensual details. Yes, that grocery bill must be paid, and it is not popular to go barefooted, but wait, God has an answer for you: "(For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of these things." If we want to be classed with the Gentiles (1 Cor. 10:32; Gal. 3:28), we forfeit the fulfillment in our lives of these promises and more. We willingly admit that God knows our needs, especially when we are too tired or careless to pray.

Verse 33 gives the core of the whole story: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Friends, God has promised (and He "is faithful that promised"—Heb. 10:23) that all food, drink, and clothing shall be added unto us. Not only does God offer a solution to our problems, but it is even a pleasant "medicine" when we earnestly seek His will. Again, He has promised, "Seek, and ye shall find." As God so graciously gives us physical necessities, will He not much more give us the necessities for our spiritual needs? You still need groceries and clothing! Well, here are several tips: "Faith without works is dead." Never did Christ or the writers of old teach or permit laziness. "Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Lord" (Psalm 27:14).

The last verse of this particular promise is: "Take no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Long centuries ago a Saviour was promised to the world; years later that Saviour was born. We wait for His second promised coming, when we shall be made like Him, even like the Lily of the Valley; and we shall feast with Him. We know that God fulfilled His promise when Christ was born. Why, then, can we not take Him at His Word, and rest secure in all His promises? He has equal power and desire to fulfill all promises. Why not "prove all things"? (1 Thess. 8:21.)

Perhaps Paul would have said, "O foolish Christians, who hath bewitched you," that you worry? God has given life; surely He will sustain that life that is serving Him. God's promises are sure. When we see the effect in our own lives of His faithful promises, we should more diligently look for the fulfillment of the promise given to the prophets of old—that of a coming King.

The Successful Christian

By Mary Richardson

THIS world is composed of different races and many nationalities, each bearing significant features and distinguishing characteristics. Each person has different traits, aptitudes, and habits that set him apart from his fellow man. In man's dealings with other members of the human race, there has never existed the true spirit of congeniality and harmony that God has so desired. However, God had the foreknowledge of man's reactions under various circumstances; therefore He caused the Bible to be written for his admonition. He knew the frailty of humanity and the many weaknesses that would be brought to light under the various trials and temptations that men suffer. For our own benefit we have the most perfect Book ever written—the Bible—and therein is set forth rules of conduct and well being that would be for our betterment if we adhered to them.

As we have implied, man is prone to be selfish and to seek for the gratification of his own wants and desires before considering those of his fellow man, whereas, if he was considerate and sacrificed some of his personal whims for the good of others, he would be exhibiting the true spirit of Christianity. One cannot expect to always take and never give in return, because this world is not constructed in that way. There are times when the tide is turned and we must make sacrifices. As Christ was our sacrifice on the cross, to be true Christians we must manifest that same principle in our lives. One cannot reach the eventual reward of eternal life, unless sacrifices are made and trials and temptations are endured successfully.

We know that Paul was a wonderful person, having Christ. To have made his acquaintance would have been a real source of assurance and strength in such trying times as today. His writings are truly great in every sense, and we are fortunate indeed to have them in recorded form for our study and use. In every person's writings there are always emphasized certain points, and the following seem to stand out in Paul's message.

In Colossians 3:14, Paul said: "Above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness." The word "charity" is interpreted "love," and Paul seemed to know that it embodied a world of meaning. We fear that possibly this attribute is not exercised very strongly among our brethren, for there is always an evident indication of strife, jealousy, and envying in most churches. Perhaps our finger cannot be placed, as it were, on the exact source of disunity, but we can feel its presence. Those brethren need to heed Paul's advice. If love toward others is present in our lives, we may serve to bridge the widening gap in contentions that may gradually lead to the lessening of interest in church activities. Such is one condition against which we need to guard, for any church with this evident in its midst cannot go forward with the rapidity that is so gratifying. In fact, something of this nature may tend to be discouraging to our leaders and weaken their enthusiasm.

Every individual in the church should be a militant Christian. He needs to take up arms against such distasteful and ungainly conditions. One should always seek toward the bond of perfectness by making every effort to curb those traits that would endanger the cause for which we are fighting and living. (Please turn to page 11)

Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy

A Serial—Part Six

By A. L. Corbaley

In Haggai 2:6, 7, we read, "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Yet once, it is a little while and I will shake the heavens, and the earth and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come. . . . In this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts."

A Shaking—Then the Millennium

What a dark picture for the wicked nations is here given as the result of man's misrule and wickedness on the earth! The nations deserve a "shaking." We have seen how impotent man is to bring peace to the world! World conditions are getting worse, and will continue to do so until the Lord comes. When Jesus comes, He will reward His faithful servants by first giving them eternal life, as promised in 1 John 2:25: "This is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life—to be given 'at the resurrection of the just' (Luke 14:14). To one, Christ will say, "Because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities." To another who was faithful, but had done less, He will say, "Be thou also over five cities." (Luke 19:1, 7-19.) In harmony with those promises is the one in Revelation 3:21: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

How long will Jesus reign? "He must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:26). Then death is not a friend in disguise, as is sometimes claimed! How long will the saints reign with Him? Throughout the Millennium! "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" (Rev. 20:4). Where did they reign with Him? "We shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5:9, 10.) How beautifully all parts of the Bible harmonize when it is "rightly" divided! (2 Tim. 2:15.)

What changes will be made in the earth, itself, during the one thousand years of Christ's reigning with His saints? We have already mentioned some of them, but here are others: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice; and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God" (Isa. 35:1, 2). (Please read the chapter.)

In Isaiah 55:13 we read: "Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier, shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off." The Apostle Paul tells us, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit" (1 Cor. 2:9, 10).

The Saints to Be Like Christ

Jesus said, "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection" (Luke 20:35, 36). In this mortal state of existence, the blood is the life of every creature, including man. (Gen. 9:4; Lev. 17:14; Acts 15:20.) (Therefore, in all ages man has been forbidden to eat blood.) In the resurrection life, man will be born of the Spirit of God, and will be a spiritual being like Christ. In 1 John 3:2, 3, we read, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God (by begetting; 1 Cor. 4:15), and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. Every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

What was Jesus like after His resurrection? He asked the disciples: "Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. And when he had thus spoken, he showed them his hands and his feet" (Luke 24:38-40). He also ate a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb," proving that He was the same Jesus whom the disciples had seen nailed to the cross.

When Jesus first appeared unto the apostles after His resurrection, Thomas was not with them. When they told him that they had seen the Lord, he said, "Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe" (John 20:25). After eight days again His disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you. Then said he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing. And Thomas answered and said unto him, "My Lord and my God. Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me (not a body he had manufactured for the occasion), thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (John 20:26-29).

Thus, in the resurrected state, God's people will have flesh and bones, the same as Jesus had after His resurrection.

The Binding of Satan

It has been said, "It is a shrewd device of the Devil to persuade the world that there isn't any." In Revelation 20:1-3, John saw an "angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, and cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season."

Next, John saw the righteous dead live again, and "they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." During this time Satan is to be bound. Now, if Satan is only sin in the flesh, and if he is to be bound during the thousand years, there should be no sin during that time. In Isaiah 65:20, however, the Prophet telling the length of life among the mortal nations upon the earth, said: "There shall be no more thence and infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; but the sinner, being an hundred years old shall be accursed." So, there will be sin during the thousand years, and so-called "sin in the flesh" could not be Satan.

At the close of the thousand years, Satan will be released from "his prison, and shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea. And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them. And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever" (Rev. 20:7-10).

The term "for ever" does not always mean eternal or unending duration, but, sometimes, it is qualified by the connection in which it is used. In this case the qualifying term is "day and night." Will day and night cease? If so, the torment will also cease, for the torment was to continue "day and night, for ever and ever." In Revelation 22:5, we read, "There shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever." In Revelation 5:10, we learn that they "shall reign on the earth." In Revelation 20:4 it says, "They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." So the "for ever and ever" is limited by the period of time—a thousand years. A still shorter time where the term "for ever" is used is in Jonah 2:6. After the "great fish" had swallowed Jonah, he said: "I went down to the bottom of the mountains; the earth with her bars was about me for ever." He was in the whale's belly "three days and three nights" (Matt. 12:40).

In Psalm 37:10, 20, we read, "Yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. . . . the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away." In 1 Corinthians 3:17, the Apostle said: "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." Also, "The wages of sin is death (not torment); but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Judgment

In Revelation 20:11 we read, "I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them." In Isaiah 2:19-21 we read: "They shall go into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of the earth, for fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth to shake terribly the earth." So, when the Lord appears in the presence of men, they will be filled with fear. In Isaiah 34:1 we read: "Come near, ye nations to hear; and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is therein; the world, and all things that come of it." Here, the earth and the world are called upon to hear, meaning, of course, the people and nations dwelling on the earth, and not the earth itself. Likewise, 2 Peter 3:6, speaking of the effect of the Flood, says, "Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished." What was it that perished? The literal earth? Genesis 7:21, 22 tells us, "All flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man: all in whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land died." Hence, "the earth and the heaven" of Revelation 20:11 refers to beings, not to places.

The balance of Revelation 20 has reference to the second resurrection, the judgment scene, and the final result to those then resurrected from the dead: which will include the wicked of all ages of the world's history and those who were righteous during the one-thousand-year reign of Christ and His saints, but who died at the age of one hundred years. (See Isa. 65:20.)

Kingdom Probation

Probation will be extended to the mortal nations of the earth during the one-thousand-year reign, as shown in Acts 15:14-17, where we read: "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, after this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men (those who are left here upon the earth after the Battle of Armageddon) might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things." This probation will apply to those only who will be alive during the thousand years, as none will be raised from the dead between the first and second resurrections. This life is given us to prepare for eternity, and no future probation is promised to one beyond this life.

In Proverbs 11:7, 8 we read: "When a wicked man dieth, his expectation shall perish: and the hope of unjust men perisheth. The righteous is delivered out of trouble, and the wicked cometh in his stead." Also, in 2 Corinthians 6:2, the Apostle said: "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation."

The Second Death

The next verses of Revelation 20 read: "I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works—(that is, according to what they had done in this life). And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell (the grave) delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works—(for what they had done in this life). And death and hell (the grave) were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death." The first death comes upon man because of Adam's sin, but if one dies the second time, it will be because of his own sins.

In Jude 1:12, in speaking of the fate of the wicked, we read: "Trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots; raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever." Then the second death is final; there is no hope beyond it. "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:15). "He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death" (2:11). So, the second death will be the final result to all the rejected ones of Adam's family.

Where will be the place of execution? where will the second death be inflicted? We have already found that it will be after the day of judgment, at the end of the one-thousand-year reign of Christ and His saints. Now, where will it be? In Psalm 37:9 it says, "Evildoers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth." Obviously, sinners will be destroyed on the earth, not in an underground oven. "The upright shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it. But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressors shall be rooted out of it" (Prov. 2:21, 22).

Literal Fire

Let us turn to 2 Peter 3:5, 6, where we read of the Flood in the days of Noah. God, through Noah, warned the wicked world that it would come unless they repented. They did not repent, so the Flood came and they were all destroyed, except those who were in the ark—"whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished." The Flood was a type of something that is coming upon the earth in the future, and Peter in verse 7 tells us what it is: "The heavens and the earth, which are now (as we see them today), by the same word (by the Word of God) are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." As surely as the Flood covered the whole earth and drowned all the ungodly and disobedient in it, there will be a flood of fire in which all ungodly and disobedient will be destroyed. "The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away (the atmospheric heavens around the earth) with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burned up" (2 Peter 3:10). The fire will destroy not only every mortal creature in it, but will also burn the thorns and the thistles and their seed, which the Flood of water did not do. The curse pronounced upon the earth because of Adam's transgression will be removed, and the earth will be pure.

Beware of a Forked Tongue

The Apostle gave the following admonition concerning the conduct of Christians who know these things: "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?" How important, then, that the Christian should be careful that his conversation is above reproach! In Matthew 12:36 Jesus said: "I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned." "How forcible are right words!" (Job 6:25.) How important that we should choose our words with the utmost care, and avoid all slang expressions and words that contain suggestions of evil!

"A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger" (Prov. 15:1). Did you ever try using soft words when replying to one who is angry at you, and is loudly condemning you? If not, try it. It works. "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Prov. 25:11). With what care we should choose the words that we speak, lest they harm some innocent person! In Psalm 15, David asked a question, and gave the answer: "Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? who shall dwell in thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart. He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doeth evil to his neighbour." Backbiting is a very prevalent evil. By it, friends are separated and houses are made desolate. When it is practiced in the church, soon there is suspicion, hatred, envy, and strife. The workers become discouraged, and the church loses its influence in the community where once a good work was done. So, it is something to be avoided as a contagion, for it does decrease the membership and leaves wounds that are almost impossible to heal.

If a brother has a fault, Jesus tells us how to approach him. Even if we know that he has wronged us, are we to tell the other members about it so they can point the finger of scorn at him? Jesus told us what we should do, and if we follow His commandments we shall make no mistake. "Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican" (Matt. 18:15-17). If these directions would be followed, even though he would not hear you, the witnesses nor the church, only the man himself would become a castaway. The church would not be disrupted, and you would be justified in the sight of God and man.

Divine Protection

We have found from God's Word that the wicked will be destroyed by the fire that purifies the earth. Where will the righteous be while the purifying fire is doing its work? In Psalm 37:34 David said: "Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it." Then Isaiah added his testimony. "The sinners in Zion are afraid; fearfulness hath surprised the hypocrites. Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings? He that walketh righteously, and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, that shaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that stoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and shutteth his eyes from seeing evil; he shall dwell on high. . . . Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty" (Isa. 33:14-17). The fire that purifies the earth cannot hurt the saints. They will have "lived and reigned with Christ for a thousand years" before the burning day. Fire cannot affect them, for they will be immortal, and "equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection."

In Judges 13, we read of an angel appearing to Manoah and his wife, before the birth of Samson. He instructed them about what the woman should eat and drink before the birth of the child. Manoah offered a sacrifice upon a rock, a kid and a meat offering. "The angel did wonderfully; and Manoah and his wife looked on. For it came to pass, when the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar." The fire could not injure the angel of the Lord, nor will fire injure the saints of God when they are "equal unto the angels."

Neither did the fire injure the three Hebrew children when they were cast into the fiery furnace by the king of Babylon, and the furnace was heated "seven times more than it was wont to be heated." They were thrown into the furnace, bound hand and foot, and the fire did not hurt them. "The princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was an hair of their head singed, neither were their coats changed, nor the smell of fire had passed on them" (Dan. 3:27). These men were not immortal, but God had protected them.

Now, when the fire has done its work of destruction, there will be reconstruction. "Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13). There will be no sin there, because the sinners will have been burned in the fire. Malachi referred to this same fire in chapter 4: "Behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. . . . Ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of hosts."

In Isaiah 65:17 we read of the new heavens and the new earth which Peter said God has promised: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." Even the memory of our probationary period of life will be forgotten. How grand and glorious and satisfying that life will be, when the trials, turmoils, and troubles of this life will pass out of our minds!

God Will Dwell With Men

In 1 Corinthians 15:25, 26, in speaking of the reign of Christ on the earth, he said, "He must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. . . . When all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all." Is God, the Father, going to transfer His seat of power from heaven, from where He now rules the universe, to this earth, when it is renovated and renewed? Let us now read John 14:23: "Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." The Son and the Father will both be here on the earth, and make this their abode.

John said: "I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne, said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful. And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death."

Conclusion

The second death, where the wicked will be reduced to ashes, will be the eternal fate of the wicked. The righteous will live eternally on the earth renovated and purified by fire, then transformed into Edenic splendor. It will be the Eternal Home of the saved of Adam's family. "The throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him: and they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 22:3-5). What will be the extent of the eternal inheritance of the righteous? "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son."

Brother, Sister, no more glorious future could possibly be offered us than our heavenly Father has promised His faithful children—an eternity of bliss in a perfect state of happiness. "Now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2).

MR. SUNDAY STAYATHOME

Mr. Sunday Stayathome, who sends (it should be takes) his children to Sunday school, could read his Bible at home, but he doesn't. He reads the Sunday paper.

He could visit with his neighbor, speaking about the signs of the times and the coming of the Lord, but he doesn't. His neighbor, another "stayathome," is more interested in the Louis-Nova fight and the World Series; Bible subjects have not a Chinaman's chance.

Mr. Sunday Stayathome could write a word of cheer to an invalid or some discouraged soul, but he doesn't. He worries about his income tax, polishes his new automobile, and pities himself for being unable to build a new home.

He could pray at home, but he doesn't. He listens to the broadcast of the nearest professional football game, plays golf, or sleeps. Oh! What morals!

FROM "THE NEW PALESTINE"

Selected by Lyle Rankin

NEW anti-Semitic legislation in France, threats of expulsion against the Jews of Italy, and the horrors of the Polish ghetto were all temporarily pushed from the headlines while the mighty German and Russian war machines clash along a lengthy military front on which are concentrated several million Jews.

Neutral correspondents on the battle front estimate that not less than three hundred thousand civilians, including many thousands of Jews, were killed in the first three weeks of the war. Dozens of towns and villages have been completely wiped off the map by the heavy artillery on both sides, and tens of thousands of homeless victims, without food or shelter or any prospect of either, fill the woods and fields as the two armies remain locked in mortal combat.

Five million Jews are in the direct path of the Nazi armies, with three million of them in the Ukraine, which is Hitler's immediate objective. One million five hundred thousand Jews are in Soviet Poland, most of which has already been occupied by the Nazis. It is reported that the Germans are separating the Jews from other captured Russians, and placing them in separate internment camps. Mass executions of civilian populations, such as took place in Warsaw last year, are already being reported in the cities captured by the Germans.

At the time of the heavy fighting in the Syrian districts adjoining Palestine, life in the Jewish settlements near the frontier continued as usual. In some settlements the crops were harvested with the accompaniment of artillery fire, but nowhere did the fighting actually take place on Palestinian soil. The successful end of the Syrian campaign has created more confidence among the Jewish population of Palestine.

THE SUCCESSFUL CHRISTIAN

Christ was made perfect by His obedience, and we, today, are gradually being polished and made smooth by the disappointments, sufferings, sorrows, and trials that we endure. Of course, we cannot hope for a perfect polish job, but our motives can be such that this will always be the goal in view by which we will attain unto if we prove faithful.

Love was very strongly shown in Christ's associations with men. He was no respecter of persons and loved all, both great and small. None was too poor or sinful that He did not look on him with compassion and love.

A person proves he is very narrow-minded if he cannot be tolerant of others. God never meant for all to think alike or act alike, for if this were the setup, what a queer and monotonous world we would live in! Therefore, the trait of love needs to play an important role in our lives. Do not give it a back seat, but, rather, let it have an honored and sacred place in our relation with our brethren. We approach perfectness when our lives are surrendered in harmony with the will of God, and when love is exhibited.

SERVICE TO OTHERS

Greek words for the word "wash" in John 13. In verse 10, we read, "He that is washed." The Greek word for "washed" is louo, meaning a complete cleansing, which only Christ can give, for He is the One and only One who can wash away our sins. This washing is not literal. If any one of us were to give his life for the world, his sacrifice would not avail to save others, for God requires a spotless sacrifice—a perfect lamb—therefore, we cannot give a complete cleansing, but let us look at the other Greek word: nipto, from which we get "wash" in the other verses in this connection, as 5, 6, 8, and 14. Nipto means a partial cleansing, and is used in connection with the washing of face, hands, and feet, as in John 9:7 and Matthew 6:17; 15:2. Now, we can wash the feet of the brethren from the contaminations of the world, when we see them wandering into by and forbidden paths. It is ours to reprove, rebuke, exhort, to convert the sinner (brother) from the error of his way, for in doing this we shall both save ourselves and them that hear us. Our Saviour said, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." It is indeed a true happiness to be able to lead others to the Word of God that they may be cleansed thereby.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Who Will Be Joyful?

We often think of the many signs which tell us of the soon coming of our Lord and King. Shall we ponder over a different viewpoint regarding these signs? Who are the ones who will be joyful when Jesus comes? Who will be sorrowful?

As we walk along the road of life, we choose the broad way or the straight and narrow by the deeds we do and the words we say. We know we must have faith in God if we are to please Him (Heb. 11:6). "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth" (Rom. 14:22). From the last portion of the above verse, we see another "sign" to tell us if we will be joyful or sad. In order to walk the road that Jesus walked we must live up to our Bible ideals, not doing things that are questionable or wrong; even to doubt is sin. (Rom. 14:23.)

Young people, you generally have very high ideals. You set a high goal on where your daily work will lead you if you are successful. Sometimes you pattern your habits and characteristics after a person whom you admire, making that person your idol, we say. For Christians, there is only One who is worthy to be the example for us—even Jesus. He is our Pattern. Human idols fail us. When they fail, we must look elsewhere for a pattern. How much better it is, then, to choose Jesus as our example—first. He never failed His Father in any test. He won't fail us. He knew the Word of God so well, had it hid in His heart, so that He never sinned! We, too, should choose the Bible ideals.

What are one or two of these Bible ideals, so we can think of others? One that the youngest reader, as well as the oldest, should know and do is to "honour thy father and mother" (Eph. 6:2). Children show no honor to their parents when they disobey them. They show no honor when they refuse to accept advice from their parents. Try to honor, to respect the words of your parents. No honor is shown to parents who are not treated as well as children treat their friends. Another Bible ideal is, "Abstain from all appearance of evil" (1 Thess. 5:22).

How much doubt, sorrow, and ill feelings are spared one who follows this advice!

Those who will be joyful when Jesus comes are mentioned in a portion of this verse: "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Heb. 9:28). Are you looking for Jesus? Have you accepted His way of life? Have you put on Christ by being buried with Him in baptism? If so, "when these things (signs of the times) begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28).

A life set aside for the services of God is one that will be joyful. "Hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him. For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God" (1 John 3:19-21).

Those who will be sorrowful are those with no faith in God. They are the ones who willfully go on their way without Him, trusting in their own strength. They sometimes know, but fail to live for Jesus: "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48). Even "the devils also believe, and tremble" (James 2:19).

May we look, not with fear and trembling, but trustingly and joyfully for the return of our Saviour and King.

The Test of a Christian

* * *

By Virginia Smith, London, Ark.

A young person is given rigid tests before being permitted to operate an airplane. An engineer takes examinations before he may assume control of a locomotive. Teachers must have certain merits before they can obtain places in schools. In practically every vocation and work, certain tests must be passed before responsibility is taken. The Christian, also, has to pass tests. In 1 Peter 1:7 we read, "That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." When David was fleeing through the wilderness, pursued by his own son, he was being prepared to become the sweet singer of Israel. Joseph was sold into Egyptian bondage, then cast into prison, but he came forth victorious. Job suffered many trials and afflictions, yet he said of God: "He knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold" (Job 23:10).

Nothing "just happens" to the Christian. Many things that enter his life seem to have been sent or permitted to come by an all-wise and loving heavenly Father. Invariably, they tend to perfect character and enlarge capacity for service. The rocks and rough places on the mountain-side are the things upon which we climb. Even failures, if taken rightly, may become stepping stones to higher ground.

A Christian is reminded to be honest and truthful—al pretense is to be laid aside. Jesus met many who outwardly manifested interest in Him, but failed in the hours of trial. (John 6:66.) He also encountered those who gave lip service, but in their hearts had no love or concern for the deeper spiritual life. (Matt. 15:8.) It is well for us to take these things as solemn warnings. "Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth" (1 John 3:18).

Obedience to the commands which Jesus has made is a convincing way to prove our discipleship. Our time, talents, and all belong to Christ. Too many have the idea that our Christian duties are to be determined by our preferences. Regardless of what we may want to do, in all things we should give Christ first place.

Jesus commanded His disciples to "love one another," (John 15:12, 17). This was to be the outward evidence of the proper condition of the heart. He added, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13:35). In James 1:12 we read, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."

Forewarned

Typewriter keys are clicking, a mimeograph is rolling 'round and 'round, and our secretary is filling her fountain pen. During our last business meeting your editor, on the left, was instructed to gather information concerning each Berean member. The work has now begun, so if one of your Berean officers approaches you in the near future and starts to ask you questions about your past, present, and future, do not be alarmed. We are just doing our duty.

What we are going to do is mimeograph a questionnaire which will be sent to all the Berean societies in the country and to all the known isolated members. An officer appointed from each society will call on each of the members, ask between twenty-five and thirty questions of each, and help him fill in the blanks. Some of the questions you will find in no other questionnaire. Not even the "Gallup Poll" has thought of them! However, if all will co-operate in answering the questions as nearly correct as possible, it is believed that from the information received we will be able to plan the future course of the Berean work more thoroughly than ever before.

Farmers didn't start raising the wonderful crops under adverse conditions as they do now, until someone thought of analyzing the soil in the different fields to see what it contained and what it lacked. That the time of each Berean worker may be spent profitably, it is necessary that each one know what is needed and where.

Who is going to see and use this information? Only those officers whom you elected to supervise the work of your Berean society and their duly authorized assistants. Eventually, these records will be in the hands of the secretary, and some of the information will be subject to release only on written order from the president of the National Berean Society. Will you co-operate? Thank you!

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF EVANGELISM

October 5-19—Special meetings at Hope Chapel, South Bend, Ind.
 October 12—California Conference at Pomona.
 October 12-26—Special meetings at Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio.
 October 19-24—Special meetings at Guthrie Grove Church of God, near Piedmont, S. C.

GOLDEN RULE CHURCH OF GOD Cleveland, Ohio

We, the Golden Rule Church of God, are going to hold a series of meetings this fall, October 12-26. We have held evangelistic meetings for several years, and we have decided that our own people need strengthening more than we need new members, so these meetings will be revival meetings. When we have better quality, then we can seek for more quantity—not that we don't have good quality now, but there comes a time in all churches when there is a falling away. I feel that when America as a whole gets back to God, then and only then can we sing the song, "God Bless America." Bro. C. E. Lapp will conduct the meetings. J. Don Swartz, Clerk.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS Rally Day—October 5, 1941 115 N. Third St.

9:30 a.m.—Sunday school
 10:30 a.m.—Morning worship
 11:20 a.m.—Communion service
 Basket dinner at noon

We are a small congregation; we need your presence and help. If you do not worship elsewhere, come worship with us.

Jesus is soon coming to gather His "jewels." Are you giving part of your time to help spread the gospel?

Francis Burnett, Pastor.

FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY Dixon, Ill., Church of God

A worship service in honor of the fifteenth anniversary of this church will be observed October 5. A short Rally Day program will be given during the Sunday school hour.

Sunday school will begin at 9:30 a.m., followed by the worship service at eleven o'clock, at which time Bro. C. Alan McLain will deliver the sermon. Communion service will follow the sermon. Scramble dinner in the church basement will be at 12:30 p.m.

Bro. L. E. Conner is to be the special anniversary speaker at 2:30 p.m.

The Dixon Church of God invites you to be present on this anniversary day.

C. Alan McLain, Pastor.

FREDERICKTOWN, MISSOURI

While we were at Fredericktown, Mo., this last week, Miss Helen Graham and her sister Joyce Graham, both of Fredericktown, accepted Jesus as their Saviour and were baptized on the afternoon of September 21. Both these young ladies are in high school. We pray that their lives may become beautiful for the Master.

SOUTHLAWN CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

What an inspiration it is to see the church group back and ready to work, now that the summer season is over. Our full program is moving along, and the attendance and interest are exceptionally good.

The Doreas ladies have started a project to raise funds for an electric church organ. This is quite a large undertaking, and cannot be done in a "flash," but these ladies are hard workers and we predict they will do their part successfully.

A large percentage of the Sunday school teachers are now engaged in a teacher training course which meets once each week for a two-hour period. We trust some real benefits will come from this.

The pastor's family is located in their new home at 147 Nottingham, St., S.W., where they welcome correspondence or calls from the brethren.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. Ernest Barnum, a student of the Summer Bible Training School in 1940, is in his sophomore year at Southeastern Louisiana College, Hammond, La.

Sr. Mary Richardson is a student in the Graduate School of Social Welfare, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.

Sr. Muriel Randall, Oregon, Ill., is enjoying a brief visit with her parents, Bro. and Sr. Ernest Randall, Braham, Minn.

It was a pleasure to have Mrs. Mabel Burk and Mrs. Sam Douglas from Tacoma, Wash., and Caspar, Wyo., respectively, as visitors in Oregon, Ill., for a few days following their arrival with two of our Bible Training School students, Beth and Hazel. The senior ladies are now en route homeward.

Bro. Ben Carpenter, Oregon, Ill., is visiting his parents, Bro. and Sr. J. F. Carpenter, and other relatives at Perryville, Ky.

The Bible Training School plans to visit the Church of God at Fredericktown, Mo., October 18, 19.

"We are glad to hear the good report of the Bible Training School. The Church of God needs consecrated men for the ministry, and we pray that many such workers may come from the Training School effort. We have been well pleased with those who came here from the School."—Mrs. William Hanson, Caledonia, Mich.

Bro. Celaine Randall, student minister of the Bible Training School, preached Sunday, September 28, at Kokomo, Ind. He will preach at Burr Oak, Sunday, October 5.

ILLINOIS QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The Illinois Quarterly Conference was held at the Salem church near Marshall, September 20, 21. Each of the following churches was represented: Casey, Oregon, Dixon, Ripley, Rockford, and Eldorado; also Fredericktown, Mo.

The hospitable brethren at this place surely welcomed us, and they could have entertained several more. We only wished more could have been with us to enjoy this little season of feasting on God's Word, as well as greeting brethren of long acquaintance and meeting new ones.

Bros. Alan McLain, Francis Burnett, J. R. LeCrone, and James Watkins were the speakers and leaders of the Bible class, bringing us in remembrance of Bible truths.

Again, we thank the Marshall brethren for their kindnesses, and we pray that they will continue to grow in the Lord's service.

Mrs. Frank Laning, Secy.

HERALD RECEIPTS

That's Right! "When you are at Fredericktown, Mo., be sure to take the Training School to visit the Blush Church of God out in the country."—C. E. Lapp.

"I arrived at the home of Robert and Elsie Harvey, 1230 S. Union St., Kokomo, Ind., September 26, 1941. I like the family, so I think I will stay. I weigh nine pounds. GUTHRIE GROVE CHURCH OF GOD
(Near Piedmont, South Carolina)

On Sunday, September 7, we had the happy privilege of hearing two wonderful sermons by Bro. R. G. Huggins of Cleveland, Ohio. His topic for the morning sermon was "Faith," and the evening sermon, equally as good, was entitled "Prophecy." We learned much from his talks, and I am sure we can now better understand the prophecies of the Bible.

Accompanying Bro. Huggins on this trip were his wife, and Bro. and Sr. Drabenstott and son Herman of Indiana. This was their first trip to South Carolina, and was indeed a grand surprise. We surely enjoyed their visit and hope they may return soon.

Following our series of meetings, August 3-12, which meetings were conducted by Bros. M. O. Williamson and J. H. Anderson, the following converts were baptized: Miss Peggy Durham, Pelzer; Miss Bobbie Reid, Piedmont; Miss Elizabeth Mills, Liberty, Rt. 1; Mr. John Henry Hicks, Arlington Road Sta., Greer; Miss Virginia James, 2 Archie St., Piedmont; Mr. and Mrs. James Capps, Pelzer; Faith Nodine, Inman (all the foregoing in South Carolina); and Mr. Furman Browning, A.S.S. Schenck, care P.M., New York, N. Y.

Brother Anderson plans to conduct another series of meetings, October 19-24.

BIBLE TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

School days are here again! No more vacations for the young people who have chosen to work in the Lord's vineyard! The wide open spaces have given way to the atmosphere of the classroom, and the music of the birds and bees to the steady hum of everyone's nose to the grindstone. Every student is here for business, for there is no place for slackers in the Lord's work. The new students have come full of spirit and enthusiasm and the second- and third-year students have returned renewed by a respite of a few short months.

The first class was held Tuesday morning, September 16, at 8:00 o'clock with eleven of the fourteen anticipated students in attendance. The three who were not present were Richard Smith, who arrived Wednesday afternoon, and Beth Hoganson and Hazel Burk, who arrived Thursday. We are sorry they could not be in attendance the first day, but "better late than never."

These are the students now enrolled for full-time work: seniors, Ellsworth Routson, West Milton, Ohio; Elaine Randall, Fonthill, Ont.; C. Alan McLain, Mt. Sterling, Ill.; E. Richard Smith, Dayton, Ohio; sophomores, Francis Burnett, Ripley, Ill.; George Walters, Dixon, Ill.; Terry Ferrell, Pomona, Calif.; freshman, Richard Parish, Cleveland, Ohio; Paul Williams, Gladbrook, Iowa; Glen Miller, St. Cloud, Minn.; Iris Hall, Alto, Mich.; Robert Hardesty, Oregon, Ill.; Beth Hoganson, Spanaway, Wash.; and Hazel Burk, Tacoma, Wash. We give a hearty welcome to the new students!
Terry Ferrell, Reporter.

MRS. NANCY HURD

Funeral services were held at the Church of God in Eden Valley, Minn., for Mrs. Nancy Hurd, Saturday afternoon, September 20, who died September 17, at the age of eighty-five years. She had spent the last years of her life at the home of her son Carl, where it was always a pleasure to call and visit with her. She was one who enjoyed her life even though she had been failing in health for several years.

The writer conducted funeral services to a crowd of relatives and friends. She was laid to rest in Lake View Cemetery to await the resurrection morning.

Walter Wiggins.

EVANGELISTIC FIELD NEWS

Wednesday, September 17, a missionary society was organized at the Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids, Mich. Officers elected were: Mrs. Gladys Bultman, president; Mrs. Gertrude Card, vice president; and Bernice Slocum, secretary-treasurer. Any of these may be addressed at the church address, 28 Allen Road, S.W., Grand Rapids, Mich. The purpose of the society is to present study papers on missionary work, to study the Bible in regard to such activity, and to do such hand sewing as will make a pleasant and social meeting. They will meet once a month, except that they have volunteered to have a work bee to assist the Board of Evangelism in folding and inserting letters in envelopes for mailing to the membership everywhere.

This is the second such organization of which we have knowledge. The first is at Fredricktown, Mo. We would be glad to have information from them as to their activities. They are invited to affiliate with this society and others that may be formed.

These organizations can do much to properly bring to the constant attention of a church group the needs of the evangelistic field. Who will be the next to organize?

The meeting at Skelton, W. Va., is set for October 7-19, pending confirmation from that field. A brother has bespoken $30.00 for the work there. Who else will rise to the occasion, so the meeting will have its expenses guaranteed?

We see that the church at South Bend, Ind., has announced a series of evangelistic meetings with Bro. C. E. Randall as the speaker. Bro. Randall is one of our best evangelists. Pray that there may be a great ingathering.

The "Calendar of Evangelism" should be filled with churches that are planning their fall meetings. Have you planned yours?

J. W. McLain, Chairman.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

We returned to Eden Valley, August 28, after a trip which took us through seven states in which we visited nine churches. What a wonderful time we had at Brush Creek and Delta, Ohio, churches! It was like being at home—no strangers there! We enjoyed every minute that we were there. We found the Ohio Conference in full "swing," and we had the privilege of preaching twice at Brush Creek—Thursday evening and Sunday morning; then we drove to Delta for evening services. We preached Sunday, August 24, and, again, Tuesday evening. There are wonderful people at Delta, and they show their faith by their works.

We were sorry to leave Wednesday morning, making short stops at Grand Rapids and Blanchard, Mich. We had supper with Bro. and Sr. Ellsworth Routson, Wednesday evening, staying overnight at Ludington, Mich., where we caught a boat for Manitowoc, Wis.

We arrived home Thursday evening, and what did we find but a Wolfe at the door, in the person of Vernis Wolfe. Bro. Wolfe was with us for the week of September 1-7, and he conducted meetings each evening. Bro. Wolfe is one of our best Bible students, and we hope he can come again.

Bro. and Sr. L. E. Conner came Monday evening, September 1, followed by Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay and Bros. and Srs. George Siple and G. H. Loudenslager, who enjoyed a week of fishing and visiting friends. Bro. Conner could not get away without preaching at least once—speaking for us Sunday evening, September 7.

Bro. and Sr. Elmo Gaspar, and Bro. and Sr. Stanley Ross each have a big boy, and Bro. and Sr. Carrol Bennett have a fine girl. "There shall be showers of blessings."

We are glad to be home and back at work, which is very pleasant. Eden Valley is a northern church with southern hospitality.

Walter Wiggins, Pastor.

NEWELL - HEIMER

On the night of September 23, a very pretty church wedding took place in Southlawn Church, Grand Rapids, Mich., when Miss Mary Newell became the bride of Mr. Arthur Heimer. The building had been beautifully decorated, and the bridal party made an impressive picture among the palms, flowers, and candelabra.

Sister Mary has been well known among our church young people for many years. She will be remembered by many as an attendant of the Summer Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill., for the years 1938 and 1939.

Mr. Heimer was connected with a Grand Rapids business enterprise until recently inducted into the army. He is located at Camp Polk, La.

The church and friends join in wishing this happy couple the best of everything as they journey life's way together.

F. E. Siple.

DAVID PETERS

The writer was called to conduct the funeral service of David Peters at the home of his son Stanley. Mr. Peters was born in Ireland and died at eighty-seven years of age at his home in Paynesville, Minn. After a short service at the home, he was laid to rest at Saint Cloud, Minn. We had become acquainted with Mr. Peters through his daughter, Mrs. Art Otto. We look for a day when these things will all pass away.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is the official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. It is published by the National Bible Institution at Oregon, Illinois.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him, (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:13); the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.
